LET us [a] therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it.

2 For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but the word [b] preached did not profit them, [c] not being mixed with faith in them that heard it.

die; that he might grapple with Satan in his own dominions, and deliver those whom he held in miserable captivity, even through the fear of being enslaved by him.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—19. Christ more worthy than Moses, and disobedience to him more criminal than under the old dispensation.—St. Paul having shown at large the superiority of Christ to angels, though for a time he had humbled himself beneath them, for the purpose of making atonement for human transgression, now proceeds to recommend him to the Hebrews, as the Apostle and High Priest of the Christian religion.

"Considering him [Christ] as the Apostle, or founder of our religion, he compares him with Moses, that eminent prophet and ministerial founder of the Jewish religion. The Hebrews had justly a very high opinion of Moses, their great prophet and lawgiver; but as they did not clearly perceive the design of the Mosaic economy, which was to prefigure and give testimony to the gospel revelation, in which it was to terminate, they were still strongly attached to it, as of perpetual obligation. This, with the discouragements they met with from the opposition of their unbelieving countrymen, tended to keep their minds in a wavering state with regard to the Christian faith; so that they were in danger of reverting from Christ to Moses. Nothing, therefore, could better suit the apostle's design of establishing the Hebrews in the Christian profession, than to compare together the respective founders of the Old and New dispensations. He [consequently] observes, (ver. 1—4,) that both Christ and Moses were faithful to God in the discharge of their offices; but that Christ was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as the founder and ruler of the house, or church, hath more honour than the house, or any eminent servant in it, such as Moses was. For he that hath formed the church, and ordered all things relative to it, is God. [He adds, ver. 5, 6,] That Moses, indeed, was faithful in all things relative to God's house, the Jewish church; but it was as a servant, and in a typical economy, designed for a testimony of the things which were afterwards to be revealed: but that Christ was faithful as a Son over his house, the gospel church; of whose house we who believe are members, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the [Christian] hope firm unto the end.

"The apostle then proceeds to caution the Hebrews against apostacy from the faith of the gospel, by reminding them of the awful punishment inflicted upon their ancestors in the wilderness, who, on account of their unbelief and rebellion against God, were excluded from his rest in the land of Canaan; intimating that, if they should apostatize from Christ, they would be excluded from a more glorious rest in the heavenly country, of which the former was only a type." (M'Lean.)

To the above extracts from a judicious commentator on this Epistle, we add two other observations:—1. We may remark, that the term house is here used equivocally, for both a family and a residence, and that both of God and man. Moses was faithful in all his house, as was witnessed of him, (Numb. xii. 7.) That is, he was a faithful steward in building the tabernacle, and regulating its worship exactly according to the orders he received. So Christ, in building up the Christian church, and managing all its concerns, acts in perfect harmony with the will of his heavenly Father. But in what sense are we to take the word when applied (ver. 4) to God himself? "Every house is builded by some one, but he who built all things is God." This, we think with Doddridge, applies most naturally to the works of creation at large. (See chap. xi. 3.) But it is equally true of the families of mankind—"Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us?" (Mal. ii. 10.)

2. We may note the great importance of a present attention to religion, and the extreme danger of delay. "To-day, while it is called to-day," the sceptre of mercy is held out to invite us; but if we neglect the call, as Israel did, to-morrow it may be too late for ever.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—16. A rest remaineth for the people of God—attainable by faith in Christ.—This chapter opens with an inference from the preceding. Since Israel of old lost their earthly Canaan through unbelief, let us also fear, lest, by the same means, we should lose the heavenly country now promised to us.

To understand the reasoning of the apostle in this chapter, "the reader ought to know," says Macknight, "that in the covenant with Abraham, God promised him two kinds of seed—the one by natural descent, and the other by faith; and that the promise, to give to him and to his seed the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, being made to both .... it was to be fulfilled, not only to his natural progeny, by giving them the possession of the earthly Canaan; but also to his seed

CHAP. III. Ver. 1 Of our profession.—Macknight and M'Lean, "confession;" i. e. of our faith

Ver. 3. He who hath builded the house.—The Greek term (oikos) is equally equivocal with our word house, and is used either in the sense of family or residence; and, under the latter, may be the residence of either God or man.

Ver. 5. For a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after.—Doddridge, "A testimony of things afterwards to be mentioned;" namely, by Christ and his apostles.

Ver. 11. They shall not enter.—Margin, "If they shall enter." This is the form of an oath in Hebrew.

Ver. 16. Not all that came out of Egypt.—"Their little ones (i. e. all under twenty years of age) were expressly excepted in the oath, (Num. xiv. 31,) for the oath only excluded all who were numbered in the beginning of the second year after they came out of Egypt, from twenty years old and upward, being fit for war."—and not the Levites. (Num. i. 45—47.)

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1. Lest a promise being left us.—The pronoun us being marked with italics in our version, intimates its being supplementary, and it is, in our opinion, both unnecessary and improper. The rest was left indefinitely for all who should seek it.—Let us [apostles and preachers] therefore indulge an affectionate jealousy, lest any of you to whom we preach, should seem to—should "evidently"—come short of it. See note on 1 Co. vii. 40.—Any of you.—Some copies read, of us, to which Doddridge inclines; but, with Macknight, we prefer the common reading, which is supported by both the Syriac and the Vulgate.

Ver. 2. For unto us was the gospel preached, &c.—Doddridge, "For we are made partakers of the good tidings." Greek, "Have been evangelized

3 For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, [d] As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, [e] And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they [f] to whom [g] it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief:

7 (Again, he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To-day, after so long a time; as it is said, [h] To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if [i] Jesus had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a [j] rest to the people of God.

10 For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his.)

11 Let [k] us labour therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of [l] unbelief.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 65

d Ps.95.11.
e Ge.2.2.
f c.3.19.
g or, the gospel.
h Ps.95.7.
i That is, Joshua.
j or, keeping of a sabbath.
k 2 Pe.1.10.
l or, disobedience.

m Is.49.2.
n Re.1.16.
o Ps.139.2. Je.17.10. Re.2.23. p Pr.15.11.
q c.9.12,24.
r c.10.23.
s Ho.11.8.
t 1 Pe.2.22. 1 Jn.3.5.
u Ep.3.12. c.10.19., 22.
a c.8.3.
b or, reasonably bear with.

12 For the word [m] of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged [n] sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner [o] of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked [p] and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.

14 Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed [q] into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us [r] hold fast our profession.

15 For we have not a high priest which cannot be touched [s] with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without [t] sin.

16 Let us therefore come boldly [u] unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

CHAPTER V.

1 The authority and honour of our Saviour's priesthood. 11 Negligence in the knowledge thereof is reproved.

FOR every high priest taken from among men is ordained [a] for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins:

2 Who [b] can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for by faith, by giving them the possession of the heavenly country, of which Canaan was the emblem and the pledge.

---

"Upon these principles, the apostle affirms, that notwithstanding Abraham's natural seed have obtained the possession of Canaan, there is still left to his seed by faith, consisting of believers in all ages, whether they be Jews or Gentiles, a promise of entering into God's rest; for which reason he exhorts the Hebrews, in his own time, to be afraid lest any of them should fall short of that rest, as their fathers in the wilderness fell short of the rest in Canaan, (ver. 1.) His affirmation, that, in the covenant, there is still left to Abraham's seed by faith, a promise of entering into God's rest, the apostle establishes by observing, that the promise of the everlasting possession of Canaan being made to Abraham's seed by faith, as well as to his natural seed, his seed by faith have received the good tidings of a rest in the heavenly country, typified by Canaan, as really as his natural seed have received the good tidings of a rest in Canaan. Only these good tidings did not profit the natural seed in the wilderness, because they did not believe them, (ver. 2.) More particularly, to show that all Abraham's seed by faith shall enter into God's rest in the country typified by Canaan, the apostle appealed to the words of God's oath, by which he excluded the unbelieving Israelites in the wilderness from his rest: for seeing this oath was sworn, notwithstanding the works of God were finished at the formation of the world, and the seventh-day rest was then instituted, (ver. 3;) also, seeing that rest was called God's rest, in the passage of Scripture where Moses had said concerning the seventh day, 'And God rested on the seventh day from all his works,' (ver. 4,) it follows, that the rest into which God sware that the Israelites in the wilderness should not enter, was not the seventh-day rest, in regard they were in possession of that rest when the oath was sworn." (Exod. xvi. 23; xx. 8.)

The substance of the apostle's argument is then summed up in ver. 9: "There remaineth therefore a rest—a sabbatism—for the people of God. For he that is entered into his rest—that is, into the rest which God has provided for us—hath ceased from his own works, even as God did from his." From the account given in this verse of the rest which remaineth to the people of God, namely, that they do not enter into it till their works of trial and suffering are finished, it is evident that it must intend "the rest of heaven, of which the seventh-day rest was only an emblem." (So Doddridge, Macknight, and M'Lean.) But, as an emblem, it pointed out not only a rest from labours and from sufferings, but also a state of purity and devotion—a state of positive happiness, made up of communion with God, and saints, and holy angels.

The apostle hence urges the believing Hebrews, (ver. 11:) "Let us, therefore, labour to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief." "The example referred to (says M'Lean) is that of Israel in the wilderness, who, though they had by a train of miracles been redeemed from Egyptian bondage, taken into covenant with God, and had the promise of the earthly rest in Canaan—yet, after all, forfeited that promise, and fell in the wilderness through unbelief. By this awful example, the apostle enforces his exhortation to the Hebrews, that they should labour to enter into the heavenly rest, of which a promise was left them, lest they should come short of it through unbelief, as Israel did of the earthly rest."

To urge the converted Hebrews (as, indeed, all professing Christians) thus to labour to secure their interest in this eternal rest, the apostle reminds them, that the word of God, which had been preached to them, (ver. 12,) was "quick (or living) and powerful; sharper than a two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit," &c.—that is, figuratively speaking, piercing the conscience and dissecting the heart; and it, [the word,] as here follows, "is a discerner (or judge) of the thoughts and intents of the heart;" or, as we should say, (in the English idiom,) penetrates the deepest recesses of the mind.

The term Logos, however, often so applied by the apostle John, may here intend, the substantial or essential Word, of whom it may be more strictly asserted, "all things are laid naked and bare to him with whom we have to do;" or, as Macknight renders it, "to whom we must give an account."

In the close of this chapter, Christ is again introduced as the great High Priest of our profession, (Christianity;) and who, on account of his compassion and sympathy towards us, we are encouraged to approach with a holy boldness, and to commit our whole interest into his hands. (Compare chap. ii. 17, 18; iii. 1.)

CHAP. V. Ver. 1—14. Christ our High Priest, after the order of Melchisedec.—In the last verses of the preceding even as they;" that is, according to M'Lean, "We Christians have been favoured with the good news of a rest in the heavenly country, even as Israel were with the good news of a rest in the land of Canaan.——But the word preached—Gr. "The word of hearing"—did not profit them; not being mixed with faith in them that heard [it.] The idea is medical, and alludes to our food being mixed with the juices of the stomach, in order to its digestion. The margin reads, "because they were not united by faith;" and so many of the ancients: but Doddridge, Macknight, M'Lean, and most of the moderns, prefer the common translation, which is also sanctioned by the Vulgate and the Syriac.

---

Ver. 3. If they shall enter.—See note on chap. iii. 11.——Although the works were finished from the foundation.—Macknight, "from the formation of the world" The word here evidently refers to the completion, not the commencement, of creation, as in the verse following.

Ver. 6. To whom it—i. e. the gospel, or good tidings.

Ver. 8. For if Jesus.—Margin, "Joshua;" which is the Hebrew name corresponding to the Greek, Jesus.

Ver. 9. A rest.—The word here used is not the same as in the preceding verses.

Ver. 12. Quick and powerful.—Literally, "living and energetic."——Sharper than any two-edged sword.—Macknight quotes from a Pagan writer, that "reason penetrates into a man deeper than a sword:" but we apprehend it is the power of God's word upon the conscience, that is here alluded to.——To the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow—That is, of things the most intimately and inseparably connected. See our note on 1 Thes. v. 23, here we have distinguished the rational soul from the animal; but whether the latter (which is common to brutes) be matter, or an inferior kind of spirit, or a middle substance between both, we presume not to decide. Most certain it is, that many animals are intelligent, as well as sentient; that they feel, that they recollect, and that they dream; and, therefore, that they think.

Ver. 13. Naked and opened.—Doddridge, "laid bare." This is an allusion to the state in which the burnt-offerings were laid on the altar: they were stripped of their skins, their breasts ripped open, their back-bone cleft, and their head thrown back, so as to be easily inspected by the officiating priest.——With whom we have to do.—Doddridge and Macknight, "To whom we must give an account:" so the Greek phrase is rendered, chap. xiii. 17; also Rom. xiv. 12, and elsewhere.

Ver. 14. Our profession—Or confession; see chap. iii. 1.

Ver. 15. Which cannot be touched.—Macknight, "who cannot sympathize."——Like as we are—i. e. in the same points.

CHAP. V. Ver. 2. The ignorant, and on them that are out of the way—i wandering, and in error that he [c] himself also is compassed with infirmity.

3 And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so [d] also for himself, to offer for sins.

4 And [e] no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was [f] Aaron.

5 So also Christ [g] glorified not himself to be made a high priest; but he that said unto him, [h] Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee.

6 As he saith also in another place, Thou [i] art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

7 Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up [j] prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto him that was able [k] to save him from death, and was heard [l] in that he feared;

8 Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience [m] by the things which he suffered;

9 And [n] being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him;

10 Called of God a high priest [o] after the order of Melchisedec.

11 Of whom we have many things to say, and hard to be uttered, seeing ye are dull of hearing.

12 For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of [p] milk, and not of strong meat.

13 For every one that useth milk [q] is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are [r] of full age, even those who by reason of [s] use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

c c. 7. 28.
d Lev. 9. 7.
e 2 Ch. 26. 18.
f Ex. 28. 1. Nu. 16. 40.
g Jn. 8. 54.
h Ps. 2. 7.
i Ps. 110. 4.
j Matt. 26. 39, 44.
k Matt. 26. 53.
l or, for his piety.
m Phi. 2. 8.
n c. 2. 10.
o ver. 6.

p 1 Co. 3. 1., 3.
q hath no experience.
r or, perfect.
s or, a habit, or, perfection.
a Phi. 3. 12., 14.
b or, the word of the beginning of Christ.
c c. 9. 14.
d c. 11. 6.
e Ac. 4. 4, 5.
f Ac. 8. 17.
g Ac. 17. 31. 26. 8.
h Jn. 4. 15.
i Matt. 5. 13. 12. 31, 32. Jn. 15. 6.
c 10. 26. 2 Pe. 2. 20, 21. 1 Jn. 5. 16.
j Is. 1. 28.

CHAPTER VI.

1 He exhorteth not to fall back from the faith, 11 but to be steadfast, 12 diligent, and patient to wait upon God, 13 because God is most sure in his promise.

THEREFORE [a] leaving [b] the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from [c] dead works, and of faith [d] toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of [e] baptisms, and of laying on [f] of hands, and of [g] resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do, if [h] God permit.

4 For it is impossible [i] for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost,

5 And have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come,

6 If [j] they shall fall away, to renew them

---

chapter, the Son of God is introduced to us as the great Apostle and High Priest of our profession, who, though he is entered into the highest heavens, hath neither forsaken nor forgotten the weakest or the poorest of his followers; but still sympathizes with them in all their trials and temptations: to him, therefore, we are encouraged to approach with boldness, and with freedom to address our supplications through him to the Father, who is seated upon a throne of grace to receive them.

The apostle then proceeds to show by what authority, and in what manner, our Lord Jesus exercises this gracious office on our behalf. Every person exercising this office among men, is chosen and called thereto, and provided with gifts and sacrifices to offer; and is, moreover, required to be tender and compassionate to those for whom he acts—to the ignorant and the erroneous.

In all these respects, our great High Priest more or less resembles those of the Mosaic institution. 1. "He glorified not himself to be made a High Priest." He was not self-appointed; but he who, in the second Psalm, said, (ver. 6,) "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee," referring to his regal office, said also in another Psalm, "Thou art a Priest for ever, after [or according to] the order of Melchisedec." (Ps. cx. 4;) the peculiarities of which order we shall see in a subsequent chapter. 2. Inasmuch as other priests were furnished with gifts and sacrifices for sin, to offer, the work of this High Priest was of that extraordinary nature, that the blood of bulls and of goats could be of no avail; he therefore "offered up himself (the just for the unjust) to reconcile us unto God." But here a difference occurs of great importance, for whereas other priests had to offer first for their "own sins, and then for the transgressions of the people;" He, being "holy, harmless, and undefiled," could transfer to them all the merit of his atonement. (See chap. vii. 26—28.) 3. Whereas other priests were required to be sympathizing and compassionate, our great High Priest infinitely exceeds them in both respects: for, in respect of his own sufferings, "the strong cries and tears" which he poured out in the wilderness of temptation, and in the garden of Gethsemane, and especially upon the cross, indicated sufferings far exceeding, not only what we can be called to endure, but all that we can possibly conceive. 4. By these sufferings he (as man) learned, that is, he acquired, a perfect resignation to the divine will, and an unexampled degree of sympathy to the afflicted and distressed; and being thus perfected through sufferings, (chap. vii. 28,) "he became the author of eternal salvation" unto all them that "believe in and obey him."

Here are two inquiries that demand some attention. 1. From what was it that Christ was delivered in consequence of his prayers and tears? It was not from dying, for that was the end of his incarnation; nor was it from suffering, without which his death would have been no atonement: that is, he prayed not for either of these exemptions absolutely, but conditionally—"If it be possible!" and thus hath he left us an example, to pray for nothing absolutely, but what we know to be agreeable to the divine will—namely, our salvation (1 Thess. iv. 3.) And though he had not, and knew he could not have, exemption from pain and dying; yet he had, subsequently, deliverance from the power of death and the grave, and from all the principalities and powers of hell, over whom he triumphed. (Compare our exposition of Matt. xxvi. 31—46.)

A second inquiry here offers itself—How could our Lord learn obedience, who was never disobedient? We reply, that as he "grew in wisdom, and in stature, and in strength," (Luke ii. 40 and 52,) so might, and so did, he grow (speaking of him as a man) in every virtue, human and divine; and, of course, in a cheerful resignation to the divine decrees.

The close of this chapter (as was the case with the last) anticipates the subject of the following; distinguishing between the first and more matured principles of Christianity, comparing the former to milk, and the latter to meat; and considering these Hebrews as children, or babes in Christ, who were capable of digesting the former only; though, from the time they had heard the gospel, they ought to have been matured Christians, capable of instructing others.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1—20. Exhortations to persevere, with cautions against apostacy.—The Christian's life is progressive, and never stationary: for if we move not forward, we are certainly sliding backward. It is so as respects both our principles and practice: the apostle therefore exhorts the Hebrews not to stop at first principles only, or at the beginning of the Christian course, which commences with faith and repentance—with baptism, and the laying on of hands, and with the avowal of those foundation truths, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment: Let us not stop here, (as if he had said,) but go on unto perfection—that is, proceed from truth to

---

Ver. 5. Glorified not himself—i. e. did not assume to himself that honour.

Ver. 7. Who in the days of his flesh.—Nothing can more clearly express the doctrine of the incarnation—"The word was made flesh, and dwelt among us."——With prayers (Gr. deprecations) and supplications.—The word for supplications signifies branches of olive trees covered with wool, which such as supplicated for peace carried in their hands; hence it came to signify supplications for peace. Gill.——In that he feared.—Doddridge, "In being delivered from that which he (particularly) feared."

Ver. 9. Being made perfect.—i. e. a complete High Priest by consecration. See Exod. xxix. 33, 34. Compare chap. ii. 10.——The author—i. e. the meritorious and efficient cause—of eternal salvation. So M'Lean.

Ver. 11. Hard to be uttered.—Doddridge, "Hard to be understood." Macknight, "difficult to be explained."

Ver. 13. Is unskilful.—Greek, "Hath no experience." Compare 1 Peter ii. 2.

Ver. 14. Of full age.—Greek, "perfect." Macknight, "full-grown."——By reason of use.—Macknight remarks, that the original term alludes to the athletic exercises of the ancients, in which, by a kind of mock-fighting, they were prepared for actual combat.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1. The principles.—Margin, "The word of the beginning;" that is, the elements, or rudiments; or, as Doddridge explains the words, "first principles." By leaving these, is not meant their abandonment, but pushing on in the heavenly course, as the racer flies from the starting-post to the goal.

Ver. 4. For it is impossible.—This seems to refer to those apostates who had committed "the sin unto death." See 1 John v. 16.

Ver. 5. And have tasted.—To taste, mentally, is to experience; and, in this case, to experience the power of the gospel preached, which may afford much gratification, and produce a degree of moral reform, even when it does not, either deeply or permanently, affect the heart.——Powers of the world to come.—The "world (or ages) to come," certainly designates the gospel dispensation, (see note on chap. ii. 5;) and the powers of that world, certainly designate the miraculous powers attending the first propagation of the gospel. Mat. vii. 22, 23.

Ver. 6. If they shall fall away.—Macknight, "And (yet) have fallen away." So M'Lean.——Crucify to themselves.—Macknight, "in themselves."——Seeing they crucify to themselves—That is, according to M'Lean, "they approve of, and consent to the treatment he received from his murderers, by renouncing and blaspheming him, as one justly put to death as an impostor."

again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

7 For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them [k] by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing [l] from God:

8 But that which beareth [m] thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned.

9 But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 For [n] God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have showed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you do show the same diligence to the [o] full assurance of hope unto the end:

12 That ye be not [p] slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he sware by himself,

14 Saying, [q] Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

k or, for.

l Ps.65.10.

m Is.5.6.

n Mat.25.40

o c.3.6,14.

p Pr.15.19. 2 Pe.1.10.

q Ge.22.16, 17.

r Ex.22.11.

s Ro.8.17. c.11.9.

t Ro.11.29.

u interposed himself.

v Tit.1.2.

w 1 Ti 6 12.

x Le.16 15.

y c.4.14

z c.7.17.

a Ge.14.18, &c.

15 And so, after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise.

16 For men verily swear by the greater: and an oath [r] for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.

17 Wherein God, willing more abundantly to show unto the heirs [s] of promise the immutability [t] of his counsel, [u] confirmed it by an oath:

18 That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to [v] lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold [w] upon the hope set before us:

19 Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within [x] the veil;

20 Whither [y] the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made a high priest for ever after the order of [z] Melchisedec.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Christ Jesus is a priest after the order of Melchisedec, 11 and so, far more excellent than the priests of Aaron's order.

FOR this [a] Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him;

2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of truth, and from virtue to virtue; "and this will we do," adds he, "if God permit." But in order to this, it is necessary to guard against retrogression; for it is possible for persons to be enlightened—to taste of the heavenly gift, and be made partakers of the Holy Ghost—to taste the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come;—it is possible, very possible, that such may fall away, not merely by a partial declension, like those of Laodicea, (Rev. iv. 14, &c.,) but by a total renunciation of the name, as well as the principles of Christianity. But let us see how far the particulars of this awful character will carry us; that is, how far the persons here described had gone in the profession of religion.

1. They were enlightened, that is, instructed in the elementary principles of Christianity; and, by hearing and reading, obtained a good knowledge of its evidences and doctrines, and, by a moral reformation, "escaped the pollutions of the world"—through idolatry and uncleanness. 2. They tasted, that is, participated "of the heavenly gift;" by which many understand, a sense of pardon through Christ; but we rather conceive all these expressions refer to the powerful effects of the word preached, especially as connected with the personal ministry of Jesus, or with the miraculous gifts of the Holy Spirit. With respect to the former, our Lord himself thus describes the case of apostates in the parable of the Sower, where he says, "He that received the word in stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it; yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended." (Matt. xiii 20, 21.) In reference to the miraculous powers of the apostolic age, we read, (Acts viii. 5, &c.,) that when Philip went down to the city of Samaria, preaching and working miracles, "there was great joy in that city;" and when Simon Magus (or the great one) heard the preaching, and saw the miracles, "Simon himself believed also, and was baptized:" yet he soon discovered his hypocrisy, and the barren nature of his faith; for when the apostles Peter and John came to that city, he offered them money, if they would give him power to confer the Holy Ghost in like manner as they did; on which Peter assures him, that, notwithstanding his profession, his "heart was not right in the sight of God; but, on the contrary, he was yet "in the gall of bitterness, and the bond of iniquity." And ecclesiastical history informs us, that he proved one of the most awful instances of apostacy on record. (See exposition of Acts viii. 1—25.)

It is observable, that in the account of the unhappy persons spoken of, nothing is said that necessarily implies any thing more than speculative knowledge, and external profession of Christianity—nothing of regeneration, conversion, believing through grace, or a change of heart: on the contrary, their profession is described as utterly barren, or as bearing nothing but "thorns and briers;" and their persons as "nigh unto cursing," and to burning.

And farther, in addressing the believing Hebrews, he plainly intimates, that all he had said, came short of what was necessary to salvation: for he says, "We hope better things o you, and things which accompany salvation," which certainly implies, that the things before referred to were not of that class: for, applying the passage to our own time, when miracles have long since ceased, the preaching of the word may have powerful effects upon the conscience, without producing any change of heart. It is well known, that it chiefly was on the authority of this passage the Novatians, in the second century, refused to receive back into their communion any who, in times of persecution, had gone back to Paganism; though even urged by the torture, and however penitent: and many penitents themselves have been distressed by it. But Novatian, though a good man, had not the heart of our compassionate High Priest; nor did he consider, nor do the distressed penitents we refer to consider, that the difficulty, the impossibility, lay, not in restoring penitents, but apostates; and true penitents are no more apostates.

The rest of this chapter is occupied in animating exhortations to diligence and perseverance in the Christian course; assuring those believers to whom he wrote, (and in them all others,) of the certainty of their reward in heaven: not only as secured by the mediation of Christ, but also by the promise of God; and that promise ratified by oath, that, by two immutable things—the word and oath of God—his people might have not only hope, but consolation, even strong consolation, as having fled for refuge, (like the poor manslayer of old,) to lay hold upon the hope set before them in the gospel; namely, the hope of eternal life in Christ Jesus: that Jesus who has himself, as our great High Priest, entered within the veil with his atoning blood, and ever lives to plead for us before the throne of God.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—28. The priesthood of Christ, according to the order of Melchisedec.—The history of this Melchisedec so far as regards the Old Testament, will be found in Gen xiv., latter part, of which we shall repeat as little as possible

Ver. 7. For the earth, &c.—That is, that earth is blessed which, by drinking in the rain, becomes fruitful: but that sandy soil which, though it may drink in the rain, produces no useful vegetation, is accursed. Compare Jer. xvii. 6.

Ver. 9. Things that accompany.—Macknight, "which are connected with."

Ver. 10. God is not unrighteous.—Though we have no claim on the divine bounty, yet God having promised and covenanted to reward our unworthy services, his justice and fidelity bind him to his promise.

Ver. 11. Full assurance of hope—That is, the most assured hope.

Ver. 12. Followers.—Gr. "imitators."—Patience.—Gr. "long-suffering."—Inherit.—Gr "are inheriting;" meaning the Patriarchs, &c. now in heaven.

Ver. 16. Of all strife.—Macknight, "contradiction."

Ver. 18. Fled for refuge.—The words "for refuge," though not in italics, are merely supplementary, our translators supposing such to be the allusion; but others think it an allusion to the Grecian games, and to the prize exhibited to the racers. We decidedly suppose the reference is to the cities of refuge, of which there were three on each side of Jordan. They were easy of access, having smooth and good roads 58 feet wide, and bridges over streams. Where the roads crossed or diverged, guide boards were placed, with "Refuge" on them, so large and plain that a man might read whilst running. See Numb. xxxv. 11, &c.

Ver. 20. Whither the forerunner.—Macknight, says, "A forerunner, is one who goes before to do some service for another." Here (he thinks) the allusion is to one sent from a ship to fix its anchor in the place to which it is to be drawn." But M'Lean doubts if the word was ever so used; and so do we; we should rather refer to John xiv. 3.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1. This Melchisedec—Or Melchisedek, as it is spelled in Gen. xiv. 18, &c.—King of Salem.—So his capital, and probably his whole territory, was called in Abraham's time; in the time of Joshua and the Judgus, it was also called by the name of Jebus. (Josh. xviii. 28. Judges xix. 10.) Salem, it is well known, signifies peace; and Jerusalem, as the learned Granville Sharp has shown, signifies Holy (or sacred) Salem; or, by interpretation, "Holy Peace." See Mr. Sharp's two tracts, on Jerusalem and on Melchisedec.

righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace;

3 Without father, without mother, without [c] descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.

4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.

5 And verily they that are of the sons of Levi, who [c] receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham:

6 But he whose [d] descent is not counted from them received [e] tithes of Abraham and blessed him that had [f] the promises.

7 And without all contradiction the less is blessed of the better.

8 And here men that die receive tithes; but there he receiveth them, of whom [g] it is witnessed that he liveth.

9 And as I may so say, Levi also, who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loins of his father, when Melchisedec met him.

11 If [h] therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law,) what farther need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron?

12 For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken pertaineth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar.

14 For it is evident [i] that our Lord sprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood.

15 And it is yet far more evident: for that after the similitude of Melchisedec there ariseth another priest, 16 Who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life.

17 For he testifieth, [j] Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

18 For there is verily a disannulling of the commandment going before for the [k] weakness and unprofitableness thereof.

19 For the law [l] made nothing perfect, but [m] the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which [n] we draw nigh unto God.

20 And inasmuch as not without an oath he was made priest:

21 (For those priests were made without [o] an oath; but this with an oath by him that said unto him, [p] The Lord sware and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec:)

22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better [q] testament.

23 And they truly were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death:

24 But this man, because he continueth ever, hath [r] an unchangeable [s] priesthood.

25 Wherefore he is able [t] also to save them [u] to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession [v] for them.

26 For such a high priest became us, who is [w] holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens;

27 Who needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first [x] for his own

A M. cir. 1067. A. D. cir. 63.

b pedigree.

c Nu.18.21 ..26.

d pedigree.

e Ge.14.20.

f Ro.9.4.

g c.5.6. Re.1.18.

h Ga.2.21. v.18,19. c.8.7.

i Is.11.1. Mat.1.3. Re.5.5.

j Ps.110.4.

k Ac.13.39

l Ro.3.20.

m or, but it was.

n Ro.5.2.

o or, swearing of an oath.

p Ps.110.4.

q c.8.6.

r or, which passeth not from one to another.

s 1 Sa.2.35.

t Jude 24.

u or, evermore.

v Ro.8.34. 1 Jn.2.1.

w c.4.15 1 Pe.2.22.

x Le.9.7.

His name is here interpreted as meaning "King of righteousness," and his regal title as implying that he was "King of Peace." He was, however, a real character, and possessed a real domain—he was King of Salem, including the site of that city which was afterwards the metropolis of Judea, namely Jerusalem, or the Holy Salem. In both these respects he strikingly typified him who was at once the Son of David and the King of Israel. But Melchisedec was also a priest of the most high God; and in that respect also typified Christ, as being, like him, of an order peculiar to himself, and not of the Levitical priesthood, nor of the house of Aaron. It was in this respect that he was without parentage and without pedigree, though perhaps the expression may only mean, that his descent is unrecorded and unknown.

After stating the pre-eminent character of Melchisedec, St. Paul calls upon the Hebrews to reflect how great this man must have been, to whom Abraham gave the tenth of his spoils, undoubtedly thereby acknowledging him as his superior, and, consequently, as superior to all the priests who descended from him. But who was this Melchisedec of whom the apostle speaks so highly, and that undoubtedly with a view to magnify that Jesus whom he typified? According to an ancient Jewish tradition, he was the patriarch Shem. This seems the most general opinion among expositors, and was defended with great ability by Mr. Granville Sharpe, above referred to, though this opinion is by no means essential to the apostle's argument.

On comparing our great High Priest with the sons of Aaron, the apostle remarks, "That the sons of Aaron were made priests without an oath, and so their priesthood was liable to be changed or repealed; whereas Jesus was made a priest with a solemn and irrevocable oath, by him that said unto him, 'The Lord sware, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever,' &c.—which was a declaration that his priesthood was to be unchangeable; and by so much was he made the surety of a better covenant than that of which the Aaronical high priests were sureties. That the sons of Aaron were made priests 'according to the law of a carnal commandment,' accommodated to weak mortal men, whereby that office went by descent and succession from father to son; [and] hence there were many priests [in succession], because they 'were not suffered to continue by reason of death.' But Jesus being raised from the dead, was, by the oath, made a priest in his own person for ever, according to the power of an endless life; and because he continueth for ever, he hath an unsuccessive priesthood, and so is able to save for ever them that come to God through him, as he is always living to make intercession for them. That, in respect of character and qualifications, he is such a High Priest as is perfectly suited to our exigencies, being holy, harmless, undefiled, separated from sinners, and stationed not on earth, but made higher than the heavens. That he needed not, from time to time, like Aaronical high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first, for his own sins (for he had none); and then for the sins of the people; for this he did effectually at once, when he offered up himself. For the law constitutes men high priests who have sinful infirmity, and therefore needed to offer for their own sins; but the word of the oath, which was since the law was given, constitutes the Son a High Priest who is consecrated for ever more."—M'Lean.

To these observations we add a general remark from Dr. John Owen:—"The design of the apostle, in this chapter, is not to declare the nature or the exercise of the priesthood of Christ. To the nature of it, he had spoken, chap. v.; and of

---

Ver. 3. Without father.—[That is, as the Syriac renders, "Whose father and mother are not inscribed among the genealogies; and therefore it was not known who he was."]—Bagster. "Elsner (as Doddridge remarks) hath some remarkable quotations, to prove that it was usual among the Greeks to call any one (apater, amater) without father, without mother, when his parents were unknown."——Without descent.—Gr. Genealogy.——Having neither beginning of days, nor end of life.—The time of service of the Aaronic priests was limited between the ages of 30 and 50, which were the terms of their official life; though some think those expressions mean only, that his birth and death are unrecorded.——But made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.—Macknight, who applies the latter clause as well as the former, to Melchisedec, renders it "all his life;" and remarks, that the same phrase is applied to the perpetual dictatorship of Sylla. But Doddridge and M'Lean suppose an ellipsis (as is not uncommon) of the pronoun who, and render the clause, "but [was] made like unto [or a type of] the Son of God, [who] abideth a priest continually."

Ver. 5. Have a commandment to take tithes.—See Numb. xviii. 21, 24, 26.

Ver. 8. Of whom it is witnessed that he liveth.—Doddridge, "Of whom it is [only] testified that he liveth;" that is, of whose death we have no account. Some render it, "that he lived;" Macknight, "That he lived a priest all his life." Compare ver. 3.

Ver. 9. As I may so say.—Doddridge and Macknight, "As one may say."

Ver. 11. Perfection.—Completion, or fulfilment, of the plan and purpose of God.——And not be called.—Doddridge, "not be reckoned."

Ver. 16. But after the power of an endless life—i. e. for ever.

Ver. 18. Disannulling.—Doddridge, "Abolition."

Ver. 19. Made nothing perfect.—[Completed nothing; it was the introduction, but not the completion.]—Bagster.——But the bringing in, &c.—i. e. the hope of the gospel.

Ver. 22. A better testament.—Rather "covenant." So Doddridge, Macknight, &c. The Greek commentators explain the term surety, by that of Mediator.—Macknight.

Ver. 24. This man—[That is, Christ, because "he continueth ever," hath "a priesthood that passeth not away" from him.——Unchangeable.—A priesthood which passeth not from one to another.]—Bagster.

sins and then for the people's: for this he did once, when he offered up himself.

28 For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity: but the word of the oath, which was since the law, maketh the Son, who is [f] consecrated for evermore.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 By the eternal priesthood of Christ, the Levitical priesthood of Aaron is abolished. 7 And the temporal covenant is by the prophets, by the eternal covenant of the gospel.

NOW of the things which we have spoken this is the sum: We have such a high priest, who [a] is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens;

2 A minister of [b] the [c] sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it is of necessity that this man have somewhat also to [d] offer.

4 For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that [e] there are priests that offer gifts according to the law:

5 Who serve unto the example and shadow [f] of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle: for, See, [g] saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount.

6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent [h] ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better [i] covenant, which was established upon better promises.

7 For if [j] that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second.

8 For finding fault with them, [k] he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will [l] put my laws into their mind, and write them [m] in their hearts: and [n] I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people:

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all [o] shall know me, from the least to the greatest.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

13 In that he saith, A new [p] covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away.

CHAPTER IX.

1 The description of the rites and bloody sacrifices of the law, 11 far inferior to the dignity and perfection of the blood and sacrifice of Christ.

THEN verily the first covenant had also [a] ordinances of divine service, and a worldly [b] sanctuary.

A. M. cir. 4060. A. D. cir. 63.

f Jer. 31.

a Eph. 1. 20.

b or, holy things.

c ch. 9. 8, 12, 24.

d Ep. 5. 2. c. 5. 1, 3.

e or, they.

f ch. 9. 23. c. 10. 1.

g Ex. 25. 40. ch. 8. 5.

h 2 Co. 3. 6, 9. ch. 7. 22.

i or, testament.

j ch. 7. 11.

k Jer. 31. 31, &c.

l give.

m or, upon.

n Rev. 21. 3. Zec. 8. 8.

o Is. 54. 13.

p 2 Co. 5. 17.

a or, ceremonies

b Ex. 25. 8.

its use, he treats at large in chap. ix. But it is of its excellency and dignity he here treats, and that not absolutely neither, but in comparison with the Levitical priesthood. This was conducive to his main end with the Hebrews; and this he proves upon principles received by themselves, the faith and principles of the ancient church of Israel."

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1—13. The Levitical priesthood superseded by that of Christ; and the Old Covenant by the New.—The apostle here pursues his comparison between Christ, who is our great High Priest, and the priests of the house of Aaron; in all things giving due pre-eminence to him, whom all the inspired writers "delight to honour."

1. Speaking of Christ as our High Priest, we are told he "is set (down) on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven;" a very different situation from that of the Jewish high priest, who stood and bowed before the divine presence.—2. He is called "a minister of the sanctuary," or of the Holies; that is, of the "Holy of holies," or "holiest of all," as it is called in chap. ix. 3; so Drs. Owen and Guise; and "of the true tabernacle," meaning, as it is generally understood, heaven itself; a tabernacle "which the Lord pitched, and not man;" which in the next chapter (ver. 11) is called "a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands," as was the Mosaic tabernacle; but "which the Lord hath pitched (or erected) and not man."—3. Since every high priest among men is ordained "to offer gifts and sacrifices," it was necessary that our great High Priest should also have somewhat to offer; and what so precious as his own blood? What so acceptable as his transcendent merits? As, therefore, the Jewish high priest went once a year into the most holy place with the blood of sacrifices slain, so Christ, upon his ascension, once for all, presented the merits of his righteousness and atonement before God, and ever lives to intercede on the behalf of those for whom he died.—4. Another circumstance of pre-eminence enjoyed by our Lord, is, that "he is the Mediator of a better covenant" than that of Sinai, to which the Levitical priesthood was attached.

This being a better covenant, argues defect in the former. "Although the Sinaic covenant (says Dr. Macknight) was well calculated to preserve the Jews from idolatry, and to give them the knowledge of their duty, it was faulty or imperfect in the following respects:—1. The rites of worship it enjoined, sanctified only, to 'the purifying of the flesh;' but not the conscience of the worshippers.—2. These rites could be performed no where but in the tabernacle, or in the temple; consequently they could not be the religion of mankind. 3. This covenant had no real sacrifice for sin; therefore it could grant no pardon to any sinner.—4. Its promises were all of a temporal kind.—5. It required an unwilling obedience, which, in our present state, no one can give, and threatened death for every offence."

It has been doubted, whether the finding fault, mentioned in verse 8, refers to the covenant there spoken of, or to the people there addressed. (See our note.) "Both I think, (says Mr. M'Lean,) are intended in the context. In the foregoing verse, the old covenant is not supposed to be faultless, but the contrary, because it left room for another, and this verse comes in as a proof of it. In the next verse, the people are also blamed, because they continued not in God's covenant: but then, it must be observed, that the people are so blamed, as to insinuate that the covenant itself was defective; for the Lord promises to set it aside, and make a new one, which should better suit their need."

To this New Covenant we have had repeated occasions to advert in the writings of the prophets, and the passage, verses 8 to 13, will be found literally copied from Jer. xxxi. 31—34, with only one remarkable variation, mentioned in our note on verses 8 and 9. In our exposition of the above passage, we have inclined [illegible] which we believe is a general one, of the promise having a reference to the future calling of the Jews to a more extensive reception of the gospel dispensation, which we consider as the new covenant here referred to: not that there is any thing new with reference to God, for all his counsels are from everlasting; but he is continually making new discoveries of his grace and mercy to mankind.

One other remark shall close what we have to offer on this chapter. When it is said, "They shall not teach every man his neighbour, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, (saith the Lord,) from the least to the greatest;" we must take it with some latitude, for while children are born into the world, they will need instruction, and as sinners the means of conversion: yet, possibly, the time may come, when missions and missionaries shall be no more needed; but when "the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth, even as the waters do the sea."

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1—28. The superiority of Christ's sacrifice

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1. This is the sum.—Doddridge, Macknight, &c., "the chief;" principal point. So Chrysostom and Theophylact, the Syriac and Vulgate.

Ver. 2. A minister of the sanctuary.—Macknight reads, "holy places."

Ver. 3. That this man.—The word "man" is a supplement; and, instead of it, both Macknight and M'Lean supply the term High Priest, from the preceding clause.

Ver. 4. That there are priests—Namely, in the temple at Jerusalem.—Offer gifts.—(Gifts, or offerings, comprehended propitiatory sacrifices as well as free-will offerings.)—Bagster.

Ver. 6. A better covenant.—Margin, 'Testament.' The original term (diathekè) signifies both; but the former is certainly more intelligible.

Ver. 7. If that first covenant had been faultless.—The fault or defect of the first covenant was, that it made nothing perfect. See chap. vii. 19.

Ver. 8. For finding fault with them—That is, according to Doddridge, with the Jews. But Grotius, Hammond, and many others, render it, "finding fault with their state."

Ver. 9. And I regarded them not.—Doddridge, "I disregarded them." Macknight, "I neglected them." True to the septuagint translation of Jer. xxxi. 32, which is not [illegible]. Although I was a husband unto them, declaring by various [illegible] and solemn covenants, [illegible] for their [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] by the LXX. which makes a total alteration. [illegible] was [illegible] by St. Paul's following [illegible] by Protestants [illegible].

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1. The first covenant.—It seems evident, that the Greek [illegible] in our translation [illegible] the whole [illegible] as the many [illegible] that they regarded the whole [illegible] from the preceding chapter. On the other hand, there are many Greek copies, both Mss. and printed,

2 For there was a tabernacle [c] made; the first, wherein was the candlestick, and the [j] table, and the [d] shew-bread; which is called [f] the sanctuary.

3 And after the second [g] veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holie. t of all;

4 Which had the golden [h] censer, and the ark [i] of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden [j] pot that had manna, and Aaron's [k] rod that budded, and the [l] tables of the covenant;

5 And over it the cherubims [m] of glory shadowing the mercy-seat; of which we cannot now speak particularly.

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests [n] went always into the first tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God.

7 But into the second went the high priest alone [o] once every year, not without blood, which he offered for [p] himself, and for the errors of the people:

8 The Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way [q] into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing:

9 Which was a figure for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts and sacrifices, that could not [r] make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the [s] conscience;

10 Which stood only in [t] meats and drinks, and divers [u] washings, and carnal [v w] ordinances, imposed on them until the time of reformation.

11 But Christ being come a [x] high priest of good [y] things to come, by a [z] greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building;

12 Neither by the blood of [a] goats and calves, but by his own [b] blood he entered in once into the holy [c] place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

13 For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes [d] of a heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh:

14 How much more shall the blood of Christ, who [e] through the eternal Spirit offered himself without [f] spot to God, purge [g] your conscience from dead works to serve [h] the living God?

15 And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

16 For where a testament is, there must also of necessity [i] be the death of the testator.

17 For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth.

18 Whereupon neither the first testament was [j] dedicated without blood.

A.M. cir. 4067
A.D. cir. 64

c Exo.29.4, 35.
d Exo.40.4.
e Exo.25.30.
f or, holy.
g Exo.26.31, 33.
h Le.16.12.
i Exo.25.10, &c.
j Exo.16.33.
k Nu.17.10.
l Exo.34.29. 40.20.
m De.10.2,5 Exo.25.18, 22. n Nu.28.3.
o Exo.30.10. Le.16.2, &c.
p c.5.3.
q Jn.14.6. c.10.19,20.
r Ps.40.6,7. Ga.3.21. c.10.1,11.
s Ps.51.16.. 19.
t Le.11.2, &c. u Nu.19.7, &c.
v or, rites, or, ceremonies.
w Ep.2.15. x c.3.1.
y c.10.1.
z c.8.2.
a c.10.4.
b Ac.20.28. 1 Pe.1.18, 19. Re.1.5.
c c.10.19.
d Nu.19.2, 17.
e 1 Pe.3.18.
f or, fault.
g c.10.22.
h 1 Pe.4.2.
i or, be brought in.
j or, purified.

to all others.—The first verse of this chapter presents us with a considerable difficulty, as respects the reading of the original: many Greek copies read, "The first tabernacle;" while more perhaps read with the copy used by our translators, and omit the noun altogether; but supply the word "covenant" from the close of the preceding chapter. So the judicious M'Lean, who thinks it "more natural, and [that it] suits the apostle's argument at least equally well, to understand by the first here, the Sinaical covenant, which is twice termed the first in the foregoing chapter, verses 7 and 13; and also twice expressly mentioned in verse 9."

Connected with this covenant were a variety of ceremonial "ordinances," and "a worldly sanctuary," tabernacle, or holy place, built by Moses, and devoted to the service of the God of Israel, in the first division of which were the sacred candlestick, or rather lamp, and the table of shew-bread; and in the second, or interior department, the ark, the cherubim, the various utensils of worship, and the historical memorials here named. The tabernacle itself, and most of the articles of its furniture, were always considered as having a mystical design, though expositors have differed widely in their interpretations. "Abrabanel relates, that the [several] parts of the tabernacle represented the sea, dry land, and heaven. Rab. Bechai makes it a representation of the universe. The Holy of Holies, [according to him,] signified the world of angels; the middle, (wherein were the table of shew-bread and candlestick,) the heavenly orbs; and the outer court, this lower world; the elements being represented by the brazen sea, sacred fire, &c. Philo and Josephus [also] explain it mystically: the latter calls the parts of the tabernacle resemblances of the universe; the two first, of the earth and sea, common to all; the third, of heaven, where God dwells." (Bp. Kidder's Messiah.)

But these interpretations, however ingenious, are rather philosophical than evangelical: and do not comport with the apostolical method of interpretation, which refers all the types and mysteries of the Old Testament to Christ, his work and sufferings, and subsequent glory; or other objects of a spiritual and evangelical nature. Thus the candlestick and the shew-bread point to Christ, who is the true light, and the bread that came down from heaven, both which are to be found in the church below; but the Holy of Holies directs to heaven itself—not the heaven of philosophers, but that heaven into which Christ himself has entered with his atoning blood, and where he pleads its merits before the eternal throne.

The import of the cherubim has, indeed, been matter of great, and even bitter, controversy. We have satisfied ourselves with the ancient hypothesis, which considers them as figuring to us the angels of the divine presence, who bend before the throne which read (skene) "tabernacle;" which reading is supported by Whitby, Doddridge, and other respectable commentators, who seem surprised that it is not universally adopted. But it is also true, that the word "tabernacle" is omitted in many MSS. and editions, ancient as well as modern; and that translators generally supply the word "covenant" in preference to "tabernacle," which they suppose to be the gloss of some injudicious copyist. This reading is supported by those ancient versions, the Syriac and Vulgate, by Chrysostom, and other Greek Fathers. So among the commentators, it is preferred by Beza and Grotius; by Owen, and the Assembly's Annotators; by Hammond, Macknight, Guise, M'Lean, &c.—Also ordinances—i. e. rites or forms of worship.

---

Ver. 2. A tabernacle made.—Doddridge, "prepared." Macknight, "set in order." i. e. for public worship.—The first, wherein—i. e. within the first or outer apartment of which was the candlestick, and the table of shew-bread, &c. of which see Exod. xl. 22—25.—Which is called the sanctuary.—Macknight transposes the words thus:—"For the first [or outward] tabernacle, which is called Holy, was set in order, in which was both the candlestick, and the table, and the shew-bread."

Ver. 3. And after the second veil.—A first veil is here implied, which closed the entrance of the tabernacle. Exod. xxxvi. 37. After this—the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of all—Or, as the Hebrew literally is, "the Holy of Holies."

Ver. 4. Which had the golden censer.—Of the use of this instrument, which was a small pan for burning incense, see Levit. xvi. 12, 13. But as the high priest might not enter the Most Holy without it, a question arises, how he could come at it for use if it was kept there? "To this it is answered, that it might be kept just within the veil, and within the reach of his hand, so that he could take it thence without entering himself."—M'Lean.—And the ark of the covenant. See Exod. xxxvii. 1, 2.—Wherein was—i. e. perhaps in the Most Holy; not the ark.—The golden pot.—See Exod. xvi. 33, 34.

Ver. 5. The cherubims of glory—i. e. the glorious cherubim; and so called for two reasons—1. Because they were themselves glorious, as being covered with gold; and, 2. Because they represented, as we conceive, a glorious order of angelic beings, who wait before the throne of God. Ezek. i. 4, &c. Rev. iv. 6. &c.

Ver. 6. The priest went always into the first tabernacle—Or rather, as M'Lean explains it, into the first or outer apartment of the tabernacle, where the common priests had a daily service to perform.

Ver. 7. But into the second—compartment of the tabernacle, namely, "The Holy of Holies"—went the high priest alone once (i. e. on one day in every year.—See Exod. xxx. 10. Levit. xvi. 2, &c.

Ver. 9. Which was a figure.—Gr. Parable. See chap. xi. 19.

Ver. 10. Carnal ordinances.—Doddridge and Macknight, "Ordinances concerning the flesh."

Ver. 11. Not made with hands, &c.—Many judicious divines (as Calvin, Owen, &c.) refer this to the body of Christ, (as they do also chap. viii. 2;) but we rather think, with M'Lean, that "heaven itself" is intended, and so it is expressed ver. 24.

Ver. 14. Through the eternal Spirit.—The Vulgate, and many Greek MSS. read, "The Holy Spirit;" and to him we are inclined to ascribe it. Bp. Fell mentions "Christ's being conceived, proclaimed, anointed, dying, and rising, be the aid of God's Holy Spirit." See 1 Pe. iii. 18. So Owen, Doddridge, &c.

Ver. 15. Mediator.—See note on Gal. iii. 20. "The Mediator of a Testament," says Doddridge, "is a very improper expression:" he therefore translates the word (diatheke) Covenant, as in almost all other places. So Macknight, and most other modern commentators. But Owen, Witsius, and Campbell, retain the term Testament.

Ver. 16, 17. For where a testament is, &c.—Doddridge, agreeable to the preceding remarks, renders this verse, "For where a covenant (is,) it necessarily imports the death of that by which the covenant is confirmed;" alluding to the general custom of offering sacrifices on those occasions.—For a testament is of force after men are dead, &c. —Doddridge, "A covenant (is) confirmed over the dead, so that it doth not avail, while he by whom it is confirmed liveth." Macknight translates the passage thus: "For where a covenant (is,) there is a necessity that the death of the appointed (sacrifice) be brought in." (Compare margin.) "For a covenant is firm over dead sacrifices, seeing it never hath force while the appointed sacrifice liveth."

Our readers will perceive, that all these alterations are rendered necessary by a rigid adherence to the word covenant. Into the ground and reasons of them, or, on the other hand, the objections against them, we cannot here enter particularly. The former may be found in Doddridge, Macknight, and M'Lean; the latter in Owen, Campbell's Prelim. Dissertations, and Fraser's curious and elaborate notes on his late Translation of Witsius on the Creed.

Ver. 18. Dedicated.—Chap. x. 20. the same word is rendered "consecrated:" The word "testament," being in italic, is supplementary. Perhaps it might be here better to advert again to the more frequent sense of the original term, namely, "covenant;" and so it seems used in verse 20. Compare note on verse 1.

19 For [k] when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and [l] scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people, 20 Saying, This is the blood [m] of the testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

21 Moreover [n] he sprinkled likewise with blood both the tabernacle, and all the vessels of the ministry.

22 And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood [o] is no remission.

23 It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these.

24 For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear [p] in the presence of God for us:

25 Nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entereth into the holy place every year with blood of others;

26 For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world: but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And as it is appointed [q] unto men once to die, but after this [r] the judgment:

28 So Christ [s] was once offered to bear the sins of [t] many; and unto them that look [u] for him shall he appear [v] the second time without sin unto [w] salvation.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

[k] Ex.24.6, &c. Le.c.14 & 16.

[l] or, purple

[m] Mat.26.28

[n] Ex.29.12, 36.

[o] Le.17.11.

[p] Ro.8.34.

[q] Ge.3.19.

[r] Ec.12.14.

[s] 1 Pe 2.24. 3 18. 1 Jn.3.5.

[t] Is.53.12. Mat.26.28

[u] Tit.2.13. 2 Pe.3.12.

[v] Ac.1.11. Re.1.7.

[w] Is.25.9.

[x] Col.2.17.

[b] or, they would have.

[c] Le.16.34.

[d] Mi.6.6..8.

[e] Ps.40.6..8

[f] or, thou hast fitted

CHAPTER X.

1 The weakness of the law sacrifices. 10 The sacrifice of Christ's body once offered, 14 for ever hath taken away sins. 19 An exhortation to hold fast the faith, with patience and thankgiving.

FOR the law having a shadow [x] of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto perfect.

2 For then [b] would they not have ceased to be offered? because that the worshippers once purged should have had no more conscience of sins.

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again made of sins every [c] year.

4 For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away [d] sins.

5 Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, [e] Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body [f] hast thou prepared me:

6 In burnt-offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will, O God.

8 Above when he said, Sacrifice and offering and burnt-offerings and offering for sin thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein; which are offered by the law;

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O of God in heaven, or visit the churches of God on earth, desiring to look into the mysteries of human redemption.

---

The entrance of the high priest into the most holy place only once a year, and that not without the sprinkling of blood, and other mystic ceremonies, we are here taught, (ver. 24,) prefigured our Lord Jesus Christ entering "into heaven itself, to appear in the presence of God for us." In the mean time, that is, before the death of Christ, the continuance of the veil which separated the most holy from the outer part, signified that the way into the former "was not yet made manifest"—was not thrown open—"while as yet the first tabernacle, with all its rites and ceremonies, remained standing:" but when, at the death of Christ, that veil was rent in twain, it was thereby signified that, through him, the way was opened, and that sinners of all nations, Gentiles as well as Jews, might now draw nigh to God.

"To show (says Mr. M'Lean) that it was necessary that the new covenant should be ratified by the death of Christ, he [Paul] compares it in this respect to a testament, which is of no force or validity till ratified by the death of the testator, (ver. 16, 17.) Accordingly, God's covenants with sinful men have, ever since the fall, been made and ratified by the death and blood of sacrifices: and this, he particularly observes, was the case with the first or Sinaitic covenant, which was solemnly ratified and dedicated by slaying sacrifices, and sprinkling the blood on the book and people—the tabernacle and all the vessels of the sanctuary." These things, indeed, as they referred to the types themselves, were necessary to be repeated; but not so the antitype, or Christ must have often suffered: but now once "in the end of the world," that is, in these last ages, the times of the Messiah, "hath he appeared, finally and effectually to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself."

But it may be asked, whence arises a necessity that the heavens themselves should be purified, where no sin can enter? To this we answer, with Mr. M'Lean, "That though the typical representations of heavenly things had no moral impurity in themselves, and though neither person nor thing ceremonially unclean was permitted to enter into the outer, far less into the inner tabernacle, to defile it; yet we have seen that it was necessary that they should be purified with blood, on account of the uncleanness of the people, and that they might thus be opened and fitted for their admission to, and acceptance with God, in his worship. Now, as to the heavenly things, it may be observed, that though Christ had no sin of his own, yet, as the substitute of sinners, he sanctified and devoted himself to be a sacrifice for their sins, (John xvii. 19.) and . . . . . was thus 'made perfect,' or consecrated, through his sufferings. 2. By his entering into heaven by the blood of his own sacrifice, he hath dedicated and opened for all believers, a new and living way of access into the holiest, by which they may draw near . . . . to God. 3. He hath gone into heaven, to prepare a place there for the everlasting habitation of the saints, and will come again to receive them to himself."

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—18. The superiority of Christ's sacrifice farther argued from the prophecies of the Old Testament.—The apostle commences this chapter with stating, that the Mosaic ritual was merely a shadow—a dark adumbration—which formed only a sketch or outline of the mysterious truths of the gospel, and of the person and character of our Redeemer; and not the very image, exhibiting the full form and colour of the several objects: and this representation being so imperfect, ought by no means to be put in the place of the objects which it represented; nor ought it to be considered as itself perfecting those who were its most diligent observers. It, in fact, could do nothing, but only direct them to Him who was able to do all things which they required, and who doth "all things well." This, he proceeds to show them, was pointed out in the prophecies of the Old Testament, and particularly in the book of Psalms, several passages from which the apostle here quotes and expounds.

That it was not possible for the blood of bulls and goats to satisfy the demands of divine justice, or propitiate the anger of God against sinners, is in itself most evident; and is rendered the more so from the requirement of their perpetual repetitions: for if human transgression could be thus atoned for, those sacrifices need not annually and daily be repeated: but this constant repetition was a sufficient intimation that some farther and better sacrifice would be required. David therefore represents Messiah himself as thus addressing the Diving Being: "Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not" be satisfied with; "in burnt-offerings and" other sacrifices "for sin," in themselves considered, "thou hast no pleasure: "but a body hast thou prepared (or fitted) for me" to become incarnate: "Lo, I come (therefore) to do thy will, O God." Here "he taketh away the efficacy of the" legal sacrifices first mentioned, that he may establish the second—the merit and efficacy of his own

---

Ver. 19. When Moses, &c.—See Exod. xxiv. 3—8. But some things are added not there mentioned, for which he had no doubt good authority.—Scarlet wool.—See note on Mark xv. 17.

Ver. 20. This is the blood, &c.—Compare Mat. xxvi. 28. [Rather, covenant. Ver. 16, 17, may be better rendered, "For where a covenant is, there must necessarily be the death of that by which it is confirmed; for a covenant is confirmed over dead victims, and does not avail while that by which it is confirmed liveth." See on De. xxix. 12. Jos. ix. 6.]—Bagster.

Ver. 23. The heavenly things.—Compare Ephes. i. 20. Also this Epistle, chap. viii. 2; ix. 11, 14.

Ver. 26. But now once, &c.—Compare ver. 12.

Ver. 27. After this.—Though the day of judgment must be at a great distance from the decease of many individuals, it is the general idea, that upon our entrance into another world, an individual decision will take place, and fix the final state of each, for happiness or misery. See Eccles. xii. 7. Luke xvi. 22, 23.

Ver. 28. Without sin—i. e. not as a sin-offering, as at his first coming.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1. The law having a shadow, &c.—The comparison appears to us to be between an outline drawing, sketched in black and white, and finished painting in colours, or perhaps a finished statue.

Ver. 4. For it is not possible.—[While the Jews themselves acknowledged that "there is no expiation but by blood," common sense, as well as the Scriptures, must have taught them, that the blood of bulls and of goats could never satisfy divine justice, nor take away guilt from the conscience.]—E.

Ver. 5. When he cometh into the world.—These words are supposed to be uttered by Messiah on his incarnation.—A body hast thou prepared, Kennicott is very confident that the Hebrew once read as the Greek now does, "A body," &c.—Saurin has, however, a very ingenious conjecture. Supposing the Hebrew, in the Psalm quoted, to have originally read, "My ears hast thou opened," or bored, (in allusion to Exod. xxi. 6.) he conceives that the LXX., considering that idea unintelligible in Greek, changed the allusion to a custom familiar to themselves, namely, the marking the bodies of their soldier

God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 By the which will we are [g] sanctified through the offering [h] of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest standeth [i] daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never [j] take away sins:

12 But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, for ever sat [k] down on the right hand of God;

13 From henceforth expecting till his enemies [l] be made his footstool.

14 For by one offering he hath [m] perfected for ever them that are sanctified.

15 Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us: for after that he had said before,

16 This [n] is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them;

17 [o] And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these is, there is no more offering for sin.

19 Having therefore, brethren, [p] boldness to enter into the holiest [q] by the blood of Jesus,

20 By a new and living way, [r] which he hath [s] consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh;

21 And having a high priest [t] over the house of God;

22 Let us draw near with a true heart in [u] full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled [v] from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

23 Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he [w] is faithful that promised;)

24 And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works:

25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as [x] ye see the day approaching.

26 For if [y] we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, 27 But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery [z] indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.

28 He [a] that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses:

29 Of [b] how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit [c] of grace?

30 For we know him that hath said, Vengeance [d] belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And [e] again, The Lord shall judge his people.

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions;

A M. cir. 4067. A. D. cir. 63.

g Jn 17.19.
h c 9.12.
i N...28.3.
j Ps.50.8.. 13. Is.1.11.
k Col.3.1.
l Ps.110.1.
m ver.1.
n Je.31.33, 34.
o Some copies have, Then he said, And their.
p or, liberty
q c.9.8,12.
r Jn.14.6.
s or, new made.
t c.4 14..16
u Ep.3.12. v Eze.36.25
w 1 Th.5.24.
x Ro.13.11.
y Nu.15 30. c 6.4, &c.
z Zep.1.18. 3.8.
a De.17.2.. 13.
b c.2.3.
c Mat.12. 31,32
d De.32.35, 36.
e Ps.135.14.

---

infinite and unparalleled sacrifice, which alone hath the true nature of an atonement.

It has repeatedly been asked, But why could not God have accepted the blood of bulls and goats, without having required a human sacrifice, and especially that of his own Son? To this it has very properly been replied, 1. That these sacrifices were only types and shadows of the true sacrifice, and shall God be satisfied with shadows only? 2. Had this been possible, how then shall we account for the fact, that God made the soul of his own Son a sacrifice for sin? Surely this circumstance fully proves, that the divine honour could have accepted no inferior sacrifice. The contrary supposition, however well intended, seems to us to represent the divine perfections in a very unworthy light. 3. Reason evidently requires, that satisfaction for sin should be made in the nature which had offended; and that the blood of no inferior animal could be accepted in our stead. Thus it was impossible that the blood of bulls and goats could take away sin. And when it is considered, that the death of Christ was not merely the death of one man for another, but the death of one for millions, the same line of reasoning seems to require, that his life must not only be free from personal guilt, but must be at least of equal value with the whole; and this seems impossible, but on the supposition that he must be of far superior rank—as was Jesus Christ, who, though a partaker of real humanity, was no less intimately related to the divine Being—God as well as man.

From the indispensable and perpetual use of blood, under the law, as the means of purification and of pardon, Dr. Macknight infers two facts of great importance:—1. "That from the fall of Adam to the end of the world, no man will be pardoned but through Christ's having offered himself to God as a sacrifice for sin.—2. That although Christ offered himself only once, and that at the conclusion of the Mosaic dispensation, that one offering is in itself so meritorious, that its influence reacheth backwards to the beginning of the world, and forwards to the end of time."

The author of this epistle seldom speaks of the sufferings of Christ, or of his people, but he connects them with the glory that was to follow. When Christ had completed the work of atonement, he sat down, waiting and expecting till all his enemies should be made his footstool; in order to which the Holy Spirit continued, and still continues, his work of grace in the hearts of his redeemed.

Ver. 19—39. A practical improvement of the preceding statements.—St. Paul having, in the preceding part of this epistle, shown the defect of the Jewish sacrifices, and the infinite superiority of that of Christ, encourages the believing Hebrews to draw near, with a holy freedom and boldness, by the blood of Jesus, as "a new and living way" of access to God. In illustration of this expression, "a new and living way," Dr. Owen observes, that the blood of the sacrificed animals was to be used immediately on its being shed; for if it was left till cold and congealed, it could neither be offered nor sprinkled; but "the blood of Christ is (as it were) always warm, having the same spirit of life and sanctification moving in it." What is said of the veil of his flesh, may also have an allusion to the veil of the temple being rent in twain in the moment of his death, as figuratively representing the opening of this "new and living way," by the piercing of his body on the cross, whence flowed a double stream of blood and water, to sprinkle our consciences with the former, and purify our conduct by the latter.

---

and slaves, that they might claim them as their own, and therefore rendered the original, "My body hast thou prepared;" meaning, marked, according to their custom. See Gal. vi. 17. Rev. xiii. 16, 17.

Ver. 10. Once for all—i. e. once only.

Ver. 12. For ever sat down—Namely, as a priest upon his throne. Zech. vi. 13.

Ver. 20. He hath consecrated.—Gr. "hath new made;" i. e. applied to a new use or purpose. This new way was made, not for Christ himself, but for us.

Ver. 23. The profession of our faith.—"The English translators, on the authority of one MS. only, read here faith, instead of hope,—the true reading, according to Mill, who is followed by Doddridge, Macknight, M'Lean, &c. —"The apostle, in this exhortation, refers to the confession of their hope of salvation through Christ, which the primitive Christians made at baptism."—Macknight.

Ver. 25. Ye see the day.—Gr. "That day," with the article. Macknight applies this to the destruction of Jerusalem; but as that day was usually spoken of in connexion with the day of judgment, (and often, perhaps, confounded with it,) that also may probably be referred to.

Ver. 26. If we sin wilfully.—To sin wilfully, is to sin deliberately and knowingly, and neither through ignorance nor fear.—There remaineth no more sacrifice—That is, the Jewish sacrifices being abolished, and that of Christ rejected, of course there remains no other. "I was lately," observed Mr. Gurney, "called to attend the death-bed of a young man at Hoxton. I found him in the greatest horror of mind: I pointed him to Jesus, the sinner's only friend, and to the glorious promises of the Gospel; when, with an agonizing look of despair, he replied, 'Ah! sir, but I have rejected the Gospel. Some years since, I read Paine's Age of Reason,—it suited my corrupt taste, I imbibed its principles: after this, wherever I went, I did all that lay in my power to hold up the Scriptures to contempt; by this means I led others into the fatal snare, and made proselytes to infidelity. Thus I rejected God, and now he rejects me.' I offered to pray by him, but he replied, 'Oh, no—it is all in vain to pray for me.' Then, with a dismal groan, he cried out, 'Paine's Age of Reason has ruined my soul!' and instantly expired."

Ver. 28. He that despised.—Doddridge, "who set at nought the law of Moses." See Num. xv. 30, 31.

Ver. 29. Wherewith he was sanctified.—This may either be referred to Christ, or to the apostate here described. To sanctify, is to set apart to a holy or sacred purpose. So Christ said—"I sanctify myself," (John xvii. 19;) and this we conceive he did, as high priest, before he entered within the veil with his own blood, called, in chap. xiii. 12, 20, "the blood of the everlasting covenant," and "the blood wherewith he sanctified the people." So Gill and others. But applying the term "sanctified" to the apostate, since the Scripture frequently speaks of men according to their profession, it may mean only a professed devotedness of himself to Christ; and as Bishop Hoadly suggests, receiving the Sacramental cup. See 1 Co. xi. 29; 2 Peter ii. 1.—An unholy thing.—Doddridge, "common," or "unclean." See Acts x. 14, 15.—And hath done despite.—Macknight, "insulted."

Ver. 30. Vengeance belongeth unto me, &c.—Deut. xxxii. 35, 36.

Ver. 31. It is a fearful—Doddridge, "a dreadful"—thing

Ver. 32. A great fight.—Macknight, "Combat;" alluding, loutless to the public combats in the theatres of that age.

33 Partly, whilst ye were made a gazing-stock both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, whilst ye became [f] companions of them that were so used.

34 For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing [g] in yourselves that ye have in heaven [h] a better and an enduring substance.

35 Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great [i] recompense of reward.

36 For ye have need of [j] patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.

37 For [k] yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry.

38 Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

A. M. cir. 4067
A. D. cir. 63.

f 1 Th.2.14.
g or, that ye have in yourselves; or, for yourselves.
h Lu.12.33.
i Mat.5.12.
j Lu.21.19. k Hab.2.3,4

1 ver.26.
a or, ground, or, confidence.
b Ro.8.24, 25
c Ge.1.1. Ps.33.6.
d Ge.4.4,5.
e or, is yet spoken of f Ge.5.22,24

39 But we are not of them who draw back [l] unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul.

CHAPTER XI.

1 What faith is. 6 Without faith we cannot please God. 7 The worthy fruits there of in the fathers of old time.

NOW faith is the [a] substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things [b] not seen.

2 For by it the elders obtained a good report.

3 Through faith we understand [c] that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.

4 By faith Abel [d] offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead [e] yet speaketh.

5 By faith Enoch [f] was translated that he Having entered this way by faith and repentance—having avowed ourselves the disciples of the Lord Jesus, let us, saith the apostle, hold fast our profession without wavering. Let us stimulate each other to love and to good works—using all the means of social worship, as well as of private devotion; especially guarding against pride and presumption, the great sources of apostacy from God. It is true, that in times of persecution many may fall away through weakness; and of these, many will also be glad to return to our merciful Saviour, in an interval of the church's peace: but the most awful apostacy is that which originates in pride of intellect and of heart. Such men spurn at the humbling truths of Revelation, trample on the dignity of the Son of God, count his blood like that of a common man, and speak contemptuously of the work of the Holy Spirit; and all this, not through ignorance of these truths, but from pride, presumption, and contempt for the simplicity of the gospel, and the humble instruments employed in its propagation.

For such it must be indeed "a dreadful thing to fall" into his hands, who hath said, "Vengeance belongeth unto me!" And, to guard his brethren the more carefully against apostacy, St. Paul calls upon them to recollect what they had formerly suffered in the cause of Christ, and what they had already endured for his sake: and for them who had stood firm against such trials, to be led away by the pride of reason and of learning, and of philosophy, (falsely so called!) would be truly melancholy and lamentable. He therefore recommends the believing Hebrews to "live by faith," and to trust the word of God, in preference both to their own reason, and the pretensions of those who attempted to seduce them.

We cannot help remarking here the great importance of public and social worship: for though we do not estimate the piety of persons from the number of sermons they attend, we have a very low idea of their religion who do not attend on public worship. For persons to excuse themselves on the principle that they cannot expect to learn, not only discovers great vanity; but great ignorance; since the object of our devotional assemblies is not only personal instruction, but also communion with God and with our fellow Christians; and, as stated in this instance, to encourage one another, in the prospect of alarming or afflictive dispensations; "and so much the more as ye see the day approaching."

In farther prosecution of his subject, the apostle proceeds, in the next chapter, to give them a narrative of the fruits and effects of faith, through the several ages of the patriarchs, the Mosaic dispensation, and the latter history of Israel, down to their own times.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1—7. The nature of faith—the creation—and the patriarchs before Abraham.—The inspired writer of this Epistle begins the present very interesting chapter with defining the principles of faith, the nature and effects of which he illustrates by a variety of examples. The definition of faith (ver. 1) is thus rendered by our translators:—"Faith is the substance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things unseen;" meaning, doubtless, that it is the nature of faith to realize those objects, whereof the evidence is presented to our minds, which is certainly true; but for reasons subjoined in our notes, we prefer the rendering of Mr. M'Lean; namely, "Faith is the confidence of things hoped for, and the conviction of things unseen;" which corresponds in sense with that of Dr. Doddridge. It is added, "For by it," that is, by faith, "the elders obtained a good report," or testimony, on the part of God, that they pleased him, and were accepted of him, as follows in the subsequent verses. But how does this report or testimony, thus obtained of God, prove or illustrate the nature of faith as here defined? It was by confidence in the word and promises of God, particularly with reference to a future state, that they were enabled to resist temptation, to sustain affliction, and to endure persecution.

Before we come, however, to individual instances, we meet with this general proposition, "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God." Thus Moses informs us in the first of Genesis, and such is the concurrent testimony of the sacred writers. But the sense of the next clause is not quite so evident. It runs thus: "So that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear;" that is, says Doddridge, "It is certain no visible cause could produce those things, [to suppose] which would be, in effect, to suppose them to have produced themselves; we therefore, by faith, refer them to a divine, invisible original." Macknight renders it, "The things which are seen were not made of things which did appear." Chrysostom thus expresses it—"The things which exist were made of things not existing"—that is, made out of nothing. So Bishop Pearson, and most other divines.

The ancient philosophers indulged themselves in a variety of speculations respecting the origin of the material world; but its creation from non-entity, or nothing, by the one great Supreme, is a pure doctrine of Revelation: for however reason may approve, it certainly did not discover it; nor is it to be found among either the poets or the sages of the Pagan world, who generally leaned to the absurd notion of an eternal succession of causes and effects. Overwhelming as are the modern discoveries respecting the all-but-infinite extent of creation, the scriptural doctrine of a first supreme cause, is still more so; and taken together, they sink proud man to his proper level with the worms.

Had we room to enlarge, all the natural perfections of God might be adduced from the simple fact of the creation; particularly his wisdom and power—his eternity and immutability—his justice and his goodness: but though we cannot now examine, let us not neglect to admire and to adore. This is the song of Moses and of the Lamb—"Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty: just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints!" (Rev. xv. 3.)

The long list of patriarchal worthies here enumerated, com

Ver. 33. A gazing-stock.—Doddridge, "a public spectacle."

Ver. 37. Yet a little while.—Macknight, "a very little while." See Hab. ii 3.—He that shall come will come.—Christians were taught to look for a second coming of Christ, as earnestly as for his incarnation; and one of their descriptive characters is, that they wait for his appearing. 1 Thess. i. 10. 2 Thess. iii. 5.

Ver. 38. But if any man draw back.—Doddridge and Macknight, "Yet if he draw back." The Hebrew of Habakkuk, just referred to, reads, (ver. 4,) "His soul which is lifted up." Pococke contends, that the same Hebrew word signifies to faint, and so to fall back. But, if we may be allowed to offer a conjecture of our own, we conceive it to be an allusion to the attitude of pride and hauteur, observable as well in some animals as in our own species, namely, in the horse, turkey, &c.; who, while they proudly raise their heads, scornfully draw them back. The apostates here mentioned, were evidently not so much influenced by fear, as by pride and presumption, (ver. 29.) They left the ranks of Christianity, not so much from fear, as from contempt and scorn. The Hebrew word (gnaphel) is rendered presumed, Num. xiv. 44.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1. The substance.—The Greek term, hypostasis, is well known in the Trinitarian controversy, as differently used for essence and for person; but "in the New Testament (as remarked by M'Lean) it is used only five times, and that only by our apostle; in three of which it is translated confidence, viz. 2 Co. ix. 4; xi. 17. Heb. iii. 14; and in this place it is so translated in the margin."—The evidence.—The original term here used, in the New Testament occurs only twice; namely, in 2 Tim. iii. 16, where it is translated reproof; but, according to the judicious commentator just cited, should be rendered conviction, both there and in the passage now before us. So Doddridge; but Macknight preserves the term "evidence."

Ver. 2. The elders.—Macknight, "The ancients;" namely, the patriarchs and prophets, as in the following verses.

Ver. 3. The worlds were framed.—Literally, "the ages." The material world acquired this name from the perpetual changes to which it is subject, and some modern writers would confine its import to the arrangement and government of the world; but that the material frame itself must be included, is evident from the phrase, "things which are seen;" also from chap. i. 2, and many other passages.

Ver. 4. A more excellent sacrifice.—"It is observed by critics, that the [Greek] word (pleiona) signifies more in number, rather than in value. Cain offered the fruit of the ground, which was only the mincha, or meat-offering, but no proper sacrifice for sin. Gen. iv. 3."—M'Lean. The late Dr. Kennicott farther argued from these circumstances, particularly from the word (pleiona) "more," that Abel offered not only a sacrifice, but also a mincha, that is, a meat (or rather bread) offering; so that he by the one acknowledged God's providential goodness, and by the other his redeeming mercy. See Kennicott's Dissert. on "Cain and Abel."—By it he, being dead, yet speaketh.—By what? it may be asked. We reply, By his faith, by his example. John Edwards explains it of his blood, which God said, "Crieth unto me from the ground." Gen. iv. 10. But Macknight opposes the latter sense, as ungrammatical. The margin, however, reads in the passive, "Is yet spoken of;" alluding to the "good report" which he "through faith received" as in ver. 2 should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God.

6 But without faith it is impossible to please [s] him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.

7 By faith [h] Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, [i] moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.

8 By faith [j] Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

9 By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, [k] dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise:

10 For he looked for a city [l] which hath foundations, whose [m] builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith also Sara [n] herself received strength to conceive seed, and was delivered of a child when she was past age, because she judged him faithful [o] who had promised.

12 Therefore sprang there even of one, and him as good as dead, [p] so many as the stars of the sky in multitude, and as the sand which is by the sea shore innumerable.

13 These all died [q] in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and [r] confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

14 For they that say such things declare plainly that they seek a country.

15 And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned.

16 But now they desire a better country, that is, a heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their [s] God: for he hath prepared for them a [t] city.

17 By faith Abraham, when [u] he was tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son,

18 [v] Of whom it was said, [w] That in Isaac shall thy seed be called:

19 Accounting that God was able to raise him

A. M., cir. 4057.
A. D. cir. 63.

g Ps.106.21, 22
h Ge.6.14, 22.
i or, being wary
j Ge.12.1,4, &c.
k Ge.13.3, 18. 18.1,9.
l c.12.22. 13.14.
m Re.21.2, 10.
n Ge.21.1,2.
o c.10.23.
p Ge.22.17. Ro.4.17.
q according to.
r 1Ch.29.15. 1Pe.2.11.
s Ex.3.6,15.
t ver.10.
u Ge.22.1, &c. Ja.2.21.
v or, To.
w Ge.21.12.

mences with Abel, the son of Adam and Eve, who is here commended as having offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain; but wherein was that sacrifice more excellent? Some have supposed its superior excellency to have consisted in its being an animal sacrifice, and thus a more proper type of the atonement of our Saviour; and others in its being the choicest of its kind—"of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof;" as stated in Gen. iv. 4. But, as we have formerly stated, we think the grand difference lay in the characters of the offerers—the one was a believer and the other not. The offering of one was made in faith, and with an ultimate view to the atonement of the Redeemer; that of the other in a principle of self-righteousness, and with regard to no merits but his own. (See expos. of Gen. iv. 1—7.)

The next in the list is Enoch, the seventh from Adam, who, on account of the eminence of his faith and holiness, was translated to heaven without seeing death, having first obtained this testimony, "that he pleased God:" a testimony that clearly implied his also being a believer, for, "without faith, it is impossible to please God:" and that for this reason, "he who cometh to God must believe" not only "that he is," but "that he is a rewarder of them who diligently seek him." This did Enoch, and was therefore honoured (as was Elijah, the prophet, in after times) with a removal to heaven, and probably in a like open manner; and the expression "was not found," seems to imply that, like the Jewish prophet, he was sought after. (See 2 Kings ii. 16.)

The expression that "he (God) is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him," being spoken of as the faith of the first patriarchs, evidently implies their belief in the rewards of a future state: for the scriptures of the Old Testament also speak of the unequal distributions of good and evil in the present life, while at the same time they as positively assure us of the divine equity; and these facts can only be reconciled by the doctrine of a future judgment. (Compare Ps. xii. 8; xvii. 13. Eccl. viii. 14, with Gen. xviii. 25. Ps. ix. 7; xcvii. 11; cxix. 137. See also our exposition of Gen. v. 21—32.)

The third name in this list is that of Noah, a patriarch of two worlds—before and after the flood. His faith was evident in the zeal and perseverance with which he laboured, for 120 years together, in building an ark for the saving of his house, whereby, that is, by his example and preaching, "he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness, which is by faith." It is said, however, that he was "moved with fear," a circumstance which proves that the reverential fear of God is perfectly consistent with faith in him, and confidence in his mercy. That fear which is ejected by perfect love, is the fear not of children but of slaves. (See 1 John iv. 18.)

Ver. 8—19. The history of Abraham's faith.—The next character to which we come was so eminent for his faith, that he is, by way of distinction, called "The Father of the faithful," or of "believers." (Rom. iv. 11—16.) On his life and character, therefore, the apostle enlarges with peculiar propriety, as the most illustrious example of that distinguishing grace. The first instance given of his extraordinary faith is, that he became a pilgrim, and a stranger; and that not in consequence of any plan which he had formed, or of a wandering disposition; but it was in consequence of his being called of God, as we are informed by Stephen, Acts vii. 2, 3, and being so called he went forth, "not knowing whither he went." In doing this, he of course renounced the idols of his family and his country, his native land and his paternal possessions, with all his temporal hopes and prospects; and though he had the promise of the land of Canaan for his posterity, it was for them only, for he had of it no possession. At the same time, and during all this period, both he and his believing descendants were seeking for a better country and city, which God, their God, had provided for them, that is, "a heavenly" one:—for he (Abraham) and his believing posterity, "looked for a city which had foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

Sarah is next introduced as a partaker of the same faith, and co-heir of the same promise with her husband, notwithstanding that, as her history informs us, at the first she laughed at the idea of having children at her time of life, though announced by an angel. (Gen. xviii. 20.) Afterwards, however, there is no doubt of her change of mind, for "she judged him faithful who had promised," and lived to see, so far as respected herself, the fulfilment of his promise.

"These all died in faith,"—namely, the holy patriarchs; particularly, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, neither of whom received the blessings promised in this life, but looked to the possession of a heavenly Canaan even before their children took possession of the earthly. It was faith that supported them under all the trials of life, and when Death approached, and fully convinced them that there was no hope of their entering the Canaan below, Faith showed them another Canaan above—a new Jerusalem, "a city," not consisting of tents and temporary erections—but "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." But we cannot, among those who died in faith, include all Abraham's natural posterity, numerous as the stars or as the sands; for the far greater part of them, alas! deserted "the faith of their father Abraham." But to return to him:

The most celebrated instance of Abraham's faith was the offering up of his son Isaac; of whom it was said, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." But as we have already considered

Ver. 5. Was not found.—Namely, not on earth, being removed in his whole person, soul and body, to the skies.——He had this testimony.—This refers to Gen. v. 24, where we read, "Enoch walked with God," which the LXX. having translated that he "pleased God," is so quoted by the apostle; and hence we infer, that walking with God, implies a state of favour and friendship with him.

Ver. 7. Of things not seen as yet.—Namely, the flood.——Moved with fear.—Macknight, "A religious fear."——Heir of the righteousness which is by faith.—See Rom. iii. 21, 22; iv. 13. Phil. iii. 9.

Ver. 9. In tabernacles—i. e. tents—with Isaac and Jacob.—Doddridge observes, that Jacob was born 15 years before Abraham died.

Ver. 10. Builder and maker.—(Gr. demiourgos.) Doddridge, "Former." Macknight, "Ruler."

Ver. 12. As good as dead.—Gr. "dead as to these things;" i. e. as to having children.——As the stars of the sky in multitude.—To be able to enumerate the stars, the Psalmist speaks of as the peculiar prerogative of God. Ps. cxlvii. 4.

Ver. 13 Died in faith.—Gr. "according to faith."——And were persuaded of them.—These words are omitted in many MSS., and in all the ancient versions and commentators.——Embraced them.—This is supposed to be an allusion to persons on a voyage, who when they descry at a distance their wished-for port, hail it with the most joyful shouts.

"Lo! Italy appears, Achates cries;
And Italy! with shouts the crowd replies."—Pitt's Virgil.

Ver. 14. They seek a country.—The original word, (patrida,) as Doddridge remarks, "is very emphatical: it signifies, as it were, a native country in which their father dwelt, as opposed to that in which they were pilgrims and strangers."

Ver. 15. Opportunity to have returned.—It is calculated that there were full 200 years between the call of Abraham and the death of Isaac, during which there were, doubtless, many opportunities of return.

Ver. 17. Offered up.—Though Isaac was not slain, Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay him, as he certainly would have done if he had not been restrained; and, as we conceive, in the full persuasion of his being raised immediately from the dead.

Ver. 18 Of—Doddridge, "concerning"—whom.

up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure.

20 By faith Isaac [x] blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

21 By faith Jacob, when he was a dying, blessed [y] both the sons of Joseph; and worshipped, leaning [z] upon the top of his staff.

22 By faith [a] Joseph, when he died, [b] made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

23 By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid [c] three months of his parents, because they saw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of the king's [d] commandment.

24 By faith [e] Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter;

25 Choosing [f] rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season;

26 Esteeming the reproach [g] of [h] Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense [i] of the reward.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing [j] the wrath of the king: for he endured, as seeing him [k] who is invisible.

28 Through faith he kept the [l] passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the first-born should touch them.

29 By faith they passed [m] through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned.

30 By faith the walls of Jericho [n] fell down, after they were compassed about seven days.

31 By faith the harlot Rahab [o] perished not with them that [p] believed not, when she had received the spies [q] with peace.

32 And what shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell of [r] Gedeon, and of [s] Barak, and of [t] Samson, and of [u] Jephthae; of [v] David also, and [w] Samuel, and of the prophets:

A. M. cir. 4067
A. D. cir. 63.

x Ge.27.27.. 40.
y Ge.48.5.. 20. z Ge.47.31.
a Ge.50.24, 25.
b or, remembered
c Ex.2.2.
d Ex.1.16, 22. e Ex.2.10, 11
f Ps.84.10.
g or, for.
h c.13.13.
i c.10.35
j Ex.10.28, 29 12.31.
k 1 Ti.1.17.
l Ex.12.21, &c.
m Ex.14.22, 29.
n Jos.6.12.. 20.
o Jos 6 23. Ja 2.25. p or, were disobedient.
q Jos.2.4, &c.

r Ju.c.6 & 7. s Ju.4.6, &c. t Ju.c.15 & 16. u Ju.11.32, &c. v 1 Sa.17.45, &c. w 1 Sa.7.9, &c.

this extraordinary instance of piety and devotedness to God in our exposition of Genesis, chap. xxii., we shall here merely recapitulate, and that very briefly.

1. We have there remarked, that Abraham had been long trained to implicit obedience; and had found that, to whatever trials he might be called in Providence, he was by faith supported under them, and safely carried through them: and, though a pilgrim and a stranger all his lifetime, he neither attempted nor contemplated the returning to his native country and his idol gods.

2. In this remarkable narrative, we have not only a proof of Abraham's confidence in God, but an enigmatical display of God's method of saving sinners, under every dispensation of his grace; namely, by the sufferings and death of his own and only beloved Son, who, after dying for our sins, rose again for our justification, both which events are here plainly typified.

In speaking of the nature and extent of Abraham's trial, the pious Mr. Henry pithily observes, that he was called—"As a father, to cut off his own family—as a believer, to cancel the divine promises—as a type, to frustrate Christ's advent—as a minister, to cut off the church at a blow—and, as a philanthropist, to destroy all mankind. Such, however, were the appearances which must have presented themselves to his imagination."

The blessing of Jacob and Esau by Isaac, and of Joseph's sons by Jacob, have been already considered pretty fully in the 27th and 48th chapters of Genesis, to which, therefore, we refer our readers. What Joseph said, when dying, concerning his bones, (Gen. i. 24, 25,) was undoubtedly a prediction and pledge of the return of his brethren and their posterity to Canaan, (whence they had been for a time driven by famine into the land of Egypt,) and must not be considered in a superstitious point of view, as if he wished his bones to be honoured as relics; but it was to his brethren a demonstration of his belief in their return to possess the land promised to their fathers. These, therefore, "all died in faith."

Ver. 20—30. The history of Moses and of the persecuted Israelites.—Next to Abraham, Moses is the most distinguished character in the history of the Old Testament. He was, under God, the deliverer and legislator of Israel, and founder of the Jewish economy. His first introduction to the world, however, promised no such distinction. An exposed infant, discovered, as it were, by accident; adopted, out of charity, by a young princess, who was providentially led to its own mother as its nurse, and, by this unexpected patronage, introduced into Pharaoh's court. The beauty of his person was probably a principal mean, both of his preservation and his being adopted by Pharaoh's daughter as her own son, and, as such, trained up in all the wisdom of Egypt; but when he came of age, and was to have been in that character introduced among the Egyptian nobles, he refused to renounce his country and his kindred, which was probably necessary to taking rank as an Egyptian, or as the son of Pharaoh's daughter. Thus "choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God," the persecuted Israelites, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin and of idolatry for a season. From what is here said of the reproach of Christ, it seems evident, 1. That the pious Hebrews had been taught to look for a deliverer, "the seed of the woman, and of Abraham," who should one day appear for their salvation, and bring with him a great reward; and, 2. That the Egyptians were wont to reproach the poor oppressed Israelites with these expectations, which they considered as chimerical and ridiculous; and to ask, probably, "Where is the promise of his coming?" 3. That Moses and a few others (though probably but few) esteemed this reproach to them "greater riches," and far more permanent, than all the treasures and honours which Egypt could afford them.

It was probably about this time, that is, when he was forty years of age, that Moses found it necessary, on account of an act of homicide committed by him in the rescue of an Israelite, to flee into the land of Midian, (Exod. ii. 11, 12,) where he abode the next forty years; for he was not sent to deliver Israel till he was fourscore years of age. Then he returned to be their deliverer; and after a train of most astonishing miracles, by which his own faith, and that of his brethren, was established, "by faith he forsook (or left) Egypt; not fearing the wrath of the king," whom he boldly and resolutely withstood, "as seeing him who is invisible." (Exod. x. 28, 29.) "By faith also he kept the passover," wherein, by "the sprinkling of blood," he fully expressed his dependance on that atonement, which, in the fulness of time, Messiah was to offer for the salvation of mankind. By faith, also, in God's protecting providence, and in obedience to his word, "they passed through the Red Sea as on dry land;" which the Egyptians assaying (or attempting) to do, in pursuit of them, were therein drowned.

And when, after they had passed forty years in the wilderness, and had crossed the Jordan under the direction of Joshua, the successor of Moses, and besieged Jericho, "by faith" in the promise of God, though they used no weapons more formidable than rams' horns, the walls fell down before them. And the harlot Rahab, who lived just within, or upon the wall, perished not with the rest, because she also believed on the God of Israel. So she told the spies—"I know that the Lord hath given you the land . . . . . We have heard how the Lord hath dried up the water of the Red Sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt . . . . . for the Lord your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath." Thus, from "Abel, the righteous," to "Rahab, the (converted) harlot," faith always prevailed to the salvation of the soul, and often to the effect of temporal, and even of miraculous deliverance.

Ver. 31—40. Various other instances of faith enumerated. The apostle here finding examples to multiply upon him, makes a sudden stop, and asks, "And what shall I say more? for the time would fail" to review them all. He, therefore, rapidly enumerates a variety of other instances he might have added—naming some, and alluding to others in a most impressive strain of eloquence, of which we can only add a brief paraphrase, which may illustrate the subject, though it must

Ver. 19. In a figure.—Gr. a parable. On this circumstance, Preb. Townsend remarks—"The sacrifice of Isaac by his father was so evidently typical of the sacrifice of Christ, that there can be no doubt of the design to be answered by this otherwise mysterious event. On the very spot where Christ was afterwards crucified, Abraham is commanded to slay his son. It is needless to recapitulate the coincidences between the sacrifice of Isaac and of Christ; they are to be found in every commentary. That the meaning of the whole of the circumstances of this mystical sacrifice of his son, was revealed to Abraham—that he learned from them, that the promised Messiah should in like manner bear the wood of the cross, and die for mankind; and that Abraham, in obeying the divine command, rejoiced to see the day of Christ, and [that] he then saw it, and was glad, is well argued by Bp. Warburton."—Townsend's Old. Test. Arr.

Ver. 22. Joseph, when he died.—Doddridge, "When dying." Macknight, "When ending;" namely, his life.

Ver. 23. A proper child.—Macknight, "beautiful." [The beauty of Moses is expressly mentioned by Josephus, who introduces Pharaoh's daughter calling him "a child divine in form;" Philo also says, that, "at his birth, he had a more elegant and beautiful appearance, than denoted an ordinary person;" and it appears from Justin, that the fame of his beauty had spread among the heathen.]—Bagster.—Not afraid—i. e. not so intimidated as to drown the child, as commanded. Exod. i. 22.

Ver. 24. Come to years—i. e. to a mature age. The original literally reads, "grown great." It appears from Acts xii. 23, that Moses was now forty years of age.

Ver. 26. Reproach of Christ—That is, on account of their expectation of a Messiah.—For he had respect, &c.—Doddridge, "For he directed his regards to the recompense of reward." That reward could not be temporal, and must therefore be the everlasting reward. See ver. 10, 14, 16.

Ver. 27. By faith he forsook.—Doddridge, "left."

Ver. 31. The harlot Rahab.—Our opinion of this woman's character may be seen in our exposition of Joshua ii.

33 Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained [x] promises, stopped the mouths of [y] lions, 34 Quenched the violence of [z] fire, escaped [a] the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens.

35 Women [b] received their dead raised to life again: and others were tortured, not accepting [c] deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection:

36 And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of [d] bonds and [e] imprisonment:

37 They were [f] stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented;

38 (Of whom the world was not worthy:) they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

39 And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise:

40 God having [g] provided some better thing for us, that they without [h] us should not be made perfect.

A. M. cir. 4057.
A. D. cir. 63.

x Ge.3.16.
y Da.6.22.
z Da.3.25.
a 1 Ki.19.3. 2 Ki.6.16.
b 1 Ki.17.22. 2 Ki.4.35, 36.
c Ac.4.19.
d Ge.39.20.
e Je.20.2.
f Ac.7.59.
g or, foreseen.
h Re.6.11.

CHAPTER XII.

1 An exhortation to constant faith, patience, and godliness. 22 A commendation of the new testament above the old.

WHEREFORE seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside [a] every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

2 Looking unto Jesus the [b] author and finisher of our faith; who for the [c] joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

5 And ye have forgotten the exhortation [d] which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him:

6 For [e] whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for [f] what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

9 Furthermore we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the [g] Father of spirits, and live?

10 For they verily for a few days chastened us [h] after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit [i] of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby.

12 Wherefore lift [j] up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees;

c Lu.24.26.
d Pr.3.11,12
e Re.3.19.
f Pr.13.24.
g Nu.16.22. 27.16.
h or, as seemed good, or, meet, to them.
i Is.32.17. Ja.3.18.
j Is.35.3.

weaken the force of his language, as paraphrases always do:—The time would fail me to tell of Gideon, who, with a small band of men, defeated many thousand Midianites, (Judges vi.—viii.)—of Barak, who routed Sisera, and delivered Israel from the hand of Jabin, (Judges vi. 6)—of Sampson, who wrought many extraordinary achievements among the Philistines, (Judges xiii.—xvi.)—of Jephthae, and his victory over the Ammonites, (Judges xi. xii.)—of David, also, and his conquest over Goliath, and many other enemies—of Samuel, and others of the prophets.

These, with many more, proceeds the inspired writer, through faith subdued kingdoms, as did Joshua and others, just referred to;—wrought righteousness, not only personally, but executed the righteous judgments of God against offenders, as did Phineas, Joshua, David, &c.;—obtained promises, and their fulfilment, as did Abraham and Sarah, Caleb and Joshua, &c.;—stopped the mouths of lions, as in the case of Daniel;—quenched the violence of fire, as in the instances of his friends Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego;—escaped the edge of the sword—out of weakness were made strong—waxed valiant in fight—turned to flight the armies of the aliens, their pagan enemies. Even women received their dead to life again, as in the case of the widow of Zarephath, and the Shunamite; and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance, as in the heroic instance of the mother and her seven sons, as related in the second book of the Maccabees, (chap. vii.,) when one of her sons thus addressed the tyrant Antiochus:—"Thou, like a fury, takest us out of the present life; but the King of the world shall raise us up, who have died for his laws, to everlasting life." Another son said, "It is good, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God, to be raised up again by him." All these died, not accepting deliverance, the mother herself encouraging her sons, one after the other, in the same hope of a joyful resurrection.

And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings; yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonment. They were, in many cases, stoned; in one instance, at least, as Isaiah, sawn asunder—were tempted, being subject to "the fiery darts of Satan," as well as to the insidious arts of men—were slain with the sword, by decapitation; and, in short, by all the varieties of torture which malice or cruelty could invent. And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, yet received not the fulfilment of the great promise of Messiah; God having provided some better thing for us, that they, (Old Testament saints,) without us, (New Testament believers,) should not be made perfect. "The better thing provided for us than for them, (says Mr. M'Lean,) is the accomplishment of the promise, [of Messiah,] which they received not in this world; and their not being made perfect without us, is, their not fully enjoying the good thing promised, separate from, or before us."

"There was one promise (says Mr. Fuller) of greater importance than all the rest; namely, the coming of the Messiah. In the faith of this, the fathers lived and died; but they saw not its accomplishment. This was reserved for another generation. Hence the words of our Saviour, 'Blessed are your eyes, for they see (those things) that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see, and have not seen them,' &c. (Matt. xiii. 16, 17.) It is thus (adds this judicious writer) that God has wisely balanced the advantages of different ages. The fathers obtained much, but not all. Respecting the blessings of Messiah's kingdom, they sowed, and we reap; they laboured, and we enter into their labour. Thus it is ordered, that they without us should not be made perfect. The fulfilments of our times must come in to answer the faith, and complete the hopes of those who have gone before us." (Fuller's Harm., &c., p. 42, 43.)

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1—13. An animated exhortation to zeal and perseverance in the Christian race.—The opening of this chapter has an evident allusion to the Olympic games, wherein, by racing, wrestling, and combating, the greatest exertions were made for mastery; the victors being crowned with honour by the judge who presided in the games, and hailed by the applause of a vast concourse of spectators. To these circumstances our apostle evidently alludes. The Christian life is a race, a combat, and a wrestling; not, indeed, with

Ver. 35. Others were tortured.—Macknight, "beaten." The term probably refers to the cruel practice of the bastinado, still practised in the East. ——A better resurrection—i. e. a resurrection to a better life.

Ver. 37. They wandered about in sheep-skins, &c.—Clement of Rome, in his first Epistle to the Corinthians, § 17, alludes to the same circumstance. 'Let us be imitators of those who went about in goat-skins and sheep-skins, preaching the coming of Christ. We mean Elias, Eliseus, and Ezekiel, the prophets." See 2 Kings i. 8. Zech. xiii. 4.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1. Wherefore, seeing we also.—Doddridge, "Being therefore encompassed."——A cloud of witnesses.—The application of this metaphor to a multitude of persons, may be seen in Isa. lx. 8.——So easily beset us.—Literally, says Macknight, "which stands conveniently around us"—the sin adapted to our circumstances and situation; or, as others explain it, our constitutional sin, that to which our corrupt nature is most prone.——Run with patience.—Macknight, "with perseverance;" which is doubtless the true meaning, if not an exact translation.

Ver. 2. The author.—Doddridge, "leader." Macknight, "Captain and perfecter of the faith." Here it has relation to a race, and may therefore be well explained of Christ, as our example, having gone before.——And finisher—Or completer. This is thought by some critics to refer to the judge who presided over the games, and distributed the rewards.——For the joy that was set before him.—See Phil. ii. 8, 9.

Ver. 3. Consider.—Macknight, "attentively consider."

Ver. 4. Resisted unto blood.—An allusion to those pugilists who practised in a sort of gloves. They had not yet endured martyrdom.

Ver. 5. Which speaketh unto you.—Macknight, "which reasoneth with you."——My son, &c.—See Prov. iii. 11, 12.

Ver. 12. Lift up the hands, &c.—"The exhortation (Dr. Owen remarks) is 13 And make [k] straight [l] paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but [m] let it rather be healed.

14 Follow peace [n] with all men, and holiness, without [o] which no man shall see the Lord:

15 Looking diligently [p] lest any man [q] fail of the grace of God; lest any [r] root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled;

16 Lest there be any [s] fornicator, or profane person, as Esau, who [t] for one morsel of meat sold his birthright.

17 For ye know how that afterward, when [u] he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no [v] place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears.

18 For ye are not come unto [w] the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest,

19 And the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words; which [x] voice they that heard entreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more:

20 (For they could not endure that which was commanded. And [y] if so much as a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart:

21 And so terrible was the sight, that Moses said, I exceedingly fear and quake:)

22 But ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city [z] of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of [a] angels,

23 To the general assembly and church of the [b] first-born, which are [c] written [d] in heaven, and to God the [e] Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men [f] made perfect,

24 And to Jesus the mediator [g] of the new [h] covenant, and to the blood [i] of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of [j] Abel.

25 See that ye refuse not him that speaketh. For if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, much more shall not we escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven:

26 Whose voice then shook the earth: but now he hath promised, saying, [k] Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven.

27 And this word, Yet once more, signifieth

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

k or, even.
l Pr 4:26,27 marg. 6:1.
m Ps 34:14.
o Mat 5:8. Ep. 5:5.
p 2 Pe 1:10.
q Gr. fall from.
r De 29:18.
s 1 Co. 6:13, 18.
t Ge 25:33.
u Ge 27:34, 38
v or, way to change his mind.
w Ex. 19:12, 19.
x Ex 20:18, 19.
y Ex 19:13, 16.
z Re 3:12.
a Ps 68:17.
b Re 14:4
c or, enrolled.
d Lu 10:20.
e Ge 18:25.
f 1 Co. 15. 49,51.
g ch 8:6
h or, testament
i Ex 24:8.
j Ge 4:10
k Hag 2:6.

flesh and blood, but with spiritual enemies of higher rank and superior powers. (Ephes. vi. 12.)

In the preceding chapter, St. Paul presents us with a long list of spiritual combatants; that is, patriarchs, prophets, and other holy men, who, under the old dispensation, had ran, and fought, and conquered, and obtained the reward of everlasting life. These he represents as having taken their seats in glory, and as looking down with a holy anxiety on the progress of their successors under the New Testament dispensation. These he calls a great cloud of witnesses, alluding, as we conceive, to the immense multitude of spectators which sometimes assembled in their theatres to behold their favourite diversions. Christian professors he considers as racers, and as racers were not to encumber themselves with heavy clothing, or an unnecessary burden, which was calculated to impede their progress; so Christians should not load themselves with the riches or honours of the world; but must especially avoid those sinful indulgences, which, if they do not absolutely arrest their course, must necessarily impede it, like the long garments of the ancients, which were always laid aside on these occasions. And as the racers in these contests never stopped to look about them, or to admire the surrounding spectacle, but used to keep their eye steady on the goal; so Christians are exhorted to look constantly to Jesus, as their great exemplar and support—the author, and completer, and rewarder of their faith; he who shrunk from no difficulty, and evaded no duty, but "endured the cross, and despised the shame;" and, having obtained a complete victory, is now set down at the right hand of the throne above. He views with tenderness and affection the progress of his followers, affording them every needful support under all their trials; and they are here reminded that their trials were vastly inferior to his; for they were only like those combatants who, as it were, "beat the air," and had as yet engaged in no serious contest—they had "not resisted unto blood."

The apostle now drops the imagery of the preceding verses, and reasons with the Hebrews on a proper submission to the afflictive dispensations of divine Providence, admonishing them to consider these, not as misfortunes, as the world calls them; but as fatherly chastisements, designed ultimately for their advantage, and adapted to promote their spiritual improvement; that they might be partakers of God's holiness, and bring forth the peaceful fruits of righteousness.

Of the advantages of affliction to the mind, the following anecdote affords a fine illustration:—The late Rev. Mr. Cecil, when at college, was much tried with the ridicule and reproaches of some profane and profligate young men. Thus exercised, he was one day walking in the physic-garden, where he observed a very fine pomegranate tree, cut almost through the stem, near the root. On asking the gardener the reason of this, "Sir," said he, "this tree used to shoot so strong, that it bore nothing but leaves. I was therefore obliged to cut it in this manner; and when it was almost cut through, then it began to bear plenty of fruit."

Ver. 14—29. Cautions against apostacy.—Contrast between Mount Sinai and Mount Sion.—The apostle, after having encouraged the believing Hebrews under their afflictions, and advised them to pursue "the even tenor of their way," with all tenderness toward their weak and dejected brethren, now advises them as to their conduct towards the world, and particularly towards professors.—"Follow peace with all men." It is (at least in part) from the tendency of the gospel to promote peace on earth, that it is called "the gospel of peace;" and most certainly, in itself considered, there is nothing in it to promote strife and discord, which can only arise from the contrary tempers and dispositions of mankind. The passage before us, however, admonishes us, that we are not to sacrifice the interests of truth and holiness to those of peace; either by surrendering them to procure it, or by conniving at vice or error to promote it; since "without holiness" of heart and life, "no man shall see the Lord" in glory. No rites and ceremonies, nor even morality itself, can be admitted as a substitute for a renewed heart.

With this zeal for holiness, is to be connected a zealous oversight of the conduct and spirit of the brethren, "looking diligently, lest any man fail of the grace of God." The word rendered fail, is used either for falling short of an object, or deserting from it. Thus, chap. iv. 1, these Hebrews are exhorted to a cautionary fear, lest any should come short of that eternal rest promised in the gospel; and such may be the object in view here. Or, if we read with the margin, if any man "fall from" it, it may be taken as a caution against apostacy; and there are many such cautions in the writings of St. Paul, zealous as he was in maintaining the fidelity and consistency of the divine character. It is not by a presumptuous indifference to dangers that we can expect to escape them, but by a cautious guarding against them on every side. Mr. M'Lean thinks the apostle here returns to his allusion to the Olympic games, and that the caution is, not "to fall behind in the race, lest they should come short of the prize." By "the grace of God," Dr. Owen here understands, "acceptance through Christ, as it is proposed in the gospel."

What is here said of Esau, has been already noticed in our exposition of Genesis, and is referred to in our notes: but one passage which here occurs, as it has much distressed many serious minds, seems to demand a more distinct notice; namely, "He found no place for repentance, though he sought it carefully, with tears." We perfectly agree with Doddridge, that "The meaning of this undoubtedly is not, that he would have repented and could not; but that there was no room for his repentance—it would not be regarded; or, in other words, that his father's mind could not be changed." The account of applied to such parts of the body as were employed in athletic exercises." Under fatigue, the hands would hang down, and the knees tremble.

Ver. 14. Follow peace.—See 1 Pet. iii. 11.

Ver. 15. Root of bitterness.—Doddridge says, "The Hebrew word properly signifies an infectious plant, which taints other vegetables that grow near it." Compare Acts viii. 23.

Ver. 16. As Esau.—Esau is called a profane person, because he slighted the birth right as not considering its relation to the Messiah; nor, indeed, believing in the promise. See Gen. xxv. 29.—One morsel of meat.—Doddridge and Macknight, "One meal."

Ver. 17. No place for repentance.—Margin, "No way to change his mind;" i. e. Isaac's.—Though he sought it carefully—Macknight, "Though he earnestly sought [the blessing]"—with tears.

Ver. 18. That might be touched.—Doddridge, "That was the object of touch." Macknight, "a tangible [i. e. a material] mountain." Compare ver. 20.

Ver. 20. Or thrust through with a dart.—These words are wanting in many ancient MSS. and versions; and are therefore rejected by Mill, Wetstein, and Griesbach. They are taken from Exod. xix. 13.

Ver. 21. Moses said, I exceedingly fear, &c.—These words are not on record except here: but M'Lean thinks they may be alluded to, in Exod. xix. 19. They might be handed down by tradition to the time of Paul, or communicated to him by inspiration.

Ver. 22. Mount Sion.—This formed part of Jerusalem, whereon was built the city and tower of David.

Ver. 23. To the general assembly.—This term was used by the Greeks, generally, in reference to some grand festival occasion, such as the Olympic games. See Doddridge.

Ver. 24. New covenant.—See chap. viii. 6; ix. 15.—Than that of Abel.—This is by many referred to the blood of Abel's sacrifice; but by others (as Doddridge) to his own blood, as shed by Cain. See Gen. iv. 10.

Ver. 25. See that ye refuse not, &c.—Compare chap. ii. 1—3.—Him that spoke—Doddridge "that delivered oracles"—on earth—namely, Moses.

the removing of those things that [1] are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain.

28 Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us [m] have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear:

29 For [n] our God is a consuming fire.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Divers admonitions, as to charity, 4 to honest life, 5 to avoid covetousness, 7 to regard God's preachers, 9 to take heed of strange doctrines, 10 and unless Christ, 16 to give alms, 17 to obey governors, 18 to pray for the apostle. 20 The conclusion.

LET brotherly [a] love continue.

2 Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some [b] have entertained angels unawares.

3 Remember them that are in [c] bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body.

4 Marriage [d] is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled: but [e] whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

5 Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content [f] with such things as ye have: for he hath said, [g] I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.

6 So that we may boldly say, [h] The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.

7 Remember them which [i] have the rule over you, who have spoken unto you the word of God: whose faith [j] follow, considering the end of their conversation:

8 Jesus Christ, the same [k] yesterday, and to-day, and for ever.

9 Be [l] not carried about with divers and strange doctrines. For it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace; not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein.

10 We have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat which serve the tabernacle.

11 For the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burned [m] without the camp.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

1 or, may be.
m hold fast.
n De 4.24. a 1 Pe.1.22. 1 Jn 4.7, 20.
b Ge.18.3. 19.2.
c Mat.25.36
d Pr.5 15.. 23.
e 1 Co.6.9. Re.22.15.
f Mat.6:25, 31.
g Ge.28.15. De.31.6,8. 1 Ch.28.20
h Ps.27.1.
i or, are the guides.
j c.6.12.
k Re.1.4.
l 1 Ju.4.1.
m Le.16.27.

Moses fully justifies this interpretation. Esau entreated Isaac —"Bless me, even me also, O my father! and he lift up his voice and wept." (Gen. xxv. 38; compare verse 34.)

To enforce the preceding exhortation, and to engage the Hebrew Christians to constancy in the faith, the apostle sets before his readers the privileges of the gospel dispensation, as compared with the Mosaic economy; and contrasts the smoke and thunders of Mount Sinai, with the peaceful glories of Mount Sion, in a manner somewhat similar to that in which he had compared Sinai and Jerusalem, in his Epistle to the Galatians, (chap. iv. 24—31;) the object both of this and of that being, to wean them from the covenant of works, and to attach them to that of grace; in order to which he presents them with a beautiful picture of the New Jerusalem church, as made up of an innumerable host of angels; the general assembly and church of the first-born, whose names are enrolled in heaven; the spirits of just men made perfect; Jesus, the mediator of the new covenant, and God, the judge of all. This glorious church we shall have farther occasion to contemplate when we come to the Revelation of St. John; at present, we may remark the strong intimation here given of an intermediate state. "The spirits of just men made perfect," can intend only their separate spirits, and those in a glorified state; for on earth there is no absolute perfection—there is "no man that doeth good, and sinneth not."

This passage intimates, also, a mysterious intercommunity between earth and heaven—"We are come to (this) Mount Sion;" there is a communion between us, and angels, and departed spirits; but this subject is shrouded with mystery, and death only can withdraw the veil.

The concluding verse of this chapter is awfully sublime. We are exhorted to serve our God with awe and reverence, because he is "a consuming fire" to all who approach him, except in the way and manner of his own appointment. This alludes evidently to the appearance on Mount Sinai; there he was to be approached only through Moses, the mediator of that covenant: now he reigns in Sion, and is to be approached only, and that "with reverence and godly fear," through Jesus, the Mediator of the New and better Covenant.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1—14. Practical admonitions, to conclude the Epistle.—At the head of practical duties of the second table, St. Paul places "the love of the brethren"—that new commandment which our Lord gave to his disciples but just before his death: "This is my commandment, that ye love one another." (John xv. 12, 17, &c.) And this love should display itself particularly toward two classes of the brethren—strangers, and the afflicted. Under the former class we include visiters, or messengers from other churches, and under the latter, all who are in adversity, and particularly those who are in bonds for the sake of the gospel.

The next maxim is levelled against licentious professors. "Marriage is honourable in all"—that is, in all classes of society, the clergy as well as laity; "but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge;" and will punish. Such, therefore, should not be tolerated in Christian churches or societies.

Christian contentment is the next duty inculcated, and that upon the ground of the divine promise here recited, which in the Greek is very emphatical, and thus literally rendered by Dr. Doddridge:—"I will not—I will not leave thee; I will never, never, never forsake thee." A promise originally given to Joshua on the death of Moses, and here applied to all the servants of the true God. An application (by the way) which may justify us in the appropriation of such promises to ourselves, when we can justify our characters and circumstances, as corresponding with those to whom they were originally given.

The following precept enjoins a grateful recollection of deceased pastors or rulers in the church: "Remember them who have presided (or had the rule) over you." So Dr. Doddridge: and Theodoret, in a note on this text, specifies the two apostles of the name of James, one of whom is generally considered as the first bishop of Jerusalem, and president in all the apostolic councils.

But in what light are these deceased rulers to be considered? Certainly not with any superstitious veneration, much less as the objects of devotion; but as examples—"Whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation;" or, as Dr. Macknight and M'Lean render the passage, "Of whose conversation attentively considering the ending, (or close,) imitate their faith:" the object of which immediately follows as here stated—"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." "This is a strong argument (says M'Lean) to imitate their faith; that though they were dead and gone, yet Jesus Christ, in whom these holy men believed, continues still the same to-day as he was then; and shall for ever continue the same all-sufficient Saviour, to the end of time; he being able to save unto the last, all them that come unto God by him. Seeing, therefore, the object of faith continued unchangeably the same, and [that he] was as able, faithful, and merciful, to succour, deliver, and reward them, as he was their faithful pastors who had gone before them, they ought to hold fast the same faith which they had set before them, both by their doctrine and example."

The immutability of Jesus Christ is thus used as an argument against vacillation (or wavering) in opinion. So Dr. P. Smith—"With our divine Saviour there is no changeableness: his perfections are always the same, infinite in their glory; therefore let your submission to his authority, and your adherence to his truth, be firm and unwavering." (See note on verse 8.) The apostle adds, "Be not carried (or tossed) about with divers and strange doctrines," foreign to the Scriptures; "for it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace." "That the heart be established (says M'Lean) is a Jewish phrase for comforting, strengthening, or refreshing the heart, which is ascribed to food, (Judg. xix. 5, 8 Ps. civ. 15:) and as the Hebrews had a strong attachment to the distinction of meats, and the Jewish festivals and eucharistical oblations, [or thank-offerings,] he opposes this, by telling them, that it was "a good thing that the heart be established with grace; that is, the free love of God revealed in the gospel through the sacrifice of Christ; . . . and not with meats and drinks, which . . . . did not profit in a spiritual sense, those who had not been occupied therein."

To understand the following verses, it is necessary to recollect that this Epistle was written before the destruction of Jerusalem, while the temple was yet standing, and while the

---

Ver. 27. Things that are shaken.—The things that were shaken, according to both Owen and Doddridge, intend the Mosaic economy; the things that cannot be shaken, the Christian dispensation.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 2. Be not forgetful to entertain strangers.—Lardner, "Be not unmindful of hospitality."

Ver. 3. Yourselves also in the body—i. e. liable to the same adversity.

Ver. 4. Marriage is honourable, &c.—Macknight, "Let marriage (be) honourable among all, and the bed unpolluted."—For fornicators, &c.—See Vulgate, and two ancient MSS.

Ver. 5. Without covetousness.—Macknight, "without the love of money." See 1 Tim. vi. 9, 10.—I will never leave thee, &c.—M'Lean remarks, that this sentence contains no less than five negatives; but not so the original passage, Joshua i. 5.

Ver. 8. Jesus Christ, the same.—Dr. P. Smith says, "There is nothing then, in the argument, to bar our understanding the passage, as referring primarily to the person of Christ, and in the phraseology there is a reason, which is, I think, of weight sufficient to be decisive. This is the adoption of the same phrase which, at the commencement of the Epistle, had been employed to express the absolute unchangeableness of God; 'Thou art the same,' &c. Heb. i. 12." Dr. J. Owen (in loc.) considers the phrase, "yesterday, to-day and for ever," as analogous to Rev. i. 4—"He who is, and was, and is to come."

12 Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without [n] the gate.

13 Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing [o] his reproach.

14 For here [p] have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come.

15 By him [q] therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit [r] of our lips, [s] giving thanks to his name.

16 But to do good and to [t] communicate forget not: for with such [u] sacrifices God is well pleased.

17 Obey [v] them that [w] have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch [x] for your souls, as they that must give account, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

18 Pray for us: for we trust we have a good [y] conscience, in all things willing to live honestly.

A. M. cir. 4067.
A. D. cir. 63.

n Jn.19.17, 18.
o Ac.5.41.
p Mi.2.10.
q Ep.5.20.
r Ho.14.2.
s confessing.
t Ro.12.13.
u Phi.4.18.
v 1Th.5.12, 13.
w or, guide.
x Eze. 3.17.
y Ac.24.16.

19 But I beseech you the rather to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

20 Now the God [z] of peace, [a] that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great [b] Shepherd of the sheep, [c] through the blood of the everlasting [d] covenant, 21 Make you perfect [e] in every good work to do his will, [f] working [g] in you that which is well-pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

22 And I beseech you, brethren, suffer the word of exhortation: for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye that our brother Timothy is set at liberty; with whom, if he come shortly, I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the saints. They of Italy salute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ Written to the Hebrews from Italy by Timothy.

z 1 Th.5.23.
a 1 Pe.1.21.
b Eze.34.23
c Zec.9.11
d or, testament.
e 1 Pe.5.10.
f or, doing
g Phi.2.13.

---

priests were still offering sacrifices daily, notwithstanding Christ had superseded them by his own infinitely meritorious sacrifice. To this he plainly alludes, when he says, "We have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat who serve the tabernacle."—"Altar is here put for the sacrifice offered upon it, a figure of speech (says M'Lean) very common in Scripture." The meaning is, that Christians have a sacrifice whereon to feast, namely, that of Christ; and of this sacrifice those have no right to partake, who still adhere to the sacrifices of the Old Testament, and look to them for justification before God. "Christ (indeed) will profit them nothing." (Gal. v. 4.) This may be inferred from the sin-offerings, on the great day of atonement, being wholly burnt without the camp, (as directed in Levit. xvi. 27.) Nothing was to be eaten of these propitiatory sacrifices, whose blood was carried within the veil; but all the flesh and skin and offal of the atoning animals, was to be burnt without the camp. "Hereby Paul offers a most convincing proof to the Jews, (says Mr. Pirie,) that they must abandon their old ritual, and adopt a system that has changed the law of the priesthood, before they can have any claim to eat of our altar or sacrifice." It is, therefore, as if he had said —"If you would have any claim to participate with us of the peculiar privileges of the gospel, all resulting from the sufferings of Jesus, you must leave the old Jerusalem; you must go forth unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach. Without the camp he suffered, and without the camp he must be enjoyed."

"For here (adds our apostle) we have no continuing city;" we are merely pilgrims and strangers, dwelling in tents and tabernacles; but still seeking "a city which hath foundations" in the heavens, and which God hath provided for all those who truly seek it. (Compare chap. xi. ver. 10—16.) While, however, we remain on earth, and worship at this awful distance, the utmost reverence and godly fear becomes us, considering that our God is, to all who treat him with neglect or with contempt, "a consuming fire."

Ver. 15—25. Concluding admonitions, prayer, and salutation.—Being delivered from all typical sacrifices and ceremonial rites, and placing our whole confidence in the one great atonement of Christ Jesus upon the cross, let us, through him, offer to God "the fruit of our lips," which is "the sacrifice of praise," as a continual thank-offering of gratitude, for all the mercies which we derive through his atonement: and not "the fruit of our lips" only, but also the offerings of our hands. "To do good and to communicate, forget not, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

The next duty enjoined, is subjection to superiors in the church: "Obey those who have the rule (or guide, or preside) over you," in the church; meaning their present rulers, as the precept above (ver. 7) referred to those who were deceased. These rulers, presidents, or guides, are elsewhere called shepherds, elders, and overseers. The subjection enjoined may be judged of by the nature of their office; they "watch for our souls as those that must give account." This responsibility is so weighty, that Chrysostom confesses, he never read the words without trembling, though he was certainly an active and zealous pastor, often preaching several times a day. And if such "watch over our souls" with tenderness and fidelity, the utmost care is due from us, not to occasion them grief or vexation on our account: and a great grief to such it certainly must be, when their people act inconsistently with their profession, or discover a refractory, discordant, or volatile disposition. Christians should, however, never degenerate to a blind submission to whatever a Christian teacher may advance, without authority from the Scriptures. We have, in all cases, an appeal "to the law and to the testimony. If they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." (Isa. viii. 20.)

The prayer and benediction which here follow are particularly interesting, in the character in which Paul speaks of God the Father, as "the God of peace;" and in the tender relation in which he represents "our Lord Jesus," as "the great Shepherd of the sheep," i. e. of his church. Messiah had been predicted as the Shepherd of Israel by several prophets, particularly by David, by Isaiah, and by Ezekiel; and he applies to himself those predictions, when he calls himself "The good Shepherd." (John x. 14, &c.)

There is much doubt among commentators, whether the words "through the blood of the everlasting covenant," should be connected with the preceding clause, as implying that it was through the blood of the covenant that Christ became our shepherd; or that, through the merit of that blood, he was raised from the dead, it being impossible that he should be "holden of death any longer;" (see Acts ii. 24;) or, 3dly, whether it was through his atoning blood, that the apostle implored for the believing Hebrews the blessings following, (ver. 21;) all which senses are admissible and true. But M'Lean says, "I take it, that this whole verse is just a periphrasis for God the Father as 'the God of peace;' including the way in which he has manifested himself to be so, viz. in raising our Lord Jesus from the dead, through, in, or by the blood of the everlasting covenant; i. e. through the worth or merit of it. Christ's blood is termed 'the blood of the everlasting covenant,' in distinction from the blood of slain beasts, which ratified and established the Old Covenant made at Sinai. These sacrifices could not procure remission of sins and eternal life; but the atonement of Christ hath obtained both; for God hath brought him again from the dead through that blood. The covenant itself is called everlasting, because it shall never wear old, like the Sinaic covenant." (Chap. viii. 13.) Having thus characterized God as "the God of peace," our apostle next proceeds to the subject matter of his prayer, which was, that through the divine grace they might be prepared, assisted, and completed in every work, good and well-pleasing in the sight of God.

"It is plain, from this and other passages of Scripture, (says M'Lean,) that God worketh in his people every good work that is well pleasing in his sight; and that, not only in the conversion of a sinner, but in all the growth and improvement of a Christian in the spiritual life. It is he that enlightens the eyes of their understanding, (Ephes. i. 17, 18;) that enlarges their views of the love of Christ, (Ephes. iii. 16—19;) that worketh in them both to will and to do. (Phil. ii. 13.) The holy tempers and spiritual affections of the soul are the fruits of the Spirit. (Gal. v. 22, 23.) But then, 2ndly, He works in us, as rational

---

Ver. 12. Without the gate.—Calvary was certainly without the walls in our Lord's time, though it has been long since included, unless there be a mistake as to its situation, which some travellers suspect.

Ver. 15. The fruit of our lips.—Estius thinks that our praises may be justly called the fruit of our lips, even as the good works of a virtuous woman are called the fruit of her hands. Prov. xxxi. 31.

Ver. 17. That have the rule.—Doddridge, "who preside."

Ver. 18. We trust.—Doddridge and Macknight, "We are confident that" —we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly.—Doddridge, "Determined in all things to behave honourably." Greek, "well." See 2 Cor. i. 12.

Ver. 19. Restored to you the sooner.—Doddridge, "quickly."

Ver. 21. Make you perfect.—"The same word is translated prepared, chap. x 5; framed, chap. xi. 3; fitted, Rom. ix. 22; restored, Gal. vi. 1; perfectly joined, 1 Cor. i. 10. It signifies to set things to rights, and reduce them to their proper state."—M'Lean.—To whom be glory.—Compare 2 Pe. iii. 18. Rev. v. 12, 13.

Ver. 22. In few words.—Macknight, "briefly." This must be understood in reference to the great variety of matter, for it is far from being one of the shortest of his Epistles. But this Epistle is, as Owen expresses it, "A brief compendium of the doctrine of the law and the gospel."

Ver. 23. With whom.—Timothy was Paul's perpetual companion in all his travels, except when he sent him on any special work for the church.—Owen.

Postscript.—Written to the Hebrews from Italy, by Timothy.—Dr. J. Owen says, "This is partly untrue—as that it was sent by Timothy; being expressly contrary to what the apostle speaks concerning him immediately before, (ver. 23.) But these subscriptions have been sufficiently proved, by many, to be spurious; being the additions of some unskilful transcribers in after ages." See also P. S. at the end of 1 Corinthians.

creatures, by means of the revelation he hath given us, enlightening our judgments—strengthening our faith—moving our wills by its motives, and so influencing our obedience. The Spirit, therefore, does not work upon us abstract from the word; but in and by it, making it to produce its effects. 3dly. God's working in us that which is well pleasing in his sight, does not supersede our activity or make us passive: on the contrary, it is an exciting of us both to will and to do. 4thly. That as God works in his people that which is well pleasing in his sight, so we should apply to him for his Spirit, depend upon his assistance in every thing he requires, and give him all the glory —'Not I, but the grace of God which was with me.' Lastly, We should look for acceptance only through the merits and mediation of Christ, even in such things as we do agreeable to his will; for they are well-pleasing in his sight only through Jesus Christ: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen."

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

[THE Epistle to the Hebrews, observes Dr. Hales, is a masterly supplement to the Epistles to the Romans and Galatians, and also a luminous commentary on them; showing that all the legal dispensation was originally designed to be superseded by the new and better covenant of the Christian dispensation, in a connected chain of argument, evincing the profoundest knowledge of both. The internal excellence of this epistle, as connecting the Old Testament and the New in the most convincing and instructive manner, and elucidating both more fully than any other Epistle, or perhaps than all of them, places its divine inspiration beyond all doubt. We here find the great doctrines which are set forth in other parts of the New Testament, stated, proved, and applied to practical purposes in the most impressive manner. Hence this Epistle, as Dr. A. Clarke remarks, is by far the most important and useful of all the apostolic writings: all the doctrines of the Gospel are, in it, embodied, illustrated, and enforced in a manner the most lucid, by references and examples the most striking and illustrious, and by arguments the most cogent and convincing. It is an epitome of the dispensations of God to man, from the foundation of the world to the advent of Christ. It is not only the sum of the Gospel, but the sum and completion of the Law, of which it is also a most beautiful and luminous comment. Without this, the law of Moses had never been fully understood, nor God's design in giving it clearly apprehended. With this, all is clear and plain; and the ways of God with man rendered consistent and harmonious. The Apostle appears to have taken a portion of one of his own Epistles for his text,—"Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to them that believe;" and has most amply and impressively demonstrated his proposition. All the rites, ceremonies, and sacrifices of the Mosaic institution, are shown to have had Christ for their object and end; and to have had neither intention nor meaning but in reference to Him; yea, as a system to be without substance, as a law to be without reason, and its enactments to be both impossible and absurd, if taken out of this reference and connexion. Never were premises more clearly stated; never was an argument handled in a more masterly manner; and never was a conclusion more legitimately and satisfactorily brought forth. The matter is every where the most interesting; the manner is throughout the most engaging; and the language is most beautifully adapted to the whole,—every where appropriate, always nervous and energetic, dignified as is the subject, pure and elegant as that of the most accomplished Grecian orators, and harmonious and diversified as the music of the spheres. So many are the beauties, so great the excellency, so instructive the matter, so pleasing the manner, and so exceedingly interesting the whole, that it may be read a hundred times over without perceiving any thing of sameness, and with new and increased information at each reading. This latter is an excellency which belongs to the whole revelation of God; but to no part of it in such a peculiar and supereminent manner, as to the Epistle to the Hebrews. That it was written to Jews, naturally such, the whole structure of the Epistle proves. Had it been written to the Gentiles, not one in ten thousand of them would have comprehended the argument, because unacquainted with the Jewish system, the knowledge of which the writer every where supposes. He who is well acquainted with the Mosaic law, sits down to the study of this Epistle with double advantage; and he who knows the traditions of the Elders, and the Talmudic illustrations of the written and pretended oral law of the Jews, is still more likely to enter into, and comprehend, the Apostle's meaning. No man has adopted a more likely way of explaining its phraseology than Schoetgen, who has traced its peculiar diction to Jewish sources; and, according to him, the proposition of the whole Epistle is this: JESUS OF NAZARETH IS THE TRUE GOD. And, in order to convince the Jews of the truth of this proposition, the Apostle urges but three arguments:—1. Christ is superior to the angels. 2. He is superior to Moses. 3. He is superior to Aaron. These arguments would appear more distinctly, were it not for the improper division of the chapters; in consequence of which, that one excellency of the Apostle's is not noticed—his application of every argument, and the strong exhortation founded upon it. Schoetgen has very properly remarked, that commentators have greatly misunderstood the Apostle's meaning through their unacquaintance with the Jewish writings, and their peculiar phraseology, to which the Apostle is continually referring, and of which he makes incessant use. He also supposes, allowing for the immediate and direct inspiration of the Apostle, that he had in view this remarkable saying of the Rabbins on Isaiah iii. 13,—"Behold my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high." Rabbi Tanchum, quoting Yalkut Simeoni, (p. ii. fol. 53,) says, "This is the king Messiah, who shall be greatly extolled and elevated: He shall be elevated above Abraham; shall be more eminent than Moses; and be more exalted than the ministering angels." Or, as it is expressed in Yalkut Kadosh, (fol. 144,) "The Messiah is greater than the patriarchs, than Moses, and than the ministering angels." These sayings the Apostle shows to have been fulfilled in our Messiah; and as he dwells on the superiority of our Lord to all these illustrious persons, because they were at the very top of all comparisons among the Jews; He, according to their opinion, who was greater than all these, must be greater than all created beings. This is the point which the Apostle undertakes to prove, in order to show the Godhead of Christ; and therefore, if we find him proving that Jesus was greater than the patriarchs, greater than Aaron, greater than Moses, and greater than the angels, he must be understood to mean, according to the Jewish phraseology, that Jesus is an uncreated being, infinitely greater than all others whether earthly or heavenly. For, as they allowed the greatest eminence next to God, to angelic beings, the Apostle concludes, "That He who is greater than the angels is truly God: but Christ is greater than the angels: therefore Christ is truly God." Nothing can be clearer than that this is the Apostle's grand argument; and the proofs and illustrations of it meet the reader in almost every verse.]—Bagster

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JAMES.

[JAMES, the son of Alpheus, the brother of Jacob, and the near relation of our Lord, called also James the Less, probably because he was of lower stature, or younger, than the other James, the son of Zebedee, is generally allowed to be the writer of this Epistle; and the few that have doubted this have assigned very slight reasons for their dissent, and advanced very weak arguments on the other side. It is recorded in ecclesiastical history, and the book of the Acts of the Apostles confirms the fact, that he generally resided at Jerusalem, superintending the churches in that city, and in the neighbouring places, to the end of his life, which was terminated by martyrdom about A. D. 62. This Epistle appears to have been written but a short time before his death; and it is probable that the sharp rebukes and awful warnings given in it to his countrymen excited that persecuting rage which terminated his life. It is styled Catholic, or General, because it was not addressed to any particular church, but to the Jewish nation throughout their dispersions. Though its genuineness was doubted for a considerable time, yet its insertion in the ancient Syriac version, which was executed at the close of the first, or the beginning of the second century, and the citation of, or allusion to it, by Clement of Rome, Hermas, and Ignatius, and its being quoted by Origen, Jerome Athanasius, and most of the subsequent ecclesiastical writers, as well as its internal evidence, are amply sufficient to prove the point.]—Bagster.

CHAPTER I.

1 We are to rejoice under the cross, 5 to ask patience of God, 13 and in our trials not to impute our weakness, or sins, unto him, 19 but rather to hearken to the word, to meditate on it, and to do thereafter. 26 Otherwise men may seem, but never be truly religious.

A. M. cir. 4065.
A.D cir 61.

JAMES, a servant [a] of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve [b] tribes which are scattered [c] abroad, greeting.

2 My brethren, count it all joy [d] when ye fall into divers temptations;

3 Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh [e] patience.

4 But let patience have her [f] perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

5 If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that [g] giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and [h] it shall be given him.

a Jude 1.
b Ac.26.7.
c Ac.8.1.
d Mat.5.12. 1 Pe.4.13 ..16.
e Ro.5.3.
f Lu.8.15. 21.19
g Pr.2.3..6.
h Je.29.12.

CHAP. I. Ver. 1—8. We must rejoice in tribulation—seek wisdom of God—regard attentively his word—and pray for divine direction.—James, in the address of this Epistle, simply describes himself as "a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ," which he seems to consider as the highest of all honours. This term is in itself nearly synonymous with apostle, which simply means a messenger; but in its New Testament use, a special messenger from the Lord Jesus Christ to sinners of mankind, and one of his own immediate attendants when on earth. The omission of the latter term (apostle) was, however, in the early ages, made an objection to its divine authority.

This Epistle is then addressed to the "twelve tribes [of Israel] scattered abroad," which is (as almost every thing may be) differently interpreted. Some including the whole Jewish nation, wherever found: while others confine the expression to Jews scattered in all the surrounding countries, of which there were certainly great numbers, as we find by the history of the day of Pentecost. (Acts ii. 5, 9—11.) Of the former opinion are Beza, Lardner, Macknight, Doddridge, &c.; and we should say, with Macknight, that if "the apostle's letter was chiefly intended for the Jews in foreign countries," yet does it not exclude the Jews in Judea, who were the writer's peculiar charge, and to whom some things in the Epistle more especially belong.

The salutation here following is not "grace and peace," as in most of Paul's Epistles, but health. It is remarkable, however, that the same term is used in the original, in the apostolical decree. (Acts xv. 23.) "The apostles, &c. send greeting," or health, "to the brethren which are of the Gentiles."

The great object of the inspired author of this Epistle appears to be, to encourage and support the believing Hebrews under the various trials to which their Christian profession was likely to expose them; the word temptations must, therefore, be here taken in its most extensive sense, as including every kind of trials. Philosophy may attempt to reconcile us to these, under CHAP. I. Ver. 1. Twelve tribes.—It is evident that Josephus believed all the tribes to be yet in being, when he relates, that six persons of each tribe were selected to form the Septuagint translation. See Acts xxvi. 6.——Scattered abroad.- Doddridge, "in dispersion." Dr. Whitby quotes passages from Josephus Philo, and even Cicero, stating that Jews were to be found in great multitudes, in almost all parts of the world.——Greeting—(Greek. chairein.) Luke i. 28, the same word is rendered Hail! and is used by our Lord himself in the plural, Mat. xxviii. 9, "All hail!" The same word is also used 2 John, ver. 10 and 11, which see.

Ver. 2. Divers temptations.—The word temptations is here used in the most extensive sense for all kinds of trials. So Deut. iv. 33. Luke xxii. 29. Acts xx. 19.

6 But [i] let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed.

7 For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways.

9 Let the brother of low degree [j] rejoice in that he is exalted:

10 But the rich, in that he is made low: because as the flower of the grass [k] he shall pass away.

11 For the sun is no sooner risen with a burning heat, but it withereth the grass, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth: so also shall the rich man fade away in his ways.

12 Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown [l] of life, which [m] the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

13 Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with [n] evil, neither tempteth he any man:

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own [o] lust, and enticed.

15 Then when lust hath [p] conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished bringeth forth [q] death.

16 Do not err, my beloved brethren.

17 Every [r] good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom [s] is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

18 Of [t] his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits [u] of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow [v] to speak, slow [w] to wrath:

20 For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart [x] all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls.

22 But be ye doers [y] of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves.

23 For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass:

24 For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his

A. M. cir. 4065
A. D. cir. 61.

i Mat.11.24.

j or, glory.

k Is.40.6.

l 2 Ti.4.8. Re.2.10.

m Is.64.4.

n or, evils.

o Ho.13.9.

p Job 15.35.

q Ro.6.21., 23.

r Jn.3.27., 1 Co 4.7.

s 1 Sa.15.29 Mal.3.6.

t Jn.1.13.

u Je.2.3., Ep.1.12., Re.14.4.

v Ec.5.2.

w Pr.16.32.

x Col.3.5., 8., He 12.1., 1 Pe.2.1,2.

y Mat.7.21.

---

the idea of their being the universal and unavoidable lot of man: but Christianity alone can teach us to rejoice in them, as "working together for our good." "Faith can derive the honey-eyed sweetness of present profit, and the valuable prospects of future benefit, out of sickness and poverty, pains and woes, disappointments and bereavements. It can sanctify sorrows, and cause us to 'rejoice in tribulation;' yea, to count it all joy, full, unabated, overflowing advantage to our best and higher interests, when we fall into many and diversified temptations."

In contemplating these afflictions, we should particularly consider their tendency to produce patience, a grace of the highest importance to the Christian life, and which, if not impeded, will have the happiest effect in raising and perfecting the Christian character. So St. Paul teaches us, (Rom. v. 3—5) that "tribulation worketh patience, patience experience, and experience hope"—even "hope that maketh not ashamed."

The next subject for our consideration is the importance of true wisdom, and the source from which it can be alone obtained. "If any of you lack (or need) wisdom, let him ask it of God, who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not." Hence we may learn that God is the only source of true wisdom—that he bestows this, as he does all his favours, unmerited and unconstrained: and, when we penitently return to him, reproaches us not for former ingratitude or misimprovement. He is the source of wisdom, as the sun is of light: and communicates spiritual and intellectual blessings, as the sun does his rays to men of every clime and country. But then we are commanded to "ask in faith, nothing wavering." One presenting a petition to Augustus in a timorous and trembling manner, the emperor expressed himself displeased, as it implied a doubt of his generosity. Let not that man who doubts the benevolence of God, expect to prove it in his own experience.

The following anecdote well illustrates the propriety of applying to God for wisdom, as here enjoined, and we would particularly recommend it to the sceptics of the present day:—

A gentleman once called on Dr. James Foster, a popular preacher of the last century, to request the solution of some sceptical objections, with which his mind was much harassed. The Doctor stopped him short with this question—"Have you asked a solution of your difficulties from God this morning? have you prayed to the fountain of all light for information?" Upon receiving an answer in the negative, he rejoined, "Sir, you must excuse my gratifying your curiosity on the subject of Revelation, while you neglect one of the first duties of natural religion." —(Buck's Pract. Expos. Sept. 16.)

But to return to our apostle.—"The double-minded man (or man of two minds) is unstable in all his ways." He is compared, therefore, to the waves of the sea, incessantly rising and falling, and driven by every breath of wind that blows: continually changing his mind, and not knowing his own wants or wishes, how can he expect to receive a grant of them from the Lord? To feel our wants is the first thing necessary in prayer; and he who knows not his deficiency in grace or wisdom, can have little reason to expect supplies.

Ver. 9—27. Address to the different classes of society, the rich and poor, upon their respective spiritual necessities.—Christianity has, in one respect, a levelling tendency. It elevates the humble, and brings down the lofty, and both have reason to rejoice in these effects. "The brother of low degree," the servant and the slave, will naturally rejoice in the liberty of the gospel, and in being raised to the rank of a child of God: but why should the rich rejoice in that he is made low? Plainly, because that without being humbled he cannot be saved. Even his prosperity will wither him, and in a time of trial and persecution he will fade away, like a tender plant before the burning sun. O how hard it is for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven! But blessed is the man that endureth trials and temptations, whereby his mind becomes humbled under the mighty hand of God, and his heart schooled in obedience to Jesus Christ; and when his trials are over, he shall receive that crown of everlasting life, which the Lord hath promised "to them that love him."

We have hinted at the extensive sense in which the word temptation is sometimes used, as applicable to every species of trial, and if we so understand it here, the sense of verse 12 harmonizes with that of verse 2. But, from verse 13, it here seems to have a particular reference to temptations to sin, which some were disposed to charge upon their Maker, for which the apostle severely reproves them. There are two classes of persons prone to do this: the one through speculative notions of necessity and fate, and the other from the predominance of their passions, which being derived from God, men are too apt to indulge, and then to say, "And why doth he yet find fault?" (Rom. ix. 19.)

The origin of evil, either in itself or in us, is a subject which perhaps no human intellect can satisfactorily explain; two things alone seem certain; 1. That no evil, natural or moral, can arise unknown to God, and without his permission: and, 2. That though natural evil may be inflicted by him as the punishment of moral, moral evil itself, as it implies perversity of disposition, cannot originate with the divine Being, who is

---

Ver. 8. A double-minded man.—Macknight, "A man of two minds."

Ver. 11. The grace of the fashion of it.—Doddridge, "The beauty of its form."

Ver. 13. God cannot be tempted with evil.—Doddridge and Macknight, "God is incapable of being tempted by evils," or evil things.——Neither tempteth he any man.—The term tempt has evidently two meanings; 1. To try, prove; so "God did tempt Abraham." 2. To seduce to evil: in this sense he tempts no man.

Ver. 14. Drawn away, &c.—Doddridge, "allured and ensnared." Macknight, "The allusion here is to the drawing of fish out of a river with a baited hook.

Ver. 15. Bringeth forth death.—Compare Rom. vii. 8—11.

Ver. 17. Every good gift and every perfect gift.—The apostle here uses two different nouns, the former signifying simply a gift; the latter, a free gift: with the former he connects the adjective good, with the latter, perfect, or complete.——From the Father of lights.—This undoubtedly refers literally to the sun; and the other terms, variableness (or parallax) and turning, (tropic.) are also astronomical terms, though not used in exactly the same sense as by modern philosophers. The first seems to denote the continually mutable and different situations in the heavens which the sun every day apparently observes. The second refers to the progress of the sun in his annual course, visibly turning back, (as the word tropic imports,) when it comes to the longest or the shortest day. The term shadow refers to the different manner in which the sun casts its shadow in different climates. God is subject to no such changes. See Orient. Lit. No. 1528.

Ver. 18. A kind of first-fruits.—The Jews were the first converts to Christianity.

Ver. 20. The wrath of man worketh not, &c.—The Jews were a very irritable people, and often mingled an angry spirit with their zeal, against which they are here guarded.

Ver. 21. Wherefore lay apart, &c.—The allusion seems to be to decayed and filthy garments, fit only to be thrown away.——Superfluity of naughtiness.—Doddridge, "overflowing of malignity."——The engrafted word.—The word of God, which is sometimes represented as seed sown, (1 Peter i. 23. 1 John iii. 9.) is here represented as a graft inserted. Compare John xv. 2, &c.

Ver. 23. His natural face.—The Greek means, literally, the face he was born with—unwashed and unadorned.—In a glass—i. e. a mirror, whether of metal or of glass; or perhaps rather a natural mirror—a limpid stream. It is well known, that the ancients not only washed, but painted their faces, (or at least their eyes;) but this verse seems to refer to a careless person, who looked cursorily at his face in a mirror, whether natural or artificial, but took no pains to mark its blemishes or defects.

way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

25 But whoso [z] looketh into the perfect law of [a] liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man [b] shall be blessed in his [c] deed.

26 If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his [d] tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.

27 Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit [e] the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted [f] from the world.

A. M. cir. 4065.
A. D. cir. 61.

z 2 Co.3.18.
a Ps.119.45.
b Luke 11.28, &c.
c or, doing.
d Ps.34.13.
e Is.1.16,17. 58.6,7
f Rev.14.4
g Pr.22.21 Jude 16.
b synagogue.
c or, well, or, seemly

CHAPTER II.

1 It is not agreeable to Christian profession to regard the rich, and to despise the poor brethren: 13 rather we are to be loving and merciful: 14 and not to boast of faith where no deeds are, 17 which is but a dead faith, 19 the faith of devils, 21 not of Abraham, 25 and Rahab.

MY brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect [g] of persons.

2 For if there come unto your [b] assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment;

3 And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here [c] in a good place; and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool:

4 Are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

d 1 Co.1.26 ...28.
e Re.2.9.
f or, that.
g Mat.5.3, Lu.12.22. 22.29
h Ps.111.9.
i Le.19.8.
j ver 1.
k De.27.26.
l or, that law which and
m Ex.20.13, 14.
n c.1.25.
o Pr.21.13. Mat.6.15. 7.1,2. p or, glorieth.
q Ps.85.10.
r Mat.7.22.

5 Hearken, my beloved brethren, [d] Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich [e] in faith, and heirs of [f] the kingdom [g] which he hath promised to them that love him?

6 But ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment seats?

7 Do not they blaspheme that [h] worthy name by the which ye are called?

8 If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, [i] Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well:

9 But if ye have respect [j] to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors.

10 For whosoever shall keep the whole law and yet offend in one point, he [k] is guilty of all.

11 For [l] he that said, [m] Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressor of the law.

12 So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law [n] of liberty.

13 For [o] he shall have judgment without mercy, that hath showed no mercy; and mercy [p] rejoiceth [q] against judgment.

14 What [r] doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can faith save him?

---

here, and throughout the sacred Scriptures, represented as the fountain of wisdom and of goodness. There is indeed a malevolent being, commonly called the Tempter; and he, as we well know, "walketh about seeking whom he may devour." (1 Pet. v. 8.) But much, we doubt not, is laid upon him of which he is not guilty: for, in innumerable instances, man is ensnared by his own lusts, and becomes the victim of his depraved passions. Lust engendereth sin, and sin produceth death.

On the contrary, "all that comes from God is good and perfect." As the sun, his fairest created image, is the fountain of material light to us, so is God himself the fountain of wisdom, or intellectual light, to all the universe: and not of light only, but of purity and benevolence also; for "every good and perfect gift cometh down from him." But whereas the material sun is subject to perpetual changes in his course, the Sun of Righteousness is subject to no variableness, "neither shadow of turning."

The apostle proceeds to warn the Christian Hebrews, regenerated by grace through the instrumentality of the divine word, against the indulgence of evil passions, wrath and bitterness, all filthiness and obscenity; and exhorts them to "be doers of the word, and not hearers only," the latter being the way awfully to deceive their own souls. He illustrates this, by alluding to a man taking a transient glance at himself in a mirror, which makes no abiding impression on his mind; whereas, the man who hears with proper attention, and practises what he hears—the man who governs his passions, and bridles his tongue—who visits the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and keeps himself unspotted from the world—"That man is blessed;" and his "religion is pure and undefiled."

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—16. We must not despise nor neglect the poor.—The first question arising in this chapter is, Of what nature was the assembly here referred to? The original word is synagogue; and though that term may be used for any public assembly, yet we know that, in the Scriptures of both Testaments, a synagogue usually means a place of public worship. Because, however, the Jews often held judicatures in their synagogues, for the trial of petty causes amongst themselves, it has been doubted which kind of assembly is here referred to. Hammond and Whitby, with many others, think the reference is to civil meetings. Here, Dr. Macknight says, "your synagogue does not mean a Jewish synagogue, but the house or room in which Christians assembled for worship. And as the Jews held courts of judicature in their synagogues, and there also punished offenders by scourging, (Matt. x. 17,) it is probable that the first Christians, after their example, held courts for determining civil causes in the places where they assembled for public worship." As, however, the Doctor brings no proof of this, we venture to doubt the fact; and if the fact were proved, we should still doubt whether such were the meetings here intended. We think it much more probable, if not indeed certain, that the worshipping assemblies of these Jewish Christians are referred to by St. James; who appears to have been grieved and offended at witnessing the partiality shown, even on these solemn occasions, to the wealthy and the gay, however reprobate, and inimical to the principles of the gospel. If we might venture to suggest an apology for this partiality, which seems to have been carried to a great extreme one would hope it might be done with a view to conciliate their enemies; but it certainly ought not to have been accompanied by marks of contempt toward their poor brethren.

Whether any hint might be borrowed from this admonition of St. James, for the better arrangement of seats in our churches and chapels, we presume not to say. If seats are to be sold or let, it seems perfectly equitable, that those who pay the most should have the best: yet we cannot but think it would much grieve an apostle, if such there were in the present day, to see the oldest, and confessedly the most pious persons in a Christian congregation, seated on benches in the aisles, while all the best accommodations are preserved for persons of light and dubious, if not of profane character. This is not loving all our neighbours as ourselves. This is not according to the royal law of our divine Master, who always dealt out his blessings to the poor; and his reproofs and censures, with the utmost impartiality, to the rich and proud.

It should seem that these Jewish believers themselves were not altogether insensible to the impropriety of their conduct:

Ver. 25. But whoso looketh.—Macknight, "looketh narrowly." The word properly signifies to stoop down to examine an object attentively, (as in 1 Pet. i. 10.)——Into the perfect law of liberty—i. e. the gospel; into which, whoever looks attentively must see his blemishes and defects.

Ver. 27. Pure religion and undefiled.—Archbishop Tillotson (whom Doddridge follows) considers these terms as alluding to the qualities of a precious stone, "clear and without flaw, or cloud," as the technical term is.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. The faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory.—Macknight, "The faith of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ;" i. e. of his divine rank and character; or it may be a Hebraism for "the glorious faith," &c. Compare 2 Co. iii. 7—9.

Ver. 2. With a gold ring.—Macknight, "With golden rings on his fingers."——In goodly.—Doddridge and Macknight, "splendid," &c.

Ver. 3. In a good place.—Macknight, "honourably."

Ver. 4. Are become judges of evil thoughts?—Macknight, "Judges possessed of evil thoughts;" that is, as judges, they indulged evil thoughts against the poor. But Benson, who understands this, as we do, of worshipping assemblies, thinks the apostle meant to reprove the Jews, as showing more regard to the souls of the rich than of the poor. Doddridge, however, renders this verse thus, (omitting the interrogation:) "And distinguish not in yourselves: you even become judges who reason ill." But we prefer the more simple version of Wesley—"Ye distinguish not in yourselves, but are become evil-reasoning judges;" i. e. you judge erroneously.

Ver. 5. Rich in faith—i. e. to be rich in faith—a common ellipsis with the sacred writers. The apostle's reasoning here seems to amount to this: "Your friends, and your Master's friends, are chiefly among the poor; and your bitterest enemies among the higher classes."

Ver. 7. That worthy—Greek, "good." Macknight, "excellent"—name—viz. the name of Jesus. Phil. ii. 9, 10.

Ver. 8. The royal law.—The republican Greeks used to call the laws of the Persians royal, because ordained by kings. This refers to that law of Christ our King, which he calls eminently his. John xiii. 34; xv. 12.

Ver. 9. Are convinced.—Doddridge, "convicted." See note on Heb. xi. 1.

Ver. 10. For whosoever.—[While the Jews taught, that "He who transgresses all the precepts of the law, has broken the yoke, dissolved the covenant, and exposed the law to contempt; and so has he done who has only commaud was equal to him who kept the whole law," and gave for an example the forsaking of idolatry. To correct this false doctrine was the object St. James had in view.]—Bagster.——Is guilty of all—i. e. he hath broken the law as a whole, and insulted the authority of the divine Legislator—God.

Ver. 12. The law of liberty—i. e. the gospel, in which sense James has already used the term repeatedly. See chap. i. 25; ii. 12. It is so called because it freed the Jews from the yoke of Moses, and it frees Christians from the slavery of sin.

Ver. 13. Against—or triumphs over—judgment—in favour of those who have showed mercy. The expression is clearly elliptical, and should in some such way be supplied.

Ver. 14. Can faith save him?—i. e. such a faith as produces no good works. Doddridge. Macknight, "Can (this) faith save him?"

15 If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food,

16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what [s] doth it profit?

17 Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being [t] alone.

18 Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: show me thy faith [u] without thy works, and I [v] will show thee my faith by my works.

19 Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the devils [w] also believe, and tremble.

20 But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our father justified by works when [x] he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar?

22 [y] Seest thou how faith [z] wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?

23 And the scripture was fulfilled which saith, [a] Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness: and he was called [b] the Friend of God.

24 Ye see then how that by works [c] a man is justified, and not by faith only.

A. M. cir. 4060.
A. D. cir. 61.

s 1 Jn.3.18.
t by itself.
u Or, perceived by.
v c.3.13.
w Mat.1.24. 5.7.
x Gen.22.9, 12
y or, Thou seest.
z He.11.17.
a Ge.15.6.
b 2 Ch.20.7. Is.41.8.
c Ro.3.20.

d Jos.2.1, &c. He.11.31. e Mat.21.31
f or, breath.
a Mat.23.8, 11. 1 Pe.5.3.
b or, judgment.
c 1 Ki.8.46. Pr.20.9. 1 Jn.1.8.
d Pr.13.3.
e Ps.39.9
f Pr.12.18.
g Ps.12.3.
h or, wood.
i Pr.16.27.
j Mat.15.11 ..20.

25 Likewise also was not [d] Rahab the [e] harlot justified by works, when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way?

26 For as the body without the [f] spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also

CHAPTER III.

1 We are not rashly to undertake the office of teaching: 3 but rather to bridle the tongue, 6 which is a world of iniquity, 13 and to get wisdom from above, which is pure, peaceable, and gentle.

MY brethren, be not many [a] masters, knowing that we shall receive the greater [b] condemnation.

2 For [c] in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in [d] word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body.

3 Behold, we put bits [e] in the horses' mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small helm, whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue [f] is a little member, and boasteth [g] great things. Behold, how great a [h] matter a little fire kindleth!

6 And the tongue is a [i] fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth [j] the whole body, and settete yet, while they kept clear of the great transgressions; while they neither committed murder nor adultery, nor any of the great crimes reprobated by the Mosaic law—they seem to have thought but little of minor acts of partiality and injustice. They are exhorted, however, to look into the "law of liberty," that is, the gospel, by which they must one day be judged; and there they would find, that justice to the poor, and mercy to the afflicted, are among the first and most prominent precepts of their royal Master. And mercy must not be evinced in a few kind words only, as "Be ye warmed," or "Be ye clothed;" but in substantial acts of kindness—commonly and properly called good works, which he considers quite as necessary to salvation as even faith itself, though in a different way; for though works cannot justify of themselves before God, neither can an unproductive faith do this; for "faith without works is dead."

---

Ver. 17—26. How far, and in what respect, good works are necessary to our salvation.—In the whole of this work, and especially on the New Testament, it has been the writer's aim implicitly to follow the inspired writers, and not to impose on them any opinion which they have not avowed. On the epistle to the Romans, (chap. iii. and iv.,) and on that to the Galatians, (chap. ii. and iii.,) he has endeavoured to explain the doctrine of St. Paul on justification by faith, and to support his exposition by the unequivocal sanction of our English reformers; and, next to the Scriptures themselves, he humbly conceives, he cannot refer to better authority in explaining the doctrine of St. James, on justification by works; as he here says, "Ye see how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only," (ver. 24.)

In reviewing this subject, however, we must inquire what that faith was which this apostle speaks of as utterly unable to save us. "Thou believest there is one God, (says he,) and thou doest well," for this is the primary article of the Jewish creed—"Hear, O Israel; the Lord thy God is one Lord." (Deut. vi. 4.) But can a speculative faith like this save us? Behold, "the devils believe (this) and tremble." Abraham also believed this; but it was not merely by this that Abraham was justified. He believed in the promise of God, that through his loins should come the Messiah, the Saviour of the world, and under this conviction he "offered Isaac his son upon the altar." This is a most eminent act of faith, and as such was imputed to him; and by faith in that Messiah and his atonement, was he justified before God. And not only so, but his works justified his faith. The case was similar with the harlot Rahab, who believing in the promise, justified the sincerity of her faith by risking her own life to save that of the Hebrew spies.

Upon this subject, the 12th article of the church of England saith, "Albeit that good works, which are the fruits of faith, and follow after justification, cannot put away our sins, and endure the severity of God's judgment; yet are they pleasing and acceptable to God in Christ, and do spring out necessarily of a true and lively faith; insomuch that by them a lively faith may be as evidently known, as a tree discerned by the fruit." To the same effect is the 4th "Homily, of a true, lively, and Christian faith."—"There is one faith which in Scripture is called a dead faith, which bringeth forth no good works; but is idle, barren, and unfruitful. And this faith, by the holy apostle St. James, is compared to the faith of devils, which believe God to be true and just, and tremble for fear; yet they do nothing well, but all evil. . . . . Let us, therefore, good Christian people, try and examine our faith what it is: Christ himself speaketh of this matter, and saith, The tree is known by the fruit. Therefore let us do good works: . . . . . so shall we show indeed that we have the very lively Christian faith, and may so both certify our conscience the better that we be in the right faith, and also by these means confirm other men. If these fruits do not follow, we do but mock with God, deceive ourselves, and also other men: . . . . for the true faith doth ever bring forth good works, as St. James saith, Show me thy faith by thy deeds [or works.] Thy deeds and work must be an open testimonial of thy faith: otherwise thy faith, being without good works, is but the devil's faith, the faith of the wicked, a fantasy of faith, and not a true Christian faith."

But to conclude this subject, and to reconcile St. James and St. Paul, who certainly do not differ, we shall cite the brief but lucid exposition of the late excellent Mr. Fuller:—"Paul treats of the justification of the ungodly, or the way in which sinners are accepted of God, and made heirs of eternal life. James speaks of the justification of the godly, or, in what way it becomes evident that a man is approved of God. The former is by the righteousness of Christ; the latter is by works. The former of these is that which justifies; the latter is that by which it appears that we are justified. The term justification, in the first of these passages, is taken in a primary sense—in the latter, it is taken in a secondary sense only, as in Matt. xi. 19, and other places."

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—18. Cautions against dogmatizing, bitterness, and slander, with admonitions to prudence, peace,

Ver. 17. Being alone—i. e. a dead body, without any vital principle. See ver. 26.

Ver. 18. Without thy works.—The Margin says, "Some copies read, By thy works." So, Doddridge says, the most and best copies read, and therefore adopts it, as Dr. Mill had done before. But, on the other hand, our textural translation has the authority of the Alexandrian and other MSS.—the Syriac, Arabic, and Vulgate Versions; and is preferred by Hammond, Macknight, and others; and is, we think, more in the style of St. James, which is inclined to irony, (as in ver. 16.) It is a challenge to do what he knew impossible—to prove the existence of true faith without good works.

Ver. 19. The devils—(Greek, demons)—also believe, and tremble.—See Mat. viii. 29.

Ver. 25. Likewise also.—It is remarkable, that James quotes the same passages in proof of Abraham's good works, that Paul had quoted in illustration of his faith; Heb. xi. 17, 31. Does not this prove faith and good works inseparable?

Ver. 26. Without the spirit.—Margin, "breath." The same word, as is well known means both.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. Be not many masters.—Greek, (didaskaloi.) teachers. Compare 1 Tim. i. 7. [Rather, "Be not many of you teachers:" for many wish to be teachers who have more need to learn; and aspire to the office of teacher, without a proper call or suitable qualifications.]—Bagster.

Ver. 2. Offend all.—Doddridge, "all offend." He adds, "The word properly signifies to trip: and Barrow has justly observed, that as the general course of life is called a way, and particular actions, steps; so going on in a regular course of right action, is walking uprightly; and acting amiss, tripping, or stumbling.

Ver. 3. Bits.—Doddridge, "bridles."

Ver. 4. The governor—i. e. of the ship. Doddridge, "the steersman."

Ver. 5. How great a matter.—Meaning fagots, or waste wood.

Ver. 6. A world of iniquity: so.—The Alexandrian and another MS., as also the Vulgate, omit (outos) so; and the Syriac version reads, "The tongue is a fire, and the wicked world is a wood:" but we see no occasion to reject the common reading.—It defileth.—Literally, "spotteth;" so Macknight. But we conceive the allusion is not to spots of dirt, but of disease, or putridity. See Jude ver. 23.—The course—Doddridge, "circle;" Macknight, "frame"—of nature.—[Literally, "the wheel of nature" or generation; by which some understand the whole circle of human affairs; others, the course of man's life; and others, the successive generations of men; in all which senses on fire the [k] course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

7 For every [l] kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of [m] mankind:

8 But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly [n] poison.

9 Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God.

10 Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at the same [o] place sweet water and bitter?

12 Can the [p] fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine, figs? so can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

13 Who [q] is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him show out of a good conversation [r] his works with meekness of wisdom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth.

15 This [s] wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, [t] sensual, devilish.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is [u] confusion and every evil work.

A. M. cir. 4065.
A. D. cir. 61.

k wheel.
l nature.
m nature of man.
n Ps.140.3. Ro.3.13.
o or, hole.
p Mat.7.16.
q Ps.107.43
r Phi.1.27.
s 1 Co.3.3.
t or, natural.
u tumult, or, unquietness.

17 But the wisdom [v] that is from above is first [w] pure, then, [x] peaceable, [y] gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without [z] partiality, and without hypocrisy.

18 And the fruit of [a] righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace.

CHAPTER IV.

1 We are to strive against covetousness, 4 intemperance, 5 pride, 11 detraction, and rash judgment of others: 13 and not to be confident in the good we do of worthy holiness, but in submitting over of the uncertainty of this life, to commit ourselves and all our affairs to God's providence.

FROM whence come wars and [a] fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your [b] lusts that war [c] in your members?

2 Ye lust, and have not: ye [d] kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war yet ye have not, because ye ask not.

3 Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts.

4 Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship [e] of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God.

5 Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth [f] to [g] envy?

6 But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, [h] God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.

7 Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist [i] the devil, and he will flee from you.

v 1Co.2.6,7.
w Phi.4.8.
x He.12.14.
y Ga.5.22.
z or, wrangling.
a Is.32.17.
a or, bruelings.
b or, pleasures.
c 1 Pe.2.11.
d or, envy
e 1 Jn.2.15.
f or, enviously.
g Ec.4.4.
h Pr.29.23.
i 1 Pe.5.9.

and harmony.—It is well known how ambitious the Jews were to be called Rabbi, and to enjoy the uppermost seats in their synagogues; and grace, though it changes the heart, and controls the natural disposition, does not eradicate our tempers; the sanguine, the hasty, and the petulant, will often find it hard work to submit to the peaceable, meek, and gentle precepts of the gospel. It is not improbable, therefore, that the apostle perceived among his converted countrymen, some aspiring and ambitious spirits, that wished to dictate to his Christian brethren from the chair of authority. He therefore checks this spirit of ambition, as his Master had before done:—"Be ye not called Rabbi," says he, "for one is your master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren." So says St. James—"My brethren, be not many masters," teachers or Rabbies, "knowing" the weight of our responsibility, and that if we sin under that character, "the greater," the heavier "will be our condemnation."

This is evidently not meant to discourage faithful and zealous labourers from entering into the vineyard of the gospel, but to check the forwardness of those who are anxious to assume the chair of instruction, (of which we fear there are still instances,) on account of the consequence it may give them in the world and in the church. Such are particularly cautioned against a style of conduct and of preaching unbecoming the meekness of the Christian teacher—against kindling unnecessary or sectarian controversies—against vague and uncharitable declamations—against slanderous and reproachful language—against all cursing and bitterness, which, it is too probable, was introduced first into the Christian church, by means of Jewish teachers and pretended prophets; whereby a flame was enkindled in it, which even seventeen centuries have not extinguished.

But we must not confine these admonitions to any particular class of Christians. The government of the tongue is a duty of universal obligation; and the fair sex, to whom God has in general given an extra portion of conversability, to qualify them for nurses, have particular occasion to be guarded against the improper use of this important member. At least, that the apostle Paul thought so, is fully evident from his counsel respecting widows, of some of whom he complains, that they were "idle, wandering about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also, and busy bodies, speaking things which they ought not." (1 Tim. v. 13.)

The language of St. James, in the chapter before us, is, indeed, highly poetical; yet it doubtless has a foundation in truth and in fact; for it is obvious to all, that "a world of iniquity" and of mischief has arisen out of the chaos of exaggeration, misrepresentation, and slander, here alluded to! But our apostle chiefly insists upon the inconsistency (and an important consideration certainly it is) of Christian professors indulging in such vices, and employing that member of our bodies, so eminently, and, indeed, exclusively adapted to "bless God," in cursing and reviling men, originally "made after the similitude of God.—My brethren, these things ought not so to be!"

The apostle proceeds to the subject of prudence, or practical wisdom; and exhorts those who possessed this talent, not to display it in all the wiles of controversy, with bitter envying and strife; glorying in their acuteness, and contradicting and corrupting the simple truths of revelation; which, indeed, seems to have been the besetting sin of the Jewish converts.—"Glory not," enjoins he, "and lie not against the truth." To glory against the truth, is to boast in error; to "lie against the truth," may be either to contradict or to falsify the sacred records—a crime often attempted, and sometimes too successfully, before printing was invented. This display of cunning and ingenuity may assume the name of wisdom; but it is not "The wisdom which descendeth from above; but is earthly, sensual, diabolical;" which Dr. Bates refers to the three great classes of sin—avarice, lust, and pride, or ambition.

On the contrary, "the wisdom which is from above, is first pure" from error, "then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated; full of mercy and good fruits," &c. Alas! if polemical writers, and particularly those who have distinguished themselves by their keenness and penetration in ecclesiastical disputes, were to be judged by this rule, alas! how few could be acquitted!

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—17. The evils of war, of private malevolence, and of rash conduct.—This chapter is equally pointed against national and personal hostilities. On the former subject we shall enrich our pages with a few lines from a truly Christian orator of the present day. The Rev. Rob. Hall remarks—"The contests of nations are both the offspring and the parent of injustice. The word of God ascribes the existence of war to the disorderly passions of men. Whence come wars and fightings among you? saith the Apostle James; Come they not from your lusts, that war in your members? It is certain two nations cannot engage in hostilities, but one party must be guilty of injustice; and if the magnitude of crimes is to be estimated by a regard to their consequences, it is difficult to conceive an action of equal guilt with the wanton violation of peace. Though something must generally be allowed for the complexness and intricacy of national claims, and the consequent liability to deception, yet where the guilt of an unjust war is clear and manifest, it sinks every other crime into insignificance. If the existence of war always implies injustice in one at least of the parties concerned, it is also the fruitful parent of crimes. It reverses, with respect to its objects, all the rules of morality. It is nothing less than a temporary repeal of the principles of virtue. It is a system out of the Apostle's sentiment is true. Some think he alludes to the penal wheel of the Greeks, beneath which fire was placed; and others, that he refers to the circulation of the blood. Eze. i. 15, 16.]—Baxter.——Is set on fire of hell.—Not Hades, but Gehenna—the place of future punishment.

Ver. 7. Every kind is tamed.—Doddridge and Macknight, "subdued." The apostle does not refer to the domesticating of wild animals, but the subduing and bringing them under the control of man.

Ver. 11. At the same place.—Doddridge, "opening."——Sweet water and bitter.—Doddridge, "brackish."

Ver. 15. Sensual.—Macknight "animal."——Devilish.—Macknight, "demoniacal." Doddridge "diabolical."

CHAP. IV. Ver. 5. To envy.—But where doth the Scripture say this? certainly no-where in express terms. Whitby, Doddridge, Macknight, &c. divide this into two questions: "Do you think that the Scripture speaks in vain?" or to no purpose? i. e. in warning us against the friendship of the world. Or, "Does the spirit that dwells in us (i. e. the Holy Spirit) lust to envy?" Many, however, take this passage for a quotation, though they are not agreed from whence. Bishop Patrick refers to Numb. xi. 29; and Dr. Hammond, to Gen. vi. 3. Beza to Gen. viii. 21; Macknight suggests Rom. viii. 7, but confesses the passage to be very difficult. Dr. John Edwards thinks this refers to the general sense of Scripture.

Ver. 7. Submit yourselves, &c.—Dr. John Edwards remarks, that there are 8 Draw [j] nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse [k] your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded.

9 Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness.

10 Humble [l] yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up.

11 Speak [m] not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one lawgiver, who [n] is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgest another?

13 Go to now, ye that say, To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain:

14 Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? [o] It is even a [p] vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away.

15 For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that.

A. M. cir. 4060
A. D. cir 61.

j 2 Ch.15.2.
k Is.1.16.
l Mat.23.12
m Ep.4.31. 1 Pe.2.1. n Mat.10.28
o or, For what.
p Job 7.7.
q Lu.12.47.
a Pr.11.28. Lu.6.24.
b Je 17.11.
c Job 13.28.
d Ro.2.5.
e Je 22.13. Mal.3.5.
f Ex.22.27.
g Lu.16.19, 25.
h Mat.5.39.
i or, Be long patient; or, Suffer with long patience.

16 But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil.

17 Therefore [q] to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAPTER V.

1 Wicked rich men are to fear God's vengeance. 7 We ought to be patient in afflictions, after the example of the prophets, and Job: 12 to forbear swearing. 13 to pray in adversity, seeing in prosperity: 16 to acknowledge mutually our several faults, to pray one for another, 19 and to convert a sinner from the error of his ways.

GO to now, ye rich [a] men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

2 Your riches [b] are corrupted, and your garments are [c] moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped [d] treasure together for the last days.

4 Behold, the hire [e] of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped are entered [f] into the ears of the Lord of sabaoth.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure [g] on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist [h] you.

7 [i] Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the three military terms in this verse: 1. Submit, i. e. be subject to your commander: 2. Resist, engage the enemy; and, 3. He will fly, or be put to flight.

---

Ver. 8. Ye double-minded.—See chap. i. 8.

Ver. 12. One lawgiver.—According to Doddridge, God the supreme; according to Hammond and Macknight, Christ, the sole lawgiver of his church.

Ver. 13. Go to now.—Doddridge, "Come now."

Ver. 14. A vapour.—Macknight, "smoke." The LXX. use it for the cloud of incense.

Ver. 15. If the Lord.—A style of this kind, referring all to the wisdom and providence of God, had been long in use among the pious Jews, and may be traced back to the days of Ruth and Boaz. Ruth ii. 4. It is observable, too that the Gentiles acknowledged their dependence upon God. The Greeks used to say (eun Theo,) "with the help of God;" and the Latins, Deo volente, 'God willing"—terms very usual with our ancestors, but now almost obsolete.

which almost all the virtues are excluded, and in which nearly all the vices are incorporated. Whatever renders human nature amiable or respectable, whatever engages love or confidence, is sacrificed at its shrine. In instructing us to consider a portion of our fellow-creatures as the proper objects of enmity, it removes, as far as they are concerned, the basis of all society, of all civilization and virtue; for the basis of these is the good-will due to every individual of the species, as being a part of ourselves. From this principle all the rules of social virtue emanate." (Sermon on War.)

Many of these remarks will apply to individual hostilities. "Ye lust and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain." This passage cannot, perhaps, be better illustrated, than in reference to the well known history of Ahab, who lusted for the vineyard of Naboth. "He killed," that is, he procured the death of Naboth, and entered the vineyard to enjoy it: but, alas, for him! Elijah followed with a message from JEHOVAH—"Hast thou killed, and also taken possession?" Yes; but how did he enjoy it? "He rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and went softly" during the short remainder of his days, with the curse of God, and the prediction of an untimely end, hanging over his head; of which we may read the fulfilment in the chapter following. (See 1 Kings, ch. xxi. xxii.)

Thus did Ahab "lust and have not." Thus did he kill, to gain possession; yet gained nothing but a short, miserable existence, and an untimely end! And this is no uncommon case. How often do men sacrifice peace of conscience, and indeed all the peace of their lives, to procure a forbidden object, which they are never suffered to enjoy? St. James, however, recommends to the Hebrews, to whom he wrote, a far more excellent way, namely, to submit their wishes to the will of God, and to implore his blessing with the objects they desired. But even on this subject we may err. Some "have not, because they ask not;" and others "receive not," because they "ask amiss;"—they ask the blessings of Providence "to consume them on their lusts."

Such he addresses in this severe language—"Ye adulterers and adulteresses;" which, perhaps, should not be literally understood, since we know that, as in the Jewish church all the children of Abraham were considered as married to JEHOVAH by the covenant of circumcision; so, under the New Testament, all the disciples of Christ are considered as married to him by their profession. And farther, as all Jews apostatizing to idolatry were considered as guilty of spiritual adultery, so all professed Christians, departing from the spirit of the gospel, and seeking their happiness in the world, are no less considered as spiritual adulterers, and by their attachment to the world showed themselves to be enemies to God. (See 2 Cor. xi. 2; Rev. ii. 20—22.) It is not unlikely, however, that among these false professors there may have been many who were literally devoted to their lusts. These awful characters are, however, called upon to "humble themselves in the sight of God, who resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble."

In the latter part of this chapter, the apostle again warns his Jewish brethren against sins of the tongue; that is, against speaking evil one of another; which some expositors think has a particular reference to censuring their brethren for things neither forbidden nor required by Christ; in which he suggests that such conduct is a reflection upon the law, and an invasion of the prerogative of the divine lawgiver. (Compare Rom. xiv. 3, 4.)

The concluding verses censure the conduct of bold and presumptuous speculators, who calculate upon their own resources, without any reference to, or dependence upon, the providence of God. "To-day, or to-morrow," say they, "we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain." But, alas! what uncertainties are here! for "Who can tell what a day may bring forth?" "To-day," they may be disappointed; and "to-morrow," they may never see. "We will go into such a city," but there they never may arrive; or if they do, and even are permitted to buy and sell, how uncertain are their gains? Trade may fail, and their gains be turned into losses; or if their gain should prove considerable, some artful swindler, or daring robber, may deprive them of the whole. Or, if none of these circumstances happen, how uncertain is the vapour—the smoke—of human life! "Peradventure this night thy soul may be required of thee." Instead of this boasting language, it would much better become such frail and dependent creatures as we are to say, "If the Lord will we shall live, and do this or that."

CHAP. V. VER. 1—20. The rich and wicked Jews warned of approaching judgments, and the pious exhorted to prayer and patience under them.—Though this Epistle seems addressed immediately to Jews who had assumed the Christian name, there are some passages which could be addressed only to persons who had no title even to the name of Christians—some rich and covetous Jews, who had come among them from the unworthy motive of deriving advantage from their pecuniary necessities; for men who could deprive their labourers of their hire, must be capable of every thing that was mean and cruel. And would to God there were none such who bear the name of Christians among ourselves—no haughty, overbearing characters, who render, perhaps, some assistance to the cause of religion, for the sake of getting power into their own hands, and making a profit of the necessitous.

Against such, the most awful denunciations are here pronounced. They had hoarded up their property in a manner perfectly useless to mankind, and eminently injurious to themselves. Their stores were full of putrefaction, their garments

Ver. 17. Therefore.—Doddridge, "For." Macknight, "Wherefore."

CHAP. V. Ver. 1. Go to now.—Doddridge, "come now;" as in the chapter preceding it, ver. 13. The difficulty with these rich men was, that they hoarded their wealth,—did not use it for the honour of God—did not regard themselves as stewards. The moth-eaten garments—the rust upon their wealth—are the witnesses that their treasures were kept idle, or not properly used Well may the rich man howl, who has lived to himself in such a world as this.

Ver. 3. For the last days.—See note on 1 Tim. iv. 1.

Ver. 4. Lord of sabaoth—i. e. of hosts.

Ver. 5. A day of slaughter.—Was also a day of feasting; for the Jewish festivals were generally preceded by sacrifices, on many of which the officers themselves feasted. See Isa. xxxiv. 6.

Ver. 6 The just. Macknight, "The Just ONE, who did not resist you" See Acts vii. 52. Bishop Jebb, "He is not arrayed against you." Bishop Middleton explains it thus; "The Saviour opposes not your perverseness, but leaves you a prey to its delusion."—Jebb's Sac. Lit.

coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the [j] early and latter rain.

8 Be ye also patient; establish your hearts: for [k] the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

9 [l] Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge standeth [m] before the door.

10 Take my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering [n] affliction, and of patience.

11 Behold, we count them [o] happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience [p] of Job, and have seen the end [q] of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

12 But above all things, my brethren, swear [r] not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 Is any among you afflicted? [s] let him pray. Is any merry? let him [t] sing psalms.

A. M. cir. 4065
A. D. cir. 61.

j De.11.14.
k Re.22.20.
l or, groan not, as Christ did.
m Ro.13.12.
n Re.11.35 &c. o Ps.94.12. Mat.5.10. p Job 1.21, &c.
q Job 42.10, &c. r Ma.5.34, &c.
s 2 Ch.33.12 Jo 2.2, &c. t Ep.5.19.

u Mat.16.18.
v Is.33.24
w Ac.19.18.
x Ps.145.19.
y 1 Ki.17.1.
z or, in prayer.
a 1 Ki.18. 42,45.
b Mat.18.15
c Pr.10.12. 1 Pe.4.8.

14 Is any sick [u] among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord:

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if [v] he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 Confess [w] your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth [x] much.

17 Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he [y] prayed [z] earnestly that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the space of three years and six months.

18 And he prayed [a] again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one [b] convert him;

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide [c] a multitude of sins.

moth-eaten, and even their gold and silver, metals which nothing else can corrupt, are cankered by injustice and oppression: they are directed, therefore, to weep and howl for the miseries about to come on them—miseries which, according to the Jewish historian himself, had no parallel in the history of human woes. (See exposition of Matt. xxiv.)

From the oppressors, the apostle turns his discourse to the oppressed, and exhorts them to unwearied patience, and a believing hope in the promises of God. To sustain their patience, he assures them that "the Judge standeth before the door," and is ready to take his seat of judgment. At the same time, he sets before them the examples of the holy prophets, and especially of Job, as a proof of the pity and tender mercy of God to the afflicted.

Our apostle then cautions his brethren against unnecessary and profane oaths; even the former having a tendency to sink the dignity of our Christian character, which should give that weight to our assertions, as to render oaths unnecessary; and which, when used in a light and profane manner, are highly criminal. It was well said by Prince Henry, (son of King James I.) when urged to swear in his diversions, as others did, that he did not think all the pleasure in the world was worth an oath.

We now come to notice a passage of very considerable difficulty, relative to the treatment of the sick. After recommending to the afflicted prayer, and to others praise, the apostle particularly applies himself to the case of those afflicted with sickness. "Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord." But wherefore the anointing with oil? The best account of this we have met with, is subjoined from the Lectures of the Rev. Jos. Fletcher, M. A. who says—

"Anointing with oil, was an ordinary medicinal application to the sick, at the time of this injunction, and the practice of anointing on various occasions obtained among the Jews. The custom, which was in itself indifferent, was observed by the primitive Christians, in case of sickness. 'Oil,' says an ancient Father, 'relieves lassitude, and is the source of light and gladness.' If such was conceived to be its physical virtue, we cannot be surprised at the observance of the practice. It seems, however, that the Jews frequently blended with the medical custom, a variety of charms and incantations, of supposed magical efficacy in cases of disease. In opposition to all these prohibited observances, the apostle exhorts 'the sick to send for 'the elders of the church,' who, while they retained the lawful and beneficial use of oil, were to connect with it the exercises of faith and prayer. It was the consecration of a local usage obtaining at that period, to the purposes of charity and religion. On the same principle, we can account for the occasional practice of anointing, in the performance of miraculous cures. St. Mark informs us, (chap. vi. 13,) that the disciples . . . . during the ministry of our Lord, cast out devils, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them."

So in this place. "The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins,"—that is, any particular sins which may have brought this sickness on him—"they shall be forgiven him." In connexion with this subject, St. James goes on to advise his brethren to confess their faults one to another, and to pray for one another, with the observation, that "the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much;" which he instances of Elijah the prophet, who, by his earnest and importunate prayers, closed the heavens, that it rained not for more than three years, to punish a guilty nation for its idolatries; and opened them again by his prayers, on their repentance.

Lastly, he reminds his brethren of the great importance of the conversion of "a sinner from the error of his way," and the rich reward of the instrument in such a work: he is the means of recovering a sinner, and of procuring his forgiveness from God through Christ.

The very abrupt conclusion of this Epistle, has led Dr. Benson, and others, to suspect that it was never finished; but that the inspired author was led forth to martyrdom, before he had the opportunity to complete it. If it were written by the elder James, he, we know, was beheaded by Herod, and probably with as little notice as he gave John the Baptist. (Compare Acts xii. 2; and Matt. xiv. 10.) If this were written by the younger James, he also is believed to have suffered martyrdom, and probably in a popular tumult, and without any previous intimation.

Ver. 8. Be ye also patient.—The same word as is twice used in the verse preceding.—For the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.—This is supposed to have a particular reference to the destruction of Jerusalem, now fast approaching.

Ver. 13. Is any merry?—Doddridge, "cheerful"—Let him sing psalms. See Ephes. v. 19. Col. iii. 16.

Ver. 14. Anointing him with oil.—There are two ways in which this may be understood; either, first, as a medical application, still practised in the East during the hot seasons, and even said to be of sovereign efficacy against the plague. (See Taylor's Expos. Index in loc.; and Burder's Orient. Cust. No 574.) But, 2dly, Others consider this as a symbolical action, expressive of the morals, or, rather, gracious influences of the Holy Spirit. The application of this passage in defence of the Roman Catholic sacrament of Extreme Unction, is certainly ridiculous, since the ends proposed are diametrically opposite. This anointing being for the express purpose of recovery; the other seldom administered while such a hope remains, and avowedly designed to introduce them into another world.

Ver. 15. If he have committed sins—Whereby he may have brought this affliction on himself. See 1 Cor. xi. 30.

Ver. 16. Confess your faults one to another.—This has no reference to Auricular confession, which is made merely in the ears of a priest; nor is this confession made with a view to absolution, but to entreat the prayers of our fellow Christians.

Ver. 17. Subject to like passions.—Doddridge and Macknight, "To like infirmities."—Prayed earnestly.—Margin, "Prayed in his prayer," which is a Hebraism for earnest prayer.—Three years and six months.—But this was the whole time of the drought. Luke iv. 25.

Ver. 18. He prayed again—That is, after Baal's priests had been destroyed and idolatry suppressed. See 1 Kings xviii. 36, &c.

Ver. 20. Shall hide.—Macknight, "cover"—a multitude of sins.—Of whose sins? Doubtless, in our view, of the converted sinner. So Macknight. Compare 1 Peter iv. 8. To cover sin, under the Old Testament, implied its pardon. He that is instrumental in the conversion of a sinner, is instrumental also in procuring his pardon.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER.

[That Simon Peter, or Cephas, the son of Jonas, and the Apostle of our Lord, was the author of this Epistle, has never been disputed; and its genuineness and canonical authority are amply confirmed by its being quoted or referred to by Polycarp, Clement of Rome, the martyrs of Lyons, Theophilus bishop of Antioch, Papias, Irenæus, Clement of Alexandria, and Tertullian. We have already seen the history of this Apostle as detailed in the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles; in addition to which, we learn from ecclesiastical history that he went to Rome, in the reign of Nero, where he suffered martyrdom, being crucified with his head downwards, at or near the same time when St. Paul, as a Roman citizen, was beheaded. St. Jerome adds, that "he was buried at Rome, in the Vatican, near the triumphal way; and is in veneration over all the world." He wrote this Epistle, as is generally allowed, some little time before his death, probably about A. D. 64, to the Christians doubtless both Jewish and Gentile converts, in the different provinces of Asia Minor; and most probably from Rome, mystically called Babylon, (ch. v. 13,) as Œcumenius, Bede, and other fathers, Grotius, Whitby, Macknight, Lardner Hales, Horne, Townsend, and all the learned of the Romish church, suppose; and which is strongly corroborated by the general testimony of antiquity.]—S

CHAPTER I.

1 Peter asseth God for his manifold spiritual graces. 10 Showing that the salvation in Christ was no new thing, but a thing prefigured of old: 13 and exhorteth them accordingly to a godly conversation, forasmuch as they are now born anew by the word of God.

PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers scattered [a] throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,

2 Elect [b] according to the fore-knowledge [c] of God the Father, through sanctification [d] of the Spirit, unto [e] obedience and sprinkling [f] of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace, be [g] multiplied.

3 Blessed [h] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his [i] abundant [j] mercy, hath begotten us again [k] unto a lively hope by the resurrection [l] of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance [m] incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth [n] not away, reserved [o] in heaven [p] for you,

5 Who are kept [q] by the power of God through faith [r] unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need [s] be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations:

7 That the trial [t] of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with [u] fire, might be found unto praise and [v] honour and glory at the appearing [w] of Jesus Christ:

A. M. cir. 4068.
A. D. cir. 64.

a Acts 2.4.
b Ep. 1.4.
c Ro. 8.29.
d 2 Th. 2.13.
e Ro. 16.26.
f Heb. 12.24.
g Jude 2.
h 2 Co. 1.3.
i much.
j Ep. 2.4.
k Ja. 1.18.
l 1 Co. 15.20. m He. 9.15.
n c. 5.4.
o Col. 1.5.
p c. 4.13.
q Jude 1.24.
r Ep. 2.8.
s He. 12.7.
t Ja. 1.3,12. u 1 Co. 3.13.
v Ro. 2.7,10.
w Re. 1.7.

x 1 Jn. 4.20.
y Ju. 16.22.
z Da. 9.3.
a 2 Pe. 1.21.
b He. 11.39, 40.
c Ac. 2.4.
2 Co. 1.22. d Ep. 3.10.
e Lu. 12.35.
f Lu. 21.34.
g perfectly
h He. 10.35.
i Ro. 12.2.
j Le. 11.44.

8 Whom having not [x] seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy [y] unspeakable and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

10 Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched [z] diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you:

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit [a] of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not [b] unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost [c] sent down from heaven; which things the angels [d] desire to look into.

13 Wherefore gird [e] up the loins of your mind, be [f] sober, and hope [g] to the end [h] for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ;

14 As obedient children, not fashioning [i] yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation;

16 Because it is written, [j] Be ye holy; for I am holy.

17 And if ye call on the Father, who without CHAP. I. Ver. 1—25. Introduction—object of the prophecies—and the invaluable price of our redemption.—Of this Epistle, the excellent Archbishop Leighton, to whose commentary on this book we shall repeatedly advert, judiciously observes, that it is "A brief, and yet very clear, summary, both of the consolations and instructions needful for the encouragement and direction of a Christian in his journey to heaven; elevating his thoughts and desires to that happiness, and strengthening him against all opposition in the way, both that of corruption within, and temptations and afflictions from without.

"The heads of doctrine contained in it are many; but the main, that are most insisted on, are these three—faith, obedience, and patience: to establish them in believing, to direct them in doing, and to comfort them in suffering. And because the first is the ground-work and support of the other two, this first chapter is much occupied with persuading them of the truth of the mystery which they had received and did believe, viz.—their redemption and salvation by Christ Jesus, that inheritance of immortality bought by his blood for them, and the evidence and stability of their right and title to it. And then he uses this belief, this assurance of the glory to come, as the great persuasive, ... both to holy obedience and constant patience, since nothing can be too much either . . . . to do or to suffer, for the attainment of that blessed state."

This Epistle is addressed to the elect strangers (as Doddridge translates it) "scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia [Minor,] and Bithynia"—that is, throughout the north-east parts of Asia. Jews, or proselytes, from all these countries, or nearly so, appear to have been present at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, and were addressed by St. Peter; and as he would be recollected by them, to them, probably, this Epistle might be addressed: and not to them only, but to the Gentile converts also resident among them, since Peter had long since learned not to call any whom God had cleansed, common or unclean. We, therefore, think, with Doddridge and many others, that though the Jews of the dispersion were most properly called strangers in those countries, there is no reason for excluding converted Gentiles; since all Christians, as well as the ancient patriarchs, profess to be "pilgrims and strangers on the earth." (See chap. ii. 10, 11.)

Now these are said to be elect (or chosen) by God the Father, sanctified by the Holy Spirit, and justified by the atoning blood of Christ, which is evidently the meaning of being sprinkled by his blood: in which we may observe a perfect harmony with the doctrine of Paul in his Epistle to the Romans. (Chap. viii. 29, 30.)

The Apostle then breaks out into a song of grateful adoration for the blessings of redemption and salvation, and for the almighty care and protection of God to his people, in their passing through this vale of tears and sufferings, until they shall appear before the great object of their love and adoration, and receive the end of their faith, even the salvation of their souls.

Here Peter takes occasion to advert to the inquiries of the ancient prophets, unto whom were revealed "the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow:" and, at the same time that they predicted these events, they were fully apprized that they were not to occur in their own times, but in a future age—the latter days—the last time—the times of the Messiah.

On this passage we may remark the gradual development of gospel truth, during a long succession of inspired writers, even from Enoch unto Malachi—the obscurity which attended these prophecies, from their being clothed in figurative language and typical allusions—which obscurity, however, gradually diminished as the predicted events approached; one circumstance after another was disclosed, till the whole person and character of the Redeemer was revealed—all the interesting events of his life, and all the painful circumstances of his death: still, however, much remained, and still remains, worthy of inquiry; and the prophets of the New Testament, as well as of the Old, searched into the mystery of their own predictions: yea, even the angels stoop down from their starry thrones, to look into these sacred mysteries; and "principalities and powers," who reside in heaven, gladly visit our churches, that they may there learn "the manifold wisdom of God in our redemption."

"It is no wonder," says the pious Leighton, that "the angels admire these things, and desire to look into them; but it is strange that we do not so. They view them steadfastly, and we neglect them; either we consider them not at all, or give them but a transient look. . . . . That which was the great business of the prophets and apostles, both for their own times, and to convey them to us, we regard not, and turn our eyes to foolish, wandering thoughts, which angels are ashamed at. . . . . We bow down to the earth and study, and . . . . rake into the very bowels of it, and content ourselves with the outside of the unsearchable riches of Christ, and look not within it: but they, having no will nor desire but for the glory of God, being pure flames of fire burning only in love to him, are no less delighted than amazed with the bottomless wonders of his wisdom and goodness, shining in the work of our redemption."

The remainder of this chapter contains a practical improvement of the preceding, in which St. Peter considers the nature of sanctification, and urges the believing strangers to holiness of heart and life, from the especial consideration of the immense price at which we are redeemed, namely, "the precious blood of Christ."

"It is impossible," says the excellent writer above quoted, "for a Christian to give himself to conform to the world's ungodliness, unless first he forgets who he is, and by what means

---

CHAP. I. Ver. 1. Asia—i. e. Asia Minor, a very small part of what we now call Asia.

Ver. 3. Begotten us again.—Doddridge, "Regenerated us."——A lively hope—i. e. the hope of eternal life.

Ver. 5. Who are kept.—"The original word is very emphatical, and properly signifies being kept as in an impregnable garrison."—Blackwall.

Ver. 6. Temptations—Or "trials." So Macknight.

Ver. 7 Unto praise, &c.—i. e. the praise and glory of Christ.

Ver. 8. Having not seen—Namely, many to whom he wrote thirty years after the crucifixion.

Ver. 11. What—i. e. what period. Doddridge.——Spirit of Christ.—A strong testimony to Christ's divinity. Compare Gal. iv. 6.

Ver. 12. The angels desire to look into.—Doddridge, "Desire to bend down to contemplate." Saurin and Blackwall both illustrate this as an allusion to the bending posture of the cherubim on the mercy-seat in the most holy place.

respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in [k] fear:

18 Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers;

19 But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb [l] without blemish and without spot:

20 Who verily was fore-ordained before [m] the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you,

21 Who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and [n] gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

22 Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth [o] through the Spirit unto unfeigned love [p] of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently:

23 Being born [q] again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word [r] of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

24 [s] For [t] all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away:

25 But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this [u] is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.

CHAPTER II.

1 He abhorreth them from the breach of charity: 4 showing that Christ is the foundation whereupon they are built. 11 He beseecheth them also to abstain from fleshly lusts, 13 to be obedient to magistrates, 18 and teacheth servants how to obey their masters, 20 patiently suffering for well doing, after the example of Christ.

WHEREFORE laying aside [a] all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings,

2 As new born [b] babes, desire the sincere milk [c] of the word, that ye may grow thereby:

3 If so be ye have tasted [d] that the Lord is gracious.

4 To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed [e] indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious,

5 Ye also, as lively stones, [f] are built up a spiritual [g] house, a holy [h] priesthood, to offer up spiritual [i] sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 Wherefore also it is contained in the scripture, [j] Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner stone, elect, precious: and he that believeth on him shall not be confounded.

7 Unto you therefore which believe he is [k] precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the [l] stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner,

8 And a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient: [m] whereunto also they were appointed.

9 But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a [n] peculiar [o] people; that ye should show forth the [p] praises of him who hath called you out of darkness [q] into his marvellous light:

10 Which [r] in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 Dearly beloved, I beseech you as [s] strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly [t] lusts, which war [u] against the soul;

12 Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles: that, [v] whereas they speak against you as evil-doers, they may by your good [w] works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation.

13 Submit [x] yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme;

14 Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evil-doers, and for the praise of them that do well.

15 For so is the will of God, that [y] with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men:

A.M. cir. 4065
A.D. cir. 64

k Phi.2.12.
l Jn.1.29,36 Re.7.14.
m Re.13.8.
n Mat.28.18. Eph.1.20.
o Ju.17.17, 19.
p 1 Jn.3.14, 18.
q Ja.1.18.
r Ja.1.18.
s or, For that.
t Is.40.6, 8.
u Ja.1.1,11. 2 Pe.1.19.
a Eph.4.22, 31.
b Mat.18.3.
c 1 Co.3.2.
d Ps.34.8.
e Ps.118.22.
f or, be ye.
g He.3.6.
h Is.61.6. Re.1.6.
i Mal.1.11.
j Is.28.16.
k or, an honour.
l Mat.21.42.
m Jude 4.
n or, purchased.
o De.4.20. p or, virtues.
q Ac.26.18.
r 2 Co.4.6.
s Ps.39.12.
t Ga.5.16., 24. u Ro.8.13. Ja.4.1.
v or, wherein.
w Mat.5.16.
x Mat.22.21. Ro.13.1., 7.
y Tit.2.8.

---

ne attained to be what he is. Therefore the apostle, persuading his brethren to holiness, puts them in mind of this as the strongest incentive. Not only have you the example of God set before you as your Father, to beget in you the love of holiness, as being your liveliest resemblance of him; and the justice of God as your Judge, to argue you into a pious fear of offending him; but consider this, that he is your Redeemer; he hath bought out your liberty from sin and the world, to be altogether his; and think of the price laid down in this ransom; and these out of question will prevail with you. . . . . .

"From the high price of our redemption," continues the truly venerable prelate, "the apostle doth mainly enforce our esteem of it, and urge the preservation of that liberty so dearly bought; and the avoiding all that unholiness and vain conversation, from which we are freed by that redemption. First, he expresseth it negatively, not with corruptible things; no, not the best of them, those that are in highest account with men, not with silver and gold; . . . . . these cannot buy off the death of the body, nor purchase the continuance of temporal life; much less can they reach to the worth of spiritual and eternal life. The precious soul could not be redeemed but by blood, and by no blood but that of the spotless Lamb, Jesus Christ, who is God equal with the Father. . . . . So that the apostle may well call it here precious, exceeding the whole world, and all things in it in value. . . . . 'Far be it from me,' will a Christian say, who considers this redemption, 'that ever I should prefer a base lust, or any thing in this world, or it all, to him who gave himself to death for me, and paid my ransom with his blood. His matchless love hath freed me from the miserable captivity of sin, and hath for ever fastened me to the sweet yoke of his obedience. Let him alone dwell and rule within me; and let him never go forth from my heart, who for my sake refused to come down from the cross.'"

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—25. Christians exhorted to attention to the word of God, and to obedience to its precepts.—The apostle having, in the close of the preceding chapter, spoken of regeneration by means of the immortal word of God, here gives us a sketch of the evidences of this change in the temper and dispositions of the subjects of it—namely, meekness, simplicity, and attachment to the word of God; comparing young converts to "new-born babes," whose first appetite is for their mothers' milk, pure and unadulterated. So true believers thirst for the pure word of God. For as milk, when adulterated, contains less nutriment than in its natural state, so the word of God, when mingled with vain philosophy or human inventions, contains proportionably less of divine instruction and consolation, and our growth in grace is thereby checked, if not wholly stopped. "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." Chap. iv. 11.

Our apostle adds—"If so be," or rather, "since ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious;" alluding to the case of infants, who, when they have tasted of their mothers' milk, abhor and spurn all other kinds of food; so it is with many simple and pious Christians, who, though they have little or no systematical or critical knowledge in divinity, in a manner instinctively reject error, and especially those errors which have an evident tendency to depreciate the grace of God, and degrade the character of the Saviour. This Saviour is here, as in many parts of the Scriptures, represented as the only foundation of his church, both Jews and Gentiles: the former, "a holy nation," a peculiar people; the latter, not so formerly, but now turned from darkness unto light, and united with the former in being built upon the same foundation, joined in the same privileges, and cemented by the same grace.

The latter part of the chapter contains chiefly moral precepts, especially with regard to submission to existing governments, of whatever nature they may be; for the apostles and first Christians were particularly careful not to disturb the order of political society, nor to give any occasion for reproach on that pretence. But on this and on almost every topic, the

---

Ver. 23. The word of God.—Some explain this of Christ the Logos; but ver. 25 evidently explains it of the preached gospel. Campbell renders this, "By the word of the living God, which abideth for ever."

CHAP. II. Ver. 2. Sincere.—Doddridge, "unmingled." Macknight, "unadulterated."

Ver. 3. If so be.—Doddridge, "Since ye have." Macknight, "Because ye have." &c.

Ver. 4—6. A living stone, &c.—See Isa. xxviii. 16; and compare Ephes ii. 20.

Ver. 7. Precious.—Greek, "preciousness" itself—that is, invaluable. Compare chap. i. 19.

Ver. 8. He be stumble . . . . . being disobedient.—Doddridge, "which being disobedient, stumble:" disobedience, or infidelity, being the true cause of their stumbling.

Ver. 10. Which . . . . were not a people.—See Hosea ii. 23.

Ver. 12. Honest—Or "good," as the word is often rendered: perhaps the exact idea is, consistent or honest to their profession.

Ver. 13. To every ordinance of man.—Doddridge, "every human constitution." Macknight, "Every human creation [of magistrates."] The meaning certainly comprehends every existing form of government, monarchical or republican.—To the king.—Including the Roman emperor.

16 As [a] free, and not [a] using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

17 [b] Honour all [c] men. Love the [d] brotherhood. Fear [e] God. Honour the [f] king.

18 [g] Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but also to the froward.

19 For this is [h] thankworthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully.

20 For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is [i] acceptable with God.

21 For even hereunto [j] were ye called: because Christ also suffered [k] for us, leaving us an example, that ye should [l] follow his steps:

22 Who [m] did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth:

23 Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed [n] himself to him that [o] judgeth righteously:

24 Who his own self bare [p] our sins in his own body [q] on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live [r] unto righteousness: by [s] whose stripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were as sheep going [t] astray; but are now returned unto the [u] Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

CHAPTER III.

1 He teacheth the duty of wives and husbands to each other, 8 exhorting all men to unity and love, 14 and to suffer persecution. 19 He declareth also the benefits of Christ toward the old world.

LIKEWISE, ye [a] wives, be in subjection to your own husbands; that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives;

2 While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear.

3 Whose [b] adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel;

4 But let it be the hidden man of the [c] heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a [d] meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

5 For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands:

6 Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him [e] lord: whose [f] daughters ye are, as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

7 Likewise, ye [g] husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered.

8 Finally, be ye all of one [h] mind, having compassion one of another, [i] love [j] as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous:

9 Not [k] rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing.

10 For [l] he that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile:

11 Let him eschew evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is [m] against them that do evil.

13 And [n] who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?

14 But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and [o] be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled;

15 But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and [p] be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and [q] fear:

16 Having a good conscience; that, whereas

A. M. cir. 4068.
A. D. cir. 64.

z Ge.5.1,13.
a having.
b or, esteem.
c Ro.12.10. Phi.2.3.
d Jn.13.35.
e Ps.111.10.
f Pr.24.21.
g Ep.6.5, &c.
h or, thank. Lu.6.32.
i Mat.5.10 ..12.
j Mat.16.24 1Jn.3.14.
k Some read, for you.
l 1Jn.3.16. Re.12.11.
m Is.53.9.
n or, his cause
o Lu.23.46. p Is.53.4, &c.
q or, to.
r Ro.6.11.
s Is.53.5,6.
t Ps.119. 176.
u Eze.34.23 Jn.10.11.. 16.
a Ep.5.22. Tit.2.5.6.
b 1Ti.2.9, 10.
c Ps.45.13. Ro.2.29.
d Ps.37.9. 149.4. Mat.5.5.
e Ge.18.12.
f children.
g Col.3.19.
h Ro.12.16.
i or, loving to the.
j 1Jn.3.18
k Mat.5.44. Ep.4.2.
l Ps.34.12, &c. m upon.
n Pr.16.7. Ro.8.28.
o Is.8.12,13. 51.12.
p Ps.119.46.
q or, reverence.

---

inspired writers of the New Testament frequently advert to the example of Christ, which on every subject was pertinent and complete; and in no point more so than on his meek submission to insults and to injuries: with his example also our apostle connects his atonement, (doctrine and practice being inseparable with him,) who himself "bare our sins in his own body on the tree;" by whose stripes we are healed, and by whose death we live.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—22. Domestic duties, and the advantages of domestic piety.—The greater part of this chapter is devoted to moral duties, and especially those of social and domestic life. Wives are directed to be in subjection to their husbands, after the example of Sarah, Abraham's wife; and that not merely on the principle of moral duty, but with the special view, in case their husbands should not be already pious, of winning them over to the truth, by the meekness, modesty, and gravity of their deportment: not recommending themselves to public notice by the splendour and gayety of their clothing, but exhibiting "the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price."

On the other hand, as all moral duties are reciprocal, so husbands are required to live with their wives "according to knowledge," that is, as knowing and observing their duty towards them; particularly honouring them as the weaker vessels, affording them every comfort and convenience which circumstances may admit, and considering them as "joint heirs of the grace of (everlasting) life;" and this particularly, that their mutual "prayers might not be hindered." The being "heirs together," or joint heirs, "of the grace of life," says Archbishop Leighton, "is that which most strongly binds all these duties on the hearts of husbands and wives, and most strongly indeed binds their hearts together, and makes them one." .... But "the breach of conjugal love, the jars and contentions of husband and wife, do, out of doubt, so leaven and imbitter their spirits, that they are exceedingly unfit for prayer. ... And those who pray together should not only have hearts in tune within themselves in their own frame, but tuned together, especially husband and wife."

On the other hand, it is most certain that nothing contributes more to the peace of families, and especially between the heads of those families themselves, than the observance of mutual and family prayer. Their hearts must be bitter indeed, that can indulge resentment against those with whom they are in the habit of daily uniting at the throne of grace.

Our apostle therefore strongly urges the "pilgrims and strangers" to whom he wrote, in all cases to "seek peace and pursue it"—to chase it, as if it were the most important game—to seek it, as it were gold and jewels. But if peace prove utterly unattainable, and Christians are called to suffer for conscience' sake, then let them sanctify the Lord God in their hearts, and rejoice in "a conscience void of offence both toward God and man;" remembering, that it is better to suffer for well doing than for evil; in which Christ is our example, "who suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us unto God." One sentence particularly merits our attention, as it reproves equally a forward talkativeness, and a foolish backwardness in speak-

---

Ver. 16. A cloak.—Doddridge, "a veil."

Ver. 19. This is thank-worthy.—Doddridge, "graceful." Macknight, "an acceptable thing."

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. Ye wives be in subjection.—Compare Ephes. v. 22.

Ver. 3 Plaiting the hair.—The Editor of "The Ruins of Palmyra" discovered in the Palmyrene sepulchres, mummies embalmed in the ancient Egyptian manner: among other fragments which he carried off with him, was the hair of a female, plaited after the manner (still) used by the Arabian women.—And of wearing of gold.—Gill says, the Jewish women used to wear crowns (or coronets) on their heads, in the form of the city of Jerusalem, which they called a golden city. The Asiatics, in general, we know, are peculiarly fond of golden ornaments; and the Roman ladies emulated them to a degree of great extravagance. But Plutarch quotes from Crates a passage very similar to this, and worth preserving. He says, that "Neither gold, nor emeralds, nor pearls, give grace and ornament to a woman; but those things which clearly express and set off their gravity, regularity, and modesty."

Ver. 6. Not afraid with any amazement.—This appears to us, as to Doddridge, to have a plain reference to the case of Sarah, but in a way which, we confess, we do not understand. Sarah was evidently confounded, and told a falsehood, which we can ascribe only to her "amazement" and alarm, on finding her secret thoughts discovered. But Macknight renders the passage, "whose daughters ye have become by doing well, and not being frightened with any terror."

Ver. 11. Eschero—i. e. avoid; or, as in the Psalm here quoted, "Depart from.'—Ensue—i. e. "pursue it."

Ver. 14. Be not afraid of their terror, &c.—See Isa. viii. 12; which Lowth renders, "Fear not the object of their fear," meaning their idols.

Ver. 15. Sanctify the Lord God.—The most ancient MSS. read, "The Lord Christ." So the Alexandrian, Vatican, and Codex Ephrem, and three junior MSS. Likewise the Vulgate, Syriac, Coptic, and Armenian Versions, and some of the early Fathers: yet it is rejected by Griesbach, as not in the far greater majority of MSS.

they speak evil of you, as of evil-doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.

17 For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing.

18 For [r] Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just [s] for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put [t] to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit:

19 By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in [u] prison;

20 Which sometime were disobedient, when once [v] the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water.

21 The like figure whereunto even [w] baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience [x] toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ:

22 Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; [y] angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto him.

CHAPTER IV.

1 He exhorteth them to cease from sin by the example of Christ, and the consideration of the general end that now approacheth: 12 and comforteth them against persecution.

FORASMUCH then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same [a] mind: for [b] he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;

2 That [c] he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

3 For [d] the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings and abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot, speaking evil [e] of you:

5 Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

6 For for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged [f] according to men in the flesh, but live [g] according to God in the spirit.

7 But the end [h] of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch [i] unto prayer.

8 And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves: for [j] charity [k] shall cover the multitude of sins.

9 Use hospitality [l] one to another without grudging.

10 As every man hath received [m] the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards [n] of the manifold grace of God.

11 If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all [o] things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to [p] whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

A. M. cir. 4068.
A. D. cir. 64.

r c.2.21.
s 2 Co.5.21.
t Ro.4.25.
u Is.42.7.
v Gen.6.&c.
w Eph.5.26.
x Ac.8.37. Ro.10.10.
y Eph.1.21.
a Phi.2.5.
b Ro.6.2,7.
c 2 Co.5.15.
d 1 Co.6.11. Tit.3.3.
e Ac.13.45.
f Mat.21.9.
g Re.14.13.
h Ja.5.8,9.
i Lu.21.36.
j 1 Co.13.7.
k or, will.
l He.13.2, 16. m Ro.12.6.. 8
n Lu.12.42.
o 1 Co.10.31
p Re.1.6.

ing on religious subjects: we are at all times to be "ready to give to every one that asks, a reason of the hope that is in us;" while, at the same time, instead of obtruding our opinions or experience upon others impertinently or unseasonably, we must act with meekness toward them, and reverence before God.

This brings us to a passage of peculiar difficulty, and which admits of various interpretations, whereof we shall name but two. It is here said, (ver. 19,) that Christ by his Spirit "went and preached unto the spirits in prison;" but the questions are —When, and where?

1. It was by some an early opinion, that when Christ died, he descended into the place of punishment, and preached to the infidel inhabitants of the old world there imprisoned; in consequence of which some, or (as others think) all of them, were converted and delivered. But neither this, nor any other text that we are aware of, speaks of conversion after death; but the Scriptures universally represent the dead as waiting the event of the final advent, when all must "appear before the judgment seat of Christ:" nor does there seem either reason, or scriptural authority, for believing, that a whole generation of sinners, of the most abandoned character, should be privileged with a second opportunity of mercy—another day of grace. "To-day, if ye will hear his voice!—Now is the accepted time!—How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation!"

2. The general current of protestant expositors, among whom are Doddridge and Macknight, are therefore of opinion, that the preaching here referred to, took place in the days of Noah, by the instrumentality of himself and some of his family, who were inspired teachers. The following is the substance of their interpretation:—"For Christ also once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, (that he might bring us to God,) being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit [of God.] By which [Spirit] also he [formerly] went and preached unto the spirits [now] in prison; which were disobedient, when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah [120 years] while the ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by, or through, the water." In the latter clause, we confess that we give preference to the common version, notwithstanding the critical authorities by which the other may be justified. For, 1. It was by the water probably that Noah and his family were, in the first instance, saved from the rage of that infidel, depraved, and persecuting generation. 2. It is more certain, that by the rising waters they were saved from the overwhelming effects of the deluge from above; from which, on land, it would have required a more signal miracle to defend them, when even the highest mountains were overflowed. And, 3. This sense of being saved by water, best agrees with the verse following: "The like figure," or "The antitype to which (even) baptism doth now save us:" for baptism was unquestionably the ordinance by which the first Christians were separated from the world, even as Noah and his family from their infidel neighbours.

Once more: On Baptism itself we remark, that the most essential thing is, not the washing or purifying of the flesh, but "the answer of a good conscience," which the best expositors suppose to refer to the questions publicly proposed to the candidates for this ordinance in the Christian church, and in their answers to which, they openly renounced the world, the flesh, and the devil, with all their works.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—19. Christians exhorted to patience in suffering, and to care and fidelity in the improvement of their talents.—It was the doctrine of Paul, repeatedly and earnestly inculcated, that believers being "crucified with Christ," have "crucified the flesh, with the lusts thereof;" which is also the doctrine inculcated in the opening of this chapter: "Christ having suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves (says St. Peter) with the same mind, for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from [the practise of] sin." And here it appears that he is addressing himself to Gentiles, for he says, "the time past of our life may suffice us, to have wrought the will of the Gen

Ver. 18. Quickened by the Spirit.—Many able critics, as Vitringa, Schoetgen, &c. understand this of the divine nature of Christ; and Bishop Horsley, of his human Spirit, in a separate state; but the resurrection of our Lord is elsewhere attributed to the Holy Spirit—(see Rom. i. 4, and note; Rom. viii. 11)—sometimes to Christ himself, but then by a power delegated from the Father, John x. 18. See also our note on Heb. ix. 14.

Ver. 19. To the spirits in prison.—The state of these human spirits in prison appears equivalent to that of the fallen angels "reserved in everlasting chains," Jude, ver. 6. Roman Catholic writers, indeed, here find a purgatory, which we can find no where in the Bible: but, 1. Purgatory is, according to their own doctrine, for venial offences only, and these were evidently guilty of mortal sin, and must therefore be consigned to hell, from whence they hold no deliverance; and, 2. These were so far from being delivered, that the apostle describes them as in prison when he wrote. [Christ, as God, had gone, by his Spirit, inspiring his servant Noah, to denounce the approaching deluge, and preach repentance, to the incorrigible antediluvians, who perished in their sins, and whose "spirits" were in "the prison" of hell, when the Apostle wrote; being confined there till the judgment of the great day. This appears to be the genuine sense of the passage, as it is perfectly agreeable to the whole of the context.]—Bagster.

Ver. 20. Which sometime.—Macknight, "formerly."—Were saved by water.—Doddridge, "safely carried through the water:" and he adds, that Raphelius abundantly justifies this sense of the particle (dia) when used with a genitive case.

Ver. 21. The like figure whereunto.—Doddridge, "The antitype unto which, meaning THE ARK. But Macknight says, "The relative (which) being in the Greek) neuter, its antecedent cannot be (kibotos) 'the ark,' which is feminine, but (udos) 'water,' which is neuter."

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1. He that hath suffered in the flesh.—That is, as St. Paul expresses it, "hath crucified the flesh." See Gal. ii. 20; v. 24; vi. 14.—Hath ceased from sin—i. e. according to Doddridge, "from its habitual practice."

Ver. 3 Abominable idolatries.—The adjective here used implies what is both unlawful and detestable; and is applied by Josephus to the unnatural lusts indulged in the Pagan worship. See Parkhurst's Lex. in Athemitos.

Ver. 6. For for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead.—Doddridge, Macknight, and others, explain this figuratively, in reference to the Gentiles, who are said, Ephes. ii. 1, "to be dead in trespasses and sins."

Ver. 8. Above all things have fervent charity.—(Greek, agape) i. e. love, intense love.—Multitude of sins.—Solomon (Prov. x. 12.) says, "all sins"—evidently meaning the sins, or faults, of those we love; for it is put in opposition to "Hatred (which) stirreth up strifes."

Ver. 10. As every man hath received the gift.—i. e. a spiritual gift, as of teaching, translating, healing, &c.

Ver. 11. The oracles of God.—The Greeks used this term in reference to the responses received from their deities; or rather from their priests in their names. Stephen applies this term to the laws given to Moses, calling them lively, or living oracles, because delivered by the voice of God. Acts vii. 38.

12 Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery [q] trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you:

13 But [r] rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when [s] his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.

14 If [t] ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified.

15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, or as a busybody in other men's matters.

16 Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.

17 For the time is come that judgment must begin [u] at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?

18 And if [v] the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

A. M. cir. 4064.
A. D. cir. 64.

q 1 Co.3.13.
r Jn.1.2.
s 2 Ti.2.12.
t Mat.5.11.
u Is.10.12. Je.49.12. Ho.9.6.
v Je.25.29. Lu.23.31.

w Ps.37.5.
a Ro.8.17.
b Jn.21.15. 17. Ac.20.28.
c or, as much as in you is.
d 1 Co.9.17.
e 1 Ti.3.3,8.
f or, overruling.
g 1 Ti.4.12.
h He.13.20.
i 2 Ti.4.8.
j Ep.5.21.
k Ja.4.6.

19 Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God commit [w] the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

CHAPTER V.

1 He exhorteth the elders to feed their flocks, 5 the younger to obey, 8 and all to be sober, watchful, and constant in the faith: 9 to resist the cruel adversary the devil.

THE elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory [a] that shall be revealed:

2 Feed [b] the flock of God [c] which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but [d] willingly; not for filthy [e] lucre, but of a ready mind;

3 Neither as [f] being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples [g] to the flock.

4 And when the chief [h] Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown [i] of glory that fadeth not away.

5 Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all [j] of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God [k] resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

tiles, when we walked in lasciviousness," &c.; "wherein they think it strange that ye [still] run not with them into the same excess of riot" as formerly. The apostle here couples himself with these once licentious Gentiles; yet, as weknow that he was not a Gentile, so we have no reason to believe that he ever joined in such excesses; but he joins himself with them, as is not uncommon, in order that he might reprove them without offence.

The first object of the gospel ministry is the conversion of sinners; for this end was it preached to the generations now literally dead, as it is also now preached to us. So Archbishop Leighton understands it; and, we think, justly; and, he adds, to be judged according to men in the flesh, is to die to sin, or that sin die to us; (as in verses 1and 2;) and to "live according to God in the Spirit," is to live to his glory: "Not unto themselves,(as Paul expresses it,) but unto him who died for them, and rose again." (2 Cor. v. 15.) And to enforce this upon those to whom he wrote, he adds, "the end of all things is at hand:" which, though it may have a reference to the destruction of Jerusalem, has also a farther reference to a greater event with which that is generally connected, namely, the second coming of our Lord. This, indeed, may be still at a distance: but our time to appear before his presence, "who is ready to judge the quick and the dead," to some cannot be far distant, and may not be to any of us.

But this event is here mentioned with a practical design: a three-fold duty is here recommended—"Sobriety, watchfulness, and prayer; and, of the three, the last is evidently the chief, and is here so meant."

"Prayer," says the prelate above referred to, "is not a smooth expression, or a well-contrived form of words; not the product of a ready memory, or of a rich invention, exerting itself in the performance. These may draw a neat picture of it, but still the life is wanting. The motion of the heart God-wards, holy and divine affection, makes prayer real, and lively, and acceptable to the living God, to whom it is presented; the pouring out of the heart to Him that made it, and therefore hears and understands what it speaks, and how it is moved and affected in calling on him..... All other excellence in prayer is but the outside and fashion of it: this is the life of it."

Peter now proceeds to the moral virtues, at the head of which, like Paul, (1 Cor. xiii. 1.) he places charity, or love; "for charity, (says he,) shall (or will) cover a multitude of sins." How it does this, Archbishop Leighton thus explains:—1. It is skilful in putting the fairest construction on things doubtful. 2. Where the thing is plainly a sin, then will love consider what may lessen it most; whether it was by surprise, through ignorance, or human frailty. 3. All reproof will be sweetened by that compassion which flows from love. 4. What is wrong will be forgiven. "Those are grossly mistaken, who think it greatness of spirit to resent wrongs, and baseness to forgive them: on the contrary, it is the only excellent spirit, scarcely to feel a wrong; or, feeling, straightly to forgive it."—With Christian love, Peter, as his brother Paul had before done, (Rom. xii. 13,) associates hospitality; a virtue always excellent, but of peculiar importance in some countries, and in times of persecution.

The venerable apostle next proceeds to enforce the faithful exercise of all those talents, with which they were intrusted, and for which, as stewards, they must give account. If any man speak as a public teacher, he is required to speak in consistency with the well known and authentic oracles of God: or if any man minister in the church in an inferior capacity, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth; all having in view one object, "that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ," to whom Peter (as Paul had often done) offers a doxology, expressive of faith in his supreme divinity.

Peter now warns his brethren of "the fiery trial"—of the dreadful scenes of persecution—which they must expect; but which he guards them against considering as strange and unprecedented, since all that they could suffer was, at most, partaking of only a small portion of the sufferings of Jesus Christ; which, at his appearing, would be rewarded with a rich participation of his glory and felicity. "But," says he, "let none of you suffer as a murderer, or a thief, a malefactor, or a factious or seditious person."

In warning Christians (both Jewish and Gentile) of these terrible calamities, our apostle states, that judgment is about to "begin at the house of God," that is, with his own people; as it is said, Ezek. ix. 6, "Begin at my sanctuary:" and the meaning seems to be, that the divine judgments should first visit the Christians, for the purification of the church, and then fall with a weight of terrible destruction on the unbelieving Jews. And "if the righteous scarcely (or with difficulty) be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" This, according to the venerable Leighton, "imports not any uncertainty or hazard in the thing itself, as to the end, in respect of the purpose and performance of God; but only the great difficulties and hard encounters in the way, that they go through so many temptations and tribulations, so many fightings without, and fears within.... And yet through all these they are brought safely home. There is another strength than theirs, which bears them up and brings them through. But these things argue the difficulty of their course, and that it is not so easy a thing to come to heaven as most imagine."

CHAP. V. Ver. 1—14. The elders exhorted to feed the church—the younger to obey—and all to be sober, watchful, and to resist the devil.—The opening of this chapter particularly merits our

---

Ver. 12. The fiery trial—Namely, of affliction, or rather persecution; alluding to the trial of gold in a furnace. See chap. i. 7.

Ver. 13. When his glory shall be revealed—Namely, at the last day.

Ver. 14. Spirit of glory and of God.—Alluding to Isa. xi. 2.

Ver. 15. An evil-doer.—Doddridge and Macknight, "a malefactor."—A busybody.—An inspector of another; meddling with other people's concerns. Gardner, Doddridge, and others, have remarked, that this character, from its being associated with the worst criminals, must here intend something more than "a talker." It properly means one that pries into affairs, with which he has, in fact, no concern; and must here refer to public or state affairs, and, as we conceive, properly describes a political busybody—a factious or seditious person. The Jews were remarkable for this crime.

Ver. 16. Suffer as a Christian.—The only passages in which this term "Christian" occurs are this verse, and Acts xi. 26; xxvi. 28.—Let him glorify God on this behalf—i. e. as suffering for Christ's sake.

Ver. 18. Scarcely be saved.—Doddridge and Macknight. Be saved with difficulty." This appears to be quoted from the LXX. of Prov. xi. 31. The original term rendered scarcely, signifies with difficulty, as in Acts xiv. 18; xxvii. 7, 8, 16.

Ver. 19. A faithful Creator—Who will preserve their separate spirits, and restore to them their bodies, at the resurrection.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1. Who am also an elder.—Hammond, "a fellow elder."

Ver. 2. Taking the oversight thereof.—Hammond, "governing it." Doddridge, "discharge the episcopal office." Macknight, "The Bishop's office."

Ver. 3. Neither as being lords.—Macknight, as "lording it." The word strictly means to tyrannize, or domineer. See Macknight, and compare Mat xx. 25.

Ver. 4. The chief Shepherd.—In Spain, it seems, the flocks often contain 10,000 sheep, divided into ten tracts, with 50 under shepherds, and as many dogs. See Orient. Cust. No. 577.—Fadeth not away.—As was the case with those garlands which were bestowed as rewards in the public games.

Ver. 5. Be clothed with humility.—Whitby and others explain this of a frock which was worn by slaves and working men over their meaner dress; and the expression implies, that humility should be conspicuous above all other virtues.

6 Humble [l] yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time:

7 Casting [m] all your care upon him; for he careth for you.

8 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as [n] a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour:

9 Whom [o] resist steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.

10 But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a [p] while, make you [q] perfect, [r] establish, [s] strengthen, [t] settle you.

11 To him be [u] glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 By [v] Silvanus, a faithful brother unto you, as I suppose, I have written briefly, exhorting, and testifying that this is the true grace of God wherein ye [w] stand.

13 The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, saluteth you; and so doth Marcus my son.

14 Greet [x] ye one another with a kiss of charity. Peace [y] be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

A. M. cir. 4063.
A. D. cir. 64.

l Is.57.15.
m Ps.55.22.
n Rev.12.12.
o Jas.4.7
p 2 Co.4.16.
q He.13.21.
r 2 Th.3.3. s Zec.10.6, 12
t 1's 135.7,8
u c.4.11.
v 2 Co.1.19.
w 1 Co.15.1
x Ro.16.16.
y Ep.6.23.

observation. "The elders among you I exhort," says the apostle Peter, "who am also an elder," or fellow-elder. "Elders here, as in other places, (says Archbishop Leighton,) is a name, not of age, but of office; yet the office is named by that age, which is, or ought to be, most suitably qualified for it; importing that men, though not aged, yet if called to that office, should be noted for such wisdom and gravity of mind and carriage as may give that authority, and command that respect, which is requisite for persons in their calling: not novices, as Paul speaks, (1 Tim. iii. 6,) but such as young Timothy himself was in humility and diligence, (Phil. ii. 20.) The name of Elders sometimes denotes civil rulers, sometimes pastors of the church. Here it appears that pastors are meant, as the exhortation of feeding the flock evinces; . . . and then the title given to Christ, in the encouragement that is added, confirms this interpretation—The chief Shepherd."

2. The person exhorting styles himself a co-presbyter, or fellow-elder, with them. "The duty of mutual exhortation lies on Christians at large, though it be little known among the greatest part; but, truly, pastors should be, as in other duties, so particularly in this, eminent and exemplary in their intercourses and converse; saying often one to another, 'Oh! let us remember to what we are called; to how high and heavy a charge; to what holiness and diligence; how great is the hazard of our miscarriage, and how great the reward of our fidelity!'"

It was the privilege of Peter, as of several other of the apostles, to be a witness of the sufferings of Christ; and he was one of those to whom he promised a participation of his glory: much of this he had already witnessed, in the transfiguration and ascension of his Lord; and he was one of those to whom it was assured, that they should "sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Mat. xix. 28.)

But to return to this apostolical charge. These elders are enjoined to feed the flock of God. "Every step of the way of our salvation hath on it the print of infinite majesty, wisdom, and goodness, and this among the rest—that men, sinful, weak men, are made subservient in that great work of bringing Christ and souls to meet; that by the foolishness of preaching, (or what appears so to carnal wisdom,) the chosen of God are called, and come unto Jesus, and are made wise unto salvation; and that the life which is conveyed to them by the word of life in the hands of poor men, is by the same means preserved and advanced. . . . Jesus Christ descended to purchase a church, and ascended to provide and furnish it, to send down his spirit. He ascended and gave gifts, particularly for the work of the ministry; and the great use of them is this—to feed the flock of God."—(Archbishop Leighton.)

In the discharge of this high office, however, they are cautioned against constrainedness, covetousness, and usurpation; not for filthy lucre, neither as being lords over God's heritage, but examples to the flock. And now comes the reward. "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown—a crown of glory—a crown that fadeth not away;" that is, an immortal crown. Thus does our venerable and inspired apostle exhort and animate to duty his brethren in the ministry. The rest of the chapter is miscellaneous, addressed to the younger Christians generally, exhorting them to humility and submission under the mighty hand of God, casting all their care upon him, and at the same time cautioning them against the active malice of their great enemy, the devil; against whom we can never be too much upon our guard.

"Now let the feeble all be strong,
And make Jehovah's arm their song,
His shield is spread o'er every saint;
And thus protected—who shall faint?"—Doddridge.

Ver. 8. Whom he may devour.—Doddridge and Macknight, "Swallow up."

Ver. 12. By Silvanus.—Probably that Silvanus (or Silas) who was Paul's companion; 2 Cor. i. 19, &c.——As I suppose—Rather, "as I reckon," or conclude; as Rom. iii. 28; viii. 18. "The phrase does not imply doubt."—Doddridge.

Ver. 13. The church that is at Babylon.—Literally, "She at Babylon," which some explain of Peter's wife. The word church is, however, supplied in the Syriac, Vulgate, and other ancient versions; and by Œcumenius.——At Babylon.—There were two Babylons; one in Egypt, the other in Syria: but Lardner says, there is no mention of either church or bishop at the former place, by any of the writers of the four first centuries. Many commentators, therefore, (among whom are Beza, Lightfoot, and Benson,) refer to the great Babylon of Assyria: Lardner, however, objects, that this city was "almost deserted in the apostles' days;" and farther argues, from chap. ii. 13, 14, 17, that Peter wrote from some part of the Roman Empire, which at that time did not include Babylon, then under the dominion of the Parthians. These difficulties have led to a third opinion, which, indeed we have adopted from Mr. Horne, in our table of Catholic Epistles. This is, that by Babylon, Peter meant Rome; as it is evident John did in the Apocalypse, on account of its being the metropolis of idolatry. This opinion has the general testimony of antiquity. Eusebius, who adopts it, quotes the authorities of Clement of Alexandria, and Papias, Bishop of Jerusalem, both of the second century. It was adopted by Jerome; by all writers of the church of Rome; and, among Protestants, by Grotius, Whitby, Hammond, Lardner, Macknight, and many others.——Marcus—Probably the Evangelist. See Introduction to his Gospel.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER.

[As the design of this Epistle is excellent, remarks Macknight, so its execution, in the judgment of the best critics, does not fall short of its design. Osterwald says of the first Epistle of Peter, "it is one of the finest books of the New Testament;" and of the second, "that it is a most excellent Epistle, and is written with great strength and majesty." Erasmus pronounces the first Epistle to be "worthy the prince of the Apostles, and full of apostolical dignity and authority;" and adds, "it is sparing in words, but full of sense." "St. Peter's style," as Dr. Blackwall justly observes, "expresses the noble vehemence and fervour of his spirit, the full knowledge he had of Christianity, and the strong assurance he had of the truth and certainty of his doctrine: and he writes with the authority of the first man in the college of the Apostles. He writes with that quickness and rapidity of style, with that noble neglect of some of the formal consequences and niceties of grammar, still preserving its true reason, and natural analogy, (which are always marks of a sublime genius,) that you can scarcely perceive the pauses of his discourse, and distinction of his periods. The great Joseph Scaliger calls Peter's first Epistle majestic; and I hope he was more judicious than to exclude the second, though he did not name it. A noble majesty and becoming freedom are what distinguish Peter; a devout and judicious person cannot read him without solemn attention and awful concern. The conflagration of this world, and future judgment of angels and men, in the third chapter of the second Epistle, is described in such strong and terrible terms, such awful circumstances, that in the description we see the planetary heavens and this our earth wrapped up with devouring flames; hear the groans of an expiring world, and the crashes of nature tumbling into universal ruin. And what a solemn and moving Epiphonema, or practical inference, is that! 'Since, therefore, all these things must be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in holy conversation and godliness'—in all parts of holy and Christian life,—in all instances of justice and charity? 'The meanest soul, and lowest imagination,' says an ingenious man, 'cannot think of that time, and the awful descriptions we meet with of it in this place, and several others of Holy Writ, without the greatest emotion and deepest impressions.'" "As the true Church of Christ," says Dr. Clarke, "has generally been in a state of sufferings, the Epistles of St. Peter have ever been most highly prized by all believers. That which we have just finished is an admirable letter, containing some of the most important maxims and consolations for the church in the wilderness. No Christian can read it without deriving from it both light and life. Ministers, especially, should study it well, that they may know how to comfort their flocks when in persecution or adversity. He never speaks to good in any spiritual case who is not furnished out of the Divine treasury. God's words invite, solicit, and command assent: on them a man may confidently rely. The words of man may be true, but they are not infallible. This is the character of God's word alone."

To these valuable remarks on the varied excellences and uses of this inimitable Epistle, it may be only necessary to add, that it is not only important in these respects, but is a rich treasury of Christian doctrines and duties, from which the mind may be enriched, and the heart improved, with the most ennobling sentiments.]—Bagster.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER.

[THE writer of this Epistle calls himself "Simon Peter," (ch. i. 1. Ac. xv. 14. Gr.) "an apostle of Jesus Christ;" alludes to circumstances and facts which agree with none but Peter, (ch. i. 14—16. John xxi. 19;) calls it his second Epistle, (ch. iii. 1;) and speaks of his "beloved brother Paul." (ch. iii. 15.) It must, therefore, either be the work of the Apostle Peter, or of one who personated him; but this latter supposition, that of forging the name of an apostle, and personating him, is wholly inconsistent with the remarkable energy with which the writer inculcates holiness, and the solemn yet affectionate manner in which he testifies against the delusions of those by whom it was neglected. Some doubts, however, of its genuineness and divine authority were entertained in the primitive church, which Jerome ascribes to the supposed dissimilarity of style between it and the first Epistle. But, being written only a short time before the Apostle's martyrdom, (ch. i. 14,) though apparently but a short time after the first, (ch. i. 13, 15,) and not having been so publicly avowed by him, and clearly known to be his, during his lifetime, the scrupulous caution of the church hesitated about admitting it into the sacred canon, till internal evidence fully convinced the most competent judges that it was entitled to that high distinction.]—Bagster.

CHAPTER I.

Confirming them in hope of the increase of God's graces, 5 he exhorteth them, by faith, and good works, to make their calling sure. 12 whereof he is careful to remember them: knowing that the death of all must warn us them to be constant in the truth: 16 which he confirmeth by three witnesses, 19 exhorting to hold his majesty, and by the testimony of the Father, and the prophets.

A. M. cir. 4069. A. D. cir. 65.

[a] SIMON Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained [b] like precious faith with us through the righteousness of [c] God and our Saviour Jesus Christ:

2 Grace and peace [d] be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his divine power hath given unto us all [e] things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us [f] to glory and [g] virtue:

4 Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious [h] promises: that by these ye might be [i] partakers of the divine nature, having escaped [j] the corruption that is in the world through lust.

5 And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith [k] virtue; and to virtue [l] knowledge;

6 And to knowledge [m] temperance; and to temperance [n] patience; and to patience [o] godliness;

7 And to godliness brotherly [p] kindness; and to brotherly kindness [q] charity.

8 For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be [r] barren nor unfruitful [s] in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 But he that lacketh these things is [t] blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your [u] calling and election sure: for [v] if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:

11 For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

12 Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established [w] in the present truth.

13 Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir [w] you up by putting you in remembrance;

14 Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath showed [x] me.

15 Moreover I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance.

16 For we have not followed cunningly devised [y] fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses [z] of his majesty.

17 For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light [a] that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star [b] arise in your hearts:

20 Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

21 For the prophecy came not [c] in [d] old time

[a] or, Symeon.
[b] Ep.4.5
[c] our God and Saviour.
[d] Da.11. 6,32.
[e] Ps.84.11. 1 Ti.4.8.
[f] or, by.
[g] 2 Ti.1.9
[h] 2 Co.7.1.
[i] 1 Jn.1.4.
[j] 2 Pe.1.4.
[k] Php.4.8.
[l] Phi.1.9.
[m] 1 Co.9.25.
[n] Ja.1.4.
[o] 1 Ti.4.7.
[p] Jn.13.34, 35
[q] 1Co.13.1.. 3.
[r] idle.
[s] Ja.1.2..6.
[t] 1 Jn.2.9.. 11.
[u] c.3.17.
[v] 1 Jn.3.19. Re.22.14.
[w] c.3.1.
[x] Jn.21.18, 19.
[y] 2 Co.4.2.
[z] Mat.17.1 .5 Jn.1.14.
[a] Ps.119 105 Pr.6.23.
[b] Re.2.28. 22.16.
[c] or, atany.
[d] Lu.1.70.

CHAP. I. Ver. 1—21. The writer, after his apostolical salutation, congratulates all true believers on their privileges, and exhorts to universal obedience.—The Epistle opens with an avowal of some of the most important and consolatory truths of the New Testament. Not only does it contain an express testimony to the divinity of our Saviour, but it attributes our salvation solely to the merits of his righteousness, and the agency of his Spirit, through the instrumentality of faith:—faith, which is rendered precious by its object and its effects; bringing us into a saving acquaintance with "exceeding great and precious promises," and animating us to the observance of every Christian virtue. And in these Peter urges to the utmost diligence and energy, in order that our calling and election may thereby be certified to our own minds, and demonstrated to others; and that finally, we may obtain an abundant—that is, a certain and triumphant admission into the heavenly and everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and thus not only be conquerors, but "more than conquerors"—not only gain a victory, but a triumph also; and be received with the plaudit of our Lord and Master—"Well done, thou good and faithful servant! enter thou into the joy of thy Lord!" (Mat. xxv. 21.)

The apostle Peter now enters into his own circumstances and feelings. He was at this time, we suppose, at Rome, with his "beloved brother Paul," as he calls him, (chap. iii. 15,) "ready to be offered" as a sacrifice for the truth, and waiting for the summons to "put off his fleshly tabernacle," and put on robes of celestial glory. And the object of the present Epistle avowedly was, to leave behind him a memorial of his principles and experience, that the church might always "have them in remembrance." At the same time, he takes the opportunity to assure them of the truth and certainty of the important facts on which his faith and principles were built. For whereas he had informed them of the power and glory which should attend the second coming of the Lord Jesus from heaven, he had himself received a demonstration of it, when he witnessed his transfiguration on the mount, and heard from heaven that important testimony, "This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well-pleased."

This to him was fully satisfactory, but to them he recommends "a more sure word of prophecy"—meaning the evidence arising from the fulfilment of the sacred Scriptures; particularly in reference to Christ's incarnation and sufferings, death and resurrection; the fulfilment of which was an assured earnest of his second coming, and future glory.

In this interesting passage, three things particularly present themselves to our attention:—

1. The nature of prophetic evidence. It was a light (or lamp) shining in a dark (or obscure) place: and dark indeed would the world have been, but for the lamp of divine revelation. We see this in the state of the heathen world, which was like the darkness of Egypt—"darkness that might be (and must have been) felt." Even in the Jewish world, it was like a midnight sky, illuminated only by the twinkling of the stars, until at length the Mosaic dispensation was established, with its system of types and emblems, which made the Jewish church

---

CHAP. I. Ver. 1. Simon Peter.—Simeon seems to have been the Hebrew way of pronouncing this name, being used by the Apostle James in Acts xv. 14. This Epistle was not generally received in the Christian church before the fourth century. There are, however, several probable allusions to it in the Apostolical Fathers; and, from the fourth century, it seems to have been generally received, and read among the other Scriptures; and though its inspiration was at first doubted by some, it was not reckoned among the spurious Scriptures, then too common. The Epistle is, however, so excellent, and (except chap ii.) so similar in style and spirit to the first Epistle, that we believe it is now almost universally admitted into the sacred canon.—The righteousness of God and our Saviour.—Margin, "of our God and Saviour." [This is certainly the literal and proper rendering of the original, and should have been received in the text: it is an absolute proof that St. Peter calls Jesus God, in the most proper sense of the term.]—Bagster. So Granville Sharp, Wordsworth, Middleton, and Pye Smith.

Ver. 3. To—Margin "By"—glory and virtue.—If we take the textual rendering, it means that we are called to practise the one, and enjoy the other: if the margin, it may import, that by a display of these in the gospel, we are called to embrace it.

Ver. 4. The divine nature.—Doddridge, "A divine nature;" i. e. the new nature conferred in regeneration.

Ver. 5. Add to your faith virtue.—Doddridge, and many others, take "virtue" here in the sense of courage, or fortitude—"Add to, or associate with, your faith, courage to profess it, and knowledge to defend it," &c.

Ver. 7. Charity.—See note on 1 Peter iv. 8.

Ver. 9. Is blind—i. e. partially so.—Cannot see afar off.—Doddridge, "short sighted." But Bochart explains the word here used, (μυωπαζων,) as meaning to wink the eyes against the light—not being able to endure it. He is followed by Macknight.

Ver. 10. Make your calling and election sure.—Macknight, "firm." That is, by a holy life demonstrate your calling and election.

Ver. 11. An entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly—i. e. a free admittance and a hearty welcome.

Ver. 12. In the present truth—i. e. in that of which he was now treating; namely, that diligence in religion was the way to perseverance.

Ver. 13. I think it meet, &c.—This is supposed by some to be a sort of apology for writing again so soon after his first epistle: i. e. probably within a year.

Ver. 14. Put off this my tabernacle.—Compare 2 Cor. v. 1—5.

Ver. 15. Moreover.—Doddridge, "But." (Gr. de.)

Ver. 19. A more sure word of prophecy—Or, prophetic word. Some critics think the comparative degree is here used for the superlative, and render it, "a most sure word," &c. See Doddridge, &c.—A light—(Gr. "a lamp.")—In a dark place.—Some have supposed this an allusion to the lamp (or candlestick) which was burnt in the holy place: but the word (αυχμηρω) strictly means a filthy, as well as dark place—"a dark hole—a cellar." Such is this world without divine revelation.—The day star.—(Gr. Phosphoros.) By this name, the Greeks meant the planet Venus, or the morning star—a name which our Lord appropriates to himself, Rev. xxii. 16.

Ver. 20. Private interpretation.—Owen and Doddridge, "impulse." Macknight, "invention." Hammond thinks this has a reference to the word ny the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved [e] by the Holy Ghost.

A. M. cir. 4061.
A. D. cir. 65.

CHAPTER II.

1 He foretelleth them of false teachers, showing the impiety and punishment both of them and their followers: 7 from which the godly shall be delivered, as Lot was out of Sodom: 10 and more fully describeth the manners of those profane and blasphemous seducers, whereby they may be the better known, and avoided.

BUT [a] there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among [b] you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction.

2 And many shall follow their [c] pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

3 And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment [d] now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment;

5 And spared not the old world, but saved [e] Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;

6 And turning the cities of [f] Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them with an overthrow, making [g] them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly;

7 And delivered just [h] Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:

8 (For that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds;)

9 The Lord knoweth how to [i] deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve [j] the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished:

10 But chiefly them [k] that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise [l] government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of [m] dignities.

11 Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation [n] against them before the Lord.

12 But these, as natural brute [o] beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption:

13 And shall receive the reward of unrighteousness, as they [p] that count it pleasure to riot in the day time. Spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you;

14 Having eyes full of [q] adultery, and that cannot cease from sin; beguiling unstable souls: a heart they have exercised with covetous practices; cursed children:

15 Which have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam [r] the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness;

16 But was rebuked for his iniquity: the dumb ass speaking with man's voice forbade the madness of the prophet.

17 These are wells without water, clouds [s] that are carried with a tempest; to whom the mist of darkness is reserved for ever.

e 2 Ti.3.16.
a De.13.1, &c. b Mat.24.5, 24. Ac.20.29, 30. 1 Ti.4.1. c or, lasciviousness, as some copies read.
d Jude 4 .7.
e Ge.7.1, &c.
f Ge.19.24, 25.
g De.29.23.
h Ge.19.16.
i Ps.34.15., 18.
j Jude 14,15
k He 13.4.
l or, dominion.
m Jude 8,10.
n Some read, against themselves.
o Je.12.3.
p Phi.3.19. Jude 12, &c.
q an adulteress.
r Nu 22.5, &c.
s Ep.4.14.

"fair as the moon:" still, however, it was night till the "day dawned, and the morning star" of Christianity arose.

2. We remark the certainty of this evidence. It is more sure than all the lights of the Pagan world—than all the discoveries of human reason and moral philosophy. It is more confirmed, as some render it, because every age increases the weight of evidence, and gives an accumulation of strength, by continual additions to its accomplishment, in one part or other.

3. The foundation of this evidence lies in divine inspiration; for no prophecy of Scripture is of—"private interpretation," say our translators: but the original is now agreed to mean "impulse, invention, or origin." This, therefore, amounts to what St. Paul says, that "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God." (2 Tim. iii. 16.) Now, to this word, we are required to yield ourselves implicitly; availing ourselves, in the present state, of all the information and comfort we can derive from it, until the night of mortality shall pass away; until eternity shall dawn, and our mortal powers sink in death. Then Christ, "the morning star, shall arise in our hearts," and his beams create our everlasting day.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—22. Warnings against false prophets, and teachers of base principles, and corrupt minds.—The chapter begins with stating, that as there were false prophets among the Jews, so we must not be surprised to find false teachers in the Christian church; not merely weak or mistaken brethren, but men of the worst principles, and the most pernicious ways; men who would privately introduce the most pestructive heresies, such as "denying the Lord who bought them." The nature of heresy has been already considered in our remarks on Titus iii. 10; and it is clear, that heresies must be the more destructive in proportion to their practical effects. To deny the Lord who bought us, is certainly one of the worst; since it is to deny our Master and Redeemer, and to bring a reproach upon the truth itself. We are ready to hope of such men, (and this proceeds from a Christian temper,) that they may be led astray through inadvertence or persuasion; but the persons of whom St. Peter speaks were the leaders, and not the led; covetous and designing men, who wished to take advantage of the simple, in order to make a merchandise of them, and raise themselves to opulence and power. By comparing these men with the fallen angels, it seems intimated that they were actuated by a like principle of ambition and of pride; and by classing them with the inhabitants of the old world, and of Sodom and Gomorrah, it is evident that they were men of the most vicious and abominable lives. Of such men, it is said, that their destruction had been long predicted and was now rapidly approaching. At the same time, as Lot was delivered from Sodom, and Noah from the sinners of the old world; so the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of trials and temptations, while he visits their tempters and oppressors with the most signal judgments.

We are now called upon to contemplate "the goodness and severity of God:" his righteous severity in the doom of fallen angels; in the drowning of the old world, and in the destruction of the cities of the plain: his free and unmerited goodness in providing for the salvation of man, and in rescuing Noah and Lot, with both their families, from the dreadful ruin in which the sinners around them were involved. From these facts our apostle draws this obvious practical inference—"that the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations;" that is, out of all the trials in which their own sins, given at starting in the Olympic games. They did not speak of their own accord; they did not "run without being sent."—See Rom. x. 15.

---

Ver. 21. Spake as they were moved.—Doddridge, "borne on," or carried beyond themselves by the influences of the Holy Spirit.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. Damnable heresies.—Literally (says Macknight) "Heresies of destruction," or "destructive heresies." So Doddridge.—Denying the Lord that bought them.—The word here used for "Lord" (despotes) signifies a master when connected with servants, and a sovereign, when with subjects. It being doubted whether this word is in any other place applied to Christ, makes it questionable here: but see 1 Tim. ii. 21, and compare Jude 4.

Ver. 3. With feigned words.—Doddridge, "Deceitful words."—Whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not.—Macknight, "To them, the punishment [threatened] of old (Jude 4.) lingereth not."

Ver. 4. Hell.—Greek, Tartarus. Homer describes these doleful regions as "a deep gulf under the earth with a brazen entrance." (Iliad, bk. viii.) Hesiod also speaks of Tartarus as the place where the Titans (or rebellious giants,) are bound with chains in thick darkness. (Theog.) Compare Jude, ver. 6. The word is used only in these two places in the New Testament.

Ver. 5. The eighth person.—Perhaps meaning the head of his family, containing eight persons. (1 Peter iii. 20.) But Bishop Pearson supposes Noah to have been the eighth patriarch who was a preacher of righteousness, which is very possible, though he was the tenth person from Adam in the genealogy; for we are not sure that all of them were preachers.

Ver. 6. Into ashes—i. e. burnt them into ashes by a storm of fire and brimstone. See Gen. xix. 23—30.—An ensample—i. e. example.

Ver. 9. Temptations—i. e. trials. See note on James i. 2.

Ver. 10. In the lust of uncleanness.—This is supposed to refer to the sin of Sodom above mentioned. Compare Jude 7.—To speak evil.—Literally, "to blaspheme dignities;" implying falsehood, as well as abuse. The dignities here meant are magistrates. See Rom. xiii. 1—4.

Ver. 11. Against them—i. e. dignities or magistrates: but the margin says, some copies read, "against themselves;" though it should rather be, as Macknight says, "against each other." The common version is, however, best supported.

Ver. 12. As natural brute beasts.—["As natural animals, void of reason," following only the gross instinct of their nature.]—Bagster.—Made to be taken and destroyed.—Macknight, "Made for capture and destruction."

Ver. 13. While they feast with you—i. e. join with you in your sacred feast.

Ver. 14. Full of adultery.—Margin, "an adulteress." The idea is, that the objects of their lusts were always present to their imaginations.—Cursed children—i. e. "children of a curse," as was Canaan.

Ver. 15. Balaam the son of Bosor.—Either Balaam's father had two names, Beor and Bosor, or the latter (as Ainsworth and Lightfoot suppose) was the Chaldaic pronunciation of the former.

Ver. 17. The mist of darkness.—Doddridge and Macknight, "Blackness of darkness." See ver. 4, and compare Jude 13.

18 For when they speak [t] great swelling words of vanity, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonness, those that were [u] clean escaped from them who live in error.

19 While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for [v] of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.

20 For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again [w] entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better [x] for them not to have known the way [y] of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.

22 But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, [z] The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire.

CHAPTER III.

1 He assureth them of the certainty of Christ's coming to judgment, against those scorners who dispute against it: 8 warning the godly, for the long patience of God, to hasten their repentance. 10 He describeth also the manner how the world shall be destroyed: 11 exhorting them, from the expectation thereof, to all holiness of life: 15 and again, to think the patience of God to tend to their salvation, as Paul wrote to them in his epistles.

THIS second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance:

2 That [a] ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before [b] by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour:

3 Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days [c] scoffers, walking after their own lusts,

4 And saying, Where [d] is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.

5 For this they willingly are ignorant of, that [e] by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth [f] standing out of the [g] water and in the water:

6 Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with [h] water, perished:

7 But the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire [i] against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.

8 But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a [j] thousand years as one day.

9 The Lord is not slack [k] concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering [l] to us-ward, not willing [m] that any should perish, but that all should [n] come to repentance.

10 But the day of the Lord will come as a thief [o] in the night; in the which the heavens [p] shall pass away with a great noise, and the

A. M. cir. 4069
A. D. cir. 65

t Ps.73.8.
u or, for a little while, as some read.
v Jn.8.34. Ro.6.16.
w Jn.11.26. He.6.4, &c. 10.26,27. x Mt.11.23, 24. Lu.12.47, 48.
y Pr.12.28. z Pr.26.11.
a Jude 17,18

b 1 Ti.4.1. 2 Ti 3.1.
c Is.5.19.
d Jo.17.15. Eze 12.22 27. Mal 2.17-3.5.
e Ge.1.6,9.
f consisting.
g Ps.24.2.
h Ge.7.11, &c.
i Ps.50.3. Zep.3.8. 2 Th.1.8.
j Ps.90.4.
k Ha.2.3.
l Ps.86.15. Is.30.18. m Eze 33.11
n 1 Ti 2.4.
o Mat 24. 42,43. Re 16.15. p Ps.102.26 Is.51.6 Re.20.11.

---

or the sins of others, may involve them; an inference peculiarly consolatory in the then present situation of the world, when one of the heaviest judgments which ever visited it, was about to be poured out upon the nation of the Jews.

Dreadful is the character now drawn of these false and wicked teachers, against whom our apostle had already warned his brethren, and now again warns them. They are not only detestably licentious in their personal conduct, but presumptuous and self-willed; despising all civil government, and grossly reviling all governors: whereas angels, though far greater in power and higher in rank, bring no such accusations:—except, indeed, that fallen spirit, who, on this account, has been branded with that odious name, "the accuser of the brethren." (Rev. xii. 10.) As natural brute beasts—wild and savage animals—created (as it should seem) only for rapine and destruction, these men are governed only by their passions; and, when offended or displeased, they scruple not to reproach and revile conduct, which they have neither ability to judge of, nor temper duly to weigh. With eyes full of adultery, and hearts filled with covetousness, they make a sport of sin, and even riot in the open day!

The ruling motive in these men's minds is again stated to be covetousness, or "the love of money," which, as Paul tells us, is "the root of all evil." (1 Tim. vi. 10.) And if there is any class of society to whom it is more especially injurious, it is to preachers or to prophets. Thus it was to these false teachers, "following the way of Balaam." He loved the wages of unrighteousness, but was rebuked for his iniquity by the most senseless of all animals—"the dumb ass," miraculously endowed with a human voice, "rebuking the madness of the prophet:" madness indeed it must have been, to incur the curse of God and everlasting misery, for the temporal rewards of an idolatrous prince. (See expos. of Num. xxii. 22—41.) To show the emptiness and unsteadiness of such characters, he compares them to wells without water, and clouds driven by a tempest. Yet by sensual temptations they allure back to the world many who appear to have escaped it: and while they hold out the promise of liberty, they bring them under the yoke of sin, and reduce them to a state worse than that which they had escaped. The great bait held out by the advocates of licentiousness is comprised in the sacred name of liberty; whereas no men are more deeply enslaved to their prejudices and their passions, the full indulgence of which, uncontrolled by reason or religion, is what they mean by liberty! But, alas! when they have drawn heedless professors into their snare, they find it the liberty of wearing chains—the chains of error and of sin. Such men, according to the saying of Solomon, return, like the dog and the sow, to their original filth:—an image, in those countries, much stronger than appears to us, since dogs, in general, are there no more domesticated than are the swine.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—18. The certainty of Christ coming to judgment, and the effect it ought to have upon us.—Having spoken in strong language of false teachers, who pretended to be Christians, he now warns us against infidels and scoffers, who derided the very name of Christianity, and from the long delay of threatened judgment, became so hardened as to laugh at the idea. This, like every other plea of ancient infidelity, has been adopted by the modern sceptics, and is thus stated and answered by that able advocate for revealed truth—the Rev. Robert Hall, in his Sermon on Modern Infidelity.

"Why, it will be said, may we not suppose the world has always continued as it is; that is, that there has been a constant succession of finite beings, appearing and disappearing on the earth from all eternity? I answer, (says Mr. Hall,) whatever is supposed to have occasioned this constant succession, exclusive of an intelligent cause, will never account for the undeniable marks of design visible in all finite beings; nor is the absurdity of supposing a contrivance without a contriver diminished by this imaginary succession, but rather increased by being repeated at every step of the series.

"Besides, an eternal succession of finite beings involves in it a contradiction, and is, therefore, plainly impossible. As the supposition is made to get quit of the idea of any one being having existed from eternity, each of the beings in the succession must have begun in time; but the succession itself is

---

Ver. 18. Those that were clean escaped.—Doddridge, "quite escaped

CHAP. III. Ver. 4. For since.—Grotius, "except that;" so Hammond and Grove. But Doddridge and Macknight prefer the common rendering.

Ver. 5. By the word of God, &c.—[Kypke renders, "The heavens were of old, and the earth, which is framed, by the word of God, from the waters, and between the waters." It was the opinion of the remotest antiquity, that the earth was formed out of water, or primitive moisture, which they termed ule, first matter; and Thales taught, "all things derive their existence from water." This also appears to be the doctrine of Moses, (Gen. i. 1, 2;) and that the earth was at first in a fluid state is evident from its form; for it has been demonstrated by measuring some degrees near the pole, that the earth is not round, but an oblate spheroid, a figure nearly resembling an orange, and one which any soft or elastic body would assume if whirled rapidly round a centre, as the earth is round its axis. When the waters retired into one place, and when "God divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament," then the earth was placed "between the waters."]—Bagster.—The earth standing out of the water and in the water—i. e. part rising above the water, and part submerged; or, perhaps, above the waters "under the earth," and beneath those treasured in the clouds, by the meeting of which in the deluge, "the world that then was" being overflowed, was drowned. See Gen. i. 6—10; vii. 11—20.

Ver. 7. Reserved unto fire.—See ver. 10, 11.—Perdition of ungodly men.—To obviate the direct bearings of this passage, Universalist writers say, that this earth is to be the hell of wicked men; and that as the burning of it will not be eternal, so the perdition of the ungodly will be but temporary. There are, however, three serious difficulties to this gloss. 1. The Scriptures speak of a hell already existing, wherein the angels who kept not their first estate are reserved in everlasting chains unto darkness, unto the judgment of the great day; and in which the departed spirits of wicked men now lift up their eyes, being in torment. 2. The Scriptures declare that this hell now existing will be the hell for all ungodly men; for they are doomed to depart into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels. 3. If the earth, as being dissolved by fire, is to be the hell of ungodly men, then punishment must precede the day of judgment; for the conflagration is uniformly represented as prior to that event. See 2 Thes. i. 7—10. See also notes on Mat. xxv. 46.

Ver. 8. One day, &c.—This is said to be a Jewish proverb, but it is evidently taken from Ps. xc. 4.

Ver. 9. Is not slack.—Doddridge, "slow."—Count slackness.—Doddridge, "slowness."—Not willing.—Macknight, "not desiring." Compare Rom. ii. 4. 1 Tim. ii. 4.

Ver. 10. As a thief in the night.—See Mat. xxiv. 42—44 elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

11 Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, 12 Looking for [q] and [r] hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt [s] with fervent heat?

13 Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new [t] heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be [u] diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless.

A. M. cir. 4069.
A. D. cir. 65

q Tit 2 13.
r or, hastening the coming.
s Is 34 4. Mic 1 4.
t Re 21 1, 27.
u 1 Co 15 58. 1 Th 5 23.
v Ro 2 4.
w Ro 8 19. 1 Co 15. 1 Th 1 & 5 2 Th 1 . . 10.
x Col 1 10.
y 2 Ti 4 18.

15 And account that the long-suffering of our Lord is [v] salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also according to the wisdom given unto him hath written unto you;

16 As also in all his epistles, [w] speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness.

18 But [x] grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him [y] be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

eternal. We have, then, a succession of beings infinitely earlier than any being in the succession. ..... which is absurd."

So much for the logic of infidelity, which consists of "great swelling words," but is empty of argument or divine authority. Such persons, says our apostle, are wilfully ignorant of all the great truths of revealed religion. They consider not that God made the world—that he once destroyed all the inhabitants of it for sin—that he has threatened a still more terrible destruction to impenitent sinners at the last day: but why, say they, is this threatening so long delayed? and we, even yet, see no prospect of its fulfilment. "Where is the promise of his coming?"

Two things should be here considered: 1. That man not having an hour to command, should not delay an hour in securing his best interests.—2. That God, having eternity at his command, can have no possible occasion for haste—"One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." "That is," says the eloquent Saurin, "a thousand years, and one day, are such inconsiderable measures of duration, that whatever disproportion they may have to each other, they appear to have none when compared to the duration of eternity..... There is a great difference between the light of a taper and that of a flambeau; but expose both to the light of the sun, and their difference will be imperceptible. The light of a taper before the sun is as the light of a flambeau, and the light of a flambeau as the light of a taper. ..... In this sense, a thousand years are but as one day, and one day as a thousand years." (Sermon on the Eternity of God.)

But though the Almighty is under no obligation in any case to give a reason for his conduct, yet an obvious one here presents itself. He is "long-suffering to us-ward," that is, to mankind; "not desiring that any should perish, but [willing that] all should come to repentance." This, however, should not lull us into security, for "the day of the Lord will come;" and when it does, it will come as unexpectedly "as a thief in the night." It becomes us, therefore, to be prepared. "Seeing, then, all these things shall be dissolved"—these lower heavens, being rolled up as a scroll, shall pass away, with sounds of bursting thunder—the elements of nature shall be melted into a lake of fire, and all the works of nature or of art, that adorn this earth, shall be destroyed—O "what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness!" "Nevertheless we" ought not to sink into despondency, since, according to the divine promise, "we look for new heavens and new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness"—and that for ever.

Ver. 13. According to his promise.—See Isaiah lxv. 17. Compare Rev. xxi. 1, &c.

Ver. 16. Of these things—Namely, the patience of God, and the day of judgment, with its solemn consequences.—In which.—These words, as they stand in our common copies, refer to the things here spoken of, which, indeed, from their mysterious and sublime nature, are necessarily hard to be understood: but some MSS., reading the relative pronoun "which" in the feminine, instead of neuter, necessarily refer to the Epistles; and the writer freely confesses that, in going through Paul's Epistles, he has in most of them found things hard to be understood, but especially in those to the Romans and the Hebrews:—which they that are unlearned—or rather (as Doddridge and Macknight render it) "unteachable"—and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures—plainly ranking St. Paul's writings as a part of the sacred book. Of the unstable, see James i. 8. The term wrest, signifies to torture, as on a rack.—Macknight.

Ver. 17. Beware.—Macknight, "Be on your guard." He adds, that this is a military term, alluding to the duty of soldiers in a fortress.

Ver. 18. Both now and for ever.—Macknight, "Unto the day of eternity;" so he remarks the original literally signifies—a day never followed by night. See Rev. xxi. 25.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PETER.

[Dr. Macknight justly observes, that "the matters contained in this Epistle are highly worthy of an inspired Apostle; for, besides a variety of important discoveries, all tending to display the perfections of God and the glory of Christ, we find in it exhortations to virtue, and condemnations of vice, delivered with an earnestness of feeling, which shows the author to have been incapable of imposing a forged writing upon the world; and that his sole design in this Epistle was to promote the interests of truth and virtue." With regard to the objection against the genuineness of this Epistle drawn from the difference of style between this and the former Epistle, it has been correctly said, that an author's style is regulated, in a great measure, by the nature of his subject, different subjects naturally suggesting different styles; and that this diversity is confined to the second chapter of this Epistle, where the subject is different from the rest of St. Peter's writings, and where the style is as different from that of the other two chapters, as it is from the language of the first Epistle. But the fact is, that the style of both Epistles is essentially the same. "I cannot," says Dr. Blackwall, "with some critics, find any great difference betwixt the style of the first and second Epistles; it is to me no more than we find in the style of the same persons at different times. There is much the same energy and clear brevity, the same rapid run of language, and the same commanding majesty in them both. Take them together, and they are admirable for significant epithets and strong compound words; for beautiful and sprightly figures, adorable and sublime doctrines, pure and heavenly morals, expressed in a chaste, lively, and graceful style."]—Bagster.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF JOHN.

[Though the name of St. John is not affixed to this Epistle, yet it has been received without hesitation as the genuine production of that Apostle from the earliest period of the Christian church; and the similarity of sentiment and expression between it and his Gospel, is a full confirmation of the truth of this opinion.

With respect to the date of this Epistle, there is a considerable diversity of opinion; some placing it, with Benson and Hales, in A. D. 68; others, with Bishop Tomline, in A. D. 69; others, with Dr. Lardner, in A. D. 90, or even later; others, with Mill and Le Clerc, in A. D. 91 or 92; and others, with Basnage and Baronius, in A. D. 98 or 99. The most probable of these opinions, however, seems to be that which assigns it an early date: for it would appear from certain expressions, that it was written before the destruction of Jerusalem, (ch. ii. 18,) and while the generation which had seen our Lord in the flesh had not yet passed away, (ch. ii. 13, 14.) It appears, as Lardner, Macknight, and others suppose, to have been addressed to no particular church, but to have been intended as a general address for the use of Christians of every denomination and country, in strict accordance with its title of Catholic or General.]—Bagster.

CHAPTER I.

1 He describeth the person of Christ, in whom we have eternal life, by a communion with God: 5 to whom we must be upon holiness of life, to testify the truth of that our communion and profession of faith, as also to assure us of the forgiveness of our sins by Christ's death.

THAT which was from the [a] beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen [b] with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have [c] handled, of the Word of life;

A. M. cir. 4072.
A. D. cir. 68.

a Jn 1 1, &c.
b 2 Pe 1 16.
c Lu 24 39.
d Jn 17 3.
e Jn 17 21.

2 (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal [d] life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;)

3 That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship [e] is

Chap. I. Ver. 1—10. The character of Christ, and the nature of our communion with him.—Though this Epistle begins like that to the Hebrews, without any intimation of the author, the style and sentiments so strongly resemble those of Chap. I Ver. 1. Looked upon.—Macknight "contemplated."

Ver. 2. For the life was manifested—i. e. Christ himself.

with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.
4 And these things write we unto you, that [f] your joy may be full.
5 This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is [g] light, and in him is no darkness at all.
6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth:
7 But if we walk [h] in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood [i] of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.
8 If we say that we have no [j] sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.
9 If we confess [k] our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse [l] us from all unrighteousness.
10 If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

CHAPTER II.

1 He comforteth them against the sins of infirmity. 3 Rightly to know God is to keep his commandments. 9 to love our brethren, 15 and not to love the world. 18 We must beware of seducers: 20 from whose deceits the godly are safe, preserved by perseverance in faith, and holiness of life.

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an [a] advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous.
2 And he is the [b] propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.
3 And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep [c] his commandments.
4 He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.
5 But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him.
6 He that saith he abideth [d] in him ought himself also so to [e] walk, even as he walked.
7 Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.
8 Again, a new [f] commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you, because the darkness [g] is past, and the true light now shineth.
9 He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness [h] even until now.
10 He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none [i] occasion of stumbling in him.
11 But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh [j] in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.
12 I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's [k] sake.
13 I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him [l] that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the [m] Father.
14 I have written unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are [n] strong, and the word of God abideth [o] in you, and ye have overcome [p] the wicked one.

A M. cir. 4072.
A. D. cir. 68.

f Jn.15.11.
g Jn.1.4,9. 1 Ti.6.16.
h Jn.12.35.
i Ep.1.7. He.9.14. 1 Pe.1.19. Re.1.5.
j 1 Ki.8.46. Job 25.4. Ec.7.20. Ja.3.2 k Job 33.27, 28. Ps.32.5. Pr.28.13. l Ps.51.2. 1 Co.6.11. a Ro.8.34. He.7.25.
b Ro.3.25. c Lu.6.46. Jn.14.15, 23.
d Jn.15.4,5.
e Jn.13.15.
f Jn.13.34.
g Ro.13.12.
h 2 Pe.1.9.
i scandal.
j Pr.4.15. Jn.12.35.
k Ps.25.11. Lu.24.47. Ac.10.43.
l c.1.1.
m Jn.14.7,9.
n Ep.6.10.
o Jn.15.7.
p Re.2.7, &c.

the author of John's Gospel, as to afford the best internal evidence that they were written by the same apostle: nor is there any defect as to external evidence, the authority of very few of the Epistles having been less questioned. It appears to have been written when the apostle was far advanced in life, and in the prospect of an eternal world. We have followed Horne, and other able critics, in placing it just before the destruction of Jerusalem; but some place it after, even subsequent to the Apocalypse, as Prebendary Townsend: the date is, however, in our view, unimportant, and impossible to be ascertained with certainty.

In the opening of this Epistle, the beloved apostle introduces his divine Master in nearly the same terms as in the opening of his Gospel, calling him "the Word of life," or living Word, whom he and his fellow apostles had seen with their own eyes, had heard with their own ears, and handled with their own hands: for "God was manifested in the flesh," and they saw his glory, and spake of him with joy and gratitude. And here we may remark, that the happiness of Christians is mainly derived from communion with God, and nothing contributes so much to advance their joy, as to know that others share it with them. On this ground, there was doubtless a mutual joy between the apostle and those to whom he wrote.

"God is light, and in him is no darkness." The Supreme Being is here, as elsewhere, (James i. 17,) compared to the sun, as the fountain of light and life. God is the source of wisdom, purity, and happiness; and in him is no darkness, neither natural nor moral evil. If we then walk in the light, that is, in wisdom and holiness, then we have communion with God and with one another, and "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." It is in vain, therefore, to pretend that we have no sin; for in so doing we deceive ourselves, and insult our Maker; for he pardons none but sinners, and such only as feel and confess their guilt. But if we confess our sins with due contrition, in forgiving us he is not only gracious and merciful, but faithful to his word, and just to his Son, who offered himself as an atonement for our sins.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—17. Consolation to believers under a sense of their infirmities and sins.—The great objects of the Gospel are to procure pardon, and promote holiness. "These things I write unto you," says our affectionate apostle, "that ye sin not." As, however, "there is no man which liveth and sinneth not," he adds the consolatory consideration, "But if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous," who, not being himself a sinner, can be admitted to plead for us; and whose plea cannot be rejected, because he, who is every way equal to the work, has offered himself up as a propitiation (or sacrifice of atonement) for our sins; and not for ours only, who are Jews, but for men of all nations, for the whole Gentile world who repent and believe on him.

The term Advocate is the same that our Lord used in reference to the Holy Spirit promised to all believers, but is there rendered Comforter. It seems to have been the two-fold office of an Advocate among the Romans, (as, indeed, it is among ourselves,) to advise his client privately, and publicly to plead on his behalf before the Court. The former represents the office of the Spirit toward believers on earth; the latter, that of our Saviour before the presence of his Father in heaven.

Another word, propitiation, is peculiar to this epistle, and plainly refers to the atonement which our Saviour offered on the cross. Dr. Macknight here remarks, "that in considering the death of Christ as a sacrifice for sin, John, like the other apostles, followed his Master, who, in the institution of his Supper, directed his disciples to consider it as designed to bring to their remembrance his blood shed for the many, for the remission of sins." (Matt. xxvi. 28.)

Christ is here considered, not only as our advocate and our atonement, but also as our pattern or example. Jesus Christ is, indeed, the only model by which our characters must be formed. In him we find universal holiness embodied and exemplified, as adapted to the situation and circumstances of his people; especially as it respects those virtues peculiarly Christian—meekness, patience, and affection to the brethren.

To awaken attention, and more deeply to impress the mind, the apostle here employs a Christian paradox, or most im-

Ver. 4. That your joy may be full.—Doddridge, "fulfilled." Macknight, "complete."

Ver. 6. And walk in darkness—i. e. in ignorance and sin.—We lie, and do not the truth—i. e. do not practise it.

Ver. 7. We have fellowship one with another.—Doddridge paraphrases this, We have communion (or fellowship) with him [God] and with one another through him.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. And if.—Doddridge, "But if."—An advocate.—(Gr. Parakleton.)

Ver. 2. The propitiation.—This "word is no where found in the New Testament but in this passage, and in chap. iv. 10. But it occurs often in the LXX. translation of the Old Testament, where it signifies a sacrifice of atonement." (See Levit. vi. 6, 7. Numb. v. 8. Ezek. xliv. 27.)

Ver. 5. We do know that we know him.—Doddridge, "We know that we are acquainted with him." Macknight, "We know that we have known him."

Ver. 4. I know.—Macknight, "I have known," as in verse 3.

Ver. 5. Perfected—i. e. fully ascertained.

Ver 8. Which thing is true in him and in you.—Macknight, "concerning," or with respect to—him and you. That is, it was new, as coming from Christ and having been newly revealed to them.—The darkness is past.—Macknight, "is passing;" meaning the darkness of heathen idolatry, and Rabbinical superstition.—The true light now shineth—i. e. Christ. John i 4, 7, 9.

Ver. 10. None occasion of stumbling.—Macknight, "No stumbling-block."

Ver. 13. I write.—Several MSS., the Syriac version, and some copies of the Vulgate, read, "I have written."—Macknight.

Ver. 14. The wicked one—i. e. the devil. Mat. xiii. 19.

15 Love [q] not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If [r] any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the [t] eyes, and the pride [u] of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

17 And [v] the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.

18 Little children, it is the last [w] time: and as ye have heard [x] that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time.

19 They went out from us, but they were not of us; for [y] if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might be made manifest [z] that they were not all of us.

20 But ye have an unction [a] from the Holy One, and ye know [b] all things.

21 I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 Who is a liar, but he that [c] denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.

23 Whosoever [d] denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father: [but] he that acknowledgeth the Son hath the Father also.

24 Let [e] that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal [f] life.

26 These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you.

27 But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth [g] you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in [h] him.

28 And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

A. M. cir. 4072
A. D. cir. 68.

q Ro.12.2.
r Mat.6.24. Gal.1.10. Ja.4.4.
s 2 Pe.2.10.
t Ps.119.37.
u Ps.73.6.
v Ps.39.6. 1 Co.7.31.
w He.1.2.
x Mat.24.24. 1 Ti.4.1.
y 2 Ti.2.19.
z 2 Ti.3.9.
a 2 Co.1.21.
b 1 Co.2.15.
c c.4.3.
d Jn.15.23.
e 2 Jn.6.
f Jn.17.3.
g Jn.14.26.
h or, it.

portant truth veiled in the form of an apparent contradiction. The law of brotherly kindness was indeed as old as the creation, and though cancelled in the heart of man by sin, and renounced by Cain, it was renewed by every exhibition of that law—"Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." It was also both explained and enforced in the ministry of our Lord; and especially in the close of that ministry, when it became, as it were, a new law, by being exhibited in a new form, and enforced by a new and most powerful motive—"A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." (John xiii. 34.) This is the commandment here justly represented as, in different respects, both old and new. (Compare exposition of John xv. 12—27.)

The apostle now addresses himself to several classes of his readers, enforcing the same important truths under different modifications of expression. It is agreed that the terms children, young men, and fathers, are not to be taken literally; nor is it easy to mark the distinctions of character intended, or to appropriate the precepts distinctively addressed to each.—Little children are described as those who have known the Father, and had the assurance of their sins forgiven, which is often the case with young believers before they are harassed with temptations and with doubts; these are cautioned against being drawn into sins, from which they had but just escaped.—Young men are described as strong and vigorous, and as having, in some good degree, obtained the victory over their corruptions and spiritual enemies. These are cautioned against the temptations to which their strong and aspiring minds are most exposed: the lusts of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life; or, in more familiar terms, lust, covetousness, and ambition.—Fathers are so addressed in reference to their experience and long acquaintance with Christ, the Logos, or word of God, whom this apostle is in the habit of describing as him that was from the beginning. (See John i. 1.)

The concluding verses of this section contain admonitions of general import, one of which, in particular, merits our most serious attention: "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." Expositors characterize the love of the world here forbidden as immoderate and inordinate; yet, alas! we are all disposed to consider our love of the world as moderate and justifiable. But we apprehend the love of the world is always criminal when it comes in competition with our religion: if we so love the world as to prefer its wealth or pleasures to our known duty towards God, or towards his people—then how dwelleth the love of God in us? (See chap. iii. 17.)

Ver. 18—29. Warnings against deception and apostacy, with exhortations to persevere.—The venerable apostle reminds believers that our Lord had foretold the appearance, about this time, of many who should offer themselves as rivals or opposers: "Many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many." They did come; several are mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, and several more by Josephus. (See expos. of Matt. xxiv. 28.) Some of these, at least, were apostates from the Christian church; but the apostle intimates that they were not truly members of it, or they would not have thus apostatized: they had not received that "unction from the Holy One" which is given to all true believers, and is necessary to guard them against deception and apostacy.

But what is this unction, or anointing? Dr. Isaac Barrow (a divine very far from fanaticism) thus explains it:—"It is he who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, that must, as St. Paul speaketh, illustrate our hearts with the knowledge of these things. An unction from the Holy One, clearing our eyes, softening our hearts, healing our distempered faculties, must, as St. John informeth us, teach and persuade us this sort of truths"—namely, the peculiar truths of divine Revelation, of which he instances, among other things, as follows:—

"Particularly he guideth and quickeneth us in devotion, showing us what we should ask, raising in us holy desires and comfortable hopes, disposing us to approach unto God with firm dispositions of mind, love, and reverence, and humble confidence.

"It is also a notable part of the Holy Spirit's office to comfort and sustain us in all our religious practice, so particularly in our doubts, difficulties, distresses, and afflictions; to beget joy, peace, and satisfaction in us, in all our performances and in all our sufferings, whence the title of Comforter belongeth to him.

"It is also another part thereof to assure us of God's gracious love and favour, and that we are his children; confirming in us the hopes of our everlasting inheritance. We, feeling ourselves to live spiritually by him, to love God and goodness, to thirst after righteousness, and to delight in pleasing God, are thereby raised to hope God loves and favours us; and that he having, by so authentic a seal, ratified his word and promise, having already bestowed so sure a pledge, so precious an earnest, so plentiful first-fruits, will not fail to make good the remainder designed and promised us, of everlasting joy and bliss."

In the latter part of this chapter, St. John evidently alludes to the rising heresies which at this time began to trouble the church, and which in succeeding ages filled the pages of our ecclesiastical historians. Some of them, it seems, (as Cerinthus,) separated Jesus from Christ, as being two persons, and denied him to be the Son of God. It appears, that in those early, as in much later times, many were fond of paradoxes, and took pleasure in starting new and strange opinions, which, among the vulgar, attracted admiration, and made them highly popular. The strain of the apostle's argument is to show, that Christ was not only one with, but also so united to the Father, as not to be separated, either in essence, or in

Ver. 16. The lust of the flesh, &c.—The sources of evil are three, (says a Pagan writer:) love of pleasure, in matters of corporeal enjoyment; love of money, in matters of gain; and love of glory, in point of pre-eminence over our equals and companions.

Ver. 18. The last time.—Greek, "hour." Some refer this to the destruction of Jerusalem; but it is doubtful if that were not already past.—Antichrist shall come.—If the preposition anti, in Antichrist, denotes "in place of," Antichrist is a false Christ; if anti denotes opposition, Antichrist is one who opposeth Christ.—Macknight. In both senses there were many Antichrists.

Ver. 19. Were not of us—i. e. were not true Christians.—That they might be made manifest—i. e. it was so ordered by Providence that they should leave the church, that they might bring no reproach nor disgrace upon it: not that such was their design in leaving.

Ver. 20. Ye have an unction—That is, a chrism, or anointing.—Ye know all things.—The same is repeated ver. 27, and is evidently to be understood in harmony with our Lord's promise to his disciples, John xvi. 13,—"He shall lead you into all truth;" i. e. all requisite and important truths; so here they were taught all things necessary to salvation.

Ver. 22. Who is a liar but he, &c.—Dr. Pye Smith renders it, "Who is a liar, if he be not who denieth that Jesus is the Christ," &c.—meaning that such a one is the worst of all liars and deceivers.

Ver. 23. He that acknowledgeth the Son, &c.—[This clause is printed by our translators in Italics, to show that it is of doubtful authority, being probably wanting in the chief of the MSS. they consulted, as well as the early printed editions, both Greek and English; but it should certainly be restored to the text, as Griesbach has done, as it is found in the Codices Alexandrinus, Vaticanus, and Ephraim, and in between twenty and thirty others of the best authority; as also in both the Syriac, Erpen's Arabic, Coptic, Sahidic, Armenian, and Vulgate; and is quoted by Origen, Meletius, Athanasius, the Cyrils, Theophylact, &c.]—Bagster.

Ver. 27. But the anointing . . . . the same anointing.—(Gr. chrisma.) The same word which in ver. 20. is rendered unction.—In him.—Margin, "in it;" i. e. the truth.

29 If ye know that he is righteous, [i] ye know that [j] every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.

CHAPTER III.

1 He declareth the singular love of God towards us, in making us his sons: 3 who therefore ought obediently to keep his commandments, 11 as also brotherly to love one another.

BEHOLD what manner of love [a] the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons [b] of God: therefore the world [c] knoweth us not, because it knew him not.

2 Beloved, now are we the sons [d] of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like [e] him; for we shall see [f] him as he is.

3 And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

4 Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law.

5 And ye know [g] that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not: whosoever [h] sinneth hath not seen him, neither known him.

7 Little children, let no man deceive you: he that [i] doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous.

8 He [j] that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that [k] he might destroy the works of the devil.

9 Whosoever [l] is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed [m] remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God.

10 In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 For this is the [n] message that ye heard from the beginning, that [o] we should love one another.

12 Not as [p] Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, if the world [q] hate you.

14 We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He [r] that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

15 Whosoever [s] hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

16 Hereby [t] perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 But [u] whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how [v] dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 My little children, let [w] us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.

19 And hereby [x] we know that we are of the truth, and shall [y] assure our hearts before him.

20 For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 Beloved, if our heart [z] condemn us not, then have we confidence [a] toward God.

22 And whatsoever [b] we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

23 And this [c] is his commandment, That we

A. M. cir. 4072
A. D. cir. 68.

i or, know ye.
j 1Je.13.23. Mat.7.16,18.
a Ep.2.4,5.
b Jn.1.12. Rom.8.14. c Jn.17.25.
d Rom.8.14, 18.
e 1 Co.15.49. Phi.3.21. 2 Pe.1.4.
f Job 19.26. Ps.17.15. Mat.5.8. 1 Co.13.12. g He.9.26, 28.
h 3 Jn.11.
i Ezek.18.5, 9. Ro.2.13. Ja.2.21.
j Jn.8.44.
k He.2.14. 1 c.5.18.
m 1 Pe.1.23.

n or, commandment.
o Jn.15.12.
p Ge.4.4, 8.
q Jn.15.18, 19.
r c.2.9,11.
s Mat.5.21, 22.
t Jn.15.13. Ro.5.8.
u De.15.7.
v c.4.20.
w Ezr.33.31. Ro.12.9. Ja.2.15,16. 1 Pe.1.22.
x Jn.3.19.
y persuade z Job 27.6. Ps.101.2.
a He.10.22.
b Ps.145.18, 19. Pr.15.29. Ps.11.24. c De.18.15, 19. Jn.14.1.

---

the work of man's redemption; and he seems to have borne in his recollection the substance of our Lord's discourse in the 14th chapter of his gospel.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—24. The grace of God in the adoption, sanctification, and salvation of his people.—"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God!" So astonishing did this seem, when one of the Malabarian converts was required by the Danish missionaries thus to translate this passage, that he shrunk from it, as far too bold: "Let me rather render it (says he,) They shall be permitted to kiss his feet." But even this is not all; not only are we to be recognised as the adopted children of God, but also, conformed to the image of his only begotten Son. And such is the transforming efficacy of his glory, that when we "see him as he is," we shall be changed into his image—we shall be pure, as he is pure; for we "know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin."

This similitude will not, we confess, be complete in the present life: we must see Christ even as he is, before we can be conformed wholly to his image. There is, however, a partial resemblance, which becomes more and more complete as grace prevails in us. In this state we "know but in part," and are sanctified but in part, as the holiest and best of men admit, and as St. John himself assures us: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." (Chap. i. 8.) The same apostle, therefore, cannot mean to be understood absolutely, when he says, "He that is born of God doth not commit sin;" but it is yet a question how the words can be best explained, in harmony with other passages in this epistle, and of the Scriptures in general. We shall mention two ways in which this has been attempted.

1. It has been commonly understood, that by committing sin is here meant the habitual practice thereof, as the heathen practised idolatry, and the Jews their now obsolete and superstitious ritual. It must, however, be admitted, that every act of sin is as much forbidden as the habit; that neither the law nor the gospel tolerate even "the thought of foolishness;" (Prov. xxiv. 9;) yet it is not every sinful thought, or even act, that proves a man hypocritical or insincere. Christians are bound to the practice of piety and good works; and yet, as St. James says, (chap. iii. 2,) "In many things we all offend;" and as St. John—"If any man sin," upon repentance and humiliation, "we have an advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ" himself; so that, as we must not presume on this to encourage ourselves in sin, neither must we despair of pardon when we repent. And this exposition is, we think, in perfect harmony with Scripture truth.

But, 2. The late ingenious Mr. Fuller has remarked, (and we have met with the suggestion in him only,) that the apostle had been before exhorting Christians to abide in the truth, and to "walk as Christ also walked." In the close of this Epistle, also, the apostle speaks of apostacy—that is, of complete and final apostacy—as "a sin unto death," or a fatal and soul-destroying sin: of this sin, therefore, Mr. Fuller conceives that the apostle here treats, and which he describes as utterly inconsistent with true godliness. He that is born of God, in this sense, "sinneth not," and "cannot sin." Mr. F. would, therefore, for the term sin, substitute apostacy—meaning, inveterate and complete apostacy, and reads the text as follows:—"Whose abideth in him, apostatizeth not: whosoever apostatizeth hath not seen him, neither known him.—He that is guilty of apostacy is of the devil; for the devil hath been an apostate from the beginning.—Whosoever is born of God doth not apostatize, for his seed remaineth in him; and he cannot apostatize, because he is born of God."

Either of these expositions may be sufficient to reconcile our apostle to himself, and to the general tenor of Scripture. Our readers will judge for themselves; we feel too much of our frailty to dogmatize, where wise and good men differ.

Mutual love among Christians is the burden of this Epistle; but that love must be connected with love to Christ, because we are commanded to love them as brethren, that is, as fellow Christians; and to the extent, (ver. 16,) that we should be ready to "lay down our lives" for them, if circumstances should require. Now this mutual love produces mutual fellowship and communion, not with them only, but also with God, our common Father, and with Christ, our common Sa-

---

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. The sons of God.—Greek, "children of God." So ver. 2.

Ver. 4. Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth also the law.—Doddridge, "Every one that practiseth sin, practiseth also the violation of the law." This learned commentator renders anomia, "violation of the law," in distinction from paranomia, which is, properly, a "transgression," or going beyond the boundaries prescribed.—Sin is the transgression—Doddridge, "Violation"—of the law.

Ver. 9. He that committeth sin.—Doddridge, "practiseth sin, is of the devil, for the devil sinneth from the beginning;" i. e. ever since his fall.

Ver. 9. Doth not commit.—Doddridge, "Doth not practise sin." Macknight, "Doth not work sin."—For his seed remaineth in him—i. e., says Doddridge, "There is an immortal principle planted by God in the heart." See 1 Peter i. 23.

Ver. 12. Not as Cain, &c.—See Heb. xi. 4.

Ver. 15. Is a murderer—i. e. in his heart; and circumstances may make him so in fact, as in the instance of Cain, ver. 12.

Ver. 16. Hereby perceive we the love of God.—The words "of God" being omitted in many MSS. and most printed editions, are put by our translators in italics; but Macknight supplies from ver. 8, "The Son of God." Doddridge reads, "Hereby perceive we love?" Compare ver. 1.

Ver. 18. Not love in word, neither in tongue—i. e. in tongue only. So Macknight. "If love consisted in word only, then love ceaseth as soon as the word is pronounced. Such was the love between Balak and Balaam. But if love consisteth not in word it cannot be dissolved; such was the love of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and the rest of the patriarchs."—Yalkut Rubeni.

Ver. 20. If our heart—i. e. our conscience. So in next verse.

should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.

24 And he [d] that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby [e] we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

CHAPTER IV.

1 He warneth them not to believe all teachers, who boast of the Spirit, but to try them by the rules of the catholic faith: 7 and by many reasons exhorteth to brotherly love.

BELOVED, believe [a] not every spirit, but try [b] the spirits whether they are of God: because [c] many false prophets are gone out into the world.

2 Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every [d] spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God:

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world.

4 Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome [e] them: because greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.

5 They are of the world: [f] therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them.

6 We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby [g] know we the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

7 Beloved, let us love [h] one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God [i] is love.

9 In this [j] was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that [k] we might live through him.

10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation [l] for our sins.

11 Beloved, if [m] God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

12 No [n] man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected [o] in us.

13 Hereby [p] know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whosoever [q] shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God.

16 And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God [r] is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 Herein is [s] our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world.

18 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.

19 We love him, because [t] he first loved us.

20 If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how [u] can he love God whom he hath not seen?

21 And this commandment have we from him, That he [v] who loveth God love his brother also.

CHAPTER V.

1 He that loveth God loveth his children, and keepeth his commandments: 3 which to the faithful are light, and not grievous. 9 Jesus is the Son of God, able to save us, 14 and to hear our prayers, which we make for ourselves, and for others.

WHOSOEVER [a] believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him.

2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments.

3 For this is the love of God, that [b] we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not [c] grievous.

4 For whatsoever is born of God overcometh

A. M. cir. 4072
A. D. cir. 68.

d Jn.14.23. 15.10.
e Ro.8.9,14.
a Je.29.8. Mat.24.4.
b 1 Th.5.21. Re.2.2.
c 2 Pe.2.8.
d 1 Co.12.3.
e Ro.8.37.
f Ja.3.31.
g Is.8.20.
h c.3.11,23.
i 2 Co.13.11 ver.16.
j Jn.3.16.
k Jn.6.51.
l c.2.2.
m Mat.18.33 Jn.15.12, 13. n 1 Ti.6.16.
o 1 Co.13.13
p Jn.14.20. c.3.24.
q Ro.10.9.
r ver.8.
s love with us.
t Jn.15.16.
u c.3.17.
v Jn.13.34. a Jn.1.12,13
b Jn.14.15, 21.
c Ps.119.45. Mat.11.30

---

viour, through the medium of his Holy Spirit, which he hath given to abide with us for ever.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—21. Christians are warned not to believe every pretender to inspiration, but to try such by the word of God.—By the spirits here named, it should seem that we must understand those Christian teachers who, in that age, pretended to divine inspiration: many of whom, however, were inspired by a spirit opposite to that of God and Christ. The great criterion the apostle proposes is, their regard and respect for Jesus Christ. If they confess him as their Lord and Master, then may they be considered as actuated by his Spirit; if not, then most assuredly they must be actuated by another spirit. "To confess Jesus Christ, (says Dr. Doddridge,) seems to mean, not barely professing some kind of regard to him, but yielding a regular, consistent homage; and, as it were, harmonizing and falling in with his design." To confess that Jesus Christ is "come in the flesh," implies, 1. His previous existence before he came; 2. His incarnation, that "the Word was made flesh, and dwelt amongst us." (John i. 14.) 3. That this incarnation was real, and not merely apparent; for while some of the ancient heretics considered our Lord Jesus as man, and as man only, others thought his incarnation was in appearance only, and that himself, in reality, neither suffered nor died. That spirit which denies or contradicts Christ, either in his person or mission, is undoubtedly "the spirit of antichrist," as being opposed to him and consequently "the spirit of error" and of falsehood.

The apostle now returns to his favourite theme of divine love, (ver. 10:) "Herein is love; not that we [first] loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." And what are the natural tendencies and consequences of this love? 1. We love him, because he first loved us," (ver. 19;) and, 2. "If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." (Ver. 11.) Thus should all our love rise out of the infinite fulness of God's love; for he is the ocean of beneficence, and every thing in creatures which deserves the name of love, springs up therefrom.

Another criterion of love to God is, that it hath "no fear"—no terror—no torment. Pagans, and unconverted Jews, might dread approaching into the presence of a dread Jehovah, or a terrific idol: but those who come to God through Christ, will have boldness in the day of judgment, for the Judge himself is also their Friend and Saviour.

> Oh! for a heart in thought renew'd,
> And fill'd with love divine!
> Perfect and right, and pure and good—
> A copy, Lord, of thine!" Anon.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1—21. The evidences of regeneration, and the witnesses to Christianity.—The proposition, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God," seems to require some elucidation. Certainly it is not a man saying that he believes, without his faith be evinced by good works. It is faith that worketh by love, as St. James has abundantly proved, which alone can either justify or sanctify the believer. Faith is evidenced by love, and by good works; resisting the snares and temptations of the world; "and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." So that true faith, genuine love, and good works, are inseparably connected.

It may seem that St. John was guilty of great tautology (if we may so express it) in harping on this his favourite string —love to God and to the brethren. So wholly was his heart engrossed with this topic, as tradition reports, that when he

---

CHAP. IV. Ver. 2. Every spirit that confesseth that, &c.—"Every spirit who confesseth Jesus Christ, who is come in the flesh, is of God." So Doddridge thinks these words not only may, but must be translated.

Ver. 3. This is that spirit of Antichrist.—Roman Catholics plead, that the Pope cannot be Antichrist, because he admits and maintains that Jesus Christ is "come in the flesh:" but St. John tells us that there are many Antichrists; that is, many who oppose Christ, and his truth, though in different ways.

Ver. 4. Greater is he that is in you, &c.—That is, God, who actuates the believer, is infinitely above that fallen spirit which actuates the world.

Ver. 17. Herein is our love—Gr. "love with us"—made perfect.—Doddridge, "Herein is love perfected in us."—Because as he is, so are we.—By union and communion with Christ, we become like him; and like him, in the world are neglected and despised.

Ver. 18. There is no fear in love.—Fear is here used in the sense of alarm and terror—"fear (that) hath torment."

Ver. 20. How can he love God whom he hath not seen?—Intercourse and familiarity between friends engenders love; but it is by faith only in the revelation of his will, that we can love God.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1. He that loveth him that begat, loveth him also, &c.—Love to a friend naturally engenders love towards his offspring.

[d] the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?

6 This is he that came by [e] water and blood, even Jesus Christ; not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit [f] that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, the [g] Father, the [h] Word, and the [i] Holy Ghost: and these three are one.

8 And there are three that bear witness in earth, the [j] spirit, and the [k] water, and the [l] blood: and these three agree in one.

9 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God which he hath testified of his Son.

10 He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness [m] in himself: he that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son.

11 And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and [n] this life is in his Son.

12 He [o] that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life.

13 These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that [p] ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.

14 And this is the confidence that we have [q] in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us:

15 And if we know [r] that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him.

16 If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto [s] death: I do [t] not say that he shall pray for it.

17 All unrighteousness [u] is sin: and there [v] is a sin not unto death.

18 We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth [w] himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness.

20 And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an [x] understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This [y] is the true God, and eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from [z] idols. Amen.

A. M. cir. 4072.
A. D. cir. 68.

d 1Co.15.57
e Jn.19.34.
f Jn.14.17.
g Jn.8.18.
h He.4.12, 13. Re.19.13.
i Jn.10.30.
j Jn.15.26.
k Ac.2.2, 4. 2 Co.1.22.
l 1 Pe.3.21. He.13.12.
m Ro.8.16.
n Jn.1.4.
o Jn.5.24.
p Jn.20.31.
q or, concerning.
r Pr.15.29. Je.29.12, 13.
s Mat.12. 31,32.
t Je.7.16.
u c.3.4.
v Ro.5.20, 21.
w Ja.1.27.
x Lu.24.45.
y Is.9.6.
z 1 Co.10.14

was much in years, and unable to preach, he used to be led to the church at Ephesus, and to address them in these simple words—"Little children, love one another."

We now come to a passage relative to the Holy Trinity, the authenticity of which has been much disputed, and has been given up by some of the ablest advocates of that doctrine, as will be seen in our notes. To us it appears, that the internal evidence arising from the context is in favour of the passage; but the external, arising from the collation of nearly 150 manuscripts, the ancient versions, &c. is decidedly against it. One thing, however, is certain, that, in the words disputed, nothing is stated but what may be proved from other passages of Scripture; nor is there reason to believe, that either the insertion or omission was made with any design to corrupt the Scriptures. The former might be done by way of explanatory note, or the latter through inadvertence.

The testimony here borne is to the truth of Christianity, in whatever way it may be explained. The Father bare witness to the Son, by the works which the latter performed in his name, and by a miraculous voice from heaven; the Son (or Word) bore witness to himself, by the miracles which he wrought in his own name; and the Holy Spirit also bare witness in his miraculous gifts, and the inspiration of the sacred writings: and the second series of witnesses, however their evidences may be explained, are certainly to the same effect. "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and that life is in his Son."

Now he that believeth in the Son of God, "hath the witness in himself"—not an imaginary conceit—not an unfounded persuasion, but an evidence in his own heart from the work of God's Holy Spirit, who has created therein a love to holiness in all its branches. "The gospel of Christ (says the amiable Dr. Watts) is like a seal or signet of such immitable and divine engraving, that no created power can counterfeit it; and when the Spirit of God has stamped this gospel on the soul, there are so many holy and happy lines drawn or impressed thereby—so many sacred signatures and divine features stamped on the mind, that give certain evidence both of a heavenly signet, and a heavenly operator."

But "there is a sin unto death," and this forms an awful and important subject of inquiry. The nature of it is thus stated by Dr. Doddridge:—"There is . . . . such an apostacy from Christianity, as is attended with blaspheming the operations of the Spirit of God, and ascribing them to Satan;"—an apostacy like that mentioned by St. Paul as irrecoverable, (Heb. vi. 4–6,) and attended with the horrid aggravation of ascribing the operations of God's Holy Spirit to the devil. (Mat. xii. 31, 32.) "I say not," says St. John, who probably witnessed the awful denunciation of Christ—"I say not that he (or any man) shall pray for it;" and yet he does not absolutely forbid it. For we may not be able absolutely to ascertain the fact, nor must we attempt to restrain the divine mercy.

The concluding admonition of this Epistle, "Little children, keep yourselves from idols," has been supposed by some to prove it was addressed to Gentiles, the Jews having long since given up idolatry. But are there no idols but images of metal, wood, or stone? Are there no idols of flesh and blood? Or is Mammon, the god of this world, no longer worshipped? May God preserve us all from idols!

Ver. 6. This is he that came by water and blood—That is, he was baptized first by water, and then by blood, and in both cases did the Holy Spirit bear witness. See Mat. iii. 17; xvii. 5; compare note on ver. 8, below. See also John xii. 28.

Ver. 7, 8. There are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.—"The probability is, (says Dr. Pye Smith,) that this passage was originally a marginal comment on 'the Spirit, the water, and the blood;' and was introduced, by the ignorance or the predilection of transcribers, into the text of the Vulgate Latin version. There is no authority for it whatsoever in any manuscripts of the Greek orginal, except one, which is too modern to be of much value . . . . . But it should be recollected, that critical disquisition upon the authenticity of any document, should be carried on with the most rigorous impartiality, and without either favour or disfavour to particular doctrines which the document might affect; that many who have denied the doctrines of the Trinity and the divine nature of the Saviour, have admitted the common reading of these texts; and that many other persons who reject [this] passage . . . . are fully convinced of the truth of those doctrines, because they believe the general tenor of Scripture, and the declaration of particular passages, both numerous and forcible, to be in their favour." Omitting the doubtful words, the passage reads thus: "There are three that bear record, the spirit, the water, and the blood; and these three agree in one."

In consequence of the above facts, the disputed words were omitted in several Protestant editions of the New Testament by Luther and Erasmus; and since, by Newcome, Griesbach, and others; also in several editions of the English Bible, in the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Queen Elizabeth, they are either placed within brackets, (as by Doddridge,) or printed in a smaller type, as of doubtful authority. In some copies, also, the 8th verse is placed before the 7th. On the other hand, it is but justice to acknowledge, that the number of MSS. which have been examined and collated; makes but a small proportion of those existing, many of which are locked up in the libraries of the Catholic and Greek churches; so that it is yet possible, as the late Bishop Middleton suggests, that some future inquiries may materially change the state of the question.

Ver. 7. These three are one.—The witnessing of the Father and the Holy Spirit to the mission of Christ, as also his own witness to the truth, are clearly and repeatedly referred to in the New Testament; and their union is no less inculcated in Mat. xxviii. 19, and other scriptures.

Ver. 8. These three agree in one—i. e. in the same testimony; but what may be meant by these three witnesses, is by no means clear. Doddridge explains them of the miraculous gifts of the Spirit, the baptismal water, and the sacramental blood; so Macknight. But the expression might, perhaps, be referred to the scene of Christ's death, when the departing spirit of our Saviour, and the blood and water flowing from his side, bore a united witness to the reality of his death. See John xix. 30, 34, 35. The Holy Spirit also bare witness to the efficacy of Christ's death and atonement, by raising him from the dead. See 1 Tim. iii. 16. 1 Peter iii. 18.

Ver. 13. On the name—i. e. the person and character of the Son of God. Compare Mat. xxviii. 19.—And that ye may believe—with more assured confidence.

Ver. 14. This is the confidence that we have in him.—Doddridge, "towards him."

Ver. 18. Toucheth him not.—Macknight, "Layeth not hold on him;" i. e. does not claim him as his own.

Ver. 19. The whole world lieth in wickedness.—Macknight, "Under the wicked one." [Or, in the wicked one; is embraced in his arms where it lies fast asleep, and carnally secure, deriving its heat and power from its infernal fosterer. "In this short expression," says Wesley, "the horrible state of the world is painted in the most lively colours; a comment on which we have in the actions, conversations, contracts, quarrels, and friendships of worldly men.] —Baxter. Not only was the Pagan world sunk into universal idolatry, but also the Jews themselves were sunk into a spirit of infidelity, no less dreadful and offensive.

Ver. 20. This is the true God, and eternal life.—Commentators are much divided, whether this sentence refers to Christ only, as both the true God and eternal life, (so Doddridge;) or whether the former member of the sentence refers to the Father, as "the true God," and the latter to the Son, as "eternal life."

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

[THIS short Epistle, and that which follows, being written, neither to any church by name, nor to the churches at large, but to private persons, had probably been kept for a considerable time in the possession of the families to whom they were originally sent, and were not discovered till long after the Apostle's decease, and after the death of the persons to whom they had been addressed. When first discovered, all the immediate vouchers for their genuineness were necessarily gone; and the church of Christ, ever on its guard against imposture, particularly in relation to writings professing to be the work of Apostles, hesitated to receive them into the number of canonical Scriptures, until it was fully ascertained that they were divinely inspired. Hence they were not generally known and acknowledged as the inspired production of St. John, in the earliest ages, in the decided manner that the preceding Epistle was; but their coincidence with it in sentiment, manner, and language, satisfied all at an early period, that they were written by the same person.]—B.

1 He exhorteth a certain honourable matron, with her children, to persevere in Christian love and belief, 8 lest they lose the reward of their former profession: 10 and to have nothing to do with those seducers that bring not the true doctrine of Christ Jesus.

A. M. cir. 4073.
A. D. cir. 69.

THE elder unto the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth; and not I only, but also all they that have known the truth;

2 For the truth's sake, which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever.

3 Grace be with you, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I rejoiced greatly that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father.

5 And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that [a] we love one another.

6 And this [b] is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, That, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

7 For [c] many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist.

8 Look [d] to yourselves, that [e] we lose not those things which we have [f] wrought, but that we receive a full reward.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not [g] in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 If [h] there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed:

11 For he that biddeth him God speed is partaker [i] of his evil deeds.

12 Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink: but I trust to come unto you, and speak [j] face to face, that [k] our joy [l] may be full.

13 The children of thy elect sister greet thee. Amen.

a 1 Jn.3.23.
b Jn.14.15, 21.
c 1 Jn.4.1.
d Ma.13.9.
e Phi.3.16. Re.3.11.
f or, gained. Some copies read, which ye have gained, but that ye
g Jn.15.6.
h Ga.1.8,9.
i 1 Ti.5.22.
j mouth to mouth.
k or, your.
l 1 Jn.1.4.

Ver. 1—13. St. John commends a certain pious matron and her sons, and exhorts them to perseverance.—There seems no reason to question that this and the following epistle were written by St. John, though being addressed to private individuals might occasion them not to be received and recognised in the church so early as some others. They are generally supposed to have been written about the same time as the preceding, with which they correspond both in matter and style. The writer calls himself "The Elder," to which appellation he appears well entitled, as being now, probably, the only survivor of the apostles, and much advanced in years, which accounts for the use of his favourite appellation—"My little children."

The chief topics here mentioned are enlarged on in the preceding Epistle, viz., love to the brethren, and caution against deceivers and impostors. "For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is (or has) come in the flesh." This corresponds with chap. ii. 1—3, of the first Epistle; and both passages refer to the rise of a heresy, even in the apostolic age, which supposed that Jesus Christ was possessed of human nature merely in appearance; and consequently that, in fact, he neither "died for our sins, nor rose again for our justification." This was the doctrine of the Gnostics, or at least of many of them: and their objection to the humanity of our Lord seems to have arisen from the notion that all matter was in itself essentially depraved, and the creation of the evil principle. They were also ashamed of the doctrine of the cross, and therefore some of them feigned the strange idea, that Simon, the Cyrenian, was crucified instead of Jesus. Thus, though they admitted the divine mission of Jesus Christ, they denied that Christ (or the Messiah) was really come in the flesh, which St. John pronounces to be the mark of a deceiver and an antichrist, meaning thereby an enemy to Christ.

He cautions, therefore, the elect lady to whom he wrote, against being drawn aside from the truth by these deceivers. "Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought;" that is, that we do not lose our ministerial labour; from which we infer that the venerable apostle had been her Christian adviser, and probably, also, the instructer of her children. He then cautions her against showing such deceivers even the rights of hospitality; though it would certainly be a straining of the text to include in this prohibition the duties of humanity, to which all our fellow creatures are entitled. To admit such heretics, however, to our family and table conversation, might be injurious to our own peace, and destructive to the principles of our children and domestics, if not our own. At the same time, the countenance thereby given to such men might promote both the fundamental errors which they taught, and the immoralities they practised; for they are always spoken of, not as mistaken, but as wicked men,

Ver. 1. The elect lady—[Gr. Eklekte Kuria, which some, with the Peshito Syriac and Arabic versions, render, "to Kyria the elect," considering Kuria a proper name; while others, with the Vulgate, render, "to the Lady Electa," considering Eklekte a proper name, which seems more correct.]—B. The learned Lord Barrington conceived, that by this lady St. John meant a Christian church, which he did not think proper to name. The notion seems to have originated with Jerome, and was adopted by Hammond and Whitby; but it appears to us to be unfounded, and has not, we believe, at present, any advocates. Those here referred to, who denied that Christ was "come in the flesh," were probably the first Gnostics. See Dict. of Religions, &c. in Gnostics.

Ver. 3. Grace be—Gr. "shall be"—with you.

Ver. 5. And now.—[The mode of address here shows, that it was a person, not a church, as some suppose, to whom the Apostle wrote.]—Bagster.

Ver. 7. For many deceivers are entered, &c.—Instead of are entered into, many excellent MSS. have, are gone out.—This is a deceiver and an antichrist.—Macknight, "The deceiver and the antichrist;" which the learned Granville Sharp explains of "the spirit of antichrist himself, (i. e. Satan,) at the first mover and instigator, either by himself or his angels, of all other deceivers."—G. Sharp on the case of Saul, &c.—Antichrist is a general name used by this apostle for all who opposed the truth and authority of Christ.

Ver. 8. Which we have wrought.—Margin, "gained." It is added, "Some copies read, Which ye have gained, and that ye received," &c. The copies here alluded to are, five of Stephen's MSS., the Alexandrian, and other MSS., the Vulgate, second Syriac, and Ethiopian versions.

Ver. 10. Neither bid him God speed.—Doddridge, "Good success"—i. e. in his propagation of error.

Ver. 12. Face to face.—Gr. "Mouth to mouth."

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN.

1 He commendeth Gaius for his piety, 5 and hospitality 7 to true preachers: 9 complaining of the unkind dealing of ambitious Diotrephes on the contrary side, 11 whose evil example is not to be followed: 12 and giveth special testimony to the good report of Demetrius.

A. M. cir. 4073.
A. D. cir. 69.

THE elder unto the well beloved Gaius, whom I love [a] in the truth.

2 Beloved, I [b] wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth.

3 For I rejoiced greatly, when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkest [c] in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy [d] than to hear that my children walk in truth.

5 Beloved, thou doest [e] faithfully whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers;

a or, truly.
b or, pray.
c 2 Jn.4.
d Pr.23.24.
e 1 Pe.4.10.

Ver. 1—14. Gaius commended for his piety and hospitality to Christian teachers.—Several persons of this name are mentioned in the New Testament; this is thought to be the one named in Rom. xvi. 23, who had been remarkably hospitable

Ver. 2. Above all things.—Doddridge, "In every respect."

Ver. 4. Walk in truth.—Doddridge, "in the truth," i. e. of the gospel.

6 Which have borne witness of thy charity before the church: whom if thou bring [f] forward on their journey [g] after a godly sort, thou shalt do well:

7 Because that for his name's sake they went forth, taking [h] nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to [i] receive such, that we might be fellow-helpers to the truth.

9 I wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the pre-eminence [j] among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, [k] prating against us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out [l] of the church.

11 Beloved, follow [m] not that which is evil, but that which is good. He [n] that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself: yea, and we also bear record; and ye know that our record is true.

13 I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 But I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak [o] face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name.

A. M. cir. 4073.
A. D. cir. 69.

f Ac.15.3.
g worthy of God.
h 1 Co.9.15, 18.
i Mat.10.40
j Mat.23.4 ..8.
1 Ti.6.3,4. k Pr.10.8,10
l Is 66 5.
m Ps.37.27.
n 1 Jn.3.6.. 9.
o mouth to mouth

and whom the apostle Paul therefore calls "my host," he having kindly entertained, and probably assisted him, in preaching the gospel gratis to the Gentiles; and St. John now requests him to assist certain others going on the same errand. This Gaius, it should seem, though a man of a strong and liberal mind, was rather delicate in his health and constitution; and therefore the venerable elder prays that his body might prosper and be in health, even as his soul prospered.

But he severely censures the character of one Diotrephes, another person of wealth and consequence in the church, who, instead of delighting in works of beneficence, as Gaius did, unhappily "loved to have the pre-eminence," and to rule when it was his duty to obey. A busy, prating, party man: a man of words, but not of deeds. A man who talked much about religion, but showed no kindness to the poor brethren; who even opposed and persecuted those who were so disposed. Him the aged apostle promises to call to account, if he should live to visit them: in the mean time he hesitates not to say, that such a man could not have seen God: that is, could not have had any believing views of him, nor have enjoyed any sweet communion with him.

But a third character is now introduced, even Demetrius, of whom nothing is known but what is here mentioned, that he had "a good report of all" who knew him, and "even of the truth itself."

Ver. 6. After a godly sort.—Margin, "a sort worthy of God;" i. e. in a manner and with a temper suited to God's service.

Ver. 9. Who loveth to have, &c.—["Who loveth the presidency," or chief place, doubtless in the church, of which Diotrephes was most probably an officer; and being one, magnified himself in his office: he loved such pre-eminence, and behaved haughtily in it.]—Bagster.

Ver. 14. Our friends.—[Instead of friends, an appellation used no where else as a mutual address among Christians, several MSS. read brethren.]—B.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JUDE.

[JUDE, or JUDAS, the writer of this Epistle, is generally and justly considered to have been Jude the Apostle, called also Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus, brother of James the Less, (ver. 1,) and the brother, or near relative, of our Lord. Some hesitation, however, as to the genuineness of this Epistle, seems to have prevailed in the church, which was at length fully removed; though some learned modern writers, apparently on very slight grounds, have endeavoured to revive it. It is objected, that he calls himself, not an Apostle, but "a servant of Jesus Christ;" but so also does Paul, in his inscription to the Philippians; and the word apostle is omitted in the Epistle to Philemon, and in that to the Thessalonians; neither does John, in his Epistles, use the word apostle, nor mention his own name. Jude is also supposed to quote apocryphal books—for there is no evidence that this was really the case; but does not St. Paul quote heathen poets, and Jewish traditions, when what was true in them might be adduced to good purpose, without at all sanctioning the fables which they contained, or inducing a suspicion that he was not an inspired writer? (Acts xvii. 28. 1 Co. xv. 33. 2 Tim. iii. 8. Tit. i. 12.) These are the principal objections; and they amount to nothing against the internal evidence, and the general current of antiquity. Lardner shows, that it is found in all the ancient catalogues of the sacred writings of the New Testament; is considered genuine by Clement of Alexandria; and is quoted, as St. Jude's production, by Tertullian, by Origen, and by the greater part of the ancients mentioned by Eusebius. Its genuineness is fully established by the matter contained in it, which is every way worthy of an inspired Apostle of Jesus Christ; and, as Macknight truly observes, there is no error taught, no evil practice enjoined, for the sake of which any impostor could be induced to impose a forgery of this kind on the world.]—Bagster.

He exhorteth them to be constant in the profession of the faith. 4 False teachers are crept in to seduce them: for whose damnable doctrine and manners horrible punishment is prepared: 20 whereas the godly, by the assistance of the Holy Spirit, and prayers to God, may persevere, and grow in grace, and keep themselves, and recover others out of the snares of those deceivers.

JUDE, [a] the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to them that are sanctified [b] by God the Father, and preserved [c] in Jesus Christ, and [d] called:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace, and love, be multiplied.

3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common [e] salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend [f] for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.

4 For there are certain men crept in [g] unawares, who [h] were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning [i] the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

5 I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that [j] the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed [k] them that believed not.

6 And the angels [l] which kept not their [m] first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting [n] chains under darkness unto the [o] judgment of the great day.

7 Even as [p] Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them in like manner, giving them-

A. M. cir. 4069.
A. D. cir. 65.

a Lu.6.16.
b Ac.20.32.
c 1 Pe.1.5.
d Ro.8.30.
e Tit.1.4.
f Ga.2.5.
g 2 Pe.2.1.
h Ro.9.22.
i Tit.1.15,16
j 1 Co.10.5, 12.
k Nu.14.29, 37. He.3.16.. 19.
l Jn.8.44
m or, principality.
n 2 Pe.2.4
o Re.20.10.
p Ge.19.24.

Ver. 1—25. The apostle Jude exhorts the believers to whom he wrote, to adhere steadfastly to the truth, and to contend against false teachers and their erroneous doctrines.—This apostle (though his name was the same) must always be carefully distinguished from that Judas who betrayed his Master. On the contrary, this apostle was zealous on his behalf, and in opposition to all antichristian errors. He therefore here exhorts the brethren to whom he wrote, to "contend earnestly for the faith, which was once delivered to the saints;" that is, for the great and fundamental truths of the gospel. In contending for truth, we of course oppose error; and two errors are here especially stated, as the most dangerous and

Ver. 1. Jude—(Greek, Judas)—the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James—Who, as we find in Mat. x. 3, was also called Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus. This book, like the 2d of Peter, and some other Epistles, was at first scrupled, and by some rejected from the sacred canon, chiefly, as we believe, on account of its reference to the prophecy of Enoch, (of which in its place,) and perhaps some other apocryphal book; but, in our view of the subject, this is no reason for rejecting an inspired book, for the prophets themselves quote several books now lost, Josh. x. 13. Their quotations can only sanction what they quote, and that as to matters of fact only, unless they quote them as inspired. The authority of this book, however, is rejected only by such as reject St. Peter's second Epistle, which it very much resembles; nor can we reject either of them as inspired, without regarding them as forgeries, which is utterly improbable, as may be seen in Horne, and most writers upon the Canon.

Ver. 3. The common salvation—i. e. the salvation of Christ, common to both Jews and Gentiles.

Ver. 4. Crept in.—Doddridge, "glided in."—Of old ordained.—Literally, "proscribed." (Beza, olim prescripti.) Doddridge, "registered;" an allusion, as some think, to a custom among the Romans, of posting up in the forums the names of persons accused of certain crimes, with rewards for their apprehension, and sometimes for killing them. Such men, that is, wicked teachers or preachers, are proscribed in many parts of the word of God. See Psalm l. 16. Some, however, refer this to the ancient prophecies respecting such men. See verse 14, &c.—The only Lord—(Greek, despotes;)—Master. See note on 2 Peter ii. 1.—God.—This word (Theon) is wanting in several MSS., and in the Vulgate. Doddridge reads it, "God the only Sovereign, and our Lord Jesus Christ;" Pye Smith, "Our only Sovereign and Lord Jesus Christ." Macknight adheres to the common version, but admits the others to be equally just.

Ver. 5. Destroyed them that believed not.—See Heb. iv. 1—3.

Ver. 6. Their first estate.—Margin, "principality." Doddridge adheres to the former; but Macknight observes they amount to the same meaning—their selves over to fornication, and going after [q] strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

8 Likewise also these filthy dreamers defile [r] the flesh, despise dominion, and speak evil of dignities.

9 Yet Michael [s] the archangel, when contending with the devil he disputed about the body of [t] Moses, [u] durst not bring against him a railing accusation, but said, The Lord [v] rebuke thee.

10 But these speak evil of those things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beasts, in those things they corrupt themselves.

11 Wo unto them! for they have gone in the way of [w] Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam [x] for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of [y] Core.

12 These are spots [z] in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding [a] themselves without fear: [b] clouds they are without water, carried [c] about of winds; trees whose fruit [d] withereth, without fruit, twice [e] dead, plucked [f] up by the roots;

13 Raging waves [g] of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering [h] stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever.

14 And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the [i] Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints,

15 To execute judgment upon [j] all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches [k] which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

16 These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts; and their mouth speaketh great swelling words, having men's persons in admiration because of advantage.

17 But, beloved, remember ye the words which were spoken before of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ;

18 How that they told you [l] there should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts.

19 These be they who separate [m] themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit.

20 But ye, beloved, building [n] up yourselves on your most holy faith, [o] praying in the Holy Ghost, 21 Keep [p] yourselves in the love of God, looking [q] for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.

22 And of some have compassion, making a difference:

23 And others save with fear, [r] pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment [s] spotted by the flesh.

24 Now [t] unto him that is able to keep [u] you from falling, and to [v] present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy,

25 To [w] the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

A.M. cir. 4069
A.D. cir. 65

q other.
r 2 Pe.2.10, 11.
s Da.12.1.
t De.34.6.
u Ex.22.28.
v Zec.3.2.
w Ge.4.5.
x Nu.22.7, 21
y Nu.16.1, &c.
z 2 Pe.2.13.
a Phi.3.19.
b Pr.25.14.
c Ep.4.14.
d Jn.15.4..6
e He.6.4..6.
f Mat.15.13
g Is.57.20.
h Re.8.10, 11.
i Zec.14.5.
j Re.20.13.

k Ps.73.9.
l 1 Ti.4.1.
m He.10.25.
n Col.2.7.
o Ep.6.18.
p Jn.15.9, 10.
q Tit.2.13.
r Zec.3.2..5
s Re.3.4,18. t Ro.16.25.. 27
u 2 Th.3.18.
v Col.1.22.
w 1 Ti.1.17.

destructive—the abuse of the doctrines of grace, by "turning the grace of God into lasciviousness;" and the "denying (or renouncing) the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ:" or, as some render it, "our only Sovereign (or Master) and Lord, Jesus Christ."

By way of caution and alarm, the aged apostle reminds the brethren of the following facts, as showing the awful nature and extreme danger of apostacy: namely, 1. The fall of the rebel angels, who, without the hope of a Redeemer, are confined in chains of darkness to the day of judgment. 2. The fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, destroyed by fire from heaven, and their inhabitants consigned to the same "everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels," (Matt. xxv. 41:) the awful judgments whereby the unbelieving Israelites were destroyed, after their escape from Egypt. From all which we may collect that the men here referred to were unbelievers, like the last named—lustful as the Sodomites, and proud and rebellious as the apostate angels: filthy dreamers, that defile the flesh, and speak evil of dignities.

On this last point St. Jude adverts to the same circumstance alluded to by St. Peter, namely, the contest between Michael and Satan, relative to the body of Moses. Michael, the archangel, is first mentioned by the prophet Daniel, and is, by very able expositors, supposed to be the Son of God, as Captain of the Lord's host. But our translators, and most expositors of this Epistle, refer us to the prophecy of Zechariah, chap. iii. 1, &c.; the relation of which to the passage before us, we confess ourselves unable to demonstrate. But the great point argued by St. Jude is, the criminality of reviling those temporal rulers (whether the sovereign or his deputies) under whom Providence has been pleased to place us; and the hatred and persecution which has thereby been brought on peaceful Christians, is probably far more than has been supposed. But this is not all: these men are described as murderers, for they have gone in the way of Cain: covetous, for they have copied the error of Balaam; and, being rebellious against God, perish in "the gainsaying of Core," or rather Korah. (Numb. xvi. 1, &c.)

In the black list of follies and vices, which here follows, we shall notice only the reference to the agapæ, or "love feasts," which originally, according to Dr. Benson, were "frugal meals provided by the richer Christians to entertain the poor, the fatherless, the widows, and strangers." They were generally held immediately before or after the Lord's Supper, and very early subjected to abuse, as we find, not only by St. Jude, but by St. Paul. To these feasts such men were spots, or blemishes; that is, a disgrace and reproach.

The apostle now quotes a prophecy, which he ascribes, and doubtless truly, to the holy "Enoch, the seventh from Adam." It is well known, that a book under that title existed in the primitive church. This book has been recently discovered, and translated by Archbishop Laurence, of which the following is the passage quoted by our apostle in verse 14: "Behold, he comes with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon them, and to reprove all the carnal, for every thing which the sinful and ungodly have done and committed against him."

Finally, St. Jude affectionately exhorts his brethren to remember the warnings which they had received from the other apostles, in their well known epistles, and, by a careful attention to the Scriptures, and other means of grace, to build up themselves in their most holy faith; and by praying under the influences of the Holy Spirit, to guard themselves against the danger of apostacy—to prepare for all the public and private trials of the present state, and the solemnities of eternal judgment. The Epistle finally concludes with a prayer and doxology to Christ: "To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen."

original state was that of leaders, or princes, in the heavenly host.——But left their own habitation—More strictly, we conceive, the station assigned to them; which, we presume, was a voluntary act, and constituted their rebellion. This and the following verses may be compared with the 2d Epistle of Peter, chap. ii. ver. 4, 6, 10—12, &c.

Ver. 7. Going after strange flesh.—Margin, "other flesh." The fact appears to be, that they gave themselves up to all kinds of uncleanness: the more abominable, the more agreeable to their depraved minds.

Ver. 9. Michael the archangel.—Peter says, "Angels, which are greater (or excelling) in power and might." 2 Pet. ii. 11.——About the body of Moses.—Tillotson thinks this may allude to Deut. xxxiv. 6; and that Satan wished to discover the body of Moses, that he might tempt the Jews to worship him. Macknight supposes, that by the body of Moses might be meant the Jewish church, as the Christian church is called "the body of Christ," 1 Co. xii. 27.

——Durst not.—Doddridge, "Did not presume to"—bring. Tillotson wittily suggests, that the angel was afraid the devil would be too hard for him at railing. See Doddridge.

Ver. 10. But what.—Doddridge, "And what."——They corrupt themselves.—Doddridge, "are corrupted."

Ver. 12. These are spots in your feasts of charity.—Literally, "love-feasts."——Feeding themselves without fear—i. e. without caution, till they eat and drink to excess. To this St. Paul is also supposed to allude, 1 Co. xi. 21.

Ver. 13. Wandering stars.—Greek, "planets;" in which two ideas may be suggested, namely, that they are always changing their aspects and situations, and that they shine only by a borrowed light.

Ver. 15. Ungodly committed.—Doddridge, "impiously committed."

Ver. 23. The garment spotted by the flesh—i. e. a leprous garment. Or perhaps the allusion may be to Zech. iii. 4, 5.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE EPISTLE OF JUDE.

[ST. JUDE, says Origen, has written an Epistle in a few lines indeed, but full of vigorous expressions of heavenly grace. He briefly and forcibly represents the detestable doctrines and practices of certain false teachers, generally supposed to be the impure Gnostics, Nicolaitans, and followers of Simon Magus; and reproves these profligate perverters of sound principles, and patrons of lewdness, with a holy indignation and just severity; while at the same time he exhorts all sound Christians, with genuine apostolic charity, to have tender compassion on these deluded wretches, and to endeavour vigorously to reclaim them from the ways of hell, and pluck them as brands out of the fire. The great similarity between this Epistle and the second chapter of the second Epistle of Peter, has already been remarked. Both writers are nearly alike in subject, style, vehemence, and holy indignation against impudence and lewdness, and against those who invidiously undermine chastity, purity, and sound principles. The expressions are remarkably strong, the language animated, and the figures and comparisons bold, apt, and striking. There are no nobler amplifications in any author, than in these writers, when they expose the delinquencies of these false teachers, which they severely brand, emphatically expose, and yet happily express in all the purity and chastity of language.] -B.

THE REVELATION OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

"IT is a remarkable circumstance, (says Horne,) that the authenticity of this book was very generally, if not universally, acknowledged during the two first centuries; and yet, in the third century, it began to be questioned. This seems to have been occasioned by some absurd notions concerning the Millennium, that a few well-meaning, but fanciful expositors, grounded on this book; which notions their opponents injudiciously and presumptuously endeavoured to discredit, by denying the authority of the book itself. So little, however, has this portion of Holy Writ suffered from the ordeal of criticism, to which it has in consequence been subjected, that (as Sir Isaac Newton has long since remarked) "there is no other book of the New Testament so strongly attested, or commented upon so early, as the Apocalypse."

When we come to the Millennium, we hope to show that there is nothing in the book itself that can form a rational objection to its authority on the ground of that doctrine: the external evidence for the authenticity and divine authority of this book, however, rests, as does also that of the other books of the New Testament, in a great measure upon the testimony of the early Christian fathers. And here Woodhouse produces passages from Ignatius and Polycarp as early as A. D. 107 and 108. Jerome states, that Justin Martyr (about A. D. 120) commented on some parts of this mysterious book; and a commentary on the whole is mentioned among the works of Melito, Bishop of Sardis, A. D. 177. Irenæus, who flourished about the same time, and was, in early life, acquainted with Polycarp, often quoted this book as the Revelation of John the Evangelist, and the disciple of the Lord. "His testimony for this book (says Lardner) is so strong and full, that, considering the age of Irenæus, he seems to put it beyond all question, that it is the work of John the Apostle and Evangelist." Latter authorities need not be here mentioned.

The next question relates to the date of this book. The most probable and generally received opinion is, that it was written during John's banishment to the Isle of Patmos, by Domitian, in the latter part of his reign; that is, in the year A. D. 96, in the latter part of which he died, or immediately after, when the apostle was set at liberty. This has been clearly shown by Lardner, Lampe, Woodhouse, and others. The former says, that "all antiquity is abundantly agreed, that Domitian was the author of John's banishment." This also has the express sanction of Irenæus, Origen, and other early fathers; and is supported by strong internal evidence: for this book describes the seven Asiatic churches as not only existing, but as having flourished, and, some of them, subsequently decayed, which could not have been the case at a much earlier date.

Another question, and one we think least attended to, relates to the scenic representations here described. The exhibitions in the first and fourth chapters, strongly remind us of the scenes exhibited in the prophecies of Isaiah, Daniel, and Ezekiel: but in chapters v. and vi. we have a volume, or roll of parchment, sealed with seven seals: each of which, as it opens, displays (as suggested by Harmer) a pictorial delineation of certain figures, emblematical of future events, which we shall be presently called upon to consider; and which exhibitions become more and more vivid, till they acquire all the interest of real life: sounds are added to pictorial representation, and the great Ezekiel of the New Testament, wrapt in prophetic raptures, hears thunders unutterable, and describes scenes inconceivable.

We have alluded to Ezekiel, and, indeed, there is a singular resemblance between his visions and those of the beloved disciple. Both saw the sapphire throne, and the rainbow round about it; with the glorious vision of the cherubic animals. Both prefigure the terrible judgments of God upon the earth, and particularly upon Gog and Magog; and both describe the New Jerusalem, with an angel measuring the temple.

There is something, however, peculiar in St. John's plan, or method: first, seven seals are unloosed, and produce six grand pictorial views. Under the seventh seal we have a solemn pause, and seven angels with trumpets are introduced: the sounding of the first six trumpets produce six grand prophetic scenes; and the seventh trumpet ushers in the Millennium.

The following brief analysis is from the pen of the late learned and judicious Hurd:—

"The reader may form a distinct idea of the method in which the whole book of the Apocalypse is disposed, by observing, that it is resolvable into three great parts. The first part is that of the Epistles to the seven churches, contained in the first three chapters, and is not at all considered by Mede.

"The second part (with which Mede begins his commentary) is that of the Sealed Book, from chap. iv. to chap. x.; and contains the fates of the empire, or its civil revolutions, yet with a reference still to the fate and fortune of the Christian church.

"The third part is that of the Open Book, with what follows, to the end; and exhibits in a more minute and extended view, the fates of the Christian church, especially during its apostacy, and after its recovery from it. This third division may farther be considered as consisting of two parts. The first contains, in chap. xi., a summary view of what should befall the Christian church, contemporary with the events deduced in the second part concerning the empire; and is given in this place in order to connect the second and third parts, and to show their correspondence and contemporarity. The second part of the last division, from chap. xii. to the end, gives a detailed account of what should befall the Christian church, in distinct and, several of them, synchronical visions."

It would be in vain to attempt to harmonize, or even to enumerate, the various expositors of this mysterious book; yet so much curiosity has been excited within the last few years, by the exercise of uncommon genius and learning, that we feel disposed to give a faint outline of the hypothesis of a few of the most popular, which we shall do with impartiality; and, according to the best of our recollection, nearly in the order of their publication.

The French Revolution, and the events which followed, renewed, in a singular way, the study of this sacred book. Most remarkable, certainly, were the interpretations or conjectures (as the reader may please to call them) of the judgments foretold in chap. xi., relative to the fall of the French government, and certain events which followed, as they were explained by the Rev. P. Jurieu, Robt. Fleming, and others, in the latter end of the 17th century, and which we shall slightly notice when we come to that chapter.

One of the first writers who particularly noticed this event as the fulfilment of that prophecy, was the Rev. James Bicheno, M. A., a Baptist Minister of Newbury, and a most zealous friend to civil and religious liberty. This benevolent gentleman (for the writer knew such to be his character) was so delighted with the fall of popery and slavery in France, that he flattered himself that this was, at least, an introduction to the Millennium. Some of his peculiarities were—that the great dragon, mentioned in Rev. xx. 1—3, signified the German empire; and the two witnesses, in chap. xi., the advocates for civil and religious liberty. He wrote in 1794, &c. and predicted the final destruction of popery and despotism in 1819!

2. Illustrations of Prophecy—In which are elucidated many predictions in Isaiah, Daniel, the Revelation, &c. supposed to refer to the Revolution in France, the overthrow of ecclesiastical tyranny, civil despotism, &c., with a large collection of extracts, &c., 2 vols. 8vo. 1796. This work, though anonymous, was well known to be the production of a son of the late Dr. Towers, of political memory; and though professedly religious, was so deeply imbued with politics, that, soon after its publication, it was thought prudent to suppress the sale, to prevent prosecution, which rendered it for several years very scarce. It contains, however, curious and interesting extracts from more than thirty writers of the two last centuries, and is thought to excel in a judicious exposition of the prophetic symbols, which abound in this book.

3. On the other hand, the Rev. G. S. Faber, B. D., a very learned and respectable clergyman, differs from most preceding interpreters in explaining Antichrist, and the Man of Sin—neither of the pope nor popery, but of "the Infidel King," or atheistical government of France; a system which he has certainly defended with great ability and ingenuity. He is also a strong and able advocate for the complete restoration of the Jews.

Since these gentlemen, who were the first, we believe, to propound and support these systems, we have had a long succession of writers of varied talent; among whom we recollect the names of three learned lay gentlemen, Messrs. Cuninghame, Frere, and Galloway; and, still more recently, the Rev. Mr. Irving—of all whom we wish to speak with respect, though, from the little knowledge we have obtained of their respective systems, we consider them as rather curious than correct. To the following writers on this book we have paid more particular attention; and have consulted them pretty constantly, in company with Doddridge, and other expositors of the New Testament at large.

The first, and certainly one of the most judicious, of these works, is the "Paraphrase and Notes of the Rev. Moses Lowman, forty years a dissenting minister at Clapham." Ours is the fourth edition. When the first edition of this work was published, we cannot say; but the author died in 1752. Of this work, it is sufficient praise that Doddridge has said of it—"From which I have received more satisfaction, with respect to many of its difficulties, (i. e. the difficulties of the Apocalypse,) than ever I found elsewhere, or expected to have found at all."—Doddridge's Works.

2. Bishop Newton's Dissertations on the Prophecies we need only name, as their merit is universally acknowledged. The 24th Dissertation only has reference to this book.

3. The Apocalypse, or Revelation of St. John, translated, with notes, critical and explanatory. To which is prefixed, a dissertation on the divine origin of the book, &c. by J. C. Woodhouse, D. D. Archdeacon of Salop. It is abundant praise to this author, that no less a man than Bishop Hurd wrote in a blank leaf of this book, in the Hartlebury Library—"This is the best book of the kind I have seen. It owes its superiority to two things: 1. The author's understanding, for the most part, the Apocalyptical symbols in a spiritual, not in a literal sense; and, 2dly, To the care he has taken to fix the precise import of those symbols, from the use made of them by the old prophetical, and other writers of the Old and New Testament."

4. An Essay towards a connected elucidation of the prophetical part of the Apocalypse, by Steph. Morell, (1806.) The author, who is since deceased, bore the character of intelligent, modest, and temperate in judgment; and has had the merit of condensing into the compass of an octavo pamphlet, the substance of Lowman, Newton, and several other writers.

5. Expository Discourses on the Apocalypse, interspersed with practical reflections, by Andr. Fuller, 1814. This was the last work of Fuller, and bears the characteristic stamp of his maturest judgment. The author died just before its publication.

6. A concise Exposition of the Apocalypse, so far as the prophecies are fulfilled, by J. R. Park, M. D. This answers to its description, and contains, as appears to us, an abstract of the great work of Woodhouse, above mentioned, so far as relates to prophecies supposed to be fulfilled. The five first chapters are omitted, as not prophetical. The author professes to have consulted the archdeacon at every step, but to have differed from him freely, wherever he saw occasion.

7. The most recent, and ingenious work we have met with, is "The Apocalypse of St. John .... a new interpretation, by the Rev. Geo. Croly, A.M. H. R. S. L."—Without professing ourselves converts to his, or to any new system, as a whole, we certainly regard Mr. C. as an elegant and an able writer.

8. There is another work which we have not classed, nor can we class, with the above, because it is unique, and, in general, opposed to all the preceding. It is entitled, "A general History of the Christian Church.... chiefly deduced from the Apocalypse of St. John," on which it is, in fact, a commentary. It appears under the name of Sig. Pastorini, but is well known and acknowledged to be written by the late Dr. Walmesley, of Bath, a Roman Catholic divine, and "Vicar Apostolic of the West of England." This profound mathematician, and such he confessedly was, has endeavoured to demonstrate that Protestantism (and not popery) is "the grand apostacy," which was to have been exterminated in 1825!—but has happily survived the author's rash prediction. This work was first printed in 1771; but ours, which is marked the fifth edition, is dated "Dublin, 1812." This very curious work we shall occasionally consult. It furnishes another instance of a folly, of which Sir Isaac Newton himself long since complained. "The folly of interpreters (says that great man) has been to foretell times and things by this prophecy, as if God designed to make them prophets. By this rashness they have not only exposed themselves, but brought the prophecy also into contempt."

With such helps before him, and not without trembling, lest he should "darken counsel by words without knowledge," the writer has attempted this most arduous part of his undertaking. More than forty years since he went through the book with the aid of Doddridge, Gill, and Guise, Bishop Newton, Mr. Pool, Mr. Reader, and some others, from all whom he extracted notes, which he has still by him. But his chief obligations in the present instance are to Mr. Lowman, Dr. Woodhouse, and Mr. Fuller. He confesses that he has found much pleasure in the study, and, whatever mistakes he may have committed, he hopes he has been kept from dogmatizing, and from giving conjectures of his own under the name of divine predictions. We owe, indeed, much to the Divine benevolence for the warnings, counsels, and consolations of this sacred book, and, so far as it is fulfilled, we have internal evidence of its inspiration; but for the remainder, the Scriptures admonish us, in the words of the angel to the prophet Daniel: "Blessed is he that waiteth:—But go thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days."

CHAPTER I.

John writeth his revelation to the seven churches of Asia, signified by the seven golden candlesticks. 7 The coming of Christ. 14 His glorious power and majesty.

THE [a] Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

[a] Re. 16.15
Ga 1.12.
Ep 3.3.

he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John:

2 Who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw.

CHAP. I. Ver. 1—8. The title and introduction to this Book.—On the opening of this sublime Book, Dr. Pye Smith very judiciously remarks, that the Revelations here described are "represented as the gift of Christ, as well as of God the Father: the honour of being the author of this development of futurity, is asserted to both the Father and the Son: while

CHAP. I. Ver. 1. The Revelation (Greek, Apocalupsis) of Jesus Christ, &c.—The two first verses seem to have been intended for the original title of the book, that prefixed at the head being attributed to Eusebius, who added the term "the divine," or "Theologian," in reference to the sublime nature of his

3 Blessed [a] is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time [b] is at hand.

4 JOHN to the seven [c] churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him [d] which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven [e] Spirits which are before his throne;

5 And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful [f] witness, and the [g] first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved [h] us, and washed [i] us from our sins in his own blood,

6 And hath made us [j] kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him [k] be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

7 Behold, he cometh with [l] clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they [m] also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail [n] because of him. Even [o] so, Amen.

8 I [p] am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the [q] Almighty.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96

a Lu.11.28.
b Ja.5.8,9. 1 Pe.4.7.
c ver 11.
d ver 8.
e Zec.4.10. c.3.1. & 4. 5
f Jn.8.14.
g Col.1.18.
h Jn 13.1.
i He 9.14.
j Ex 19.6. 1 Pe.2.5,9
k He 13.21.
l Da.7.13 Mat 26.64
m Zec.12.10
n Mat.24.30
o c.22.20.
p Is.41.4.
q Is.9.6.

r 2 Co.12.2.
s Jn.20.26. Ac.20.7. 1 Co.16.2.
t c.2.1.
u c.2.8.
v c.2.12
w c.2.18.
x c.3.1.
y c.3.7.
z c.3.14.
a Ex.25.37. Zec.4.2.
b Eze.1.26., 28. Da.7.9,13. 10.5,6.
c c.2.18. 19.12.

9 I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

10 I was in the [r] Spirit on the [s] Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, 11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia; unto [t] Ephesus, and unto [u] Smyrna, and unto [v] Pergamos, and unto [w] Thyatira, and unto [x] Sardis, and unto [y] Philadelphia, and unto [z] Laodicea.

12 And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And being turned, I saw seven [a] golden candlesticks;

13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks one [b] like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle.

14 His head and his hairs were white like wool, as white as snow; and his eyes [c] were as a flame of fire;

---

the order of primacy in the former, and mediatorial subordination in the latter, is expressly maintained in accordance with the whole tenor of revealed truth." So Dr. Woodhouse observes—"The scheme of the Christian revelation is mediatorial throughout. God [the Father] giveth to the Son, dispensing knowledge and favour through him." This knowledge was by the Son, and, through the Spirit, communicated to his servant John: and thus the most perfect harmony, or rather unity, is preserved between the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. This John, to whom the communication was made, could be none other than the Evangelist; for he it was who bare record of the divine Logos in his gospel, (John i. 1,) and he it is who now records the testimony of Jesus Christ, and the divine visions to him exhibited.

The blessing which here follows, and is pronounced upon the reader of this book, was undoubtedly designed to encourage Christians to the study of it, and that practically; for the blessing is not pronounced on those who merely peruse it, either in a cursory or studious way; but on those who keep in mind the things that are written, by a practical attention to their design. (See Deut. vi. 6—9.) And the more to stimulate the readers to this attention, it is added, "the time is at hand" when these predictions should be fulfilled. Not all of them, assuredly: for they embrace the whole dispensation of Providence to the end of time; but the meaning is, that their fulfilment was immediately to commence, and to proceed with a rapidity which demanded their utmost vigilance and attention. "We must keep them (says Mr. Fuller) as one engaged in a voyage through dangerous seas keeps his chart, and consults it on all necessary occasions."

John now commences his address to the seven churches of proconsular Asia, all which we must suppose at this time to have been existing, and which (as may be seen in the map) lay within a narrow circle. The apostolical benediction and doxology here introduced, are in a style peculiar to this book. The periphrasis, "Who is, who was, and who is to come," is agreed to designate God the Father. The "seven Spirits before the throne," the best commentators agree, are intended to represent "the various gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit." So the venerable Bede himself says—"The one Holy Spirit is here described as sevenfold, by which is intimated, in prophetic language, fulness and perfection." Who it is that "loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood," no Christian needs to be informed. If it be asked, why it is that the Son of God is here placed the last of the sacred Three, it is answered, because on his name and character the apostle intended to dilate.

The next verse has been remarked as containing the whole burden of these Epistles, and is introduced, not in the cold style of a philosopher, but in the rapturous language of a prophet. "Behold! he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him; and they also which pierced him, and all the earth shall wail because of him." The expression, "they also which pierced him," though it must, in the first place, refer to those who were his immediate murderers, must not be confined to them. Every one who claims an interest in the Saviour's sacrifice, must confess a share in the guilt for which he suffered. So under the Mosaic law, he who brought a bullock for his atonement, laid his hand upon the head of the animal, as an acknowledgment of his guilt. (See Levit. i. 4.)

A voice is then heard declaring, "I am Alpha and Omega," that is, the first and the last; or, as here follows, "the beginning and the ending;" the first cause, and final end, of all created beings. It has been, however, disputed, whether these should be considered as the words of the Father, or of Christ. Mr. Fuller says—"That these were his [Christ's] words, and not those of the Father, will appear from comparing them with chap. i. 1; and xxii. 6—16. It was Jesus Christ, and not the Father, who communicated through the angel with his servant John. The Father is sometimes referred to in the prophecy; but, if I mistake not, in the third person only: not as speaking, but as spoken of." The circumstance, however, of its being left doubtful by the sacred writers, to whom such passages should be referred, whether to the Father or the Son, is, with us, a powerful argument for their essential equality; for surely the Holy Spirit would never have laid us under such temptations to idolatry, as must be the case, if both were not entitled to the same divine honours.

Ver. 9—20. The first vision of the Son of God.—The apostle John informs us, that he was at this time banished to the isle of Patmos, "for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ." This Patmos is a small island (as the maps show) in the Mediterranean Sea, not far from the coast of Asia, nor, indeed, from any of the churches which he now addressed. But the apostle, in mentioning this circumstance, gives no note of date, which also is the case with his other Epistles, as well as his Gospel. This date can only be drawn from history: and Drs. Lardner, Woodhouse, and others, have writings. It may also be remarked, that this is the only apostolical writing, and John the only apostle, to whose name our translators have prefixed the term Saint.—Signified it by his angel.—"In the style of prophecy," Lowman says, "every thing is called an Angel that notifies a message from God; but as one or more angels, in the proper sense of the term, seem to be employed in every vision here recorded, there seems no occasion to seek another acceptation."

---

Ver. 2. Who bare record of the word (Greek, Logos) of God.—Namely, in his gospel, which seems to refer to his first chapter; and if so, plainly indicates that his Gospel was written before this work, and probably before his Epistles also: but this cannot be ascertained.

Ver. 4. To the seven churches.—The number seven, among the Hebrews, signifies completeness, whence some have supposed the phrase intends all the churches in Asia; but as seven are distinctly named, there seems no room for this supposition. The number seven, however, has a reigning influence throughout the book: we have seven spirits, seven angels, seven seals, &c. &c.; and the same number predominated through the Mosaic dispensation, and might, as some suppose, originate with the seven days of the creation.—In Asia.—See note on Acts xix. 10.

Ver. 5. The first-begotten.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "first-born."

Ver 7. And all kindreds, &c.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "tribes."

Ver. 8. I am Alpha and Omega.—These are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet, used symbolically: so the Rabbins used Aleph and Tau, the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet. The Syriac reads Olaph and Tau; the Arabic, Aleph and Ya.—Gill

Ver. 9. Patmos.—This island contains an excellent harbour, and the town consists of about 200 houses, which are said to be raised nearly 500 feet above the level of the sea: and the people show a grotto, in which they pretend that St. John wrote these visions.—For the word of God, &c.—Compare chap. vi. 9.—And for the testimony—i. e. as witnesses and martyrs for Jesus Christ.

Ver. 10. I was in the Spirit—i. e. prophetically inspired—on the Lord's day—i. e. the Christian sabbath—the first day of the week; so called, because on that day our Lord arose from the dead. The same expression is used by Ignatius, to distinguish the first day from the seventh.

Ver. 11. The first and the last.—This differs from the explanation of the mystic letters, alpha and omega, more in sound than in sense; that they can apply only to the great Supreme, see Isa. xliv. 6; xlviii. 12, 13.—Smyrna—[Now Ismir, is a celebrated city of Asia Minor, situated on the shore of the Ægean sea, about 183 miles W. by S. of Constantinople, 100 miles N. of Rhodes, and between 40 and 45 miles N. W. of Ephesus, in lat. 38 29 N. and long. 27 25 E. It is at present about 4 miles in circumference, extending about a mile along the shore, and has a very handsome appearance; its population is about 120,000 souls.}—Bagster.

Ver. 12. Seven golden candlesticks.—Doddridge, "lamps." Woodhouse, "lamp-bearers."

Ver. 13. Girt about the paps—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "breasts."

Ver. 14. His eyes were as a flame of fire.—This is a common figure in poetry: thus Hesiod of Apollo, "His eyes shot fire;" and Homer of Minerva "Her eyes shone dreadful." How ridiculous, therefore, as well as profane, is it to ridicule this image, as some infidels have lately done.

15 And his feet [d] like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice [e] as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a [f] sharp two-edged sword: and his countenance was as the sun [g] shineth in his strength.

17 And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last:

18 I am he that [h] liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys [i] of hell and of death.

19 Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter;

20 The mystery of the seven [j] stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks [k] which thou sawest are the seven churches.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

d Eze.1.7.
e Eze.43.2.
f Is.49.2. He.4.12. g Ac.26.13. c.10.1
h Ro.6.9.
i Ps.68.20. c.20.1,2.
j ver.16.
k Mat.5.15, 16.
a c.1.16,20.
b Ps.1.6 ver.9,13, 19. c 3.1,8,15
e 1 Jn.4.1.
d 2 Co.11.13

CHAPTER II.

What is commanded to be written to the angels, that is, the ministers of the churches of 1 Ephesus, 8 Smyrna, 12 Pergamos, 18 Thyatira: and what is commended, and found wanting in them.

UNTO the angel of the church of Ephesus write; These things saith he that [a] holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks;

2 I know [b] thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil: and thou hast tried [c] them which say they are apostles, and are [d] not, and hast found them liars:

---

clearly shown, as stated in our Introduction, that the general testimony of the ancients favours the opinion of his banishment having taken place toward the end of Domitian's reign. Irenæus, who flourished in the beginning of the second century, says of the Revelation, (meaning, doubtless, the scenery herein described,) "it was seen no long time ago, but almost in our age, at the end of the reign of Domitian:" and Clement of Alexandria, who flourished in the beginning of the third century, speaks of John's returning from Patmos to Ephesus after the death of the tyrant, by whom he is supposed to mean the emperor just mentioned.

As the first thing toward a right interpretation of this book is, a correct conception of the imagery employed, to that object we shall pay a primary attention. Much of this scenery is borrowed from the temple, and the dress in which the Son of God here appears, seems to be that of the Jewish High Priest; but his person infinitely more glorious. His countenance as the sun; his locks white as snow when irradiated by the sun; his eyes darting ethereal flames, and his feet shining like smelting brass in the furnace. Here the prophet saw seven candlesticks or lamp-burners, not joined together in the manner of the candelabrum or chandelier in the tabernacle (described Exod. xxv. 31, &c.) but, as it should seem, distinct; for the Christian churches are not all united in one form, as was the Jewish, nor dependant upon one tabernacle or temple: but alone on Him who "walketh in the midst" or before the front of them, as we understand it, to furnish or superintend their light.

These lamps were not illumined in the ordinary manner, with wicks and oil, but by stars, signifying the angels, ministers, and messengers of these churches, which the great High Priest holds in his hand: not separately, as we conceive, but in the form of either a cluster, or perhaps a kind of orrery, such as some have supposed was placed on the top of Solomon's celebrated pillars—Jachin and Boaz. This vision, while it was intended to animate and encourage, was for the moment overpowering. The beloved apostle fell at the Saviour's feet as dead. Instantly, however, he stretched forth his right hand to communicate a touch, like that which, during his abode on earth, could cure the sick and raise the dead. "Fear not, (said he,) I am the first and the last—he that liveth and was dead!"—"This word, Fear not, (says Dr. Woodhouse,) is the comforting assurance to the Virgin, to Zacharias, to the shepherds, and to the women at the sepulchre, under similar impressions."

We must here pause a moment, and attend to the directions given to the prophet to write.—"Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter." Mr. Lowman and Dr. Woodhouse divide these matters of record into two classes,—1. The things which John had seen and was now seeing, he classes with things that are, dividing the whole into things present and things future; but Mr. Fuller has a thought peculiar to himself, and which we think, like most of his conceptions, merits our particular attention. He considers these predictions as having a retrospective view from the ascension of Christ, and including two great objects which most other expositors omit—namely, the progress of the gospel from that period, and the destruction of Jerusalem, with all its attendant horrors.

"Surely (says Mr. Fuller) it must appear singular, that in a prophetic description of the success of the gospel in the early ages, the most glorious part of it should be left out; and that, in a like description of the wars between the Jews and Romans, the most terrible part should be omitted." The reason given by Mr. Lowman for its being omitted, is, "The destruction of Jerusalem being past, can hardly be supposed to be denoted by a prediction of a judgment to come." "Doubtless it is in general true, (continues Mr. Fuller,) that prophecies are predictions of things to come; in some instances, however, they may refer to events, the beginnings of which are already accomplished. There is a remarkable instance of this in the prophecies of Daniel, concerning the four monarchies. He speaks of his seeing them all rise up out of the sea, (Dan. vii. 1—3;) yet, at the time of the vision, the first of them, namely, Babylon, had risen and reigned, and was near its end; for it was in the first year of Belshazzar, who was its last king. And why should not the apostle, in like manner, begin the prophecy with the commencement of the Christian dispensation, though he wrote above sixty years after it? This makes the sealed book to contain a perfect system of New Testament prophecy, from the ascension of Christ to the end of all things."

Of this suggestion, which appears to us perfectly correct, we shall avail ourselves in explaining the visions of the seals; in the mean time, we must return to the Epistles to the seven churches. Many commentators conceive these also to be prophetic of the seven stages of the Christian church at large. But for this we perceive no foundation; and we are happy to find that Bp. Newton, and the most respectable expositors since his time, are of the same opinion. "But it doth not appear (says the learned prelate) that there are, or were to be, seven periods of the church, neither more nor less; and no two men can agree in assigning the same periods. There are likewise in these epistles several innate characters, which are peculiar to the church of that age, and cannot be so well applied to the church of any other age. Besides other arguments, there is also this plain reason; the last state of the church is described in this very book as most glorious of all; but in the last state in these Epistles, that of Laodicea, the church is represented as 'wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked.' But though these Epistles have rather a literal than a mystical meaning, yet they contain excellent moral precepts and exhortations, commendations and reproofs, promises and threatenings, which may be of use and instruction to the church in all ages."

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—11. Epistles to the churches of Ephesus and Smyrna.—These Epistles are all addressed to the angels of the several churches; by whom we are to understand their respective ministers, pastors, or bishops, who are to be considered as their representatives also, through whom the respective churches are themselves addressed. Of these the church of Ephesus is the first; to which is addressed both commendation and reproof. Alluding to the character in which Jesus appears as the true light, guide, and defender of his churches, he says, "I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience:" and particularly commends them for rejecting false prophets and impostors. Especially are they commended for hating "the deeds of the Nicolaitanes," which (says the Lord) I also hate. What these deeds were, it is not easy to ascertain. Ecclesiastical historians charge them with a criminal licentiousness, in holding a community of wives. They boasted, as their founder, one of the first seven deacons, Nicolas, the proselyte of Antioch: but "whether he countenanced such conduct, or whether they abused his name to sanction it, is not now easily to be ascertained. Nor is it quite certain that he is the person whom they claimed as their founder, since Nicolas was a common name among the Greeks."

It is probable that all these churches had been planted by Paul: this is clear, at least, as to the church at Ephesus, in which city he was severely persecuted by Demetrius and his craftsmen, as we have already seen on Acts xix. 24, &c. Persecution is generally friendly to piety in the subjects of such

---

Ver. 15. His feet like unto fine brass, &c.—Woodhouse, "like smelting brass;" i. e. glowing with the heat of the furnace.—As the sound of many waters—That is, of conflicting seas meeting each other. See Acts xxvii. 41.

Ver. 16. A sharp two-edged sword.—This is in perfect harmony with the prophetic language of the writers of both Testaments. See Isa. xi. 4; xlix. 2.

Ver. 18. Have the keys of hell—(Greek, "Hades,") or the invisible world. See Ps. xvi. 10. Mat. xvi. 18. Both Doddridge and Woodhouse take the term in its most extensive import.

Ver. 20. The mystery—i. e. the mystical or spiritual sense of the emblems.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. Unto the angel, &c.—Jennings says, Next to the chief ruler of the synagogue, was an officer who offered public prayers, and was therefore called their angel.—Jewish Antiq. book ii. chap. ii.—Candlesticks.—See chap. i. 12.

Ver. 2. Which say they are apostles.—It appears by this verse, that some of the false teachers which troubled the church in the first ages, pretended to be apostles. These the church of Ephesus could not endure.

3 And hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name's sake hast laboured, and hast not [e] fainted.

4 Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first [f] works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove [g] thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the [h] Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

7 He [i] that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree [j] of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

8 And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna write; These things saith the [k] first and the last, which was dead, and is alive;

9 I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art [l] rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are [m] Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue [n] of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful [o] unto death, and I will give thee a crown [p] of life.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second [q] death.

12 And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write; These things saith [r] he which hath the sharp sword with two edges;

13 I know [s] thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied [t] my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth:

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who [u] taught Balac to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, to eat [v] things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit [w] fornication.

15 So hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitanes, which thing I hate.

16 Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and [x] will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 He [y] that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; To him

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

e Ga.6.9.
f Je.2.2,3.
g Mat.21. 41,43.
h ver.15.
i Mat.11.15 ver.11,17, 29.
j Ge.2.9. c.22.2,14.
k c.1.8,17.
l 1 Ti.6.18.
m Ro.2.28, 29.
n c.3.9.
o Mat.10.22
p Ja.1.12.
q c.20.14.
r c.1.16.
s ver.9.
t 2 Ti.2.12. u Nu.31.16.
v Ac.15.29
w 1 Co.6.13, 18.
x Is.11.4.
y ver.7. c.3.6,13, 22

---

persecution; but after that subsided it seems that the Ephesians lost "their first love;" that is, abated in the fervour of their piety and zeal; and therefore are they exhorted to "repent, and do their first works."

Ephesus was the chief city of proconsular Asia, and was at that time immensely rich, and devoted to luxury and idolatry. "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" was their cry; and the chief cause of their alarm was, lest their favourite "goddess should be despised, and her magnificence destroyed."

But, alas! how frail and uncertain are all terrestrial things! This mighty city is now reduced to about fifteen poor cottages, inhabited by Turks, (who call it Aisalick;) and this flourishing church was, in 1816, reduced to three individual Christians, one only of whom could read; and who knew nothing of Paul, but by his name in the Calendar.—(See Orient. Lit. No. 1548.)

Each of these addresses finishes with a promise on perseverance; and the promise here is—"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." Of this tree we shall have a fuller account, chap. xxii. 2. Life and immortality are the sure reward of victory in the Christian contest.

The next address is to the church at Smyrna, of which no other mention is made in the New Testament; our Scripture knowledge of it is, therefore, solely confined to this account. The church at Smyrna was, at this time, in the midst of tribulation and poverty, arising, most probably, from the persecution they had endured. They were, however, rich in grace; and though they are taught to expect farther persecution, they are assured also of support and final victory. There were, notwithstanding, among these pious Christians, some who belonged to the synagogue of Satan; some, indeed, who boasted of being Abraham's seed, but were not the children of his faith. It is predicted, "The devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried: and ye shall have tribulation ten," that is, many "days." Nearly seventy years after the visions of the Apocalypse, a heavy persecution broke out in this city; and their Bishop, Polycarp, signalized himself, by the courage and fortitude with which he suffered, in an extreme old age. When threatened with the most terrible deaths, and urged to pity his own gray hairs, he nobly replied, "Eighty and six years have I served Christ, and he has never done me any wrong: how, then, can I blaspheme my King and my Saviour?" And when, in particular, he was threatened with the flames, by which, indeed, he suffered, he retorted—"Thou threatenest me with fire which burns but for an hour, and is then extinguished; but knowest not the fire of future judgment, and of that eternal punishment, which is reserved for the ungodly;"—in which he plainly alludes to "the second death" here mentioned, and from which exemption is here promised; and not only exemption from this death, but also "a crown of (immortal life."

Smyrna is still a very considerable place, and supposed to contain 140,000 inhabitants,—Greeks, Armenians, Catholics, Jews, and Protestants; of the latter, only 140 individuals. What a field is here for missions!

Ver. 12—29. Epistles to the churches of Pergamos and Thyatira.—Pergamos is described by Pliny the elder, as the most famous city of Asia, having been adorned and enriched by a long succession of Attalian kings, and now become the residence of a Roman consul. Wealth and luxury of course fitted it for a "throne of Satan," as might be expected of a Pagan metropolis. The city is now called Bergamo, and is said to contain about 15,000 inhabitants; Greeks, Armenians, Jews, &c. about 2000; but all the rest Turks. Most of the churches are turned into mosques, but there remains one for the Greeks, and another for the Armenians. Here, formerly, Æsculapius was worshipped under the form of a serpent, which gives the greater propriety to its being called the seat of Satan, herein afterwards distinguished as the old serpent. See chap. xii. 9.

The only charge against this church appears to be their tolerating among them the followers of Balaam and the Nicolaitanes, who appear to us to have been distinct persons, though perhaps their errors might be similar. And here we shall take the liberty to offer a remark or two.

1. Though we are friends to universal toleration or religious liberty, even to the most unenlightened consciences, yet would we by no means tolerate in any church such errors as affect the vitals of Christian doctrine, or the practice of moral duties. Such men should be assailed with Scripture and with argument; and, if neither prevail, we consider them by no means proper subjects for church communion: but this is quite a distinct thing from loading them with fines or shutting them up in prisons.

2. We observe in all the heresies reprobated in the New Testament, a strong tendency, if not to crime, at least to laxity of morals. We believe, for instance, that persons who deny the Deity and atonement of our Saviour, may be sober, honest, and humane; but few of them, we apprehend, pretend to a devotional character, or are anxious for that decided separation from the world, which the Scriptures uniformly inculcate: and though, in the present day, there are no temptations to partake of the luxury of feasting in an idolatrous temple; yet many indulge in the same libations, and unite in the same songs, that were formerly offered to Venus, Bacchus, and other Pagan idols.

Decision in religious matters is of infinite importance, and no man whose delight is in any species of intemperance can

---

Ver. 4. Left thy first love.—Woodhouse, "former love;" i. e. declined from their former zeal and affection. See Acts xix. 10—12, 17—20.

Ver. 5. Remove thy candlestick—i. e. take away their privileges.

Ver. 6. Nicolaitanes.—See Dictionary of all Religions, in Nicolaitans. The ancient Fathers describe these as equally erroneous in doctrine, and impure in morals.

Ver. 9. Which say they are Jews.—See Gal. vi. 12—16. These Jews were found to take a very active part in persecuting Polycarp and his fellow Christians.

Ver. 10. Ten days—i. e., perhaps, many days. See Gen. xxxi. 7, 41. Lev. xxvi. 26. 1 Sam. i. 8. Eccles. vii. 7. But some think the persecution here referred to lasted ten years—a day for a year. See on chap. vi. 11.

Ver. 11. He that hath an ear.—See note on Mat. xi. 15.—The second death i. e final and everlasting death. See chap. xx. 14; xxi. 8. Not being hurt by this death, implies also that, on the contrary, they should enjoy everlasting life.

Ver. 12. Pergamos.—[Pergamos, now Bergamo, the ancient metropolis of Mysia, and the residence of the Attalian kings, is situated on the river Caicus, about 60 miles north of Smyrna, in long. 27 E. lat. 39 11 N. It still retains some measure of its ancient importance; containing a population of about 15,000 souls; and having nine or ten mosques, two churches, and one synagogue.]—Baxster.—The sharp sword with two edges.—See chap. i. 16.

Ver. 13. Where Satan's seat.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "throne."—Antipas.—No account of this martyr is extant, but an old ecclesiastical writer mentions having read such. See Woodhouse.

Ver. 14. Doctrine of Balaam.—See 2 Pet. ii. 15. Jude, ver. 11; and compare Numb. xxv. throughout, and xxxi. 16.

Ver. 16. And will fight.—Woodhouse, "And will war," &c.

that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden [a] manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new [a] name written, which no man knoweth [b] saving he that receiveth it.

18 And unto the angel of the church in Thyatira write; These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes [c] like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine brass;

19 I [d] know thy works, and charity, and service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works; and the last to be more than the first.

20 Notwithstanding I have a few things against thee, because thou sufferest that woman [e] Jezebel, which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants to commit fornication, and to [f] eat things sacrificed unto idols.

21 And I gave her space [g] to repent of her fornication; and she repented [h] not.

22 Behold, I [i] will cast her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, except they repent of their deeds.

23 And I will kill [j] her children with death; and all the churches [k] shall know that I [l] am he which searcheth the reins and hearts: and I [m] will give unto every one of you according to your works.

24 But unto you I say, and unto the rest in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths [n] of Satan, as they speak; I will put upon you none other burden.

25 But that [o] which ye have already hold fast till I come.

26 And he that [p] overcometh, and keepeth my works [q] unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:

27 And [r] he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers: even as I [s] received of my Father.

28 And I will give him the [t] morning star.

29 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

z Ps 25.14.
a Is 56.4. 65.15. c.3.12. 19.12,13.
b 1 Co 2.14.
c c.1.14,15
d ver.2.
e 1 Ki.16.31. f Ex.34.15. 1 Co.10. 20,28. g Ro.2.4. 2 Pe.3.9.
h c.9.20.
i Eze.16.37 23.29.
j c.6.8
k Zep.1.11
l 1 Ch.28.9 2 Ch.6.30 Ps.7.9 Je.17.10.
m Ps.62.12.
n 2 Th.2.9. &c.
o c.3.11.
p ver.7,11, 17. c.3.5,12, 21. 21.7.
q Ju.6.29. 1 Jo.2.20.
r Ps.2.9. 19.15.
s Ps.2.9.
t c.22.16.

CHAPTER III.

2 The angel of the church of Sardis is reproved, 3 exhorted to repent, and threatened if he do not repent. 8 The angel of the church of Philadelphia 10 is approved for his diligence and patience. 15 The angel of Laodicea rebuked, for being neither hot nor cold, 19 and admonished to be more zealous. 20 Christ standeth at the door and knocketh.

AND unto the angel of the church in Sardis write; These things saith he that hath the truly relish the heavenly manna; nor can any such claim that evidence and assurance of his salvation, which is implied in the white stone and the new name here referred to.

The church of Thyatira seems to have much resembled that of Pergamos. There were among them many eminent for good works, and charity, and faith, &c. but there was a Jezebel among them. Some wicked woman, possibly of rank and influence, who, under the mask of a Christian profession, countenanced occasional attendance at idol temples; and did not see any great harm in those common aberrations from purity and strict morals, which the world covers with the name of 'juvenile indiscretions." We are required, however, to "avoid all appearance of evil," and to "hate (even) the garment spotted by the flesh."

The earliest, and some of the best modern commentators, indeed, consider this Jezebel not to have been a mere individual, but an heretical party which had crept into the church (similar to the Nicolaitanes at Pergamos, and perhaps with some female Nicolaitan at their head,) who pleaded for occasional conformity to their Pagan neighbours. They admired architecture and statuary, and there could be no harm in seeing an idol temple. They loved music, and where could they hear it in such perfection as there? They were men of taste too, and where could their taste be so highly gratified with the richest viands and the choicest wines? Or they wished to cultivate good fellowship with their neighbours, and to oblige their kindred and friends: and what so likely to do this, as occasionally associating with them in their devotions, though they might not worship the idols in their hearts? And, besides, (might these complaisant Christians say,) "Perhaps they may be induced to attend at our churches in return, and who knows but they may be converted?" These and a thousand other plausible excuses might be made by these Jezebel professors, to cover or to excuse their sins. But what says he, whose "eyes are like a flame of fire?"

"I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her." But this is not a bed of ease, much less of pleasure, but a bed of "great tribulation:" and those who have languished, or even seen others languishing, in bed, with the gout, the stone, and other acute diseases, must know what "great tribulation" means. "And I will kill her children with death"—perhaps "pestilence;" for Paul has taught us, that sickness and death are often the consequence of spiritual degeneracy—"For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." (1 Cor. xi. 30.) Have any of us been visited with personal or family sickness? It may then be well to inquire, has our conduct given no provocation for it? When the affections of a Christian are drawn from religion to the world, the mercy of God often sends affliction to bring him back again. And if any of our family idols have been taken from us, it is not only our duty to submit, (for that we must do,) but also to return to the only object whom we can love without the danger of excess. He "whose eyes are as a flame of fire," may "kill our children," to save both their souls and ours. We shall never know all the advantages of our afflictions in the present state: and wo unto those who are spared in this life, to be punished in another!

But some of these members of the church of Thyatira were, it seems, so little sensible of their degeneracy, that they boasted of their attainments: they "understood all mysteries," as Paul saith, (1 Cor. xiii. 2,) but "had not charity:" they boasted their acquaintance with "the deep things of God," which they perverted and abused to the "depths of Satan." The sect of Gnostics (or knowing ones, as the word means) is not yet extinct; and we have seen, with much pain, the pleasure which such persons take in supposing themselves wiser than their fellow Christians—that is, generally, in being "wise above what is written." It is not, however, speculation, but faith and obedience only, that can gain the victory; but he that overcometh shall be exalted to a throne, and to a kingdom, like his Lord and Master.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—13. Epistles to the churches of Sardis and Philadelphia.—Sardis was the ancient seat of Crœsus and the Lydian kings, but is now a beggarly village, called Sart, in which seven Christians only were counted a few years ago, and they were not allowed to build a church on the site Ver. 17. The hidden manna.—See John vi. 26, &c.——A white stone.—The ancients used "stones" (calculi) to calculate and vote with, by casting them into an urn. In criminal processes, a white stone implied acquittal, and a black one, condemnation; the Greek theta was sometimes engraved upon the latter, and implied death. White stones are also said to have been given to the victors in the Olympic games, with their names (or initials) engraved on them.——A new name.—When persons were raised to new honours, it was customary to confer a new name. See Gen. xli. 45. 2 Sam. xii. 25. Dan. i. 7. ——Saving he, &c.—i. e. "except he," &c. Compare chap. xix. 12.

---

Ver. 18. Thyatira.—Two grand mistakes have been made relative to this city:—1. Gibbon (the historian) more than insinuates that the church of Thyatira was not founded in the time of St. John; but this has been refuted at large by a learned foreigner, Dr. Stosch: indeed, the foundation of a church may be plainly traced to the conversion of Lydia and her household, of that city, as recorded in Acts xvi. 14, 15. (See Erskine's Sketches of Church Hist.)—2. The other mistake is by Woodhouse, who says, that "at this time no Christians are to be found in the remains of this city;" whereas, by the latest accounts, besides the nine mosques, there is a Greek church and an Armenian, with five or six Christian priests. But in 1816, the Christian inhabitants (Christians in name only, it is to be feared) were reckoned at 3000. The city is called by the Turks Akhisar, (or the white castle,) and is situated on a branch of the Caicus, in an extensive plain, between Pergamos and Sardis, 48 miles S. E. of the former, and 16 hours N. W. of the latter, and about long. 27 49 E. lat. 38 45 N. It consists of about 1000 houses, and 200 or 300 huts, but the streets are narrow and dirty, and every thing marks poverty and degradation.——Like fine brass. —See chap. i. 15.

Ver. 19. And the last to be more than the first.—The reverse of what is said of the Ephesians, ver. 4.

Ver. 20. That woman Jezebel.—The woman here alluded to was the wife of Ahab, and the patroness of idolatry; 1 Kings xvi. 31, &c. Andreas, Bishop of Cesarea, A. D. 500, in a work compiled, as he professes, from the more ancient writings of Irenæus, and others, his predecessors, explains this Jezebel to mean the Nicolaitan heresy; and the venerable Bede gives a like exposition. See Woodhouse

Ver. 21. I gave her space.—Woodhouse, "time."

Ver. 22. Into a bed.—Namely, of deep affliction.

Ver. 23. I will kill.—Literally, "slay with death"—a Hebraism, like Gen. ii 17; or perhaps 'death" may here intend the pestilence, as in chap. vi. 8, and elsewhere.

Ver. 24. Unto you I say, and.—Doddridge, "even"—unto the rest.—But some copies omit the copulative; and so Woodhouse, who includes in a parenthesis the words ("which have not known the depths of Satan, as they speak,") which renders the sense much clearer: and at the word burden, where we have a full stop, he places only a semicolon, which connects the sentence with the next verse. As to the burden here intended, Doddridge, and most others, understand thereby, the doctrines and precepts they had already received: but Lord Barrington (father to the late venerable Bishop of Durham) supposed it to refer to the apostolic decree recorded in Acts xv. 28, 29; and we think there is much probability in this conjecture.

Ver. 25. But.—Woodhouse, "Only"—that which ye have—the doctrines and precepts which ye have (already) hold fast till I come—that is, either in death or judgment.

Ver. 27. And he shall rule them.—This verse, except the last clause, is an evident quotation from Psalm ii. 9; and is, as such, inclosed in a parenthesis both by Doddridge and Woodhouse—verse 26 connecting with verse 27, as follows: "I will give him power over the nations: (.....) even as I have received of my Father."

Ver. 28. I will give him the morning star.—i. e. I will be his light; for Christ assumes this title to himself, chap. xxii. 16.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. Sardis.—[The once proud capital of Lydia, and the residence of its opulent monarchs, is now reduced to a wretched Turkish village called Sart, the habitation of herdsmen, buffaloes, and oxen situated at the foot of mount Tmolus, on the banks of the Pactolus, between 30 and 40 miles east from Smyrna, about long. 28 5 E. and lat. 38 25 N. The ruins of Sardis seven [a] Spirits of God, and the seven stars; I know [b] thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, [c] and art dead.

2 Be watchful, and strengthen [d] the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect [e] before God.

3 Remember [f] therefore how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and [g] repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come on thee as a [h] thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in [i] white: for they are worthy.

5 He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the [j] book of life, but I will confess [k] his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

7 And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write; These things saith he that is [l] holy, he that is [m] true, he that hath the [n] key of David, he that openeth, and no man shutteth; and [o] shutteth, and no man openeth;

A.M. cir. 4100
A.D. cir. 96.

a c 5.6
b c 2.2,&c.
c 1 Ti.5.6.
d c.2.4.
e Da.5.27.
f He.2.1.
g ver.19
h c.16.15.
i c 7.9. 19.8.
j c 17.8.
k Lu.12.8.
l Ac.3.14.
m 1 Jn.5.20.
n Is.22.22.
o Job 12.14.
p 1 Co.16.9.
q c 2.9.
r Is.60.14.
s 2 Pe.2.9.
t Zep 1.14.
u ver.3.
v c.21.2,10.
w or, in Laodicea.
x Is 65.16.

8 I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open [p] door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name.

9 Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say [q] they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to [r] come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

10 Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I [s] also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come [t] quickly: [u] hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new [v] Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

13 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

14 And unto the angel of the church [w] of the Laodiceans write; These things saith the [x] Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God; of the ancient city, but built one on the plain adjacent, where they keep a priest, and have sometimes collected forty hearers. At the time in which this Epistle was addressed to them, they are described as being dead while they lived, which is the description Paul gives of those who live in pleasure, which was probably the case with the inhabitants of this city generally; and partially, with respect to the church itself. "It is bad for the world to be dead, (says Mr. Fuller,) but for the church to be so is worse: this is salt without savour; which is neither fit for the land, nor the dunghill. It is bad for individuals to be dead; but for the body of a church to be so, is deplorable. It is implied, that they were not only destitute of spirituality, but had defiled their garments by worldly conformity.

---

"There had been some good amongst them, or they would not have been called to 'remember how they had received and heard;' and some remains of it might continue. As no complaint is made of false doctrine, it is likely they continued orthodox, and kept up the forms of godliness. There seems to have been something of truth, love, and zeal; but they were, like dying embers, ready to expire.

"Christ admonished them to wake from their supineness, to take the alarm, and to strengthen the things which remained that were ready to die. This is done by each beginning with himself. . . . . The means of recovery from such a state are, 'Remembering how we received and heard' the gospel at the first. [We should] call to remembrance the former days, not to get comfort under our declensions; but to recover those views and sensations, which we had at the beginning of our Christian course. . . . . .

"'The few names which had not defiled their garments,' are highly commended. To walk with God at any time is acceptable to him; and to do this, while others around us are corrupt, is more so. This is being faithful among the faithless. They shall walk with Christ in glory, honour, and purity. With this agrees the promise to them that overcome: 'They shall be clothed in white raiment; and Christ will not blot out their names from the book of life.' The blessed God is represented as keeping a register of his servants; not as elect, nor as redeemed, nor as called; but as his professed followers. When any turn back, their names are blotted out: hence, at the last judgment, it is made the rule of condemnation, 'Whosoever was not found written in the book of life, was cast into the lake of fire.' Some were never there, having never professed to be the followers of Jesus; while others, who had been there, were blotted out: in either case, their names would not be found there. Hence, also, it is the rule of admission into the New Jerusalem." So far Mr. Fuller.

But we hasten to the church of Philadelphia, of which all that is said is commendatory, unmingled with censure or reproof. Yet even these are warned to expect trials and temptations: and guarded against supineness and neglect. "Behold, I come quickly: hold fast that thou hast, that no man take thy crown." There is no state to which we may attain in the present life, that does not require watchfulness and prayer.

The address to the church of Philadelphia is the only one of the seven epistles wholly commendatory—without reproof or censure. The Philadelphia here mentioned is a Greek city, so called, because built by Attalus Philadelphus. It is situated at the foot of mount Tmolus, about 27 miles from Sardis; and was, prior to St. John's time, terribly shaken by earthquakes. It was the last of these cities that fell into the hands of the Turks; and has now more remains of Christianity than either of the others. The Rev. Mr. Lindsay, who visited it in 1816, says there were "about 1000 Christians in it, chiefly Greeks, who, for the most part, speak only Turkish:" also, "25 places of worship, five of which are large regular churches. To these there is a regular bishop, with 20 inferior clergy." Mr. L. gave them a modern Greek Testament, which was thankfully received, and considered as a treasure. (See Orient. Lit. No. 1553.)

The promise of being made pillars in God's temple of the New Jerusalem, implies two ideas:—1. Their firmness and stability. On earth, the strongest pillars may give way; some conqueror may overturn the building, and carry them off, as was the case with those of the first and second temple, in the days of Nebuchadnezzar and the Romans: so, figuratively, no less a pillar in the church than Peter, once gave way; and those who did not, were all removed by death. But when planted in the New Jerusalem, they "shall go no more out" for ever. —2. They are monumental pillars, and inscribed with "Grace, Grace," on every side. "I will write on him the name of my God—of the city of my God—and my new name;" all which are expressions of the goodness and mercy of God to sinners. The inscription of these names doubtless implies the enrolment of the conquerors as citizens of the heavenly world; and a record of their victory, "by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony."

> "Who then shall conquer? Who maintain the fight?
> Even they who walk by faith, and not by sight;
> Who, having wash'd their robes, and made them white,
> Press toward the mark, and see the promis'd land,
> Not dim and distantly, but near at hand."—Jane Taylor.

Ver. 14—22. Epistle to the church of Laodicea.—This church, and that of Colosse, were, in the time of Paul, sister are peculiarly grand, and lift up their heads, as if to assert their ancient glory; but it now contains not a single Christian family.]—Bagster.——The seven Spirits of God.—See note on chap. i. 4, 20.——And—Doddridge, "But"—art dead.—Maimonides states, that it was proverbially said among the Jews, "that the wicked are dead while they are alive." Philo says, "He who lives a life of sin . . . . . his soul is dead, and even buried, in his lusts and passions." See Woodhouse. Compare 1 Tim. v. 6.

---

Ver. 3. Come on thee as a thief.—See 1 Thess. v. 1—7.

Ver. 4. A few names—i. e. names enrolled in the book of life; verse 5.—— Shall walk with me in white.—White robes were constantly worn on occasions of festivity, joy, or victory.

Ver. 5. I will not blot.—Doddridge says, "I think this plainly implies, that some names shall be blotted out from the book of life; and, consequently, as nothing can occasion an alteration of the decrees of God, I think it proves that the book of life does not signify the catalogue of those whom God has absolutely purposed to save.——I will confess his name.—Compare Mat. x. 32.

Ver. 7. Philadelphia—[So called from its founder, Attalus Philadelphus, still exists in the town called Allah-Shehr, "the city of God,"—"a column in a scene of ruins." It is situated on the slopes of three or four hills, the roots of mount Tmolus, by the river Cogamus, 27 miles E. S. E. from Sardis, about long. 28 40, lat. 38 23. The number of houses is said to be about 3,000, of which 250 are Greek, the rest Turkish; and the Christians have 25 places of worship, 5 of them large and regular churches, a resident bishop, and 20 inferior clergy.]—B.——He that is holy, he that is true.—Doddridge, "The Holy one, the True One."——The key of David.—This represents the Saviour as steward of the family of God. See Isa. xxii. 22. Heb. iii. 2, 3.

Ver. 8 An open door—That is, have given thee a sphere of usefulness which none can hinder.

Ver. 9. Synagogue of Satan—i. e. unbelieving and persecuting Jews. See chap. ii. 9.—— Worship before thy feet—That is, to acknowledge my protecting hand over thee.

Ver. 12. A pillar—That is, he shall have an abiding residence in God's tem-

15 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would [y] thou wert cold or hot.

16 So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth.

17 Because thou sayest, I [z] am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked:

18 I counsel thee to buy [a] of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness [b] do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eye-salve, that thou mayest see.

19 As [c] many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent.

20 Behold, I stand at the door, and [d] knock: [e] if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 To him that overcometh [f] will I grant to sit [g] with me in my throne, even as I also [h] overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

22 He [i] that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

A. M. cir. 4100
A. D. cir. 96.

y 1Ki.18.21.
x Ho.12.8.
a Is.55.1.
b c 16.15.
c He.12.5,6.
d Ca.5.2. Lu.12.36.
e Jn.14.23.
f 1Jn.5.4,5. c 12.11.
g Lu.22.30.
h Jn 16.33.
i c.2.7.
a c 1.10
b c.11.12.
c Eze.3.12. 14. c.17.3. 21.10.
d Is 6.1. Jc.17.12. Eze.1.26, 28. e Da.7.9. He.8.1.
f c 11.16.
g c.3.4,5.

CHAPTER IV.

2 John seeth the throne of God in heaven. 4 The four and twenty elders. 6 The four beasts full of eyes before and behind. 10 The elders lay down their crowns, and worship him that sat on the throne.

AFTER this I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the first voice [a] which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come [b] up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter.

2 And immediately I was in [c] the Spirit: and, behold, a throne [d] was set in heaven, and one [e] sat on the throne.

3 And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

4 And round about the throne were four and twenty [f] seats: and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white [g] rai-churches, (Col. ii. 1,) and, it has been supposed, were, in John's time, united. The city of Laodicea bordered on the river Lycus, and had been before, and was, probably, in John's time, rich and flourishing; so completely, however, have been fulfilled the awful threatenings of the Chief and Head of God's creation, in case of their not repenting, (as they evidently did not,) that, of the city, nothing remains but ruins, and of Christianity, not a vestige. "The prayers of the mosque (says Mr. Lindsay) are the only prayers heard near the ruins of Laodicea, on which the threat seems to have been fully executed, in its utter rejection as a church." (Orient. Lit. No. 1554.)

Our attention is here called to the awful state of this church, and to the offers of mercy here made to them.

1. As the Philadelphian church was commended without an abating circumstance, so is the Laodicean church censured without a circumstance of palliation. It is described as lukewarm, neither hot nor cold; and, therefore, nauseating as an emetic. This is the charge of "the faithful and true witness." Mr. Fuller remarks, "They may be said to be cold who have no religion, and pretend to none; and they to be hot, who are zealously engaged in Christ's work: but these people were neither this nor that. They were not decidedly religious, and yet would not let religion alone." Like Israel in the days of Elijah, they were halting between two opinions. "To halt between truth and error, God and the world, is worse, in many respects, than to be openly irreligious. . . . . No man thinks the worse of religion for what he sees in the openly profane; but it is otherwise in respect of religious professors. If he that nameth the name of Christ depart not from iniquity, the honour of Christ is affected by his misconduct."

These men, however, it appears, were wealthy and proud, and (as often is the case with such) withal very ignorant. With such men, to be rich, is almost every thing which they can desire; but with Christ it is, on the other hand, a great impediment to happiness. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!" (Mark x. 23.)

Difficult as this is, however, it is not impossible. Let but a man be convinced of his spiritual poverty and wretchedness—that he is miserable and blind and naked—and here is the offer of the true gold to enrich him, white raiment to clothe him, and mental eye-salve to open the eyes of his understanding. Nor is this all: these blessings are not only offered, but urged. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man shall hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him and sup with him." When Christ comes to be a guest, he always brings his provisions with him, and therefore it is added, "And he with me:" in which it is evident enough, that he alludes to the enjoyment of the heavenly state. "To him that overcometh," it is added, "will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne." Here is counsel!—here is warning!—here is encouragement!—"He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches!"

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—11. Vision of the celestial throne, and the worshippers around it.—A grand scene presents itself before us: a door is opened in heaven—a trumpet sounds the invitation, and the Divine is instantly wrapped in prophetic vision, and carried up to heaven—whether "in the body or out of the body," (as St. Paul says, 2 Cor. xii. 3,) we cannot tell, and perhaps he could not. The scene was, however, ineffably sublime and magnificent, strongly resembling the visions of Isaiah, chap. vi., and the opening of the prophecy of Ezekiel. A throne of infinite magnificence is seen in heaven, and One is seated thereon. In other instances, a glorious human form appears, no doubt meaning the Son of God, the only suitable representative of the Father: but as Christ was now to appear in a very different form (that of a lamb) before the eternal throne, he, of course, could not be seated on it. The only appearance exhibited of the divine Father is that of a glory indescribable. The precious stones here named were, the one pellucid as the light, and the other brilliant as the flame; and emblematically represent that God, who is light without a shade of darkness, and a flame purer than the radiant sun. To enhance, if possible, the grandeur of the scene, from this flaming throne proceed the forked lightnings, the rolling thunders, and other sounds of terror; while the seven lambent flames, representing the Spirit of God, are burning before it. But to soften down all this glory to human bearance, a rainbow is spread around the throne, with all the sweet and temperate radiance of an emerald. If any object could add to the majesty of this scenery, it is obvious it must be a view of the mighty ocean—and here the ocean rolls beneath the Creator's feet, not turbid, nor boisterous, but smooth as glass and clear as crystal.

These objects are doubtless all emblematical. Light and fire are the established emblems of the divine purity and justice; the emerald rainbow is the well-known symbol of covenanted mercy; and the sea of glass may represent the infinite depth of the divine counsels and decrees.

The throne is evidently supposed to be semicircular, and the worshipping hosts of saints and angels are arranged in another semicircle, in the front; forming together an immense magnificent amphitheatre, with a sea of glass or crystal in the centre, on or over which, we are disposed to consider as placed the four mysterious living creatures, whose nature and employment we must now consider, in relation to the visions of Isaiah and Ezekiel, above referred to. We interpreted the latter exhibition as representing the machinery of divine Providence in the government of the world, by means of an infinite variety of agents, spiritual and material. The cherubim of Ezekiel are attended by prodigious wheels, full of eyes, guided by these living creatures; here the wheels are omitted, but the living creatures themselves are represented full of eyes, "before and behind," that is, all over. Thus, though the wheels are here omitted, (the throne now being stationary,) the symbols of intelligence are not wanting. What these living creatures (improperly called beasts) are here intended to signify, is not easy to determine. They answer to the description of the cherubim and seraphim under the Old Testament, ple above, and for ever remain a monument of his grace.—The New Jerusalem.—See Gal. iv. 26. Heb. xi. 10—16.

Ver. 16. I will spew.—Doddridge, "cast." Woodhouse, "nauseate."

Ver. 18. I counsel thee to buy.—See Isa. lv. 1, 4.—Gold tried in the fire.—See 1 Peter i. 7.—And white raiment—"which is the righteousness of the saints." Chap. xix. 8.

Ver 19. As many as I love.—Compare Heb. xii. 5—12.

Ver. 20. Sup—"The kingdom of Christ is described as a feast. He is the bridegroom, and his servants sit in his house to a late hour, waiting his arrival; when returning from the wedding, according to Eastern custom, he knocketh, and they open to him, and he maketh them sit down to meat."—Woodhouse. See Luke xii. 36, &c.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1. The first voice.—The Greek, (Phone,) signifies any kind of sound, and is applied to the roaring of waters, chap. xix. 6.—Things which must be hereafter.—Doddridge, "Shall be afterwards." Woodhouse, "must happen after these." Compare chap i. 19.

Ver. 2. I was in the Spirit.—[In an ecstasy or trance; and the natural use of his faculties being suspended, his mind was supernaturally impressed with the ideas suited to illustrate the subjects they were employed to reveal. It should not therefore be supposed, that the objects afterwards mentioned have a real existence in heaven; being merely visionary emblems, suited to give instruction to the Apostle and his readers.]—Bagster.

Ver. 3. A jasper and a sardine stone.—The jasper, according to Woodhouse, is a pellucid gem, variously coloured; and the sardine, of a fiery tinge; the emerald is of a green hue.—A rainbow round about.—A rainbow is always considered as a semicircle—which here must be supposed to surround the throne as a glory.

Ver. 4. Round about the throne—i. e. round the front of it: so, when we speak of surrounding the throne of a prince, the chair of a public teacher, or the bed of a sick friend, we never mean behind them.—Seats.—Doddridge, "thrones." These, as we understand it, formed a semicircle in front of the throne, but of course below it.

ment; and they had on their heads crowns [h] of gold.

5 And out of the throne proceeded [i] lightnings and thunderings and voices: and there were seven [j] lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven [k] Spirits of God.

6 And before the throne there was a sea [l] of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four [m] beasts full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

8 And the four beasts had each of them six [n] wings about him; and they were full of eyes within: and they [o] rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

9 And when those beasts give glory and honour and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who [p] liveth for ever and ever,

10 The four and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns [q] before the throne, saying,

11 Thou art [r] worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: [s] for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

h ver.10.
i c.8.5. 16.18.
j Ge.15.17. Ex.3.2,3. Zec.4.2
k c.1.4.
l c.15.2.
m Eze.1.5, &c. 10.14
n Is.6.2,&c. o have no rest.
p c.5.14.
q ver.4.
r c.5.12
s Col.1.16

a Exo.2.9, 10.
b Is.29.11.
c Ge.49.9, 10. Num.24.9 Ho.7.14.
d Is.11.1,10. c.22.16.
e Is.53.7. Jo.1.29,36
f Zec.4.10.
g c.4.4,8,10.

CHAPTER V.

1 The book sealed with seven seals: 9 which only the Lamb that was slain is worthy to open. 12 Therefore the elders praise him, 9 and all confess that he redeemed them with his blood.

AND I saw on the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book [a] written within and on the backside, [b] sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?

3 And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not: behold, the Lion [c] of the tribe of Juda, the Root [d] of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

6 And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a [e] Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven [f] eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

7 And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the book, the four [g] beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them and we have (on Ezek. chap. i.) supposed their animal forms to represent the qualities of courage, patience, penetration, and benevolence; but whether they form a distinct order of celestial intelligences, or whether they be merely emblematical beings, we presume not to decide. There is no doubt an infinite variety in celestial, as well as in terrestrial beings. These are plainly distinguished from the elders, whom we consider as representatives of the church of God, under both dispensations; and from the great body of angels, which seems to form the outer circle round the throne; and that they are not the representatives of Deity, as some have supposed, is certain, from their worshipping before the throne.

From the part, however, that these hieroglyphical beings take in celebrating redeeming love, many (perhaps the majority of) commentators consider them as representing men rather than angels. This question may be farther considered in the next chapter; in the mean time we remark, that all the beings in heaven, as well as the saints on earth, take a most lively interest in Christ's redemption, and unite with sacred ardour in his praise.

> "'Worthy the Lamb that died,' they cried,
> To be exalted thus:'
> 'Worthy the Lamb,' our lips reply,
> For he was slain for us.'"—Watts.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1—14. A sealed book is exhibited, which the Lamb prevails to open, and receives the praises of the universe.—We must guard against supposing the book seen in the right hand of the Almighty in any degree resembling our modern books. The books of the ancients were generally, as this was in particular, composed of skins of parchment rolled together. "Conceive (says Mr. Fuller) of seven skins of parchment, written upon one side, and rolled up, suppose on wood. At the end of every skin a seal is affixed on the back [or out] side, so that the contents of it cannot be read till the seal is opened," or broken; and every fresh seal that is opened, or broken, we may add, as it liberates a fresh sheet, or skin, will be found to contain the delineation of a new scene, till the whole are exhibited to the prophet's view. This book being understood to contain the fates both of the church and of the world, must naturally excite an intense interest; and St. John being promised an insight into futurity, of course felt regret and disappointment on finding that the book was sealed up from view; and its being in the hands of the Almighty, plainly intimated that the knowledge of future events is the prerogative of God.

A mighty angel now comes forward, to demand if there were any one able or worthy to break the seals, and to open the book to view; but, alas! no one was found in heaven or earth, who was able or worthy to perform the task, which was emblematical, and implied a worthiness to be admitted into the secret decrees of the Almighty, and ability to put them in execution. One of the elders observing our apostle weep, consoles him with the information, that there is one person coming forward, whose merits were equal to the honour, and his abilities to the work. "The Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root (as well as offspring) of David," he is worthy—he is able. The apostle looks with eagerness to see this "Lion," and, behold, the appearance of "a Lamb—a lamb as it had been slain:" even "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world." (John i. 29.)

Of this Lamb it is distinctly noted, that he had "seven horns and seven eyes," that is, a fulness both of power and of knowledge, in consequence of the Holy Spirit being communicated to him without measure. (John iii. 34.) But it is in consequence of his sufferings and atonement, that the Son of God is exalted to the government of the church and of the world—of earth and heaven. (Phil. ii. 7—11.)

> "His providence unfolds the book,
> And makes his counsels shine,
> Each opening leaf, and every stroke,
> Fulfils some great design.
> There he exalts neglected worms,
> To sceptres and a crown.
> Anon, he turns the following leaf,
> And treads the monarch down."—Watts's Lyrics.

Ver. 5. Lamps of fire.—Not lamp-bearers, as in chap. i. 12, but the lights themselves.—The seven spirits of God.—See chap. i. 4.

Ver. 6. A sea of glass.—This we suppose to have been in the area, between the throne and the worshipping hosts in front. Woodhouse supposes this an allusion to the brazen sea in the court of the temple; and that it represented the purifying efficacy of the blood of Christ.—Four beasts.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "living creatures." The former says, "It was a most unhappy mistake in our translators, to render the word (zoa) 'beasts.' The word beast not only degrades the signification, but the animals here mentioned have parts and appearances which beasts have not, (as wings, &c.) and are represented as in the highest sense rational."

Ver. 7. The first beast (living creature) was like a lion.—Some of the Rabbies (as Aben Ezra) have represented the form of these creatures as borrowed from the standards of the camp of Israel; but of this, Lowman thinks there is very little evidence, (as does also Woodhouse;) and Witsius thinks the notion is ridiculous.—Like a calf.—Woodhouse, "a steer, or young bullock;" which last is unquestionably the true meaning. See Schleusner.

Ver. 8. Each of them six wings about him.—Woodhouse alters the punctuation thus: "And the four living creatures, having each of them six wings, are full of eyes around and within."—And they rest not—i. e. they are perpetually moving, (as is usual with winged creatures,) and continually praising.—Holy, holy, holy, &c.—See Isa. vi. 2, 3.

Ver. 9, 10. And when those beasts (or living creatures) give glory . . . . . the elders fall down, &c. . . . . and cast their crowns, &c.—Though these Christian conquerors are exalted upon thrones, they are to be considered only as tributary princes, casting all their honours at the feet of their Redeemer.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1. Written within and on the back side, sealed, &c.—Grotius, Lowman, Fuller, &c. remove the comma thus: "Written within, and on the back (or outside) sealed," &c. We suppose there might be seven sheets or skins of parchment; the first rolled (as was common) on a piece of wood and sealed, a second rolled and sealed on this, a third on that, and so forth, till all were sealed; the opening of each seal would then liberate one skin, containing the delineation of a distinct scene.

Ver. 3. And no man.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "no one." So in ver. 4.

Ver. 4. To look thereon.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "into it"—or "therein."

Ver. 5. The Lion of the tribe of Juda.—See Gen. xlix. 9, 10.—The root of David.—See chap. xxii. 16; and compare Isa. xi. 10.

Ver. 6. In the midst of the throne, &c.—i. e. in the front of it, between that and the sea of glass.—A Lamb.—[An emblematical representation of our Saviour's high priesthood.—Seven horns.—As a horn is the emblem of power, and seven the number of perfection, the seven horns may denote the almighty power of Jesus Christ.—Seven eyes.—His infinite knowledge and wisdom; and especially "the treasures of wisdom" laid up in him to be communicated to the church by "the seven Spirits of God," i. e. the Holy Spirit.] —Bagster.

Ver. 8. And when he had taken.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "received."—The four beasts.—[As it is evident, that "the four living creatures" join in, or rather lead, the worship of the Lamb, as "having redeemed them to [h] harps, and golden vials full of [i] odours, which are the prayers [j] of saints.

9 And they sung a new [k] song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy [l] blood out of every [m] kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;

10 And hast made us unto our God [n] kings and priests: and we shall [o] reign on the earth.

11 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders: and [p] the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands;

12 Saying with a loud voice, [q] Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

13 And [r] every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, [s] Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

14 And [t] the four beasts said, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

h c.15.2.
i or, incense.
j Ps.141.2.
k c.14.3.
l Ac.20.28. Ep.1.7. He.9.12. 1 Pe.1.18, 19.
m c.7.9.
n c.1.6.
o c.22.5.
p Da.7.10. He.12.22.
q c.4.11.
r Phi.2.10.
s 1 Ch.29.11. 1 Ti.6.16. 1 Pe.4.11.
t c.19.4.
a c.5.5.
b Zec.6.3, &c. c Ps.45.3..5

CHAPTER VI.

The opening of the seals in order, and what followed thereupon, containing a prophecy to the end of the world.

AND I saw when the Lamb opened one of the [a] seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see.

2 And I saw, and behold a white [b] horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth [c] conquering, and to conquer.

3 And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see.

4 And there went out another horse that was red: and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 And when he had opened the third seal, I

The anthem which here follows, is sublime beyond expression or comparison; and no paraphrase could heighten the intense interest which the simple narrative excites. Two or three remarks, however, may be offered by way of exposition. The common notion, of these living creatures bearing harps and cups of incense, is so inconsistent with scenic propriety, that, after making every allowance for the boldness of the oriental imagery, we confess that we could not avoid suspecting some mistake in the general interpretation of this passage, even before we met with the critical remark of Dr. Woodhouse, which confines the harps and vials, and consequently the subsequent anthem, (ver. 9 and 10,) to the twenty-four elders; these mysterious beings, the living creatures, joining only in the general chorus, with their Amen in the close of all, (ver. 14.) So neither in the preceding, nor the following chapters, do they claim the peculiar character of the redeemed, though in all cases they unite in adoring the Redeemer. (See chap. iv. 8, 9; vii. 11, 12; xix. 4.)

On the admirable anthem here recited, Mr. Fuller judiciously remarks, that all the ascriptions of praise have a particular reference to the Saviour's condescension and humility, in becoming man, and suffering as such. He made himself poor, and of no reputation; he took upon him the form of a servant, and suffered every kind of ignominy, as well as pain; and therefore do they ascribe to him "power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing!"

We must not leave this subject without remarking, how forcibly these passages tell in favour of the proper Deity of our Saviour. So remarks the late Pres. Dwight, "Christ receives the praises of the heavenly host, both singly and in conjunction with the Father; but (he adds) never unites in them. . . . . The only part ever attributed to Christ, is to be united [with the Father] in receiving the ascription." "Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth on the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever. Amen."

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1—8. The first four seals opened.—We come now to the part of the book properly prophetic: we freely admit, however, the retrospective remark of Mr. Fuller, (quoted on ch. i. 9, &c.,) that the events commence from, or soon after, the death of Christ. Thus we reckon the date of the first seal from the day of Pentecost. Then was the prayer of the Jewish church gloriously fulfilled: "Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty; with thy glory and thy majesty. . . . . Thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things: thine arrows shall be sharp in the heart of the King's enemies." (Ps. xlv. ver. 3—5.) And thus was the accomplishment:—"When the Lamb had opened one [i. e. the first] of the seals, I heard (says the apostle) as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four living creatures saying, Come and see." "And I saw, (adds he,) and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow," (and consequently arrows;) "and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer." Nothing could more happily describe the success of the gospel during the apostolic ages, and for some years afterwards. White horses were often employed in war, and were the pride of conquerors. The spread of the gospel during this period was truly wonderful. Paul himself preached it, as he says, "From Jerusalem round about unto Illyricum," and "God always caused them to triumph in every place."—"The Cæsars (says Mr. Fuller) set themselves against it; yet, in spite of all their efforts, there were saints in Cæsar's household." This excellent expositor adds—"The epistles of Pliny and Tiberianus, governors of Asia Minor and Syria, to Trajan the emperor, within ten or twelve years after the banishment of John to the isle of Patmos, furnish a striking and unexceptionable proof of the progress of the gospel in those times. By the amazing number of persons who avowed themselves Christians, and so exposed themselves to death, they were moved with compassion, and wrote to know what they were to do with them. 'The number is so great, (says Pliny,) as to call for the most serious deliberation. Informations are pouring in against multitudes, of every age, of all orders, and of both sexes: and more will be impeached; for the contagion of this superstition [meaning Christianity] hath spread, not only through cities, but villages, and hath even reached the farm-houses.' He also speaks of the temples as having been almost desolate: the sacred solemnities [of idolatry] as having been intermitted, and the sacrificial victims as finding but few purchasers. 'I am quite wearied (says Tiberianus) with punishing and destroying the Galileans.'"

Thus numerous were the Christians at the beginning of the second century, and Christianity continued to spread, notwithstanding the violence of Jewish and Gentile persecution and the insidious arts of Pagan philosophers and heretics throughout the far greater part of the three first centuries.

The second seal is opened, and "a red horse" appears, as the emblem of war and bloodshed; and to make this the more clear, to him that sat thereon was given "a great sword," as emblematical of his power to take peace from the earth:" and if there ever was a war to which this prediction was more especially applicable, it was that between the Jews and the Romans. On Mat. xxiv., we have cited the testimony of Josephus, that full a million of Jews perished in Jerusalem, beside 250,000 in the provinces; 97,000 were sold, or carried away captive, and many others perished miserably by pestilence or famine. These, like the events of the preceding seal, are retrospective; but they were the sufferings of the Jews only, and even to them a part only of their sorrows. Of the loss sustained by the Romans in this contest, we have no estimate, but certainly the carnage was in a great measure mutual; they destroyed one another; and so extensive was the destruction, that thereby peace was banished from the earth.

But though we include these events under this seal, we do not confine it to them. About forty or fifty years after this event, the Jews in Egypt and in Cyprus made an insurrection, and slew 460,000 men: yet the Jews being every where subdued, a greater number must have been slain among themselves. Not long after this, during the first half of the second century, the Jews in Palestine were drawn into a new rebellion by Barchocab, one of their false Messiahs, and are said to have lost 580,000 men, with the destruction of a thousand of their towns and fortresses. But what, it may be asked, has this to do with the history of the church, which is the great subject of the prophetic Scriptures? We reply, "Much every way."

1. We have an express and most remarkable fulfilment of our Lord's predictions relative to the destruction of Jerusalem and the Jews, as above-mentioned. 2. We have a striking exam-

---

God," it proves that part of the redeemed church is meant by this emblem, and not angels, whose worship is next described in very different language.] —Bagster.——Having every one of them—i. e. of the elders—harps, &c.—Woodhouse remarks, "The harps, as well as the vials of incense, seem to belong to the elders only, not to the cherubim, to whose form they cannot accommodate, and whose figures were not seen distinctly. Besides, the masculine pronoun (ekastos) 'every one,' directs this interpretation." Witsius has the like remark.——And golden vials.—"The vial of the Old Testament appears to have been a sort of patera, or basin, in which were deposited before the altar the offerings of meal, or of incense." These should not be confounded with the modern vials of apothecaries.——Full of odours.—Woodhouse, "incense."

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1. One of the four beasts—Rather, "living creatures," as before; and so throughout the chapter, except in ver. 8.

Ver. 2. A white horse.—That the nature and character of public events may be represented by different coloured horses, see Zech. i. 8—11; vi. 2, 3, 6, 7. The rider on the first horse certainly represents Christ, as in Rev. xix. 11—14.

heard the third beast say, Come and see. And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, [d] A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou [e] hurt not the oil and the wine.

7 And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see.

8 And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given [f] unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill [g] with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar [h] the souls [i] of them that were slain for [j] the word of God, and for the testimony which they held:

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How [k] long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge [l] our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And white [m] robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest [n] yet for a little season, until [o] their fellow-servants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled.

12 And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great [p] earthquake; and the sun [q] became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood;

13 And the stars [r] of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her [s] untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind.

14 And the heaven [t] departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every [u] mountain and island were moved out of their places.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains,

A. M. cir. 4100. A. D. cir. 96.

d The word Chœnix signifieth a measure containing one wine quart, and the twelfth part of a quart.
e c.9.4.
f or, to him
g Eze.14.21.
h c.8.3.
i c.20.4.
j c.1.9. 12.17.
k Zec.1.12.
l De.32.41., 43. c.11.18.
m c.7.9.14.
n c.14.13.
o He.11.40
p c.16.18.
q Joel 2.10, 31. 3.15. Mat.24. 29.
r c.8.10.
s or, green.
t Ps.102.26. Is.34.4.
u Je.4.23, 24. Ha.3.6,10 c.16.20.

ple of the manner in which the God of Providence corrects and punishes one nation by means of another. Thus the Romans were punished by the Jews for their idolatry; and the Jews by the Romans, for their infidelity and rejection of the true Messiah, and the persecution of his followers. 3. We see how vain and how dangerous it is for mortals to oppose the designs of Providence, especially when they persecute the church of God. The Jews were the bitterest persecutors the church ever had, and all their enmity was levelled against the Son of God himself; they would "not have this man to reign over them." And what was the consequence? He ruled them, as had been predicted, "with a rod (or sceptre) of iron:" and with that sceptre he "dashed them in pieces as a potter's vessel," and scattered them to the four winds of heaven. The Pagan Romans opposed Christianity, and were in like manner dashed to pieces by the barbarians around them.

Our readers will perceive, that we do not think it necessary to place these seals in absolute succession to each other. Though the events prefigured did not commence nor close together, yet in some points, probably, most, or all of them, were contemporary. The success of the gospel went on during all the varied calamities of the Jews, and misfortunes of the Romans; yea, and during all the persecutions of both: nothing could stop the march of the gospel, till it attained the full extent predicted.

The opening of the third and fourth seals will require but little enlargement. The rider on the black horse carries a pair of balances in his hand, and proclaims such a state of scarcity, that a man with the labour of his hands should be able only to procure the scanty daily provision of corn allowed to a slave, without any surplus for his family. Mr. Lowman interprets this of the scarcity which prevailed in the time of the Antonines, from about A.D. 138 to 193; arising, no doubt, from unfavourable seasons and bad management; but more, perhaps, from the horrible devastations of war, which spares not even the fruits of the earth.

The imagery of the fourth seal is still more terrible—it is "Death upon the pale horse!" and followed by hell, or the terrors of the invisible world—by famine, pestilence, and wild beasts:—the "four sore judgments" of God mentioned by Ezekiel, chap. xiv. 21.

Here, then, it should seem, the first four seals (at least) must have been contemporary; for the gospel continued to advance with triumph, amidst all the horrors of war, and famine, and pestilence, and death. In the third century, all these evils were combined. Mr. Lowman says, that now "The state of the empire was very much disturbed with foreign wars and intestine troubles; very few of the emperors but met with a violent death; so that, besides thirty persons who all pretended to the empire at once, there were twenty acknowledged emperors in the space of sixty years, from A.D. 211 to 270. These intestine divisions gave great heart and strength to the enemies of the Roman empire, and great advantages to the Persians and the Northern armies against it.... St. Cyprian, in his apology for the Christians to Demetrius, proconsul of Africa, takes notice of the more frequent wars and famines of those times, that they were falsely charged upon the Christians.... [and] expressly declares, that these great calamities were according to former predictions; and brought upon the world, not because the Christians rejected idolatrous Roman worship, but because the Romans rejected the worship of the true God." Mr. Lowman adds, from Zosimus, and other authorities, that in the middle of the third century, "a plague infested the provinces, which, beginning in Ethiopia, spread itself almost through the whole East and West, destroyed the inhabitants of many cities, and continued for fifteen years.... [which produced] so great a destruction of men, as had not hitherto ever happened."

The writer is well aware, that in referring these predictions to temporal events, he may incur the censure of some modern expositors of great name and merit, who would confine these prophecies principally (if not wholly) to the "fates and fortunes of the Christian church;" but he begs it to be considered, 1. That while the church is in the world, it must be deeply implicated in its "fates and fortunes." Christians, as such, have no exemptions from the wars, and famines, and plagues, which visit others, though it is certain they have peculiar supports, and finally, an abundant compensation.—2. It is admitted that the Old Testament prophets, and particularly Daniel, describe largely "the fates and fortunes" of the world, as well as of the church. And, 3. that as it was necessary for Daniel to describe the rise and fall of the four monarchies, in order to introduce the kingdom of Messiah; so the "fates and fortunes" of the Roman empire, both Pagan and Papal, must be decided, prior to the final triumphs of Christianity in the Millennium.

Ver. 9—17. The opening of the fifth and sixth seals, bringing us to the fall of Paganism, and establishment of Christianity.—The fifth seal opens a scene of persecution, and gives us a view of it very different from the representation of worldly historians and politicians. They think that the great and the mighty have a right to think and to judge for all others: so that, if subjects be ever so virtuous, they deserve even to die if they presume to think differently from their sovereign. So the enlightened Pliny was clearly of opinion, that no punishment could be too great for those who dared to resist,

Ver. 5. A pair of balances.—Doddridge has it "scales."—But Woodhouse renders it, "a yoke;" and so it is rendered in all other places of the New Testament, except this; but the word (Zugos) is often used by the LXX. in the sense of balances or scales; as for instance, in Prov. xvi. 11. Isa. xl. 12, 15; xlvi. 6. If, however, we were to render the word in the primary sense of "a yoke," we should consider it as a symbol of slavery, which would be quite as consistent with what follows.

Ver. 6. A measure—Gr. chœnix; the value of which is not exactly ascertained, farther than that it was the usual daily allowance of provision for a slave; while a penny, or Roman Denarius, (equal to about 15 cents,) was the usual daily pay of a labouring man. So that this may intimate the world being reduced to a state of bodily and mental slavery, as well as to one of poverty and want. See Ezek. iv. 16. A Denarius is said to have been the ordinary price of a bushel of wheat, equal to eight times the chœnix.—Hurt not the oil and the wine.—This seems to intimate, that the scarcity would fall heavier upon the necessaries of life, than on its luxuries: that the rich would take care of themselves, and neglect the poor.

Ver. 8. Hell.—Gr. Hades, or the invisible state. See chap. i. 18, and note.—With hunger, and with death.—Woodhouse, "By famine, and by pestilence." To the same effect, Doddridge.—With the beasts—Gr. (therion) "wild beasts"—a very different word from that we have rendered "living creatures."

Ver. 9. Them that were slain.—Doddridge, "slaughtered." Woodhouse, "sacrificed."

Ver. 10. Avenge our blood.—[This seal seems a prediction of the terrible persecution of the church under Diocletian and Maximian, from A. D. 270 to 304, which lasted longer, and was far more bloody, than any or all by which it was preceded, whence it was called "the era of the martyrs."]—Bagster.

Ver. 11. A little season.—Doddridge, "while." Woodhouse, "yet a time."

Ver. 12. A great earthquake, &c.—Rather, says Newton, a great concussion, comprehending heaven as well as earth. See Haggai ii. 6, 21. By such metaphors, as Sir I. Newton has observed, the prophets are accustomed to describe great revolutions among the empires of the world; and in very similar language our Lord himself predicted the destruction of Jerusalem, as well as the final renovation of the earth itself. See Isa. xxxiv. 4. Joel iv. 10. Mat. xxiv. 29. [This was an emblem of great revolutions in the civil and religious state of the world, attended by vast commotions of every kind; and represents the total subversion of the persecuting power by the victories of Constantine, and by his accession to the imperial throne, and the entire and universal change which took place at that time, from A. D. 304 to 323. The great lights of the heathen world were eclipsed and obscured,—the heathen emperors and Cesars were slain, the heathen priests and augurs extirpated, and heathen officers and magistrates removed, the heathen temples demolished, and their revenues appropriated to better uses.]—Bagster.

Ver. 13. The stars of heaven fell.—Doddridge, "The stars fell from heaven."

Ver. 14. As a scroll—i. e. a sheet of parchment, which rolls up of itself, especially when exposed to the heat of fire.

Ver. 15. The great men.—Doddridge, "grandees."—Every bondman. Doddridge "slave."—In the dens.—Doddridge "caves."

and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves [v] in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains;

16 And said [w] to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb:

17 For [x] the great day of his wrath is come; and who [y] shall be able to stand?

CHAPTER VII.

3 An angel sealeth the servants of God in their foreheads. 4 The number of them that were sealed: of the tribes of Israel a certain number. 9 Of all other nations an innumerable multitude, which stand before the throne, clad in white robes, and palms in their hands. 14 Their robes were washed in the blood of the Lamb.

AND after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds [a] of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

v Is.2.19.

w Ho.10.8. Lu.23.30. c.9.6.

x Is.13.6, &c. Zep.1.14, &c. c.16.14

y Ps 76.7.

a Da.7.2.

b 2 Ti 2 19.

c c.6.6.

d Eze 9.4.

e c.22.4.

f c.14.1.

2 And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal [b] of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea,

3 Saying, Hurt [c] not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have [d] sealed the servants of our God in their [e] foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed a hundred and forty and four [f] thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 Of the tribe of Juda were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand.

6 Of the tribe of Aser were sealed twelve

---

in any case, the emperor's demands. (See Pliny's Epistles, book x. lett. 97, 98.)

The scene before us, like several others in this book, is evidently borrowed from the Jewish temple. It presents us with the altar of burnt-offerings, which stood just within the entrance to the court. But instead of the appointed sacrifices, behold, it streams with human blood! and instead of the bones of those legal victims, behold the souls of the martyrs who had been sacrificed—not, indeed, to God, but for his cause—victims to Jewish and Pagan cruelty, lie under the altar, as it were, crying to Heaven for vengeance!

"The souls under the altar, (says Mr. Fuller,) are the departed spirits of those Christians who had fallen in the arduous contest, which are supposed to cry aloud for retribution . . . . The answer to their appeal, in which they are encouraged to expect a retribution, after a little season, when the number of their fellow-servants and brethren, who should be killed as they were, by the hands of Paganism, should be fulfilled, determines the period to which the vision refers." Mr. Fuller supposes, that they had now suffered under nine of the ten persecutions, (so called,) and were to wait for the completion of their number under the tenth; and that being accomplished, God would take vengeance on their persecutors for all their cruelty. The opening of this seal, therefore, may be referred to about A. D. 275, when the ninth persecution (which was but short) was ended, and the tenth, under Diocletian and Maximilian, was drawing near. This persecution, which began in or about 303, was both more sanguinary and more extensive than any of the preceding: its avowed object being nothing short of the utter extirpation of Christianity. The places of Christian worship were every where demolished, bibles destroyed, and an immense number of Christians martyred. "It were endless and almost incredible, (says Mr. Echard,) to enumerate the variety of sufferers and torments: they were scourged to death, had their flesh torn off with pincers, and mangled with broken pots; were cast to lions, tigers, and other wild beasts; were burnt, beheaded, crucified, thrown into the sea, torn in pieces by the distorted boughs of trees, roasted by gentle fires, and holes made in their bodies for melted lead to be poured into their bowels. This persecution, in one part or other of the empire, is reckoned to have continued eight or ten years, under Diocletian, and some of his successors. The number of Christians who suffered during this period led their enemies to flatter themselves that they had extirpated Christianity: and a pillar is stated to have been erected in Spain to the honour of Diocletian, with an inscription to this effect, that he had every where abolished the superstition of Christ, and extended the worship of the gods. Another pillar in the same country is said to have borne a similar inscription: and a medal in honour of the same tyrant still exists, with this motto—'the name of Christians being extinguished.'" But, alas, how weak and vain is man! Paganism was now at the point of dissolution, and Christianity on the eve of triumph, as we shall see under the following seal.

The opening of the sixth seal appears to threaten nothing less than a dissolution of the whole system of nature. The pillars of the earth are shaken, and the globe trembles to its centre. The great luminaries of heaven expire in darkness, and the lesser ones appear to drop from the skies, like untimely figs when shaken in a tempest. The aërial heavens are rolled together like a parchment scroll, and "every mountain and island are removed from their places."

Now are the haughty monarchs and "mighty spirits of the earth," and indeed all classes of mankind, thrown into the utmost consternation. The ruin is so tremendous, that the highest orders of society cannot resist it; and so universal that the meanest hope not to escape it. And those who but recently boasted of having annihilated Christianity, now call for mercy to the rocks and mountains; and gladly would they hide themselves in the fissures of the one, or the caverns of the other. "Who shall hide us from Him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb?"—"The wrath of the Lamb" is a peculiar expression. Had it been the wrath of the lion, it would have been more natural, but not so terrible. By how much the patience of God has been exercised and abused, so much the more is his righteous anger to be dreaded, now "the great day of his wrath is come." Now the number of martyrs to Paganism is complete—the prayer of the souls under the altar are heard—and, to their murderers, the day of judgment is arrived.

On the fall of Paganism, Mr. Lowman quotes, from a former commentator, the following condensed view of the events which then occurred. "From this account, it appears (says Mr. Daubuz) that the Pagan Roman emperors were deprived of their government, and came to miserable ends:—that the Pagan Cæsars fell in battle or were put to death:—that the religion of the idolaters received a mortal wound; all the colleges of pontifices, augers, vestals; in a word, all the Pagan priests and religious officers throughout the empire, being brought under the power and dominion of a Christian prince:—that many of the Pagan officers, civil and military, were displaced, and Christians put in their room:—that there was a thorough change in the government, and that Paganism lessened by degrees, till it entirely disappeared:—that the greatest of the persecutors acknowledged and confessed the justness and cause of God's judgments: and lastly, that upon this change, all the idolaters, upon account of their horrid cruelties and barbarities against the Christians, could not but be in daily expectation of the severest punishments."

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—17. The prophecies of the sixth seal continued.—The reference of this seal to the time of Constantine is so clear, that we cannot but feel surprise that it should be applied to any other period. The first event is a stop to persecution. The Roman empire, it should be remembered, extended into almost all parts of the then known world; and it had often happened, that Christianity was persecuted in one quarter while it was tolerated or winked at in another; but four angels are here ordered to restrain the storms of persecution in all quarters, till the Christian religion should gain a peaceful establishment, and Christians should be allowed to make an open profession of their faith. There is no doubt but that, in times of persecution, there were great numbers convinced of the truth of Christianity who dared not to avow their convictions, and among these, many there might be, who secretly worshipped Jesus and avoided idols: so in the idolatrous times of Ahab, when the prophet supposed all the nation devoted to idolatry, still there were 7000 persons who had not bowed the knee to Baal. In consequence of this, no sooner did persecution cease, than Christians, professedly so at least, poured in from all quarters. Great numbers were baptized, both Jews and Pagans, and so received the seal of Christianity, which made them externally Christians; but the seal of heaven implies more than an external profession: "the seal of the Spirit" is necessary to mark them as children of God, and to secure them from his wrath. (See Ezek. ix. 4. Ephes. i. 13; iv. 30.)

It seems hardly necessary to say, that all the numbers of this book are to be explained mystically and not literally. The number before us has that square form which is constantly used to mark the Jerusalem which is above, as in chap. xxi. 10, &c. The number of the tribes being retained, may intimate that the number of God's elect is preserved unbroken. We have, indeed, no reason to believe that an equal number of every tribe shall be saved, though as respects the seed of

---

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1. The four winds of the earth.—See Jer. xlix. 36, 37. The four corners here mentioned, answer to the four cardinal points—the four winds.

Ver. 2. From the east —Gr. "From the rising of the sun"—i. e. from the divine presence.—Woodhouse.

Ver. 3. Hurt not the earth—i. e. the inhabitants of it, in its various classes. [This chapter is a continuation of the sixth seal; and is a description of the state of the church in the time of Constantine, of the peace and protection it should enjoy under the civil powers, and of the great accession that there should be made to it, both of the Jews and Gentiles. Eusebius and Lactantius, who were contemporary writers, bear their testimony to the completion of this prophecy; and one of the medals of Constantine, bearing on the reverse beata tranquillitas, "blessed tranquillity," is a confirmation of their testimony. All the historians who have written of these times, also bear witness to the vast numbers both of Jews and Gentiles who were converted to the Christian religion.]—Bagster.

Ver. 4. A hundred and forty and four thousand—That is, the twelve patriarchs multiplied by the twelve apostles, and both by 1000.—Lowman thousand. Of the tribe of Nepthalim were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed twelve thousand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand.

8 Of the tribe of Zabulon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

9 After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of [g] all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed [h] with white robes, and palms [i] in their hands;

10 And cried [j] with a loud voice, saying, Salvation [k] to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.

11 And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders and the four beasts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God, 12 [l] Saying, Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

13 And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great [m] tribulation, and have washed [n] their robes, and made them white in the blood [o] of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell [p] among them.

16 They shall hunger [q] no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any [r] heat.

17 For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall [s] feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe [t] away all tears from their eyes.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 At the opening of the seventh seal, 2 seven angels had seven trumpets given them. 6 Four of them sound their trumpets, and great plagues follow. 3 Another angel putteth incense to the prayers of the saints on the golden altar.

AND when he had opened the seventh [a] seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour.

2 And I saw the seven angels which stood [b] before God; and to them were given seven [c] trumpets.

3 And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should [d] offer it with the [e] prayers of all saints upon the golden [f] altar which was before the throne.

4 And the smoke of the [g] incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand.

5 And the angel took the censer, and filled it

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

g Ro.11.25. c.5 9.
h c.6.11.
i Le.23.40.
j Zec.4.7.
k Is.43.11. c.19.1.
l Jude 25. c.5.13,14.
m Jn 16.33. c.6.9.
n 1 Co.6.11. He.9.14.
o 1 Jn 1.7. c.1.5.
p c.21.3,4.
q Is.49.10.
r Ps.121.6. Is.4.6.
s Ps.23.1, 2,5. 36.8. Is.40.11.
t Is.25.8.
a c.5 1.
b Lu.1.19.
c 2 Ch.29. 25..28.
d or, add it to.
e c.5.8.
f c 6.9.
g Ex.30.1.

Abraham by faith, we know that there shall be some "out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation" under heaven. (See chap. v. 9.)

The next scene which follows (ver. 9, &c.) is, we apprehend, not laid in earth but in heaven. Under the fifth seal we find all the souls lying, as it were, weltering in their blood under the altar on which they had been slain: in the first scene of this seal their blood is avenged, and they are raised to glory, honour, and immortality. "A great multitude, which no man could number, stand before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes as symbolic of their purity, and having in their hands palm branches, as implying that they had gained the victory by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony." (Chap. xii. 11.) Here they appear worshipping among the heavenly hosts. And when John witnessed this, questions are put, and an answer is given, calculated to excite feelings of joy and of devotion. "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb: and therefore"—that is, because they are thus justified and sanctified—therefore "are they before the throne," and serve him ever more.

After writing the above, we were gratified to find that we are unwittingly following in the track of those judicious expositors, Mr. Lowman and Mr. Fuller. "After the sealing of God's servants is accomplished, (says the latter,) the saints and martyrs of Jesus, who, during the preceding persecutions, had overcome, and had been received into glory, joining with the whole heavenly chorus, engage in a triumphant song of praise to God and to the Lamb. The reason of their being here introduced, seems to be, that the sealed servants of God, who were yet on earth, and had to pass through a series of trials, might, by a view of their happy end, be strengthened to follow their example. As great numbers would be against them in this world, they are directed to view the numbers of friends which they have in heaven; who not only look back to their own deliverance, and ascribe it to God, but seem to look down to their brethren, and to say, 'Hold fast the profession of your faith without wavering.'"

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1—6. The seventh seal opened. Seven angels prepare to sound—and one offers incense on the golden altar.—It is impossible, within the limits of our plan, to give at length the reasons on which our exposition is founded. We have explained the seals in relation to those awful public events, which, at the same time as they purified the church, led also to the overthrow of Paganism, and the establishment of Christianity. The four first scenes we have considered as exhibiting, 1. The glorious conquests of the gospel. 2. The horrors of war. 3. The miseries of famine. 4. The miseries of plague or pestilence; all of which, while intended to punish idolaters, were also intended to purify the church, even as gold is purified by fire. The fifth seal exhibits an awful picture of Pagan persecution. The sixth, under the figure of a general concussion, both of heaven and earth, exhibits those mighty revolutions by which the Pagan government was overturned; and then the divine means, namely, the seal of baptism and of the Spirit, by which the church was so wonderfully protected and enlarged. We have then another celestial vision—a view within the veil, (as it were,) when we see the martyrs, who had so lately bled, received in triumph before the throne of God and the Lamb, with the happy assurance of everlasting blessedness.

The first thing which arrests our attention in this chapter, is "silence in heaven," which is not to be understood of that heaven in which the divine presence dwells, for there the worshippers "rest not day nor night," (ch. iv. 8;) but evidently refers to the state of the church below, and is thought to allude to the temple worship, when, during the time of offering incense, the whole multitude were employed in secret and private prayer. (Luke i. 10.) This is called "half an hour," which was probably about the time so usually employed, and represents that short interval of peace and liberty of conscience which followed upon the accession of Constantine, before the church itself began to practise that system of intolerance, which led to the establishment of the Roman antichrist. During this interval, seven angels who were waiting before God, come forward and receive seven trumpets, which they were to be prepared to sound when the signal of the divine pleasure should be given. In the mean time, another angel comes forward, and there is given to him "much incense," that he may "add it to the prayers of the saints," which are

Ver. 8. Of the tribe of Joseph.—It is remarkable, that the names of Dan and Ephraim are omitted in this list, and those of Levi and Joseph inserted in their stead, which, it is supposed, was occasioned by both those tribes being particularly addicted to idolatry.

Ver. 11. The four beasts.—Rather, "living creatures," as before, chap. iv. and v.

Ver. 14. Out of great tribulation.—Woodhouse, "out of the great tribulation."

Ver. 15. Day and night—i. e. continually, as the Jewish worship was continued—in his temple.—Compare chap. xxi. 3, 4; xxii. 1, &c.

Ver. 16. Neither shall the sun light.—Woodhouse, "strike on them"—Nor any heat.—Woodhouse, "burning." These expressions evidently refer to that fatal disorder, the sun-stroke, so common in hot countries. See note on 2 Kings iv. 20.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 2. Seven angels, &c.—The seven angels that appear upon the scene are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth; and none of them are the same as the four living creatures who were in the midst of the throne and round about the throne.—Seven trumpets.—Commentators, with considerable variance in the details, are of one mind that the first four trumpets denote the successive events which caused the downfall of Rome, and that the fifth and sixth trumpets, or the first and second wo, characterize the Saracen and Turkish power.—Keith.

Ver. 3. And stood.—Woodhouse, "was stationed."—A golden censer.—These censers, Lowman remarks, are "the same with the vials full of odours, chap. v. 8, (which are there explained to mean a sort of cups upon plates, or saucers.) The offering incense on the golden altar, seems to determine this allusion to the constant offering of incense in the temple, and not to the service peculiar to the high priest on the day of expiation, and fully shows the propriety of this vision, in not representing the high priest, which in this vision would have been the Lamb, as personally officiating in this act of worship."—Of all saints.—Woodhouse, "all the saints."

Ver. 5. And filled it with fire of the altar.—As have was no fire upon the golden altar, this must refer to the altar of burnt-offering, which, as well as the other, appears to have had a place in the heavenly temple. See chap. vi. 9.

with fire of the altar, and cast it [h] into the earth: and [i] there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an [j] earthquake.

6 And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

7 The first angel sounded, and [k] there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast upon the earth: and the third part of trees [l] was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

h or, upon.
i c.16.18.
j 2 Sa.22.8.
k Exe.38.22.
l Is.2.13.

m Je.51.25. n Am.7.4.
o Ex.7.19.. 21. c.16.3.&c. p Is.14.12. c.9.1.

8 And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain [m] burning with fire was cast into the [n] sea: and the third part of the sea became [o] blood;

9 And the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

10 And the third angel sounded, and there fell [p] a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of collected in a golden censer, and offered upon the golden altar, before the throne.

What agency either saints or angels may have, as respects the offering to God the prayers of saints on earth, we presume not to say; but it appears, that not only the angels, but the elders before the throne, had all "vials full of odours," or, as the margin reads, "censers full of incense, which are the prayers of saints." (Chap. v. 8.) We consider Christ himself as our only intercessor before the throne, and we believe it is the Holy Spirit which on earth "helpeth our infirmities," and teaches us to pray: but it should seem as if these happy spirits took an interest in our devotions on earth, though in what way, it may be impossible for us to anticipate before we are united to their society: only so far we know, that they are "all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation." (Heb. i. 14.) Dr. Doddridge, indeed, solves the difficulty, by supposing Christ himself to be the angel here intended; but it appears to us, that after naming the seven angels, in verse 2, it would be, as Dr. Woodhouse observes, degrading to our Lord, to speak of him merely as "another angel:" nor are we certain, that in any part of this book the Lord Jesus is introduced under that character. He is "the Lamb that was slain, and is now exalted to the midst of the throne."

What is meant by the angel casting down upon the earth a part of the burning incense which he had placed upon the altar, is not so easy to ascertain. Mr. Croley thus explains it—"The prayers and the incense are accepted—they rise before God; and his answer is symbolized in the filling of the censer with fire from the same altar, [or rather from the altar of burnt-offering, see note on verse 5,] and the casting of the fire into the earth, the token of the divine wrath"—as in Ezek. x. 2, &c. But when God hears the prayers of his people, does he answer by fresh trials and afflictions? So we conceive, and that with propriety; since, as we have already seen, it is thus that the church is purified. But this thunder, and fire, and earthquake, are adapted rather to excite alarm for approaching judgments than to express the nature of those judgments.

Ver. 7—9. The first and second trumpets.—In the scenes which opened from the sealed book, we have traced the various judgments whereby Paganism was overthrown and Christianity established; and we have noticed the short interval of peace that the church enjoyed under the government of Constantine, which lasted, in its full extent, little more than fourteen years, i. e. from A. D. 323 to 337. At his death the empire was divided among his sons, who, unhappily, quarrelled among themselves, whereby the empire was so weakened as not to be able to resist the numerous hordes of barbarians by which it was surrounded. At the same time the Christian church became infested with all the vices of the state—ambition, jealousy, duplicity, and a spirit of hostility, still more criminal among those who bear the name of Christians than even among heathen governments. And "shall not I visit for these things? saith the Lord." (Jer. v. 9.)

It is, as we have before observed, a part of the plan of divine providence to destroy the vain potsherds of the earth by dashing them together. Thus the haughty monarchs of the Roman empire were continually assailed and eventually destroyed by the rude barbarians who surrounded them; and notwithstanding what has been alleged by Archdeacon Woodhouse, Dr. Park, and others, we cannot but think these events are intended to be included under the visions now before us, though we see no necessity for confining them to political events alone.

It is commonly said that the visions of the trumpets are all included under the opening of the seventh seal; but we rather consider the trumpets as a new series of predictions, to which the last seal is to be considered as introductory, and not as comprehending them. The question, however, seems of little consequence to our design.

It is the general opinion of the best commentators of the Old School, (if we may so speak,) particularly of Mr. Lowman, Bishop Newton, Mr. Morell, and Mr. Fuller, that the events signified by the first four trumpets, refer to the various invasions of Rome and of the Roman Empire, by different hordes of barbarians, whose delight appears to have consisted in plunder and in murder. By these despised enemies, that haughty empire was humbled to the dust, prior to the erection of another empire, equally hostile to truth and righteousness, though under the Christian name; for it appears to have been the plan of Providence to remove the Roman Empire, in order to make room for the Man of Sin, (2 Thess. ii. 6—10,) who in his turn also must be brought to the dust, before the millennial kingdom of Messiah can be established.

It is but just, however, to remark, that another class of commentators, no less pious, learned, and acute, have taken a different view of this part of the Apocalypse: we refer particularly to Bishop Hurd, Archdeacon Woodhouse, and Dr. Park, who consider the evils here predicted to be rather of a moral nature; such as the general depravity of the church and its ministers during that period; the growth of heresy, and the increase of immorality. On many parts of the prophetic Scriptures the best expositors have admitted a double sense; while, therefore, we adhere to the former scheme of interpretation, as, in our opinion, best established, and most in harmony with the ancient prophets, we shall, at the same time, hint also at the moral interpretations just alluded to.

The sounding of the first trumpet, which we should date in the latter part of the fourth century, after the death of Constantine the Great, (who died in A. D. 337,) produces a tremendous tempest of "hail and fire, mingled with blood," and in its fatal consequences may very aptly represent the numerous hordes of barbarians, who successively invaded this devoted empire; and is expressed in terms very similar to those in which the prophet Isaiah describes the invasions of the land of Israel by Shalmanezer and Sennacherib. (Chap. xxviii. xxix.) At the same time, it must be confessed, that this imagery does not improperly depict the nature of theological controversy as then conducted, especially when the ardent disputants resisted each other even unto blood, as was too often the case in this and many following centuries.

The terms in which the mischief occasioned by this tempest is described, are peculiar: it burnt up "a third part of the trees, and all the green grass." By trees, the higher classes are generally intended in prophetic language; and by grass, the common people: but here it appears to have been the "green grass" only that was consumed, and of that not a third part only, but the whole—"all the green grass"—by which we suppose must be intended, the most useful and valuable members in the lower classes of society. Dr. Woodhouse, who understands these terms allegorically, interprets (we think, rather strangely) the "green grass" to signify those professing Christians, "who exhibit a promising appearance, yet, like herbage in hot climates, are soon withered and gone:" while, on the other hand, Dr. Park seems to understand the most flourishing Christians of the age!

On the sounding of the second angel's trumpet, "a great mountain, burning with fire," was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became blood. This has been generally supposed to intend Alaric, King of the Visigoths, and his horde of barbarians, who, in the early part of the fifth century, repeatedly invaded Rome. In the first instance he was bought off by an immense price; but in the last, the capital was given up to three days' plunder by his army, and vast numbers of the Romans were slain—not only by the barbarians, but by their own slaves, who turned against their Roman masters. And, as Mr. Fuller remarks, "If Etna or Vesuvius had literally been thrown into the ocean, it could hardly have produced a greater effervescence among the waters than these things produced among the nations." It is represented as having destroyed a third (i. e. a considerable part) of every thing that had life in it, and even of the ships, which shows that it had particular reference to the maritime parts of the empire. Of those who understand this allegorically, Dr. Park applies this to religious controversy, and Dr. Woodhouse, to the anticipated fall of Babylon.

Ver. 10—13. The third and fourth trumpets sounded.—"The third angel sounded, and there fell a great star from heaven,

Upon that altar the sacred fire was constantly kept burning. Lev. vi. 13.—And cast it into—Margin, "upon"—the earth.—And cast what? Not the censer, but the fire, or rather some remnant of the burning incense.

Ver. 7. Hail and fire.—[This refers to the irruptions of the barbarous nations into the Roman empire, from A. D. 338 to 412; and principally to the incursions of the Goths under Alaric, who, after spreading desolation by fire and sword throughout the provinces, took and plundered Rome, A. D. 410, and slew all, without distinction of rank, sex, or age.]—Bagster.—And they were cast.—Namely, the hail, and fire, and blood. Doddridge." It was cast;" meaning the storm, or perhaps the incense.—Upon the earth.—Woodhouse." Upon the land," as distinguished from the sea, rivers, &c., ver. 8—10.

Ver. 8. A great mountain.—[This is an emblem of a mighty destructive warrior; and seems to refer to Attila and his Huns, who, after Alaric, ravaged the empire during fourteen years, massacring, plundering, and destroying all before him in the most barbarous manner. This period probably includes the calamities which befell the empire from A. D. 412 to 450.]—Bagster.—The third part of the sea became blood.—This has an evident allusion to one of the miracles wrought in Egypt. See Exod. vii. 20, 21.—The third part.—This is an expression not uncommon with the prophetic writers. See Ezek. v. 12 Zech. xiii. 8, 9, &c.

Ver. 9. Which were in the sea, and had life.—Doddridge, "Which had life in the sea;" i. e. which lived in the sea. This, as some think, refers particularly to the maritime parts of the empire; but see chap. xvii. 15.

Ver. 10. A great star.—"A star, in prophetic language, signifies a prince, or the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters;

11 And the name of the star is called [q] Wormwood; and the third part of the waters became [r] wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the sun [s] was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so as the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise.

13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying [t] through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Wo, wo, wo, to the inhabiters of the earth, by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels, which are yet to sound!

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

q De.29.18. Am.5.7. He.12.15.
r Ex.15.23. Je.9.15. 23.15. s Is.13.10. Je.1.23. Eze.32.7, 8. Joel 2.10. Am.8.9.
t c.14.6.
a Lu.10.18. c.8.10.
b c.17.8. 20.1.
c Joel 2.2. d Ex.10.4, &c. e ver.10.
f c.6.6.
g Ex.12.23. Job 2.6. Eze.9.4. c.7.3.
h Job 3.21. Je.8.3.
i Joel 2.4.
j Na.3.17.
k Da.7.4,8.
l Ps.57.4. Joel 1.6.

CHAPTER IX.

1 At the sounding of the fifth angel, a star falleth from heaven, to whom is given the key of the bottomless pit. 2 He openeth the pit, and there come forth locusts like scorpions. 12 The first wo past. 13 The sixth trumpet soundeth. 14 Four angels are let loose, that were bound.

AND the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a star [a] fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomless [b] pit.

2 And he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened [c] by reason of the smoke of the pit.

3 And there came out of the smoke locusts [d] upon the earth: and unto them was given power, as the scorpions [e] of the earth have power.

4 And it was commanded them [f] that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree; but only those men which have not the seal [g] of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months: and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion, when he striketh a man.

6 And in those days shall men [h] seek death, and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 And the shapes [i] of the locusts were like unto horses prepared unto battle; and on their heads were as it were [j] crowns like gold, and their faces [k] were as the faces of men.

8 And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth [l] were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had breast-plates, as it were breast-burning as it were a lamp."—This star is supposed to designate Attila and his Huns, (or Scythians,) a more ferocious race than the preceding; and, as to the chief himself, he affected to be considered as "the scourge of God," and pretended that the grass would never grow upon ground whereon his horse had trodden. Others, however, apply this to Genseric, King of the Vandals, and conqueror of Africa, who about the same period (the middle of the fifth century) also plundered Rome, and carried off the Empress Eudoxia (whom he pretended to avenge) and her two daughters, and a vast number of inferior captives.

---

This Alaric had, in our opinion, a superior claim to the character of a fallen star, named Wormwood; since he was, according to Bishop Newton, "a most bigoted Arian:" thus poisoning the doctrines of the church, and, at the same time, bitterly persecuting the orthodox or Trinitarian Christians.

At the sound of the fourth trumpet, all the luminaries of heaven become dim, and lose a third, i. e. a considerable part of their light and glory. "Darkening, smiting, or setting of the sun, moon, and stars, (says Sir Is. Newton,) are put for the setting of a kingdom, or the desolation thereof, proportional to the darkness." And when darkness is opposed to light, (Mr. Daubuz observes,) "as light is a symbol of joy and safety, so darkness is a symbol of misery and adversity." (See Isa. xiii. 10, 11. Jer. xiii. 16. Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8.) From the time that Genseric entered Rome, its strength and glory rapidly diminished. "Genseric (says Bishop Newton) left the western empire in a weak and desperate condition. It struggled hard, and gasped, as it were, for breath, through eight short and turbulent reigns, for the space of twenty years, and at length expired in the year 476, under Momyllus, or Augustulus, as he was named in derision, being a diminutive Augustus. This change was effected by Odoacer, king of the Heruli, who coming to Rome with an army of barbarians, stripped Momyllus of the imperial robes, put an end to the very name of the western empire, and caused himself to be proclaimed king of Italy." His reign was, indeed, but short; for, sixteen years afterwards, he was slain by Theodoric; who, in A. D. 493, founded the kingdom of the Ostrogoths, which continued about 60 years longer. "Thus was the Roman sun extinguished in the western empire; (continues the Bishop;) but the other lesser luminaries, the moon and stars, still subsisted, for Rome was still allowed to have her senate and consuls, and other subordinate magistrates, as before." Thus the glory of Rome continued to decline, until, in A. D. 556, it was made a province of the eastern empire, under Justin II., and governed by a duke who was himself subject to the Exarch of Ravenna, which Rome had been used to govern.

Thus fell imperial Rome. But, says Mr. Fuller, "It may be thought that these events had too slight a relation to the church of Christ, to become the subject of prophecy: two things, however, may be alleged in answer:—

"1. They were necessary for the accomplishment of other prophecies, particularly Dan. vii. 7, 8. 2 Thess. ii. 7; thereby a way was made for the beast to have ten horns; as, after the overthrow of the empire, it was divided into so many independent kingdoms, which, with little variation, continue to this day. Hereby also a way was made for the little horn of Daniel's fourth beast, or the papal antichrist, to come up amongst them; or, as the apostle expresses it, for the man of sin to be revealed.

"2. In these judgments upon the empire, we perceive the divine displeasure for its having corrupted the Christian religion, and transformed it into an engine of state. The wars of the Assyrians and Babylonians, were the scourges of God on those who had corrupted the true religion; and such were those of the Goths, the Vandals, and the Huns, on the Christian governments of the fourth and fifth centuries."

In the close of this chapter, another celestial herald flies through the midst of heaven, warning the inhabitants of the earth, of the three dreadful woes which are to attend the sounding of the other three trumpets which are yet to sound: which is as much as to say, that the judgments already executed were but slight, compared with the farther judgments which might be expected; and this, indeed, we shall find to be the fact. Mr. Cunninghame suggests, that this proclamation may serve also "as a chronological mark, to show that these three trumpets are all posterior to the first four, not only in order, but in time; and that they belong to a new series of events."

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1—12. The fifth, or first wo trumpet.—In consistency with our interpretation of the first four trumpets, we refer the events of this trumpet to the rise of the Mahometan imposture, and the Saracen invasions. Many Protestant writers have taken this falling star to mean the Pope himself, and the locusts to be his monks and friars: while, on the other hand, Dr. Walmsley and the Rhemish annotators apply the image to Martin Luther and his heretical disciples, as they are pleased to call them.

Dr. Doddridge, Mr. Wesley, and others, conceive the reference to be to some celestial being, whose flight was with the rapidity of a falling meteor, and who was commissioned to open the infernal pit, and to allow a portion of that blackness of darkness which it contains, to visit and to plague the earth; while others think that Satan himself, who is properly a fallen star, may be hereby intended.

Mr. Fuller remarks—"Looking at this dreadful irruption of darkness and desolation, we perceive the necessity there was leader."—Woodhouse. Of Genseric, Gibbon says, "The terrible Genseric, a name which, in the destruction of the Roman Empire, has deserved an equal rank with Alaric and Attila." [This seems to refer to Genseric, who, soon after Attila's retreat, unexpectedly invaded the empire with 300,000 Vandals and Moors, besieged and took Rome, and abandoned it to the ravages of his troops, from A. D. 450 to 456. As this assault was made at the source of the Roman power and prosperity, and as he was a bigoted Arian, and a cruel persecutor of the orthodox, he may justly be said to poison the fountains.]—B.

---

Ver. 11. Because they were made bitter.—See Exod. xv. 23.

Ver. 13. An angel—Literally, "one angel." Griesbach here reads, "one eagle;" but as the whole machinery is administered by angels, we think, with Woodhouse, that the internal evidence is strongly in favour of the common reading.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1. The bottomless pit.—Woodhouse, "The pit of the bottomless deep." That this refers to the pit or abyss of hell, see chap. xx. 1—3; and 2 Peter ii. 4.

Ver 3. Unto them was given power, as the scorpions.—Locusts, it is well known, never attack man, but only the fruits of the earth, on which he lives: scorpions, on the other hand, do not attack the fruits of the earth, but animals only; and their sting is seldom fatal, except in the hottest climates, particularly Africa. These circumstances all agree to those mystical locusts—the Saracens.

Ver. 4. But only those men, &c.—Corrupt and idolatrous Christians; against whom the Saracens chiefly prevailed. Lowman says, "The military laws of the Mahometans make a distinction between the Harbi, including both atheists and idolaters; and the "people of a book," including Jews and Christians. These were to be compelled to embrace Mahometanism, or to pay a tribute, and then to be allowed to follow their own religion; but the Harbi had no toleration.

Ver. 5. And to them it was given that they should not kill them.—Wesley and Woodhouse, "Not that they should kill them, but," &c. [Should not kill them as a political body, state, or empire; and accordingly, however they desolated the Greek and Latin churches, they could not extirpate them nor gain possession of the empire.]—Five months.—Five prophetical months, each consisting of 30 days, and each day denoting a year, amounting to 150 years:

plates of iron; and the sound of their wings was as the sound of [m] chariots of many horses running to battle.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails: and [n] their power was to hurt men five months.

11 And they had a king [o] over them, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name [p] Apollyon.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

m Na. 2. 4.
n ver. 5.
o Ep. 2. 2.
p That is, a destroyer.

q c. 8. 13.
r Ge. 2. 14. Je. 51. 63. c. 16. 12.
s or, at.

12 One [q] wo is past; and, behold, there come two woes more hereafter.

13 And the sixth angel sounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God,

14 Saying to the sixth angel which had the trumpet, Loose the four angels which are bound in the great river [r] Euphrates.

15 And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared [s] for an hour, and a day, and for sealing the servants of God in their foreheads, that they might be preserved amidst these trying times..... The sealed servants of God would endure the trial; but 'those men who had not the seal of God in their foreheads,' would be carried away and perish.

"That the locusts refer to the ravaging hordes of Saracens, who, with Mahomet at their head, subdued and destroyed the eastern part of Christendom,' seems to be generally admitted: and some have considered the smoke as denoting his false doctrine, and the star which fell from heaven to the earth, as meaning himself. But, on the most mature consideration, (adds Mr. F.,) I concur with those expositors, who, while admitting the locusts to be Mahomet's destructive hordes of Saracens, yet understand the smoke of Popish darkness, which was preparatory to the other, and the fallen star, of the Bishop of Rome..... On the other hand, there is a connexion between the subversion of the imperial government, and the revelation of the man of sin. It was the imperial authority which let, or hindered him, and which, when 'taken out of the way,' made room for his appearing. (2 Thess. ii. 4—8.) Thus the eclipse under the fourth trumpet prepared the way for the irruption of darkness under the fifth. The 'mystery of iniquity' had long been at work, and now it burst forth as the smoke of a great furnace, impeding the light of the gospel, and darkening the moral atmosphere of the Christian world.

"With this also agrees the application of the fallen star to the Pope or bishop of Rome. It comports with the symbolical style of the book, that a prophetical person should denote, not an individual, but a succession of individuals in an official character. The bishop of Rome was once a star in the Christian firmament; but abandoning the doctrine and spirit of a Christian minister, and setting up for worldly domination, he fell from heaven unto the earth, and thus became a fit agent for opening the bottomless pit. The Bishop of Meaux [Bossuet] acknowledges that "Hell never opens of itself: it is always some false doctor that opens it.'"

Hell is, however, opened!—a smoke arises as from a furnace; but instead of sparks mingling with the smoke, behold a swarm of locusts—typifying the numerous hordes of Saracens or Arabians, which about this time overran the eastern empire. This is the interpretation of Mr. Mede, and is supported by Mr. Lowman and most respectable expositors. "The Arabians (says Bishop Newton) are properly compared to locusts, because numerous armies frequently are so; because swarms of locusts often arise from Arabia; and because, in the plagues of Egypt, to which constant allusion is made in these trumpets, the locusts (Exod. x. 13) are 'brought by an east wind;' that is, from Arabia, which lay eastward of Egypt; and also because, in the book of Judges, (chap. vii. 12,) the people of Arabia are compared to 'locusts, or grasshoppers, for multitude;' for, in the original, the word for both is the same. As the natural locusts are bred in pits and holes of the earth, so these mystical locusts are truly infernal, and proceed with the smoke 'from the bottomless pit.'

"It was commanded them (ver. 4) that they should 'not hurt the grass of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any green tree,' which demonstrates that these were not natural, but symbolical locusts. The like injunctions were [literally] given to the Arabian officers and soldiers. When Yezid was marching with the army to invade Syria, Abubekir charged him with this, among other orders—'Destroy no palm trees, nor burn any fields of corn; cut down no fruit trees, nor do any mischief to cattle, only such as you kill to eat.' Their commission is to hurt only those men who have not the seal of God in their foreheads; that is, those who are not the true servants of God, but are corrupt and idolatrous Christians. Now, from history, it appears evidently, that in those countries of Asia, Africa, and Europe, where the Saracens extended their conquests, the Christians were generally guilty of idolatry, in the worshipping of saints, if not of images; and it was the pretence of Mohammed (or Mahomet) and his followers to chastise them for it, and to re-establish the unity of the Godhead. The parts which remained freest from the general infection, were Savoy, Piedmont, and the southern parts of France, ... and it is very memorable, that when the Saracens approached these parts, they were defeated with great slaughter, by the famous Charles Martel, in several engagements."

When it is said, that power was given them, not that they should kill, but that they should torment, we are not to suppose that no individuals were slain in these wars; but that extermination was not their object: and it is singular, that the same Abubekir which enjoined the army to spare the cornfields and the fruit trees, &c. added—"Adhere inviolably to your engagements, and put none of the religious people you meet with in monasteries to the sword. Offer no violence to the places they serve God in." And though this injunction was by no means uniformly attended to, nor could be, when they appealed to the sword; yet the torment inflicted on the Christian world seems to have consisted chiefly in plundering the men, and gratifying their lust upon the women, which doubtless made many desire rather to die than live under such circumstances. But the term kill, is by most expositors understood politically. Mr. Morell thus explains it: "They had not power to overthrow totally, or politically, the eastern branch of the Roman Empire. This was not effected till the Saracens were succeeded by the Turks, who are described under the following trumpet."

The description given of these locusts answers well to the description of these Arabian invaders. They gloried in their cavalry, which was numerous and powerful; their turbans resembled the crowns worn by Eastern princes. Their character was a strange mixture of fierceness and effeminacy. They had faces like those of men, (clothed with beards,) and their hair resembled those of women, to the sensual enjoyment of whom they were remarkably devoted. Their teeth and breastplates of iron, implies their strength both in attack and in resistance; and their impetuosity is strongly implied, in comparing their approach to that of an army of winged locusts; and the stings in their tails, signifies the poison which they left behind them. They poisoned the principles of the Christian world where they prevailed, with the doctrines of unitarianism, fatalism, and the thirst of conquest and of blood.

But they had a king—and who was he? "The angel of the bottomless pit," whose name, both in Greek and Hebrew, signifies "The Destroyer." This should seem to be the same who had the key of the bottomless pit; and Mr. Lowman explains it to mean "that evil spirit, the prince of the powers of darkness; who, from the constant evils he is designing and doing in the world, is called The Destroyer." So Dr. Woodhouse.

The evils here predicted are limited, not only in their degree, not to kill, but to torment; but also in their duration, they are to "hurt men five months." It is only during the five summer months that either locusts or scorpions are destructive: to this period, also, the Saracens usually limited their exertions. Taking these months mystically, for thirty days or years each, Bishop Newton remarks, that during the first 150 years of their existence, dating from A. D. 612, when Mahomet first appeared openly as a prophet, they subdued "Syria, Persia, India, and the greatest part of Asia; Egypt, and the greatest part of Africa; Spain, and some [other] parts of Europe." And it was in 762, the end of this period, that Almansor built Bagdad, for the seat of his empire, and called it the City of Peace, in allusion to Jerusalem. But as this term of five months is twice mentioned, some learned commentators (among whom is Sir Isaac Newton) have supposed that the period should be doubled, and have accordingly remarked, that the whole period of the Saracen dominion was little more than 300 years; for in 936, their empire was broken and divided. This seems the utmost extent of this trumpet.

In the close of this trumpet it is added, "One wo is past; and, behold, there come two woes more hereafter;" which is thought to imply, that some time would intervene before the coming of the second wo, because, after that is passed, we read, "Behold, the third wo cometh quickly." (Chap. xi. 14.)

Ver. 13—21. The sixth trumpet sounded.—This angel no sooner sounds, than a voice is directed to him from the altar of incense, or golden altar, requiring him to loose the four angels which were restrained, by or at the river Euphrates, that they may execute the judgments appointed upon mankind. "Such a voice, proceeding from the four horns of the golden altar, (says Bishop Newton,) is a strong indication of the divine displeasure; and plainly intimates that the sins of men must have been very great, when the altar, which was [used to be] their sanctuary and protection, called aloud for vengeance.

---

and accordingly, from the time that Mahomet began to propagate his imposture, A. D. 612, to the building of Bagdad, when they ceased from their ravages, A. D. 763, are just 150 years.'—Bagster.

Ver. 9. Chariots of many horses.—"Chariots and many horses rushing to war."—Doddridge.

Ver. 11. And they had a king over them.—Agur says of the literal locusts, that they have no king, (Prov. xxx. 27,) which marks another distinction between the literal and figurative locusts.—Abaddon and Apollyon both signify "a destroyer," as in the English margin.

Ver. 14. The four angels that are bound IN—Doddridge, "by:" Woodhouse, "at"—the great river Euphrates—A famous river, which had its rise in Paradise, (Gen. ii. 14,) and runs through the frontiers of Cappadocia, Syria a month, and a year, for to slay the third [t] part of men.

16 And the number of the army [u] of the horsemen were two hundred thousand [v] thousand: and I heard the [w] number of them.

17 And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and them that sat on them, having breast-plates of fire, and of jacinth, and brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of [x] lions; and out of their mouths issued fire and smoke and brimstone.

18 By these three was the third part of men killed, by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths.

A. M. cir. 4100
A. D. cir. 86.

t c 8 7 9.
u Eze 38.4. Da.11.40.
v Ps.68.17.
w c 7.4
x 1 Ch 12 8. Is 5.28,29.

y Is 9.15. Ep.4.14.
z 1 c.5.3. 2 c.6.
a Le.17.7. 1 Co.10.20.
b Ps.135.15. Is.40.19, 20.
c c.22.15.

19 For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails: for their tails [y] were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt.

20 And the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues yet [z] repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship [a] devils, and [b] idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and of wood: which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk:

21 Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their [c] sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

They are loosed immediately, and declared to be fully prepared to execute the divine judgments upon mankind at the appointed hour. The commentators we have chiefly followed (Mede, Lowman, Newton, &c.) agree that this prediction has reference to the Turks. If we take the number four literally, we may, with Mr. Mede, apply them to the four Sultanies, or governments of the Turks, in countries bordering on the Euphrates: but if, with Daubuz and Lowman, we take the number "four" for "a number of universality," as Philo calls it, it may seem, as Mr. Lowman remarks, "a very natural interpretation of the four angels," to understand them, of the whole power of these destroyers, gathered together from the four corners, or every quarter of the land they dwelt in; and spreading themselves toward the four winds, or the several parts of the earth, without restraint." But if we adhere to the more limited interpretation of these four angels, we may remark, that they were all founded in the eleventh century; and in the end of the thirteenth century Othman combined all the remains of the different sultanies, and founded what is still called the Othman or Ottoman (or, more vulgarly, the Turkish) Empire.

When it is said they were prepared "for an hour, a day," &c. we have supposed these words to mean only a certain appointed time, which is the exposition of Mr. Lowman; but Bishop Newton and others (including Mr. Fuller) understand the expression mystically, taking "a day for a year;" a prophetic year then will be equal to 360 years; a month, 30 years; a day, one year; and an hour, (preserving the same proportion,) 15 days; making in the whole 391 years and 15 days. Now, it is certainly, as the learned prelate just referred to expresses it, "wonderfully remarkable, that the first conquest mentioned in history, of the Othmans over the Christians, was in the year of Christ 1281: and in 1672, Mohammed IV. took Camenic from the Poles, with 48 towns and villages, which were delivered up to the Sultan upon the treaty of peace" being signed; and this was the last addition to the boundaries of the Ottoman empire.

The description here given of these armies answers no less admirably to the immense armies of the Turks or Othmans, which, as the Greek expresses it, were "two myriads of myriads." Breast-plates of fire, and of jacinth, (or hyacinth,) and brimstone, besides marking their three favourite colours, red, blue, and yellow, may allude also to the splendid harness of the cavalry. When it is said, "Out of their mouths issued fire, and smoke, and brimstone," Bishop Newton thinks this "a manifest allusion to great guns and gunpowder, which were invented under this trumpet, and were of signal service to the Othmans in their wars. For by these three was the third part of mankind killed;" that is, the Greek or Eastern Empire. "Amurath II. broke into Peloponnesus, and took several strong places by the means of his artillery. But his son Mohammed, at the siege of Constantinople, employed such great guns as were never made before, [and the description of which is almost incredible.] For forty days the wall was battered by these guns, and so many breaches were made, that the city was taken by assault, and an end put to the Grecian empire." This symbol, of fire issuing out of their mouths, is, according to Mr. Fuller, "expressive of what a body of horsemen, fighting with fire-arms, would appear to a distant spectator, who had never before seen or heard of any thing of the kind."

Now, as it is said of the locusts under the preceding trumpet, that they had "stings in their tails;" so it is said "their tails were like serpents, and had heads," which is generally supposed to allude to the serpents with two heads, of which the old naturalists speak; which would render them terrible, both in their advance and in their retreat. So it is said of an army of locusts—"A fire devoureth before them, and behind them a flame burneth. The land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness." (Joel ii. 3.) Most expositors, however, explain this, in reference to the poisonous doctrines which these Mahometans diffused around them, which were utterly subversive of Christianity, and the rights of conscience.

Some infidel writers have compared Mahometanism with Christianity, and given it the preference, both in respect of its doctrines, and their success; but there is this difference to be observed in them: The doctrines of Christ were opposed to all the prejudices and corrupt passions of mankind; on the contrary, those of Mahomet, except in the article of the unity of God, coincided with them. He made religion to consist in outward ceremonies, and allowed those to be meritorious. He tolerated polygamy, concubinage, revenge, and the most licentious pleasures. His religion swam with the stream—Christianity against it. His religion was propagated with the sword, ours by evidence and persuasion. The success of the one is therefore easily to be accounted for—the other, only on the principle of a divine influence and support.

The religion of Mahomet, separate from his imposture, may be considered as a system of natural religion, for most of the peculiar truths of divine revelation he has discarded, only he acknowledged the divine mission of Jesus, and so far may be considered as a witness for Christianity. Bishop Sherlock, who has drawn a comparison between natural and revealed religion, has the following interesting passage in reference to Mahomet:—"Go to your Natural Religion; lay before her Mahomet and his disciples, arrayed in armour and in blood, riding in triumph over the spoils of thousands and ten thousands, who fell by his victorious sword. Show her the cities which he set in flames, the countries which he ravaged and destroyed, and the miserable distress of all the inhabitants of the earth. When she has viewed him in this scene, carry her into his retirements; show her the prophet's chamber, his concubines and wives, and let her see his adulteries, and hear him allege revelation, and his divine commission, to justify his lusts and his oppressions. When she is tired with this prospect, then show her the blessed Jesus, humble and meek, doing good to all the sons of men, patiently instructing the ignorant and the perverse. Let her see him in his most retired privacies; let her follow him to the mount, and hear his devotions and supplications to God. Carry her to his table, to view his poor fare, and hear his heavenly discourse. Let her see him injured, but not provoked. Let her attend him to the tribunal, and consider the patience with which he endured the scoffs and reproaches of his enemies. Lead her to his cross, and let her view him in the agonies of death, and hear his last prayer for his persecutors, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do!' When Natural Religion has viewed them both, ask which is the Prophet of God? But her answer we have already had, when she saw part of this scene through the eyes of the Centurion who attended him at the cross; by him she said, 'Truly this was the Son of God.'"

But to return to the scenes before us: it is most melancholy, that those only who suffered were affected by them: the survivors repented not. "The rest of the men, that is, (says Mr. Fuller,) of the men who had not the seal of God in their forehead, who were not killed by these plagues, repented not. As those that were killed were the Eastern Roman Empire, with the Greek church, as connected with it; so those that were not killed were the Western Roman Empire, with the Latin church. These two churches were as Aholah and Aholibah. (Ezek. xxiii.) The fall of the one, ought to have been a warning to the other: but it was not. They persisted in their image-worship, which was only the old idolatry of the Pagans under a new form: nor were they behind them in their murderous persecutions, their foul impostures, their filthy intrigues, and their fraudulent impositions. And though soon after the overthrow of the Greek Church the Reformation began, yet they reformed not. The Council of Trent, which was called on this occasion, sat eighteen years, and at last left things as it found them. Babylon was not to be healed!"

Arabia Deserta, Chaldea, and Mesopotamia, and falls into the Persian Gulf. —Calmet.

Ver. 17. Having breast-plates of fire.—[This appears to point out the scarlet, blue, and yellow colours, for which the Turks have always been remarkable. The "four angels bound in the Euphrates" denote their four sultanies ordering on that river, where they were confined till after the period of the Crusades. The time for which they were prepared, "an hour, and a day, and month, and a year," computing a year for each day, amounts to 391 years 15 days and from their first conquest over the Christians, A. D. 1281, to the taking of Cameniec from the Poles, A. D. 1672, which was the last conquest by which their dominion was extended, is exactly that period.]—B.

Ver. 19. And had heads.—Doddridge, "having heads;" i. e. in their tails. So Pliny describes the amphisbena; but this seems to have been a mistake.

Ver. 20. Worship devils.—Gr. "demons;" i. e. according to Lowman, "angels and the souls of departed men"—sinners, we fear, as well as saints.

Ver. 21. Nor of their sorceries.—We know that, in the middle ages, what is called the black art, was much studied and practised in all its branches But Lowman understands this of poisonings

CHAPTER X.

1 A mighty strong angel appeareth with a book open in his hand. 6 e sweareth by him that liveth for ever, that there shall be no more time. 9 John is commanded to take and eat the book.

AND I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow [a] was upon his head, and his face [b] was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire:

2 And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders [c] uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal [d] up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth [e] lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 And sware by him [f] that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, [g] that there should be time no longer:

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

a Eze.1.28.

b Mat.17.2. c.1.15,16.

c c.8.5,14.2.

d Da.8.26. 12.4,9.

e Ex.6.8. De.32.40.

f Ne.9.6. c.14.7.

g Da.12.7.

h c.11.15.

i Ro.11.25. Ep.3.5..9.

j ver.4.

k Eze.3.1.. 3,14.

a Zec.2.1. c.21.15.

b Eze.40.. 48.

7 But in the days of the voice of the seventh [h] angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery [i] of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice [j] which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

9 And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take [k] it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey.

10 And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

CHAPTER XI.

3 The two witnesses prophesy. 6 They have power to shut heaven, that it rain not. 7 The beast shall fight against them, and kill them. 8 They lie unburied, 11 and after three days and a half rise again. 14 The second wo is past. 15 The seventh trumpet soundeth.

AND there was given me a reed [a] like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure [b] the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—11. A mighty angel with a little book, which, at his command, the prophet eats.—This chapter seems plainly introductory to a new series of prophecies, relative to the Western church; the chapters immediately preceding having described the judgments of God upon the Eastern church, in subjecting it to the Turks. The scene of this introductory vision is upon earth, and the principal personage in it is "a mighty angel." As in chap. v. 2, a strong or mighty angel proclaims a challenge to any one in heaven or earth, to open the book of seven seals; so here another mighty angel appears with "a little book," and takes a solemn oath. Sir Is. Newton remarks, that the form in which he appears, much resembles the description given of Christ himself in chap. i.: his countenance shone as the sun, and his feet like pillars of fire. He was also clothed with a cloud, and had a rainbow round about his head —symbols very appropriate to Deity. These particulars have induced many divines (among whom are Doddridge and Fuller) to appropriate this description to the Son of God himself; yet, on the other hand, there are several circumstances which render it at least doubtful. Though "a mighty angel," it was only "another mighty angel," putting him on a level with other angels; and, as Mr. Wesley observes, he sware not by himself, but by him that sat upon the throne: and though his face was as the sun, so chap. xii. 1, the church is represented as "a woman clothed with the sun, and crowned with stars," which is a figure still more sublime, and leaves us room to think, with Mr. Wesley and Dr. Woodhouse, that this might be, or, indeed, must be, only "a created angel."

This angel appears to have been of extraordinary magnitude, for he set one foot upon the sea, and the other upon the earth. His voice also was proportioned to his figure, for it was "as when a lion roareth." And when he had cried, "seven thunders uttered their voices;" not merely inarticulate sounds, because John was about to write them, till he was forbidden; but as he was ordered to seal up, or suppress them, it would be both vain and presumptuous for us to guess at them, as some have done. "Secret things belong unto the Lord our God, but the things that are revealed unto us and to our children." (Deut. xxix. 29.)

But our most important inquiry here regards the purport of this mighty angel's oath, which has been variously understood, the original being equivocal. The following are, as we conceive, the most probable meanings, and all come nearly to the same issue:—1. If we adhere to the common translation, "there shall be time no longer," we must carefully connect it with the following verse, and then the sense will be, not that the end of all things is now fully come, but that the time of finishing "the mystery of God" shall be fulfilled under the seventh trumpet, which will usher in the Millennium. Or, 2. If we read, "the time shall not be yet," the meaning is, not till the seventh trumpet shall begin to sound, and then the mystery shall be fulfilled. Or, 3d, If we read, "delay shall be no longer," it still amounts to the same thing, meaning, not beyond the sounding of the seventh trumpet. In either case, the seventh trumpet will introduce that grand dispensation of the Millennium, in which all the mystery of God, as respects the present life, shall be fulfilled.

This angel had in his hand a little book open, which Bishop Newton considers as a kind of codicil or appendix to the book which had been unsealed. But Mr. Lowman is of opinion, that this was not another, but a remainder of the same book, or roll, which the Lamb had received and opened. To us it appears altogether a new book, and of a much smaller size, because John was ordered to eat it; that is, to conceal within himself the prophecies now revealed to him, and to arrange and digest them in such manner as might be useful in future generations. Mr. Fuller remarks—"The same desire of understanding the future state of the church, which made him (John) weep, when no one was found worthy to open the sealed book, (chap. v. 4,) must make him rejoice, when an open book was put into his hand, with a direction to eat it: but when he came to digest it, and to perceive the corruptions and persecutions that should prevail, and for so long a period retard the progress of the gospel, it would be grievous to him." It was "sweet in his mouth," but "in his belly bitter." He is warned, however, that his task was not yet accomplished; he must again prophecy before (or perhaps concerning) "many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings."

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1—7. The temple of God measured.—The two witnesses prophesy.—We have above seen, that Christianity obtained first a legal establishment and support in the reign of Constantine; the natural consequence of which was, that many Gentiles flocked into the outward court of Christianity, who had not the seal of God either in their hearts or in their foreheads; many who were not converts in heart, neither did their outward conversation correspond with their profession. To show, therefore, that the Almighty makes a distinction between these and his faithful and true worshippers, he orders

---

CHAP. X. Ver. 1 His feet—i. e. his legs and feet, like pillars and pedestals of burning flame

Ver. 3. Seven thunders uttered their voices.—"Seven" being the number of completion, it may seem to imply a tremendous thunder-storm, attended by voices from heaven.

Ver. 5. Lifted up his hand.—See Gen. xiv. 22. Deut. xxxii. 40. Ezek. xx. 5. —Sir W. Jones, at a period of mature judgment, (says his biographer,) considered [this passage] as equal in sublimity to any in the inspired writings, and far superior to any that could be produced from mere human compositions.

Ver. 6. That there should be time no longer—i. e. no longer delay, as Doddridge and Gill explain it; or, as Daubuz, Lowman, and Bishop Newton explain it, "the time (of those judgments) shall not be yet." The word rendered "time," (Gr. chronos,) we are assured, sometimes signifies delay; which gives a variety in rendering, with no great difference in the general meaning. ("The time should not be yet," that is, the time of those glorious things with which the "mystery of God should be finished."]—Bagster.

Ver 7. When he shall begin to sound.—Woodhouse, "When he is about to sound." Doddridge, "who was about quickly to sound." The seventh angel, we must remember, was to announce the Millennium, in which the mystery of God should be completed.

Ver. 8. Little book.—[This little book was a kind of appendix to the larger book, and appears to have contained the former part of the succeeding chapter, (ver. 1—14;) which is an important supplement to the ninth chapter, as it gives a general account of the state of the western church, and all connected with it, during the period of the fifth and sixth trumpets.]—Bagster.

Ver. 9. Make thy belly bitter.—Woodhouse, "embitter thy stomach" so in next verse—"my stomach was embittered."

Ver. 10. And ate it up.—This language is not peculiar to St. John; it occurs frequently in the Old Testament, particularly in Ezek. iii. 1—3, which is doubtless here alluded to. It also appears common among the Eastern nations. So the Turks say of the Tartars, "that other nations had their learning in their books; but the Tartars had eaten their books, and had their wisdom in their breasts, from whence they could easily draw it out as they had occasion."

Ver. 11. Thou must prophesy again before—(Gr. epi)—Doddridge, "to." Blackwall, "concerning." Mede here infers, "that the apostle is about to go over the same period of time he had before been discoursing of, giving an account of the state of the church, as he had just done of the empire." It is certain he here goes back to the commencement of Popery

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1. A reed (or cane) like unto a rod—i. e. a measuring rod. —Worship therein.—Gr. "in it."

2 But the court [c] which is without the temple [d] leave out, and measure it not; for [e] it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under [f] foot forty and two months.

3 And I will [g] give power unto my [h] two [i] witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in [j] sackcloth.

4 These are the two [k] olive trees, and the two candlesticks [l] standing before the God of the earth.

5 And if any man will hurt them, [m] fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he must in this manner be [n] killed.

6 These [o] have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters [p] to turn them to blood, and to smite the earth with all plagues, as often as they will.

7 And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast [q] that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make [r] war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them.

8 And their dead bodies shall lie in the street [s] of the great city, which spiritually is called [t] Sodom and [u] Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified.

9 And they of the people and kindreds and tongues and nations shall see their dead bodies three days and a half, and shall not suffer their dead bodies to be put in [v] graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them, and make merry, and shall send gifts one to another; because these two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

11 And after three days and a half the Spirit [w] of life from God entered into them and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them.

12 And they heard a great voice from heaven, saying unto them, Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven in a [x] cloud; and their enemies [y] beheld them.

A. M. cir. 4000
A. D. cir. 96

c Ezek.40. 17.-20.
d cast out.
e Luke 21. 24.
f Da.7.25.
g or, give unto my two witnesses that they may prophesy
h Mat.18. 16.
i 1 Cor.14
j Is.22.12
k Je.11.16. Zec.4.3, 11,14
l c.1.20.
m Ps.18.8.
n Nu.16.35. Ho.6.5.
o 1 K.17.1.
p Ex.7.19.
q c.17.8
r Da.7.21. Zec.14.2, &c.
s He.13.12.
t Is.1.10.
u Ex.30.2.
v Ps.79.3
w Eze.37.5, 10. x 1 Th.4.17.
y Mal.3.18.

his apostle John, as it were in the character of a surveyor, faithfully and carefully to measure, that is, to describe, the inner temple of God, and its true worshippers, which is done in this and the three following chapters. These we do not consider as successive prophecies, but as contemporary or synchronical, (as some express it,) and are all comprised within the period of "forty-two months;" or, which is the same thing, (the months of the ancients comprising thirty days each,) 1260 prophetic days or years—days being often thus used for years in the prophetic Scriptures, as may be seen in our note on verse 3.

But, who are these witnesses?—when they commenced prophesying—how long they shall continue—and, finally, what is meant by their death and resurrection?—are severally questions of great importance, and must now come successively under our consideration.

1. Who are the witnesses here intended? Certainly no two individuals, if we take the 1260 days for years; nor are we aware that they are so applied by any respectable expositor, Some have supposed two churches to be intended; and the late Mr. Reader, of Taunton, referred this to the Protestant and Greek churches; but, we conceive, the latter fall very short of the character here given, being, in general, nearly as depraved as the Roman church itself. Mr. B. states the tribute which they pay the Turkish government to have their worship tolerated; but though this may be a witnessing against the Turks, it does not appear to us witnessing on the behalf of God and his truth, nor does it at all assimilate their characters to those of Moses and Elijah.

Some modern commentators (among whom are Dr. Park and Mr. Croly) have explained these witnesses to be the Old and New Testaments; but these we consider to be but one witness, as forming but one book; if, therefore, we were as such to receive it, we should be disposed, with "the word written," to associate "the word preached;" these, indeed, bear a harmonious testimony to divine truth, and are by Providence commonly associated in the great work of man's salvation; and thus they become equally obnoxious to the Papal beast and his supporters.

But the more general, and, we incline to think, the more correct interpretation, is thus expressed by Mr. Fuller:—"The import of these verses is, that during the long period of Papal corruption and persecution, God would have his faithful witnesses, who should bear testimony against it, though it were in sackcloth. As in the language of prophecy, a king denotes, not an individual monarch, but a succession of kings, or a kingdom; so by two witnesses we are doubtless to understand, not two individual witnesses, but a competent succession of them. This is manifest from their continuing through the long period of 1260 years, which can only be true of a succession of men. Some have supposed them to be the Old and New Testaments; others, the Old and New Testament churches; but I see no reason why they should not be understood of the faithful servants of Christ, who, during this period, would bear witness for the truth." Bishop Newton has taken pains to show that, even through the darkest ages of Christianity, there have constantly been some enlightened individuals, who have borne witness against the church of Rome; and had we as many records of humble piety, as of distinguished learning, there is no doubt but the faithful witnesses would be found far more numerous.

These two witnesses are compared to the "two olive trees," and the two candlesticks, or rather lamps, exhibited to the prophet Zechariah; (chap. iv. 2, &c.;) the object of which is, to show from whence these witnesses are to be supplied with wisdom and grace to fulfil their respective duties. What follows, with respect to their power over fire and water, must be explained in reference to the miraculous powers of Moses and Elijah; but as applied to the witnesses generally, must refer only to their "effectual fervent prayer" which, as St. James teaches us, could open and shut the heavens, and call down rain or lightning from above. (James v. 17, 18.) We must be guarded, however, against the supposition that any of these holy men were actuated by personal animosity or revenge. They were warmed with holy fire, and bedewed with heavenly grace.

Ver. 8—19. The death and resurrection of the witnesses.—We are here told that when the witnesses shall have finished, or shall be about to finish their testimony, a certain ravenous beast from the bottomless pit (of whom we shall hear more hereafter) shall make war against them, and overcome them, and kill them. These, like all the Lord's servants, are "immortal till their work is done;" and then they enter into rest, though it is often by the vehicle of a fiery chariot.

Not only are these witnesses slain, but their dead bodies are suffered to lie unburied, and are treated with the utmost contempt; their enemies carousing and making merry over them, until after three days (or years) and a half they obtain a triumphant resurrection, and ascend to glory. And now the scene is wonderfully reversed; many of their enemies are slain, and the rest, affrighted, repent and give glory to God.

But the question which now presents itself is, Have these witnesses been already slain, and when? or, if not, When may the event be expected? Many events have been pointed out by expositors and divines which have been a partial slaying of the witnesses, and have corresponded with the period of three years and a half; but they have been partial, and not followed with that state of triumph and felicity which the prediction

Ver. 2. The court which is without—That is, the outer court; see Ezek. xlii. 14, 20.—Given unto the Gentiles.—[This intimates, that the greater part should be only Christians in name, but Gentiles in wickedness, idolatry, and persecution; which should continue 42 months, or 1260 prophetical days, or years, during which a succession of witnesses should be raised up to bear testimony to the truth. This refers to the idolatry and tyranny of the church of Rome; and is probably to be dated from the time the pope became universal bishop, A. D. 606, or when he was established a temporal prince, A. D. 756.]—B.

Ver. 3. A thousand two hundred and threescore days.—See Num. xiv. 33, 34. "Your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years . . . . . after the number of days in which ye searched the land, (even) forty days (each day for a year) shall ye bear your iniquities, (even) forty years." So in Ezek. iv. 5, 6, the Lord says, "three hundred and ninety days, and forty days," each typical of so many years—"each day for a year." Thus also in Daniel, the prophecy of seventy weeks is almost universally understood to mean weeks of years, chap. ix. 25, 27; and again in chap. xii. 11, 12, days also are used for years; see also Isa. xx. 3. So Mr. Faber assumes, that Daniel's prophecy of seventy weeks, having proved by the event to be weeks—not of days, but of years, with the other passages above referred to, are sufficient to warrant the like explication of the days before us; and we confess that we think Mr. Maitland's late attempt to restrain those days to a literal interpretation, is very forced and unnatural, and contrary to historical facts. These mystical numbers seem also to correspond with Daniel's "time, (two) times, and the dividing of time"—i. e. half a time.—Clothed in sackcloth.—This was the established costume of mourning and distress; 2 Sam. iii. 31. 1 Kings xx. 31; xxi. 27. Job xvi. 15. Ps. xxx. 11, &c.

Ver. 5. Fire proceedeth out of their mouth.—Compare Jer. v. 14. See also Isa. x. 16, 17.—He must in this manner be killed.—Woodhouse, "Thus must he be slain."

Ver. 6. To shut heaven, &c.—Judge Hale seems to think, that this implies that the witnesses should have in them the spirit of Moses and Elijah. So John the Baptist is called by our Lord Elias, Mat. xi. 14.

Ver. 7. When they shall have finished.—Woodhouse, "When they shall be finishing." Mr. Lowman says, "The original may mean the time of their testimony, as well as the end of it." See Mat. x. 19.—The beast, &c. —See chap. xiii. 1, &c.

Ver. 8. The great city—i. e. Rome; "not in respect of its buildings, or its inhabitants, but as the head of the Antichristian community."—Fuller.—Spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt.—This shows that these expressions are not to be taken literally, but figuratively. The inhabitants of this city shall be as vile as Sodom for uncleanness, or Egypt for idolatry, or Jerusalem, when they crucified the Lord.

Ver. 9. Shall not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.—In this respect they are used more cruelly than their master.

13 And the same hour was there a great earthquake and the tenth part of the city [a] fell, and in the earthquake were slain [b] of men seven thousand: and the remnant were affrighted, and gave [c] glory to the God of heaven.

14 The second [d] wo is past; and, behold, the third wo cometh quickly.

15 And the seventh [e] angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms [f] of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he [g] shall reign for ever and ever.

16 And the four and twenty [h] elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, 17 Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which [i] art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast [k] reigned.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96

z c. 16. 19.
a names of men.
b Is. 26. 15. 16.
c 14. 7.
d c. 8. 13.
e c. 10. 7.
f Da. 2. 44. 7. 14. 18, 27.
g c. 1. 4.
h c. 16. 5.
i c. 19. 6.

k or, reign.
l Ps. 9. 7. 96. 10, 13. 98. 9.
m Ps. 115. 13.
n or, corrupt.
o Ps. 103. 11.
p c. 16. 18, 21.
q or, sign.
r Is. 51. 6.
s Ps. 81. 11. Mal. 4. 2.

18 And the nations were [l] angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time [k] of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward [m] unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, [m] small and great; and shouldest destroy them which [n] destroy the earth.

19 And the temple [o] of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were [p] lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an [q] earthquake, and great hail.

CHAPTER XII.

1 A woman clothed with the sun travaileth. 4 The great red dragon standeth before her, ready to devour her child. 6 When she was delivered she fleeth into the wilderness. 7 Michael and his angels fight with the dragon, and prevail. 13 The dragon being cast down into the earth persecuteth the woman.

AND there appeared a great [a] wonder in heaven; a woman [b] clothed with the [c] sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars:

---

leads us to expect, especially as it contains an evident allusion to the resurrection and ascension of our Lord himself. Of these events the following are the most considerable:—1. The Session of the Council of Constance, by which John Huss and Jerome of Prague were burnt; this lasted from November, 1414, to April, 1418, and greatly contributed to forward the Reformation in Germany. The sanguinary reign of Queen Mary, which lasted from February, 1553, to November, 1558, and was followed by the Reformation under Queen Elizabeth.—The Popish reign of James II. lasted from February, 1685, to November, 1688; and from the revocation of the edict of Nantz, in October, 1685, to the coronation of William III., in April, 1689, which provided an asylum for many of the persecuted French Protestants, was nearly the same period. Other similar events have been remarked, but that which excited by far the greatest interest is the French Revolution, near the close of the last century; and which was, in fact, foretold from this very passage.

The Rev. Dr. Thos. Goodwin, sometime president of Magdalen College, Oxford, and afterwards one of the ejected ministers, wrote his exposition of the Apocalypse in 1639, but it was not published till 1683, which was soon after his decease. Commenting on verse 13 of this chapter, by "the tenth part of the city" he understands the kingdom of France, and by the slaying of "7000 men," or (as the margin reads) "names of men," he understands "men of title, office, and dignity," who for having killed the witnesses, themselves are to be killed; "haply," says he, "by being bereft of their names and titles, which are to be rooted out for ever."

Rev. Peter Jurieu, a French Protestant divine, within four years after the publication of the above, viz. in 1687, explains the above quoted text as follows:—"There shall be an earthquake, i. e. a great emotion and trouble in the world, and in the antichristian kingdom. In this emotion a tenth part of the city shall fall: that is, a tenth part of the antichristian kingdom shall be taken away from it. . . . . Now what is this tenth part of the city which shall fall? In my opinion, we cannot doubt that it is France. . . . . This does not signify that the French monarchy shall be ruined: it may be humbled: but, in all appearance, Providence does design a great elevation for her afterwards. . . . . Afterward it must build its greatness on the ruins of the Papal empire." M. Jurieu goes on to state his expectation that the death of these witnesses had a particular relation to that kingdom, (France,) as the street of the Papal city. "The witnesses (says he) must remain dead upon this street, and upon it they must be raised again." On the earthquake and the slaying of 7000 names of men he gives an exposition similar to Dr. Goodwin, only, instead of secular titles, he supposes it may be the ecclesiastical orders of monks and friars that will be destroyed.

Rev. Mr. Fleming, minister of the Scots church in London in the beginning of the 18th century, is still more particular and express, and fixes this great revolution to the year 1794: but as his chief observations are founded on the pouring out the vials, (ch. xvi.,) we shall till then defer our extract from this writer; in the mean time, we beg leave to observe, that we should be extremely cautious in offering expositions upon prophecies unfulfilled; since, though several of the above conjectures seem to have been remarkably fulfilled, it is plain that none of them were completely so; for none of them have issued in that state of permanent reform and triumph which is predicted.

Had the late revolution in France produced a reform also, and had true religion since flourished in that country, we suppose there are few expositors who would not have considered that event as a complete fulfilment of the prediction. But the failure here leads us to look farther for its accomplishment, though it appears to us not at all improbable that France may still be one of the next kingdoms that shall desert the pope. The Scriptures are now freely circulating there, and "a godly seed" is being disseminated through the country, which, we hope, may hereafter glorify God. Indeed, France, and especially the south of it, has always produced a full proportion of witnesses, not only to the truth, but also to the power of the gospel: and, at the same time, we know that there are still popish monks and priests enough to kindle a fire of persecution, if God should so permit. And as it is not clear that the 1260 days of the witnesses, or of the beast, are yet fulfilled, we may reasonably fear that a farther "fiery trial" may still await the church, though we have every reason to believe it will be a short one; and are well assured it will end in the triumph of Christianity. That the death and resurrection of the witnesses is not yet fully accomplished, was the opinion, not only of Dr. Gill, and the old commentators, but also of Archdeacon Woodhouse; who, though he applies the great earthquake to the great agitations which took place in Europe about the time of the reformation, and the fall of a tenth part of the city to the secession of the Protestant nations from Rome; yet, in the close of this chapter, hesitates, "upon a calm review" of what he has written, whether he may not be mistaken. "All the symbols of the prophecy, especially in the latter part, (he says,) will not be found to be fulfilled so completely in the history which we exhibit, as should reasonably be expected. And, therefore, (adds Dr. W.,) I am inclined to agree with Bishop Newton, that the final conflict of the beast with the witnesses may be yet to come. The 1260 years . . . . are not yet elapsed; and in a prophecy, of which parts only are yet fulfilled, there must remain difficulties." Mr. Fuller, also, who agreed with the archdeacon in applying this portion of prophecy to the reformation, and some more recent events, in the conclusion of his work, hesitates whether he may not have gone too far. Speaking (in 1814) of these very recent events, he says, "These tides in human affairs may be permitted, as by a flux and reflux of the ocean, to wash away those things which it is the purpose of heaven to destroy. The antichristian power may rise and fall repeatedly, before it falls to rise no more. Popery must be what it always has been, a persecuting enemy of true religion, or nothing. The preponderating powers of Europe, by restoring its authority, and recommending it to exercise a liberal government, suited to the times, have done all, perhaps, that was in their power towards lengthening out its tranquillity: but it is in vain. We would have healed Babylon, they may say, but she is not healed."

This hesitation in interpreting the Scriptures, (as it may be called,) may be condemned by the ardent spirits of modern prophets; but is, perhaps, the best proof both of reverence to the Scriptures, and of modesty and humility in the expositors:

"But fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

We are now told, (verse 14,) "The second wo is past; and, behold, the third wo cometh quickly." The seventh trumpet then sounds, and occasions at once joy in heaven, and vengeance upon earth. These intimations of the interest which the blessed inhabitants of heaven take in the affairs of Christ's kingdom on earth, (of which there are several in this book,) appear to us to imply, that they are not kept in ignorance of its progress. And if there is joy in the presence of the angels of God "over one sinner that repenteth," as our Lord assures us, (Luke xv. 7, 10,) we need not wonder at the joy enkindled among them by the proclamation of the Millennium. On this subject, however, we shall not enlarge here, as we shall have it repeatedly before us in the next and following chapters. In the mean time, we agree with Mr. Lowman and Mr. Fuller, that the judgment here spoken of (verse 18) is not the last judgment, or "the consummation of all things;" but "manifestly refers to the avenging of the martyrs, by the judgments to be inflicted on the Papal power under the seven vials, antecedent to the Millennium."

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1—17. The woman clothed with the sun, and the great red dragon.—Dr. Doddridge and we think

---

Ver. 13. A tenth part—i. e. one of the ten kingdoms mentioned in chap. xiii. 1.
Ver. 16. Sat before God on their seats.—Greek "Thrones," as in chap. iv. 4.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1. A great wonder.—So verse 3. Meaning, probably, a type or symbol of Christianity, or the Christian church.

2 And she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another [c] wonder in heaven; and behold a great red [d] dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads.

4 And his tail [e] drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born.

5 And [f] she brought forth a man child, who [g] was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there [h] a thousand two hundred and threescore days.

7 And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels,

8 And prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon was cast out, that old [i] serpent, called the [j] Devil, and [k] Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now [l] is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame [m] him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives [n] unto the death.

12 Therefore [o] rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Wo [p] to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because [q] he knoweth that he hath but a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man child.

14 And to the woman were given two wings [r] of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent.

15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood [s] after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth.

17 And the dragon was wroth with the [t] wo-

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D cir. 96.

c or, sign.
d ver.9.
e Is.9.15.
f Is.7.14.
g Ps.2.10.
h c.11.3.
i Ge.3.1,4.
j n.8.44.
k Zec.3.1.
l c.11.15.
m Ro.8.33, 37.
n Lu.14.26.
o Ps.96.11. Is.49.13.
p c.8.13.
q c.10.6.
r Is.40.31.
s Is.59.19.
t Ge.3.15.

properly) prefixes to this chapter the last verse of the preceding, which, therefore, we did not notice in that place. We have before repeatedly observed, that there are in many of these visions allusions to the scenery of the Jewish temple, and this is one of the most remarkable instances. The holy of holies is now laid open to the apostle's view, and the ark of the covenant appears, with the usual awful tokens of the divine presence; but in the foreground of this scene behold, a pregnant woman, and that woman clothed in glory. She is clothed, according to Bishop Newton, by being invested with the rays of Jesus Christ, the Sun of Righteousness; having "the moon"—the Jewish new moons and festivals, as well as all sublunary things—"under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars"—an emblem of her being under the light and guidance of the twelve apostles.

This woman, the commentators seem universally agreed, must represent the Christian church, according to the practice of the ancients, who commonly depicted empires, nations, and cities, under the feminine form, with proper and distinguishing emblems. This woman, we are farther told, was pregnant—was taken in labour, and in much agony "brought forth a man (or masculine) child." Before this woman also appeared a great red (or scarlet) dragon, representing Satan himself as the demon of Pagan tyranny and persecution. When we are told "his tail drew down a third part of the stars of heaven," it may probably allude to his seduction of that part of the heavenly host "who kept not their first estate," for he was a liar and a tempter from the beginning; or it may refer to those stars of the Christian church below, which he had seduced into error and worldly ambition; for we know from other Scriptures, he lieth in wait, "seeking whom he may devour." His object now was to devour this new-born child: but there is an eye in heaven that never sleeps; and in this critical moment, when the dragon was feasting his eyes with the hopes of prey, it was suddenly caught to heaven.

But who was this masculine child? Archdeacon Woodhouse interprets this of our Saviour himself; and Bishop Newton supposes that Constantine might be intended; but, with Lowman and Fuller, we rather refer it to the seed of the church, mentioned in the close of the chapter. "It was this seed (says the latter expositor) that the dragon aimed, by persecution and corruption, to destroy. This child was born to rule; not, however, at present: for if so, there had been no need of his being caught up to the throne of God, nor for his mother's flying into the wilderness for 1260 years. It is at the end of that period that the man child, or the seed of the church, shall rule, and this accords with Daniel vii. 27, 'The kingdom and dominion shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High.'"

As to the woman, a place had also been prepared for her. The child (like young Joash, in the time of Athaliah, '2 Kings xi. 2, 3) was secured in the temple opened in heaven; but the woman had a refuge provided in the wilderness, or desert, as was the case with Elijah; and the wings of a great eagle (as mentioned in verse 14) were given her, to facilitate her escape. The time of her seclusion was also commensurate with that of the prophesying of the witnesses, and of their mourning. While the witnesses were persecuted, the church must needs "weep in secret places."

God will, however, take part with them: and the dragon is not only deprived of his prey, but cast down from heaven in discomfiture and disgrace. Michael and his host are sent to engage with Satan and his angels, in which there is doubtless an allusion to Dan. x. 13, &c., xii. 1; where Michael is described as fighting the battles of the Lord, and of his church.

If the great red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns, intend, as we conceive it does, the demon of Paganism under the old Roman empire, his waiting to destroy the new-born child of Christianity must represent his watchful cruelty during the ten Pagan persecutions. After this, when he was cast out of heaven, and Paganism was subdued under the establishment of Christianity, he raged the more: first, in attempting to revive the old system of idolatry under Julian, the apostate; and, afterwards, in corrupting the Christian church itself by heretical doctrines and secular ambition, until at length the same spirit animated and inspired the Papal monster; the woman (i. e. the true church) who had hidden herself as well as she could hitherto, was now upborne, as upon eagles' wings, to her refuge in the wilderness, during the reign of antichrist, and the testimony of the witnesses; all being confined to the same period of 1260 days, or years; or, as expressed in verse 14, for a time, and times, and half a time, i. e. three prophetic years and a half.

Now, when the old serpent found that he was disappointed of his prey by the flight of the church into the wilderness, he poured forth after her a flood, whether of temptation, affliction, or persecution, all of which are compared to waters; from his doing this, however, it should seem that he was not aware that she had received wings from heaven. By the earth swallowing up those floods, may, perhaps, be intended the assistance and protection that the church oftentimes receives from worldly men.

From the flight of the woman (or church) being twice mentioned, some have considered that two flights are here intended; and, true enough, the church has often been obliged to save herself by flight; but the sacred writers, and especially the prophets, do not, we know, pay that attention to method and order, which we find in modern compositions; and these flights of the church are so exactly similar, that, with Archdeacon Woodhouse, we are satisfied of their being the same.

There is a like difference among expositors, as to the "war in heaven;" some supposing it to refer directly and solely to the first fall of Satan and the rebel hosts, so circumstantially described by Milton; (Paradise Lost, book i.;) and others con-

Ver. 2. And pained.—Doddridge, "in agony."
Ver. 3. A great red dragon.—The redness here is properly that of fire. A dragon is properly an enormous serpent.
Ver. 5. A man child.—Doddridge, "a masculine son," which is literal.—And her child, &c.—Some place these words to the end of verse 6, in a parenthesis.

Ver. 6. Fled into the wilderness.—By a wilderness, in Scripture, is always meant a place barren, and destitute of human food. See Isa. xli. 19, 20. Ezek. xx. 35. Hos ii. 14, 15.
Ver. 14. Two wings of a great eagle.—To be borne on eagles' wings, implies divine miraculous deliverance. See Exod. xix. 4. Isa. xl. 31, &c.
Ver. 15. Water as a flood.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "like a river" man, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 A beast riseth out of the sea with seven heads and ten horns, to whom the dragon giveth his power. 11 Another beast cometh up out of the earth: 14 causeth an image to be made of the former beast, 15 and that men should worship it, 16 and receive his mark.

AND I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast [a] rise up out of the sea, having [b] seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the [c] name of blasphemy.

2 And the beast which I saw was [d] like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon [e] gave him his power, and his [f] seat, and great authority.

3 And I saw one of his heads as it were [g] wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered [h] after the beast.

4 And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him?

5 And there was given unto him a mouth [j] speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to [k] continue [l] forty and two months.

6 And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his [m] tabernacle, and them that [n] dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given unto him to make war [o] with the saints, and to overcome them: and power [p] was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.

8 And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book [q] of life of the Lamb slain from [r] the foundation of the world.

9 If any man have an ear, let him hear.

10 He [s] that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he [t] that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the [u] patience and the faith of the saints.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

a Da.7.2, &c.
b c.12.3, 17.3,9,12.
c or, names
d Da.7.4..7.
e c.12.9.
f c.16.10.
g slain.
h c.17.8.
i c.17.14.
j Da.7.8,11, 25. 11.36.
k or, make war.
l c.11.2,3. 12.6
m Col.2.9 He.9.11, 24.
n He.12.22, 23.
o Da.7.21. c.11.7. 12.17
p Lu.4.6.
q Da.12.1. c.21.27.
r c.17.8.
s Is.33.1
t Ge.9.6.
u He.6.12.

---

sidering it only as an allusion to that event, but referring more directly to the affairs of the Christian church; and that this was the real case, we think evident from the song of triumph sung on this occasion, by which it appears that the victors were not angels, strictly speaking, but the redeemed, who "overcame by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; who loved not their lives even to the death," which can never be said of angels.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1—10. Concerning this first beast, there seems to be a better agreement among Protestant commentators than on most other parts of the Apocalypse: and Fuller (as usual) speaks with so much perspicuity and moderation, that we shall offer an abstract of his interpretation, and chiefly in his own words, in preference to quoting any preceding writer. He remarks, "The apostle in vision, standing as upon the sea shore, sees a 'beast [i. e. a monster] rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his crowns the name (or names) of blasphemy.' A beast rising out of the sea, is an empire opposed to God and his Christ, rising out of the perturbed state of things in the world. The description given of this beast (Mr. F. thinks) leaves no doubt of its being the same as the fourth beast in Daniel," chap. vii., to our notes and exposition of which we must beg leave therefore to refer our readers; adding, that whereas Daniel saw three previous beasts, a lion, a bear, and a leopard, all which had in St. John's time passed away, and had been absorbed in the Roman beast; John describes this beast as compounded of those three, having the body of a leopard, the paws of a bear, and the mouth (or teeth) of a lion. Daniel also says nothing of its seven heads, nor of the crowns attached to the horns, which, in the time of John, had not become separate kingdoms.

"This seven-headed and ten-horned beast (says Mr. Fuller) does not appear to be the Pope or Popedom, nor the church of Rome, but that secular power which has supported the church of Rome through the whole of her corrupt and bloody progress. The beast is not the harlot, but that on which the harlot rides. That which has been denominated The Holy Roman Empire, of which sometimes a French, and sometimes a German monarch, has been the head, seems to be the government principally intended, as being the great support of that church. It is not this government, however, exclusive of that of the other European nations, but merely as a principal amongst them. . . . . The ten horns are said to 'agree, and to give their kingdom to the beast,' (chap. xvii. 17;) that is, they united with the emperor in supporting the church. Things were so managed, indeed, by the (Roman) church, that the rulers of every nation in Christendom were, in a manner, compelled to unite in her support. 'All the civil powers were obliged by the council of Lateran to take an oath, on pain of ecclesiastical censures, that they would endeavour to exterminate all who were declared heretics by the church, out of their dominions: and if any prince or ruler refused to do so, after admonition, it was to be certified to the Pope, who should declare all his subjects absolved from their allegiance, and any Catholic was free to seize his dominions.'"

Whereas it is said, also, that the dragon, that is, the old serpent, who was the demon of Paganism, in all its variety of idolatrous forms, "gave his power (his throne, and great authority) to the beast," we may by that understand, that Satan himself is the spirit by which every system of idolatry is animated and supported.

Of the heads and horns of the beast, we shall have occasion to speak again on chap. xvii.; but when it is here stated, that one of his heads was wounded, we must understand it as referring to one of the kingdoms, or forms of government, under which the empire had subsisted, (as explained in chap. xvii. 8,) namely, the Imperial, which was wounded in Augustulus, and healed in Charlemagne; or, as others explain it, wounded in the fall of Paganism, and healed in the rise of Popery: for the demon of Paganism (that is, the devil) now inspired "the Holy Roman Empire" above named, with the same spirit of persecution, and to a greater degree of fury.

It is now said, (ver. 4,) "And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast." Dragon, or serpent-worship, has been carried to an awful enormity in the Pagan world. The learned Mr. Bryant thinks "it prevailed almost universally in the Eastern world, and names many countries which adopted it, particularly Egypt." There were also some mongrel Christians, who were called Ophites or Serpentarians; perhaps because they reverenced the brazen serpent as a type of Christ; but others, as we fear, who renounced Christ, and preferred to him the old serpent himself. (See Dict. of all Religions, in Ophites.)

But serpent worship was carried to its highest pitch of extravagance and cruelty in Old Mexico, North America, of which the most appalling proofs have been within these few years exhibited by Mr. Bullock, at the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly; where, with the great serpentine idol, sixty feet long, was also shown the vast sacrificial stone on which they offered numerous human victims, wherein was visible the channels in which the blood that was shed flowed. And serpents are still worshipped by the Negroes in some parts of Africa, as emblems of the devil, that he may not hurt them. Such is the infatuation of mankind in worshipping the dragon!

"And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies." In fact, all boasting, in the sight of God, is blasphemy. It is attributing to ourselves the power, and wisdom, or goodness, which belongs to God: as when Nebuchadnezzar said—"Is not this great Babylon, that I have built . . . . by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty!" Vain and unhappy mortal! while the words were in his mouth, the kingdom departed from him! Such was the boasting language of Rome, both ancient and modern, Pagan and Papal; and names of blasphemy were incorporated in the imperial title, as afterwards in that of the Popes of Rome, as we shall have occasion to remark on a subsequent chapter.

It is worthy our observation, that the worshipping of the dragon and the seven-headed beast is confined to those "whose names are not written in the book of life." There were some true Christians in every age who protested against idolatry, and the tyranny of Rome over the consciences of mankind.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1. A beast rise.—[This beast, the same as Daniel's fourth beast, (Da. vii. 7,) is the Roman or Latin empire, whose capital was seated on seven hills, was divided into ten kingdoms, and received its power from "the dragon," or the idolatrous heathen empire. Both imperial and papal Rome have arrogated to themselves the most blasphemous titles; and the number of pious Christians who have fallen a sacrifice to the latter is incalculable. The term of his power also exactly coincides with that during which 'the two witnesses prophesied in sackcloth." Chap. xi. 3.]—Bagster.——Out of the sea.—See Dan. vii. 2, 3.

Ver. 2 Leopard.—Says Diodati, the three several figures of the beasts which represented the monarchies of the Chaldeans, Persians, and Grecians (Dan. vii. 4, 5, 6,) are here all put together, to describe Rome, as if it were an abbreviate and a gathering together of the tyranny, cruelty, and ravenousness of all the former empires.——His seat.—Greek, "his throne," as before.

Ver. 8. Whose names are not written, &c.—Doddridge, "Whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb, who was slain, from the foundation of the world." In the parallel passage, ch. xvii. 8, it is said, "whose names are not written in the book of life, from the foundation of the world." So, in this place, the Unitarian version reads—"was not written, from the foundation of the world, in the book of life of the Lamb that was slain." Which Pye Smith pronounces "a just translation."

Ver. 10. He that leadeth, &c.—Compare Isaiah xxxiii 1. Mat. xxvi. 52

11 And I beheld another [v] beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon.

12 And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was [w] healed.

13 And he doeth great [x] wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, 14 And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the [y] wound by a sword, and did live.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

[v] c 11.7.

[w] ver.3.

[x] Mat.24. 24. 2 Th.2.9, 10.

[y] ver.3,12.

[z] breath.

[a] c.16.2.

[b] give them.

[c] c.15.2.

15 And he had power to give [z] life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not [a] worship the image of the beast should be killed.

16 And he caused all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to [b] receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads:

17 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number [c] of his name.

18 Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.

Ver. 11—18. A second beast rises from the earth with two horns, like a lamb.—The first beast rose out of a tempest in the sea, as dolphins and other fishes are known to do—that is, it rose out of a state of general and tremendous warfare: this second beast sprung up, as Fuller expresses it, "like a weed in a garden," quietly and almost unobserved. This beast had "two horns like a lamb," and answers to the little horn in Daniel, (chap. vii. 20, 21,) "which had a mouth that spake very great things;" for though it is said "he had two horns like a lamb, he spake as a dragon;" his breath was poisonous, and his tongue a sting. "He exerciseth all the authority of the first beast before him," or in his presence. "He is (says Bishop Newton) the prime minister, adviser, and mover, of the first, or secular beast."

It is added, "He causeth men to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed." That is, "As the secular authority invested the ecclesiastical with power, and riches, and honour, so, in return, the ecclesiastical authority adds the influence with which the sanction of religion seems to invest him, to the civil power, which he obtains and exercises under the Roman beast. Thus armed with twofold authority, he employs it in support of the power which he has obtained; and to secure reverence and obedience to that power, he sets it up as sacred." (Dr. Woodhouse.)

Having assumed a sacred character, he affects to work miracles—"he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, and deceiveth them that dwell on the earth." So it was foretold of "the Man of sin," which we take to be the same apostate power, that he should perform "signs and lying wonders," and that many who "received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved," should, in the righteous judgment of God, be given up to strong delusions, that they should "believe a lie," and perish. It is, indeed, a most striking fact, that many who have rejected the benevolent miracles of the gospel, have been deceived by the pretended miracles of false prophets and false apostles, and perished in their error. This was particularly the case with the Jews who crucified the Lord Jesus, and perished by thousands for their adherence to Barcochebas, and other false Messiahs.

This second beast proposed to make an image to the first, to which, being made, he gave both life and speech. So the Pagan priests of old pretended to animate and inspire their idols, and assisted them to give oracular answers in their temples: and Mr. Ward (late missionary in India) informs us, that "the Brahmins, by repeated incantations, profess to give eyes and a soul to an image before it is worshipped." (Orient. Lit. No. 1584.) Agreeably to this, we know that many Popish monks and priests have attempted to animate their crucifixes and Virgin Marys; and still, to this day, delude thousands. But what is meant by this image?

"This making of an image to the beast, seems to allude to the heathen practice of making images to their deities..... The design of making an image to a God, would be to acknowledge him as their deity, and to give a visibility and an establishment to his worship:.... to require implicit obedience to his commands, in whose reign Paganism was revived, under the name of Catholic Christianity!" ... So Mr. Fuller, who adds—"It has been observed, that while the secular beast is said to make war upon the saints, the ecclesiastical is only said to cause them to be killed." (ver. 15.)—"The Inquisitors, (says Bishop Burnet,) on this occasion, with a disgusting affectation of lamb-like meekness, are wont to beseech the civil magistrates to show mercy to those whom they themselves have given up to be consigned to the flames!"

This last remark leads us to another interpretation. Some have supposed that this beast represents a third distinct power—namely, the religious orders of Popery, and especially the Jesuits. But Dr. Doddridge hints at the Inquisition as the truest image of the beast. The Rev. Mr. Croly has lately advocated this opinion with much ingenuity, and the resemblance is too striking to be denied, except by those whose interest will not allow them to admit it. "The three characteristics of the Papacy were, (says Mr. C.,) its assumption of superiority to all earthly power, its persecution, and the suppression of the Scriptures; and those were the more remarkable, as no other power or sovereignty had ever before asserted such prerogatives. The Inquisition asserted them all, with, however, an acknowledgment of deriving its right to the assertion from the Papacy. It claimed to judge sovereigns, and actually cited even Charles V. and Philip II. to stand before it; its office was persecution; and the universal result of its success was the suppression of the Scriptures. It was the Papacy on a subordinate scale."

Ver. 11. Another beast.—Many explain this second beast, which is also called "the false prophet," (chap. xix. 20,) to be Mahomet, or Mahometanism; and Woodhouse connects Popery and Mahometanism, as the two horns of the Antichristian beast—east and west—and, it must be admitted, both arose about the same time, i. e. early in the 7th century. This second beast, however, is represented as fully co-operating with the first; whereas history informs us that Popery and Mahometanism never acted in conjunction, but always in opposition.——And two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon.—On this passage, Woodhouse says, "It has been a favourite object with some very respectable modern writers, to represent the infidel democratic power, which appeared at one time to spring up with the French Revolution, as fulfilling this prophecy of the false prophet. I will propose a few reasons to show why it cannot be so. 1. The horns like a lamb denote an ecclesiastical power: but the French power is wholly civil, and it imposes no religion on the conquered.—2. There are in this infidel attempt no pretended miracles, or heavenly commission, no "fire from heaven."—3. The French have, indeed, set up an image, a lively representation of the ancient tyrannies; but it is not pronounced sacred, nor is its worship enforced: they require no more than other political conquerors, submission to their civil sceptre; they do not persecute for religion's sake.—4. There is good reason to believe, that as the two beasts are to perish together, (chap. xix. 20,) so their period being of the same length, that they arose together."

On the same subject, Fuller says, "I see no solid ground for Faber's hypothesis of an Infidel King, any more than of an Infidel Antichrist..... What is said of the scoffers of the last times, is, indeed, descriptive of what we daily witness; but it is only of individuals that these things are spoken. Infidelity does not appear to be symbolized in the Scriptures, either by a beast, a horn, or a king.

Ver. 13. Great wonders.—This is the same which Paul speaks of, 2 Thess. ii. 9—10, &c., which see, with note.——Maketh fire come down.—An allusion, probably, to 2 Kings i. 10—12.

Ver. 14. That they should make an image to the beast.—Some have explained this, as if this second beast was itself the image of the former, which seems to us not to agree with the text. Middleton, however, in his celebrated Letter from Rome, has drawn a striking parallel between them, that is, between Paganism and Popery, in a great variety of particulars. There, he remarks, we may see "the present people of Rome worshipping at this day in the same temples—at the same altars—sometimes the same images—and (almost) with the same ceremonies, as the old Romans: they must have more charity, as well as skill in distinguishing, than I pretend to, (says the doctor,) who can absolve them from the same crime of superstition and idolatry with their Pagan ancestors."

Ver. 15. To give life.—Greek, Pneuma which is either breath or spirit. Says Diodati, force and vigour to command.——Should be killed.—The penalty of denying the divine authority of the church of Rome was always death, and the object of the Inquisition was to enforce this penalty; and in countries where that was not established, the Popish clergy often supplied that "lack of service."

Ver. 16. To receive (Greek, "to give") a mark, &c.—"We must understand (says Newton) that it was customary among the ancients, for servants to receive the mark of their masters, and soldiers, of their general; and those who were devoted to any particular deity, of the particular deity to whom they were devoted. These marks were usually impressed "on their right hand, or on their foreheads," and consisted of some hieroglyphic characters, or of the name expressed in vulgar letters, or of the name disguised in numerical letters according to the fancy of the imposer.

Ver. 17. No man might buy or sell.—This was an ancient form of persecution. Thus the Jews were persecuted by the heathen. Prideaux says, Ptolemy Philopater forbade any to enter into his palace, who did not sacrifice to the gods he worshipped, thereby excluding them from all legal protection: and he afterwards ordered all the Jews who applied to be enrolled as citizens of Alexandria, to have the form of an ivy leaf (the badge of Bacchus) to be impressed upon them with a hot iron, under pain of death. (Prid. Connect. ante c. 216.) So Newton remarks, that William the Conqueror would not allow any to buy or sell, who refused obedience to the Apostolic See; and Pope Alexander III. forbade any one to traffic with the Waldenses. So also the Council of Constance forbids heretics to "enter into contracts, or commerce, &c. with Christians."

Ver. 18. Here is wisdom.—Newton remarks, "It was a method practised among the ancients, to denote names by numbers; as the name of Thauth, the Egyptian Mercury, by the number 1218; Jupiter, by 737, &c. This led some, even in the first century of Christianity, as mentioned by Irenæus, to interpret this number 666, by the name Lateinos, the Latin man, or church, so called, because in all countries its services are held in the Latin language. The Greeks, it should be remarked, used all their letters as numerals, in manner following:—

		No.
Lamed	(L)	30
Alpha	(A)	1
Tau	(T)	300
Epsilon	(E)	5
Iota	(I)	10
Nu	(N)	50
Omicron	(O)	70
Sigma	(S)	200
		666

The Hebrews, it may be added, also use their letters as numerals; and the

CHAPTER XIV.

The Lamb standing on mount Sion with his company. 6 An angel preacheth the gospel. 8 The fall of Babylon. 15 The harvest of the world, and putting in of the sickle. 20 The vintage and wine-press of the wrath of God.

AND I looked, and, lo, a Lamb [a] stood on the mount Sion, and with him a hundred forty and four [b] thousand, having his Father's name [c] written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice [d] of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers [e] harping with their harps:

3 And they sung as it were a [f] new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the [g] hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth.

4 These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are [h] virgins. These are they which follow [i] the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were [j] redeemed from among men, being the first-fruits [k] unto God and to the Lamb.

5 And in their mouth was found no [l] guile: for they are without [m] fault before the throne of God.

6 And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the [n] everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every [o] nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for [p] the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.

8 And there followed another angel, saying Babylon [q] is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.

9 And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If [r] any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink [s] of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with [t] fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb:

11 And the smoke [u] of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest [v] day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.

12 Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die [w] in the Lord [x] from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

14 And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat [y] like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

15 And another angel came out of the temple,

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96

a c.5.12.
b c.7.4.
c c.3.12.
d c.19.6.
e c.5.8,9.
f c.15.3.
g ver.1.
h Ca.1.3. 6.8. 2 Co.11.2.
i Jn.10.27.
j bought 1 Co.6.20
k Ja.1.18. l Ps.32.2
m Ep.5.27. Jude 24.
n 2 Sa.23.5. Is.40.8.
o Ep.3.9.
p c.15.4
q Is.21.9. Je.51.7,8. c.18.2,3.
r c.13.14,. 16.
s Ps.75.8.
t c.19.20
u Is.34.10.
v Is.57.20, 21.
w 1 Th.4.14, 16.
x or, from henceforth saith the Spirit, yea.
y Eze.1.26 Da.7.13.

When it is added, that this second beast caused all its creatures to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their forehead, we suppose it must be understood, that all their actions and professions must bear the stamp of Popery, the refusal of which would be attended with consequences as fatal as was, in Pagan Rome, the refusal to worship the emperor, or his gods.

But the most perplexing inquiry in this chapter, and perhaps in all the book, relates to the number of the beast, and of his name; and yet that number is plainly stated to be "Six hundred and threescore and six."

"Of all the various interpretations of this text, which it would be endless to enumerate, and much more to canvass," Dr. Doddridge says, "I find none that pleases me so well as that of Sir Is. Newton, [which, indeed, was first suggested by Irenæus, in the second century,] that the [Greek and Hebrew] words Lateinos and Romiith, [meaning] the man of Latium, or of Rome, whose numeral letters, taken together, make 666, are here referred to. I suppose (adds the Doctor) this number is mentioned to signify, that the appearance of that power, whose efforts were to continue 1260 years, was to happen about 666 years after the date of the Revelation, A. D. 96. And this I take to be the grand key by which the era of the fall of Babylon is to be calculated, as it fixes the rise of the beast to the year 756, or thereabouts; when, upon the destruction of the exarchate of Ravenna, the Pope became a temporal monarch; that is, in prophetic language, a beast." Of this more hereafter.

Mr. Croly is, however, very confident (as he generally is) that no name is here alluded to; and that the number mentioned is not the number of a man, but of man; that is, a human number: a number commonly in use, which he supposes to mark the rise of the Inquisition, 666 years after the rise of Popery, which he places in A. D. 532; and these numbers, taken together, make 1198, which he gives as the exact date of the origin of that abominable institution.

That the Inquisition formed the vital principle of Popery, and that it was mainly founded by the Dominicans, on the pretence of working miracles, must be admitted; but we have still some doubts whether the making an image of the beast may imply any thing more than setting up a system of idolatry. And, if it did, we are inclined to think, with Bishop Newton, that the Pope himself is the true image or idol of the Roman church.

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1—20. The Lamb and his company on Mount Sion.—An angel publishes the gospel; and another predicts the fall of Babylon.—The reaping of the earth, and gathering in the vintage.—The multitude here assembled represents, undoubtedly, the true church of God, who, in chap. vii. 3, &c. are represented as having been sealed, that they might be secured against apostacy, and preserved from the power of him who goes about "like a roaring lion" in the desert, "seeking whom he may devour." And, after all the cruelties of one beast and another, they are now found safe and triumphant with the Lamb upon Mount Sion. The literal Sion, we know, formed part of Jerusalem, and the spiritual Sion, doubtless, represents the Jerusalem which is above, or, at least, a part of it. When we are told that these are virgins, we understand it as expressive not only of their purity generally, but especially of their freedom from idolatry, which is spiritual fornication—they had not worshipped the beast, nor yet his image; and when we are told that "they are without fault before the throne," we must explain it by a reference to chap. vii. 14—"They have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

The next vision exhibited to the apostle is that of an angel flying in the midst of heaven, having "the everlasting Gospel," represented probably by a book or scroll, to proclaim or "preach to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people." Many commentators refer this to the times of the Protestant reformation; but we apprehend that though the gospel, both vocally and by the press, was then widely circulated, very few attempts were or could be made, to carry it beyond the bounds of Christendom: it was reserved for the present century, by means of Bible, missionary, education, and other societies, on a grand scale, to carry it "to every nation, and kindred, and tongue,

---

Hebrew word, Romiith, affords both the same number and meaning. The same number may be picked out of other names, but in both cases some of the letters must be blank.

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1. Mount Sion.—This must not be taken literally, as that formed but a part of Jerusalem, and would hold no such number of persons; but this evidently refers to the Christian church. See Hebrews xii. 22, 23.

Ver. 2. As the voice of many waters.—The sound here mentioned is compared to the roaring of the sea, and the thunder of the heavens, for its magnitude, and for its harmony to a concert of a thousand harps.

Ver. 3. A new song.—Not only the song of victory over their enemies, as Moses sung, but also the song of Redemption by the blood of Christ.——Four beasts—Or "living creatures." See chap. iv. 6.

Ver. 4. Not defiled with women—i. e. not idolaters; for idolatry is spiritual fornication. See 2 Co. xi. 2, 3.——Whithersoever he goeth.—The Lamb being considered as their leader: so all the Roman soldiers were sworn to follow their general "whithersoever he might lead them."

Ver 8. Babylon is fallen.—See chap. xviii. 2.

Ver. 9. Receive his mark.—See on chap. xiii. 16, 17

Ver. 10. The wine of the wrath, &c.—"Without mixture," must here mean, without diluting.——Tormented with fire and brimstone.—See chap. xviii. 6.

Ver. 13. From henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit.—"From" is redundant and unnecessary. The sense appears to be, that such afflictions are approaching, that death will be a happy escape from them.——Their works do follow them.—Greek, "with them;" i. e. their reward is not deferred to the final judgment. Witsius, and other Protestants, have hence ably argued against purgatory, and in proof of an intermediate state.

Ver. 14. Behold a white cloud.—[This chapter contains a vision of the true "church in the wilderness," during the period of the domination of the Beast and its image, and the emblematical representations of the progressive reformation from popery. The first angel (ver. 6, 7.) probably refers to the dawning of the reformation in the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries, particularly to the Waldenses and Albigenses; the second, (ver. 8,) to the Bohemians, with John Huss and Jerome of Prague, in the 14th century; and the third, to Luther and his coadjutors, who protested against popery as a damnable religion. But the voices of these angels not having due influence and effect, the judgments of God, as here represented, will overtake the beast and its adherents. These, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Thrust [z] in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest [a] of the earth is [b] ripe.

16 And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth: and the earth was reaped.

17 And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle.

18 And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, [c] Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe.

19 And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great wine-press [d] of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine-press was [e] trodden without [f] the city, and blood [g] came out of the wine-press, even [h] unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAPTER XV.

1 The seven angels with the seven last plagues. 3 The song of them that overcome the beast. 7 The seven vials full of the wrath of God.

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues; for in them is filled up the wrath [a] of God.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

z Joel 3 13
a Je 51 33. Mat 13. 39.
b or, dried.
c ver. 15.
d c 19 15.
e Is. 63 3.
f He 13 11, 12.
g Is 34.7.
h c 19.11
a c 14 10
b c 4.6.
c Is 1 4,5.
d c 13 15., 17.
e c 14.2.
f Ex. 15.1., 19. De. 32 1., 43
g c 14 3
h Ho. 14 9.
i or, nations of ages. c 17 14
j Je. 10.7.
k 1 Sa. 2 2.
l Is. 45 23.
m c 11 19
n Is 6 4
o Ps. 29.9.

2 And I saw as it were a sea [b] of glass mingled with [c] fire: and them that had gotten the victory over [d] the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps [e] of God.

3 And they sing the song of Moses [f] the servant of God, and the song of the [g] Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy [h] ways, thou King of [i] saints.

4 Who [j] shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only [k] art holy: for all [l] nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest.

5 And after that I looked, and, behold, the temple [m] of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened:

6 And the seven angels came out of the temple, having the seven plagues, clothed in pure and white linen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the four beasts gave unto the seven angels seven golden vials full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever.

8 And the temple was filled [n] with smoke from the glory [o] of God, and from his power; and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled.

---

and people," under heaven. This angel appears also as the forerunner of another, having a widely different proclamation, announcing the fall of Babylon and its awful consequences—which are here represented under the popular images of the harvest and vintage of the world. The fall of Babylon, and the consequent triumph of the church, will occupy our attention under the 17th and 18th chapters; when we shall see that, by the same sweeping judgments, the saints are reaped from the earth, and the "wine-press of the wrath of God" is trodden. Perhaps there is no surer earnest of the speedy fall of Babylon, than the rapid success of those messengers who have recently been employed in circulating the Scriptures and the Gospel through the world.

But a third angel approaches with a warning voice against Popish idolatry, announcing against such the most awful judgments. It is, indeed, the prevailing fashion in this liberal age to consider the errors of Popery as venial and of little consequence; and we are free to confess, that we believe there are Papists who enter as little into the spirit of their religion as the generality of Protestants enter into ours; they neither worship the beast, nor his image, nor receive his mark; but for those who worship saints and angels, or who trust their salvation either to their own merits, or the merits of departed saints, we confess we tremble.

Lastly, we are invited to contemplate "the patience of the saints" in all their sufferings—their peaceful rest from all their labours upon earth—and the reward which follows "with them into heaven!" By those who "die in the Lord" is generally understood martyrs to Christianity; but we think, with Dr. Doddridge, that it should not by any means be so confined. All who "live to the Lord" may confidently hope to die in him. (See Rom. xiv. 8.)

"The 12th and 13th verses (says Fuller) would seem to portend a time of persecution prior to the final overthrow of the Antichristian power; a time which may be as the last struggles of the beast. This is the flood cast out of the mouth of the dragon after the woman (chap. xii. 15;) the gathering together of 'the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to the battle of the great day of God Almighty,' (ch. xvi. 14;) and the war made by the beast and the kings against him who sat upon the horse and against his army." (ch. xix. 18.)

The prodigious carnage with which this chapter closes seems to be described hyperbolically, unless it be intended to mark the country in which it should occur: 1600 furlongs being 200 miles, is said to be about the extent of the Pope's patrimony in Italy, and so it is explained by Mede and other expositors: nor is it unlikely that "the throne of the beast" should be stained with blood. (See chap. xvi. 6.)

CHAP. XV. Ver. 1—8. Seven angels appear with vials containing the seven last plagues.—This very short chapter is merely introductory to pouring out these vials of divine judgment in the chapter following. "A sea of glass, like unto crystal," has been exhibited to us in the fourth chapter; here it seems irradiated with the divine glory, brighter than the sunbeams; and whoever has seen a summer sea in a calm, may easily form an idea of the beauty of this image. Upon this sea is placed the whole multitude of the redeemed, (for glorified saints and angels can tread the water as well as land,) who unite, as in the last chapter, with the elders and the sacred animals in the song of Moses and the Lamb—a song of triumph over their enemies, and of praise for redeeming love; adding—"Who shall not praise thy name? for thou art holy."

The sounding of the seventh trumpet (ch. xi. 15) is generally considered as introducing the seven vials or plagues which follow, and which themselves prepare the way for the glorious period of the Millennium, as already intimated. They must, therefore, fall toward the latter part of the 1260 days or years, so often mentioned. This commission being given to these seven angels, together with the vials or censers they were to pour out upon the earth, &c. the temple above is immediately filled (as was Solomon's of old) with the symbol of divine glory. "This cloud (says Dr. Guyse) appeared like a thick cloud, awfully glorious, which was a symbol of the divine vengeance (Ps. xviii. 8) as going forth from the presence of the Lord, and to be executed by the glory of his power, in the destruction of Antichrist; even as the cloud on the tabernacle was of his dreadful judgment upon Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, and the murmuring Israelites, (Numb. xvi. 19, 42:) and as Moses could not enter into the tabernacle, nor the priests stand to minister in the temple, while the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord, (Exod. xl. 35; 1 Kings viii. 11,) so no one could enter into this heavenly temple to intercede for prevent-as well as the events in the following chapter, evidently appear to be still future.]—Bagster.

---

Ver. 15. Is ripe.—Referring to the state of rice wheat in hot countries, and figuratively implying that the world was ripe for destruction.

Ver. 18. Another angel came out from the altar.—We have repeatedly heard of an altar in heaven, which, of course, can only be understood metaphorically; for, as we have before observed, much of this celestial scenery is taken from the scenery of the temple.—Which had power over fire—i. e. which fulfilled the office of the priest who attended upon the altar of burnt-offering.

It was natural enough for Protestants to apply part of the visions of this book to the Reformation from Popery; but it was not only groundless, but ridiculous, to make these angels types of individuals, as some have done.

Ver. 19. And the angel thrust in his sickle, &c.—See Joel iii. 13. Isa. lxiii. 3, &c.

Ver. 20. And the wine-press was trodden, &c.—On the hyperbolical expression relative to the blood reaching "unto the horse bridles," Newton refers to the Jerusalem Talmud, which, describing the woful slaughter which the Emperor Adrian made among the Jews, says, that "the horses waded in blood up to their nostrils."

CHAP. XV. Ver. 1. Seven last plagues—Or "strokes," or "scourges," alluding to the plagues of Egypt, which gradually became more terrible as they proceeded.

Ver. 2. Gotten the victory over the beast, and over, &c.—Doddridge, "Overcome the beast," &c. Dr. S. Clarke insists that it should be rendered, "Out of the midst of the beast," as we sometimes say, "Out of the paws of the lion;" i. e. they escaped his power by adhering steadfastly to the true religion, in the midst of an idolatrous and corrupt nation.

Ver. 3. Thou King of saints.—The MSS. vary; but Newcome reads, "O King eterne."

Ver. 5. The temple of the tabernacle—i. e. the most holy place. Doddridge.

Ver. 7. And one of the four beasts—i. e. of the living creatures mentioned chap. iv. 6, &c.—Seven golden vials.—[This chapter introduces the seven vials, all of which are comprehended under the seventh trumpet, as the seven trumpets were included under the seventh seal; for they contain "the seven last plagues," in which "is filled up the wrath of God," on the persecuting idolatrous power.—Not only the concinnity of this prophecy requires this order, but if these plagues be not the last woe, it is no where described; while the many fruitless attempts made to explain them, plainly show that the hand of time must be the interpreter.]—Bagster.

CHAPTER XVI.

[1] The angels pour out their vials full of wrath. 6 The plagues that follow thereupon. 15 Christ cometh as a thief. Blessed are they that watch.

AND I heard a great voice out of the temple saying to the seven [a] angels, Go your days, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 And the first went, and poured out his vial upon the [b] earth; and there fell a noisome and grievous [c] sore upon the men which had the mark [d] of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image.

3 And the second angel poured out his vial upon the [e] sea; and it became as the blood [f] of a dead man: and every living soul died in the sea.

4 And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of [g] waters; and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters say, Thou art [h] righteous, O Lord, which art, and wast, and shalt be, because thou hast judged thus.

6 For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and [i] thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy.

7 And I heard another out of the altar say Even so, Lord God Almighty, [j] true and righteous are thy judgments.

8 And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the [k] sun; and power was given unto him to scorch men with [l] fire.

9 And men were [m] scorched with great heat, and blasphemed [n] the name of God, which hath power over these plagues: and [o] they repented not to give him glory.

10 And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the seat [p] of the beast; and his kingdom was full of [q] darkness; and they gnawed their tongues for pain,

11 And blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their [r] sores, and repented not of their deeds.

12 And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river [s] Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried [t] up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

13 And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the [u] dragon, and out of the mouth of the [v] beast, and out of the mouth of the false [w] prophet.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

a c.15.1,7.
b c.8.7
c Ex.9.8..11
d c.13.15.. 17.
e c.8.8.
f Ex.7.17.. 20.
g c.8.10.
h ver.7.
i De.32.42, 43. Is.49.26.
j c.15.3 19.2.
k c.8.12.
l c.9.17.
m or, burned.
n ver.11,21.
o Da.5.22, 23 c.9.20.
p c.13.2 4.
q c.9.2.
r ver.2.
s c.9.14.
t Is.11.3 Je.50.38. 51.36. u c.12.3,9
v c.13.2
w c.19.20

ing of these grievous calamities upon the beast: none were suffered to do this, that judgment might have its free course, till all the seven punishments to be inflicted by the ministry of the seven angels were fully executed in their order."

CHAP. XVI. Ver. 1—7. The first three angels pour out their vials.—Commentators are much divided as to the period of time in which we may expect the fulfilment of these predictions. Mr. Lowman reckons them from the middle of the 9th century to nearly the close of the 19th. Mr. Morell, though he closes at the same period, goes no farther back than to the middle of the 16th century for their commencement. There is, however, a remarkable correspondence between the trumpets and the vials, so far as respects the parties concerned. Thus, the first trumpet regards the earth and so the first vial—the second trumpet turned the sea into blood, and so the second vial—the third trumpet affects the rivers and fountains, and upon these is the third vial poured—the fourth trumpet affected the sun, and so also the fourth vial—the fifth trumpet produced pain and darkness, and so the fifth vial also—the sixth trumpet loosed the four angels from the Euphrates, on which also the sixth vial is poured—the seventh angel announces the near approach of the Millennium, and the seventh plague produces the destruction of Popery to make room for it.

But what are here meant by the earth—the sea—the rivers, &c.? Dr. Gill (who has written largely and learnedly on this Book) thus explains them:—"The first vial will be poured out upon the earth, and designs those Popish countries which are upon the Continent, as France and Germany: and as the first trumpet brought the Goths into Germany, so the first vial will bring great distress upon the Popish party in the empire. . . . . The second vial will be poured out upon the sea, and may intend the maritime powers belonging to the church of Rome, particularly Spain and Portugal: and as the second trumpet brought the Vandals into these places, [so the Dr. explains it,] so this vial will affect the same, and bring wars and desolations into them. . . . . The third vial will be poured out upon the rivers and fountains of waters, which may point to those places adjacent to Rome, as Italy and Savoy: and as the third trumpet brought the Huns into those parts, so this [third] vial will bring in large armies hither, which will cause much bloodshed, and a great revolution in church and state."

"This comment on the vials, founded on their analogy to the trumpets, bids fair (says Fuller, who quotes the same passage) to be the true one." Dr. Gill adds, "As yet, I take it, none of them are poured out, though some great and learned men have thought otherwise. As yet there have been no such devastations on the Continent, as in France and Germany, as to produce the above effects; nor in the countries of Spain, Portugal," &c.—"This [remarks Fuller] was doubtless the case in 1752, the year in which the Sermon from which the above extract is made was printed, but this is more than can be said in 1810."—We may add, far more than can be pretended in 1827!

When we calculate the evils produced and the blood shed in the French Revolution—the wars of Napoleon—the last great contest of the Allied Powers—and the various revolutions in Spain and Portugal, we may see a full justification of all the strong images here used. The first vial produces a noisome and grievous ulcer, which rendered the whole body politic a mass of corruption and putridity. A circumstance of peculiar horror occurs under the second vial: the sea—the maritime powers are not only dyed with blood, but that blood becomes stagnant, "like the blood of a dead man." So that every soul living in those countries died. This is strong language; but seems fully justified in considering that, as different parties prevailed in the various revolutions and counter-revolutions, they successively destroyed each other.

But upon whom did those judgments fall? Upon "the men that had the mark of the beast, and which worshipped his image; upon those countries, for the most part, which were peculiarly bigoted to Popery and the Inquisition: as France and Italy, Spain and Portugal. And this circumstance is made the ground of a sacred anthem: "Thou art righteous, O Lord, because thou hast judged thus: . . . For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets, and thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy."—"And I heard another"—that is, another angel, as it is generally understood; but perhaps it should be another voice out of the altar, namely, the altar of burnt-offerings, from whence (chap. vi. 9) had issued this cry,—"How long, O Lord, ... dost thou not judge and avenge our blood?" But the blood is now avenged, and the call for vengeance is changed into a song of praise—"Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments."

Ver. 8—21. The next three vials poured out.—Under the fourth trumpet the sun (as well as the moon and stars) lost a third part of its power and influence: here its influence is increased, and he has power given him to scorch men with fire. Fleming (some of whose successful predictions on chap. xi. have been already mentioned) considers this as an humiliating judgment on the French empire; but increasing heat must, we think, imply rather an augmentation than diminution of power in the solar flame: nor can this scorching heat "be understood of the persecution of the faithful; for (as Fuller remarks) they would not blaspheme under it. It would seem, therefore, to be the galling tyranny by which the adherents of the beast will be oppressed:" we should rather say, have been oppressed; for if we refer the judgments of the first three vials to the wars of the last century and the beginning of this, may we not refer this to that increase of power in the sovereigns of Papal Europe, and particularly of France, whereby the French themselves were aggrieved, and murmured, and blasphemed? Even the French clergy themselves, as is well known, murmured and repined at the tyranny to which they were subjected; yet they reformed not, but blasphemed: and this applies not only to the tyranny of the Bourbons, but also to the more recent tyranny of Napoleon.

CHAP. XVI. Ver. 2. A noisome and grievous sore.—Doddridge, "a malignant and grievous ulcer."

Ver. 3. Every living soul died in the sea.—Doddridge, "And every living soul [that was] in the sea died." Compare Exod. vii. 21.

Ver. 5. The angel of the waters.—This seems a bold and beautiful poetical figure; as if the angel who was set to guard the waters, himself acquiesced in the equity of the judgment—as if he had said, "The blood of thy saints has often swelled the rivers, justly, therefore, are these rivers turned into blood. —Hast judged thus.—Doddridge, "Judged these." Woodhouse, "Executed this judgment."

Ver. 6. Thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy.—If "the angel who had power over fire," (chap. xiv. 18,) allude to the priest who kept the fire on the altar of burnt-offering, this angel may have a like allusion to him who had the care of the great laver of purification

Ver. 7. Another out of the altar.—"Another [angel,"] says Doddridge.—Woodhouse, "I heard [a voice from] the altar;" which is, we think, more exact.

Ver. 10. The seat.—Greek, "throne."

Ver. 12. Euphrates.—See note on chap. ix. 14.—Kings of the east.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, (more literally,) "from the rising of the sun."

Ver. 13. Like frogs.—That the frog was a sacred representation in Egypt, is certain; as it is found in the Bembine Table, sitting upon a lotos. It was sacred to Osiris Helius. Inspiration, of old, was supposed to arise from fountains and streams. The Muses, who were esteemed prophetic deities, were [like Moses] denominated from water. As frogs were . . . . . engraved upon the basis of Apollo's statue at Delphi, they might originally be characteristic of the priests and prophets of Egypt. "All inspiration [among the heathen] was supposed to be an inflation of the Deity," and this animal "is remarkable for swelling itself by inflation." See Orient. Lit. No. 161

14 For they are the spirits of [x] devils, working [y] miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the [z] whole world, to gather them to the battle [a] of that great day of God Almighty.

15 ¶ Behold, I come as a [b] thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk [c] naked, and they see his shame.

16 And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

17 And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying It [d] is done.

18 And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there [e] was a great [f] earthquake, such [g] as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great.

19 And the great city [g] was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup [h] of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

20 And [i] every island fled away, and the mountains were not found.

21 And there fell upon men a great hail out [j] of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

x 1 Ti 4 1.
y 2 Th 2 9.
z 1 Jn 5.19.
a c.19.19.
b 2 Pe 3 10
c c.3 4,18.
d c.21.6.
e c.11.13.
f Da.12 1.
g c.14.8.
h Is 51.17, 22. Je.25.15, 16.
i c.6.14.
j c.11.19.
a Na 3 4. c 19.2
b Je.51.13.
c c.18.3.

CHAPTER XVII.

3, 4 A woman arrayed in purple and scarlet, with a golden cup in her hand, sitteth upon the beast. 5 Which is great Babylon, the mother of all abominations. 9 The interpretation of the seven heads, 12 and the ten horns. 8 The punishment of the whore. 14 The victory of the Lamb.

AND there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will show unto thee the judgment of the great whore [a] that sitteth upon many [b] waters:

2 With whom [c] the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.

3 So he carried me away in the spirit into the

The fifth vial is poured upon the seat of the beast, which Fuller explains of Germany, but Morell of Rome, and we think more justly; for though it be true that the "Holy Roman Empire" formed the secular beast, yet it is certain that the second or ecclesiastical beast, alias "the false prophet," had his residence, his throne, in Rome. Fleming "supposed that the events of this period would commence about 1794, and expire about 1848." As to the commencement, it appears that he was not very inaccurate. "Most of my readers," says Morell, (who wrote about 1805,) "will remember that, about that time, the French entered Rome, plundering the whole country and the city of Rome itself, the throne of Antichrist. The Pope was made captive, and remained in their custody till his death, and most of the neighbouring states have tasted in measure of the same bitter cup." The necessary consequence of this judgment upon Rome, was a great gloom, not only in Italy, but throughout the whole empire of Popery, many gnawing their tongues with pain and agony, expecting that empire to be now utterly destroyed; yet "repented they not of their deeds, [but] blasphemed the God of heaven." So far we conceive these prophecies have been fulfilled, but no farther. The predictions of the two last vials are, by general consent, admitted to be future: it will therefore become us to speak of them with modesty and caution.

The sixth vial being poured upon the Euphrates, naturally leads us to look to the East for its accomplishment; and, behold, the kings of the East prepared to meet us. The drying up of the Euphrates is evidently to facilitate their passage westward. But who these kings may be, and what their errand in Europe, are inquiries that can be answered only by conjecture. Some have supposed them to be the Jews returning to their own land: but then they must have mistook their way, for their land is in the East. It is probable they may be Eastern princes from Russia, or the countries that lie beyond: but whether their object may be to assist the beast, or to oppose him, is not quite so clear. The following verse may lead us to suppose the latter, because, when they are approaching, the beast and false prophet seem to take alarm, and muster all their forces.

The three spiritual emissaries, or demons, which issue from the mouths of the dragon and false prophet, may be either individuals, or orders of men, distinguished by their busy, boasting, and talkative disposition, like the croaking animals here named. These are employed by the old serpent and the false prophet, to cajole the antichristian powers, to make one more desperate and combined effort against the cause of Christ, in what is here called the battle of Armageddon, or of the mountain of Megiddo—alluding, as it is thought, to that fatal battle in the valley of Megiddo, in which good king Josiah lost his life; (2 Kings xxiii. 29, 30. 2 Chron. xxxv. 22, 23:) and which occasioned a mourning ever to be remembered as "the mourning in the valley of Megiddon." (Zech. xii. 11.)

Verse 15, (Behold, I come as a thief, &c.,) is generally considered as a parenthesis; but if we might be allowed to suppose, that this and the following verse have been accidentally transposed, and, therefore, to replace them, the passage would, we apprehend, appear much clearer; and the warning perhaps more appropriate, as referring to a sudden judgment, compared to an earthquake, "so mighty and so great," as was never felt before. "Blessed is he that watcheth," should be always sounding in our ears. (Compare chap. iii. 3, 4.)

In the preceding verses, we have seen "the kings of the earth, and of the whole world," combined together, as the Psalmist expresses it, "against the Lord and against his anointed," and animated by the false prophet and his agents, to attack them with the utmost energy. But, as when Nebuchadnezzer was uttering the boastful language, "Is not this great Babylon that I have built?" a voice from heaven suddenly pronounced his doom: (Dan. iv. 30, 31:) so in the midst of anticipated triumph, the last drop of God's judgments is poured from heaven, and a voice is uttered from the throne, saying, "It is done." Thunders and lightnings the most tremendous accompany the sound. All their well-concerted plans, and combined forces, tumble suddenly into confusion, and the great city itself, Babylon, or "eternal Rome," as it has been profanely called, is "divided into three parts," and the other "cities of the nations fall."

The earthquake here predicted certainly intends a mighty revolution, and the language employed seems to imply, that it should be greater than that in the time of Constantine—from Paganism to Christianity; and far greater than that we read of at the death of the witnesses, for then only a tenth part of the city fell—here the whole establishment of Popery is broken up. The great city is fallen to pieces—divided into three parts; and other "cities of the nations"—perhaps other corrupt religions—fall at the same time; or, as Bishop Newton and others understand it, the various dependent states fall from her communion, and from subjection to her authority. But of this great Babylon we must treat at large, under the next chapter.

At the commencement of this vial, we should have observed that it was poured out upon the air, as the others had been upon the earth, the water, and the solar flame. This is poured out upon the air, because that is the peculiar element of Satan, who is elsewhere denominated "the prince of the power of the air." (Eph. ii. 2.) Here he seems to concentrate all the vapours of the atmosphere into hail—the stones whereof are said, hyperbolically, to weigh a talent, or 100lbs. weight, as Bishop Newton explains it; and falling upon men like the hammers of heaven, crush them, as it were, to atoms. We do not mean to intimate that Satan has the artillery of heaven at his disposal without divine permission; but, as in the instance of Job, he was permitted to wield the thunderbolt and the whirlwind, under the control of the Almighty: (see Job, ch. i. 16, 19:) so here he is permitted to cast down enormous hailstones from the sky, on those whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain; but his commission is always to be understood with this limit—"Hitherto shalt thou come, but no farther." (Job xxxviii. 11.)

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 1—18. Babylon the Great described.—The scene before us is a wilderness, or desert; thither the church had long before been compelled to fly for refuge from persecution, and hither now persecuting Babylon herself is obliged to retreat. We have before intimated, that it was customary to delineate cities, nations, and empires, under a female form, with certain emblems and appropriate inscriptions. Thus was the Jewish nation in captivity represented by a disconsolate female sitting under a palm tree, with this inscription—Judea capta. So Rome herself, Bishop Newton remarks, is represented in ancient medals as a woman sitting on a lion.

In the Old Testament, both Tyre and Babylon are represented as females debauched, and debauching others; and the

---

Ver. 14. Spirits of devils—i. e. unclean demons. See note on Luke iv. 36.
Ver. 15. And they see his shame.—See 2 Sam. x. 4, 5.
Ver. 19. The great city.—In the Rabbinical writings, it is certain that Rome is termed Babylon: and it is also styled "the great city," and "great Rome."
Ver. 21. A great hail.—See Exod. ix. 23—25.

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 1. The great whore.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, 'harlot." [Whoredom in Scripture frequently denotes idolatry; and how many kings and nations has Papal Rome intoxicated "with the wine of her fornications!" By the most subtle insinuations and politic management, she has obtained and preserved her ascendancy; attaching them to her usurped authority in blind submission, inducing them to conform to her idolatries, and intoxicating and maddening multitudes, by their zeal for that church, to murder their unoffending neighbours by tens of thousands!]—Bagster.—Upon many waters.—This is spoken in allusion to the literal Babylon situated on the Euphrates. Compare Jer. li. 12, 13. Explained in ver. 15 to mean peoples, &c.

wilderness: and I saw a woman sit upon a [j] scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having [e] seven heads and ten horns.

4 And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet colour, and [f] decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations and filthiness of her [g] fornication:

5 And upon her forehead was a name written, [h] MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT THE MOTHER OF [i] HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.

6 And I saw the woman [j] drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great admiration.

7 And the angel said unto me, Wherefore didst thou marvel? I will tell thee the mystery of the [k] woman, and of the beast [l] that carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns.

8 The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend [m] out of the bottomless pit, and go into [n] perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall [o] wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads [p] are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth.

10 And there are seven kings: five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

11 And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into perdition.

12 And the [q] ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast.

13 These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast.

14 These shall make war [r] with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall [s] overcome them: for he is Lord [t] of lords, and King of kings: and they [u] that are with him are [v] called, and [w] chosen, and [x] faithful.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

d c.12.3.
e c.13.1.
f gilded.
g Je.51.7.
h 2 Th.2.7.
i or, Fornications.
j c.16.6.
k ver.1.
l ver.3.
m c.11.7.
n ver.11.
o c.13.3,8.
p c.13.1.
q Da.7.20. Zec.1.18., 21.
r c.19.19.
s Je.50.44.
t De.10.17. 1 Ti.6.15. c.19.19.
u Mt.8.8,9.
v Ro.8.30, 37.
w Jn.15.16.
x c.2.10.

---

latter in particular, as having "a golden cup filled with abominations." (See Isa. xxiii. 17, 18. Jer. li. 7, &c.) But the Babylon here depicted is not the literal Babylon, for that had long fallen into ruins, but mystical Babylon; for so her name is written on her forehead—"Mystery, Babylon the great, the mother of harlots," or fornications, "and abominations of the earth." Catholic and Protestant writers are pretty generally agreed, that Rome is here intended. So the Catholic Bishop of Meaux (Bossuet) expressly says:—"St. John represents Rome in the name of Babylon, as she had all the characters of Babylon; an empire full of idols and divinations, and a persecutor of the saints, as she was;" that is, the literal Babylon.

But then, Catholic writers (as particularly Cardinal Bellarmine) contend, that Rome Pagan, and not Christian or Papal, must be intended: the contrary of this will, however, appear in the following account of the heads and horns of the beast; and still more clearly from the absurdity of supposing, with Catholics, that Papal Rome can be designated by this harlot; when, at the same time, they pretend that antichrist, the beast on which she rides, is not yet come: nor have they any way to surmount this difficulty, but by supposing, as does Signor Pastorelli, "the Roman idolatrous (meaning the Pagan) empire will rise up again, under the wicked man antichrist," whom they consider as yet to come—a supposition, as appears to us, advanced only to evade the charge of their apostate church being antichrist.

The beast here described is evidently the same as John, in the 13th chapter, saw rising out of the sea; but having obtained "firm footing," and being about to carry the great harlot, he now walks the solid ground. He is of the same colour with the dragon, (chap. xiii. 3,) and the harlot was arrayed in purple and scarlet—the latter of which seems the proper costume of Popery, for the red hat and stockings are the peculiar badge of cardinals.

But to come to the apostle's description of this Papal wild beast. In the 8th verse, it is described as "the beast that was, and is not, and yet is." It was, or did exist, in the character of the dragon, when the mass of the people were Pagan idolaters. In that respect, it is not, and does no longer exist; yet, in fact, is still in being, under another name and form: the body of the beast, spotted like a leopard, (see chap. xiii. 2,) that is, composed partly of natives, and partly of the conquerors who had settled among them.

This beast, though nominally become Christian, was in heart still Pagan—still adhering to the old principles of idolatry and persecution. This description, "was and is not," &c. may probably allude to some theatrical trick, whereby actors descending through the stage come up again in another character. Paganism had, indeed, for the most part, been banished from earth, and sent down to the bottomless pit; but it had come up again in a new form, in which also it is to be sent back again to the bottomless pit, at the appointed time.

Verses 9 and 10 give a two-fold explication of the heads of this beast. 1. As they refer to the city of Rome itself, which is well known to be built upon seven hills; and, secondly, as to its political establishment, which has existed in seven various forms of government. Five of these had passed away; the sixth (namely, the Imperial) existed in the time of this Revelation: the seventh (namely, the exarchate of Ravenna) was not yet come, and would be of short duration; the imperial form would be again revived, as it was under Charlemagne, but not permanently. This was the eighth in some respects, but must be reckoned among the seven. In the 13th chapter this is differently expressed.. One of his heads is there said (ver. 3) to be wounded "as it were to death," or mortally; but was unexpectedly healed again, as we have there explained.

We now come to the ten horns, which are said to be ten kings, who as yet, however, had received no kingdom. These horns, as we apprehend, were to sprout out of the last head of the beast, namely, the imperial, (in different respects to be considered either as the eighth or a revival of the sixth,) and to be contemporary with him. They were to "receive power as kings," or kingly power, "one" or the same "hour" with the beast; with whom they "have one mind," or are of the same religion. So Fuller explains it:—"They did not subject their

---

Ver. 3. Wilderness.—[The desolate state of the true church of Christ.]—Bagster.——Scarlet coloured beast—i. e. a wild beast, as the word usually signifies. [Doubtless the church of Rome, as she sits upon, or rules over the beast, which is the Latin empire, or the temporal power by which she is supported.]—Bagster.

Ver. 4. Purple and scarlet colour.—[The distinguishing colours of popes and cardinals, as well as of emperors and senators; and who can find adequate language to describe the pride, splendour, and magnificence of the church of Rome!]—Bagster.——Having a golden cup.—See Isa. li. 7. In the Table of Cebes, is represented a fair, beautiful, and false woman, having a cup in her hand. She is called Deceit, and seduceth all mankind.

Ver. 5. Mystery, Babylon—i. e. Mystic Babylon. Woodhouse does not take this word for part of the inscription, but an intimation that this name was to be mystically understood. He renders it—"And upon her forehead was a name written, a mystery, Babylon," &c. Scaliger affirms, that this name was inscribed upon the front of the Pope's mitre, till some of the Reformers noticed it. See Newton, who remarks, that this term can with no propriety be attached to ancient Rome; and that St. John's admiration must imply the same, for the would not be surprised that a heathen city should persecute Christians.

Ver. 6. Drunken with the blood of the saints.—Charles IX. of France, a Roman Catholic prince, laid a snare for the destruction of the Protestants, by offering his sister in marriage to a Huguenot (a Protestant) prince of Navarre. All the chief men of the Huguenots were assembled in Paris at the nuptials; when on the eve of St. Bartholomew's day, August 24, 1572, at the ringing of a bell, the massacre commenced. An unparalleled scene of horror ensued. The Roman Catholics rushed upon the defenceless Protestants. Above five hundred men of distinction, and about ten thousand others that night slept in Paris the sleep of death. A general destruction was immediately ordered throughout France, and a horrid carnage was soon witnessed at Rouen, Lyons, Orleans, and other cities. Sixty thousand perished—and when the news of this event reached Rome, Pope Gregory XIII. instituted the most solemn rejoicing, giving thanks to Almighty God for this glorious victory over the heretics! According to the calculation of some, about two hundred thousand suffered death in seven years, under Pope Julian; no less than a hundred thousand were massacred by the French in the space of three months; the Waldenses who perished, amounted to one million; within thirty years, the Jesuits destroyed nine hundred thousand; under the Duke of Alva, thirty-six thousand were executed by the common hangman; a hundred and fifty thousand perished in the inquisition; and a hundred and fifty thousand by the Irish massacre; besides the vast multitude of whom the world could never be particularly informed, who were proscribed, banished, starved, burnt, buried alive, smothered, suffocated, drowned, assassinated, chained to the galleys for life, or immured within the horrid walls of the Bastile, or others of their church or state prisons. According to some, the whole number of persons massacred since the rise of Papacy, amounts to fifty millions!

Ver. 8. The beast that thou sawest.—Compare this beast with the first beast, described in chap. xiii. Also with the fourth beast in Daniel, chap vii. The chief difference between this beast, and that in chap. xiii., seems to be in the omission of his similitude to the lion, the bear, and the leopard, which represented monarchies, described by three separate animals in Daniel, but long since ceased: this regards only the Roman government.

Ver. 9. Seven mountains—Namely, the Palatine, Capitoline, Quirinal, Cælian, Esquiline, Viminal, and Aventine hills. See note on ch. xiii. 1.

Ver. 10. Seven kings—[Or, seven forms of government, which subsisted among the Romans. The "five fallen" are kings, consuls, dictators, decemvirs, and military tribunes; the sixth, the one that is, is the power of the Cesars, or emperors; and the seventh is probably the exarch of Ravenna, or the dukedom of Rome. If this be reckoned a distinct form of government, then the beast is "the eighth," but if it be deemed too inconsiderable to be reckoned a distinct head, he "is of the seven;" but whether the seventh or eighth, he is the last form of government in that idolatrous empire, and "goeth into perdition."]—Bagster.

Ver. 12. Ten horns.—The number of kings, or states, which support the harlot, have, at different times, much varied. So the apostles were still the twelve, though Judas hanged himself. See note on 1 Co. xv. 5.——One hour—i. e. the same hour.—Lowman. So, ver. 13, one mind is certainly "the same mind."

15 And he saith unto me, The [y] waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are [z] peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these [a] shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and [b] naked, and shall eat her flesh, and [c] burn her with fire.

17 For God [d] hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God shall be [e] fulfilled.

18 And the woman which thou sawest is that great [f] city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

A. M. cir 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

y Is.8.7. ver. 1.
z c.14.7.
a Je.50.41, 42.
b Eze.16.37 ..44.
c c.17.8,18.
d Ac.4.27, 28.
e c.10.7.
f c.16.19.

CHAPTER XVIII.

2 Babylon is fallen. 4 The people of God commanded to depart out of her. 9 The kings of the earth, 11 with the merchants and mariners, lament over her. 20 The saints rejoice for the judgments of God upon her.

AND after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his [a] glory.

2 And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon [b] the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become [c] the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

3 For all nations have drunk [d] of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and [e] the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the [f] abundance of her delicacies.

4 And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out [g] of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.

5 For her sins have reached [h] unto heaven, and God hath remembered [i] her iniquities.

6 Reward her [j] even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double.

7 How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her: for she saith in her heart, I sit a [k] queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow.

a Is.34.11, 14. Je.50.39. 51.37. c.17.2. d Is.47.15.
e ver.11,15.
f or,power.
g Is.48.20. 52.11. Je.50.8. 51.6,45. 2 Co.6.17.
h Je.51.9.
i c.16.19.
j Ps.137.8. Je.50.15..29.
k Is.47.7..11 Zep.2.15.

kingdoms to him as a secular power; for then had they not been independent; their only connexion with him would be ecclesiastical, or in his supporting the harlot. That this was the only bond of union between them is manifest from the result of things; when their love should be turned into hatred, they are not said to hate the beast, but the whore: it was the whore, (or harlot,) therefore, and not the beast, that was the object of their attachment." While he, "caparisoned in scarlet," would support her in all her base and sanguinary proceedings, they (the ten kings) would be with the beast, "holding up his trappings, or lending their authorities to enforce his measures."

"Such (continues Fuller) was actually the conduct of all the governments of Christendom prior to the Reformation, and such has been the conduct of many of them since. It is thus that they are said to make war with the Lamb." It may be asked, "Who is able to make war with the beast?" but we ask, in reply, Who is able to overcome the Lamb? He is "King of kings, and Lord of lords:" and his followers are a select band—"called, and chosen, and faithful."

We omitted to notice, in the beginning of this chapter, that the harlot is here described "as sitting upon many waters," and these waters are, in ver. 15, explained to mean "peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues." The fact is, the monster on which she rode, having risen "out of the sea," he delights in paddling through troubled waters with his opprobrious load.

In the sequel of this history we find that the ten horns (or kings) themselves shall hate the harlot, and "make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire:" that is, they shall strip off all her meretricious ornaments, and devour her riches.

"This (to quote again the judicious Fuller) is the way in which the antichristian church is doomed to fall. It will not be from the increase of religious people who withdraw from her communion, as she has always apprehended; but from those who have been her companions in sin, and who, when nothing more is to be expected from her, shall turn against her and destroy her. It is not by Protestantism, but by INFIDELITY, that false religion will be overthrown." This is not a new opinion. "Sir Isaac Newton had a very sagacious conjecture, which he told Dr. Clarke, from whom (says Whiston) I received it, that the overbearing tyranny and persecuting power of the antichristian party, which hath so long corrupted Christianity, and enslaved the Christian world, must be put a stop to and broken to pieces, by the prevalence of infidelity for some time, before primitive Christianity could be restored; which seems to be the very means that is now working in Europe, for the same good and great end of Providence." Mr. W. wrote in the former part of the last century.

CHAP. XVIII. Ver. 1—8. The fall of Babylon.—This book affords us, perhaps, the finest illustration we can any where meet with of the doctrine of the ministry of angels. The throne of the Almighty is surrounded with them; they move on the slightest intimation of the Divine will, and they always fly. Their attendance is constant, and their obedience instant: nor does the nature of the message on which they are sent, whether of judgment or of grace, at all affect the speed with which they execute it. Their obedience is, in all cases, prompt, and without hesitation, even in the higher orders; and, from the splendour which shone around him, the angel now before us is supposed to be of considerable rank.

This chapter contains one of the most sublime and beautiful odes in all the poetic Scriptures: for to that form has Bishop Jebb reduced it. It contains, 1. A proclamation that Babylon is fallen. 2. A warning and charge to the people of God, to come out of her. 3. A lamentation over her, by all the classes of mankind, particularly interested in her fate. We shall offer a few words in reference to each.

1. The fall of Babylon is proclaimed. "It (or she) is fallen, is fallen." So in chap. xvi. ver. 17; a voice from the throne pronounces, "It is done!" The decree is gone forth, and is on the point of being fulfilled. And with the decree is here given (which is not always the case) the reasons upon which it is founded. Babylon, that is, the church of Rome, is not only herself intoxicated and debauched, but she is charged with intoxicating and debauching all the kings or governments by whom she has been supported—all the merchants and captains who had been enriched by her trade, and led into the most injurious luxuries. "She who, as a church of Christ, (says Archdeacon Woodhouse,) should have been the teacher and preserver of pure religion and morality, had become the seducer and corrupter of the nations and their kings; and had set the example of that insolent luxury, disposing to irreligion, which it was her duty to oppose."

In illustration of the imagery here employed, and which is evidently borrowed from the Old Testament prophecies respecting ancient Babylon and Tyre, particularly the latter, Mr. Lowman thus remarks:—"As the destruction of Rome is here compared with that of Tyre, (Exek. xxvii.) we easily see how proper it was to describe the sins of Rome by figures taken from the sins of Tyre. The profit of trade created a commerce between that city, then the chief mart of the world, and all nations; so that Tyre spread her luxury and superstition far and wide, with her trade. Rome, in like manner, corrupted distant and remote nations, by rewarding her votaries with considerable wealth, encouraging their ambition and luxury; and thus, like Tyre of old, she made her corruptions general, and almost universal."

What is said of Babylon being "the habitation of devils," does not refer so properly to her former state of crime, as to her future state of misery. The images here employed are evidently taken from Isa. xiii. 20—22; xxxiv. 10—16: on which Dr. Woodhouse observes, that "when the utter destruction of a city is denounced in Scripture, the site of that city is commonly described as becoming the haunt and habitation of wild beasts, and of such loathsome reptiles, as are found in the forsaken ruins of a city." On one of these passages, he adds,

Ver. 15. The whore—Or "harlot." The Bishop of Meaux (before cited) objects to this being meant of the church of Rome, or to her being called a harlot; because, having been once a true church, her apostacy would render her an adulteress. To this Woodhouse replies, that the same term is applied to the churches of Judah and Israel, when guilty of idolatry, (see Isa. l. 21. Jer. iii. 1:) the reason of which is, such churches are considered as virtually divorced. Jer. iii. 8.

Ver. 16. These shall hate, &c.—[The ten horns, which the angel explained of "ten kings," or kingdoms, and which once exalted and supported her ecclesiastical tyranny, will hate, desolate, strip, and devour her. They will be the principal instruments in the destruction of popery, and the ruin of Rome itself.]—Bagster.

Ver. 17. To fulfil his will—i. e. his decrees. See Acts ii. 23.

Ver. 18. That great city, which reigneth, &c.—This necessarily determines Rome to be the place intended. So Lowman. [The city which, at the time of the vision, "reigned over the kings of the earth," was undoubtedly Rome; and, from its foundation, it has, in different ways, accomplished this object to the present time.]—Bagster.

CHAP. XVIII. Ver. 2. The habitation of devils.—Greek, "Demons." [That is, she is become a scene of utter desolation, and the habitation of hateful birds and beasts of prey. It is evident, that no desolations have yet left Rome in this condition; unless any choose to say, that it has "become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird," ever since the popes and cardinals have made it their residence.]—Bagster. Compare with this verse Isa. xiii. 19—21. Jer. l. 37.

Ver. 3. Delicacies.—Doddridge, "luxuries."

Ver. 5. Iniquities.—Doddridge, "unrighteous actions."

Ver. 6. Double unto her double.—See Isa. xl. 2.

Ver. 7. Lived deliciously.—Doddridge, "in luxury." So verse 8.—I sit a queen.—See Isa. xlvii. 5, 8, 9.

8 Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly [l] burned with fire: for strong [m] is the Lord God who judgeth her.

9 And the kings [n] of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning,

10 Standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour [o] is thy judgment come.

11 And the merchants [p] of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more:

12 The merchandise of [q] gold, and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all [r] thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron, and marble, 13 And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and [s] slaves, and souls [t] of men.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

l c.17.6.

m Ps 52 11. Je 50 34.

n Eze 26 16, 17.

o ver.17,19.

p Eze.27.27 ..36.

q c.17.4.

r or, sweet.

s or, bodies.

t Eze.27.13.

u Lu.16.19, &c.

v Is 23 14

w Je 51 37.

x Jos 7 6. Job 2 12. Eze 27 30.

y Je 51 48.

z De 32 43. Lu 18 7, 8 c.19.2

14 And the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all.

15 The merchants of these things, which were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And saying, Alas, alas, that great city, that was clothed [u] in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls!

17 For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. And every shipmaster, and all the company in [v] ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, 18 And cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What [w] city is like unto this great city!

19 And they cast dust [x] on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea by reason of her costliness! for in one hour is she made desolate.

20 Rejoice [y] over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged [z] you on her.

"It is observed by Bishop Lowth, that Hebrew words expressive of such animals, are translated in the Septuagint by the word daimonia, which is used here," and by our translators rendered "devils."

2. We must notice the warning here given, which is also evidently borrowed from Isaiah, (chap. lii. 11, 12,) in reference to the literal Babylon. So our Lord himself warned his disciples to escape from Jerusalem, when they saw "the abomination of desolation;" that is, the Roman eagle flying before it. They did so, and it is not known that there were any Christians in the city when it was taken by the Romans. And it is certainly lawful at all times to fly from public calamities which we cannot prevent, when we can do it without bringing reproach on our religion.

The chief reason why we should fly from depraved and corrupt communities is, that we "partake not of their sins," as we would wish to escape "their plagues." Upon the doctrine of retaliation, (as expressed in ver. 6,) we would only remark, that the Christian religion does in no case tolerate private revenge: but retributive justice is a different thing, and the righteous governor of the world may certainly employ what instruments he pleases in dispensing it.

But the passage before us was employed by our reformers, chiefly to justify their secession from the church of Rome. Whenever a church falls into idolatrous worship, as of saints and images, or into other fundamental errors, then should this warning voice be attended to; for if we be partakers in other men's sins, we must expect to be sharers in their punishment. And idolatry is a sin against which the Bible abounds with the most awful denunciations, as may be seen in the "Homily against the peril of Idolatry," wherein also are many passages quoted on the same subject from the Christian fathers, from which only we can copy one short sentence. Origen says—"It is not only a mad and frantic part to worship images, but also once to dissemble or wink at it."

But what is most to be lamented, in the case both of apostate churches and individuals, is, that they are seldom sensible of their situation. The church of Laodicea said, "I am rich and increased in goods, and have need of nothing;" while, at the same time, her Lord pronounced her to be "wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." So the church of Rome, like Babylon of old, said, "I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow." (Compare Isa. xlvii. 7—9.) But, ah! how awfully was she mistaken!—"Therefore," says the voice from heaven, "therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burnt with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her."

The precise nature of the judgments here intimated, we presume not to determine. Some have supposed that the city of Rome itself will be burned; and others, that it will be turned into a lake of fire and brimstone: but the harlot of whom we are speaking is not a city, but a church—an apostate church, which is to be destroyed by the mighty hand of God himself. Of that destruction, all that we can at present ascertain is, that it will be sudden in its commencement, complete in its degree, and in its termination final.

Ver. 9—24. A lamentation over Babylon.—This lamentation is uttered by different classes of society, the most deeply interested in her fate. 1. The kings of the earth, who had committed fornication with her, and revelled with her in her luxuries; but how selfish was their mourning! They lamented the loss of their own licentious pleasures, but they express no sympathy in her sufferings. "They stand afar off for the fear of her torment"—lest the fire which burns her should scorch them also. 2. The merchants—but what do they do? They lament the loss of their traffic—"For no man buyeth her merchandise any more." On the particulars of this merchandise we cannot here distinctly remark, one article alone excepted, namely, "the souls of men." "Tyre dealt only in men's bodies, but Rome in their souls. I know not what else (says Mr. Fuller) to make of the sale of indulgences and pardons . . . . of [auricular] confessions and prayers for the dead, and of every other means of extorting money from the ignorant."

"The merchants of these things," namely, the priests and monks, with other orders in the church, "are made rich by her;" but they also will "stand afar off for fear" of partaking of "her torment:" and well they may fear, if they who are "partakers of her sins," are to share also in "her plagues." But Rome has been a wholesale dealer, and has exported her merchandise to every quarter of the globe, and more especially to South America, where she has cheated the souls and burned the bodies of men by thousands! Well may those who have thus traded beyond the seas stand "afar off," and cry, "Alas! alas!" While, however, earth is mourning, heaven rejoices; though Rome's harpers, and pipers, and trumpeters, be all now dumb, heaven, as we shall see in the next chapter, is all joy and triumph. In the mean time, behold, another mighty angel descends from heaven, and tearing up a stone from the rock like a great millstone, casts it with all his strength into the fathomless ocean and cries, "Thus with violence shall Babylon be thrown down, and be found no more at all."

The close of this chapter is beautifully poetical, but the concluding verse contains an appalling fact that must make every reader shudder. "In her (that is, in Rome) was found the blood of prophets, and of saints, and of ALL that were slain upon the earth." O what a discovery is here! Wrath treasured up against the day of wrath, and blood against the day of vengeance! But is not this a strong hyperbole? Scarcely can it be so called; for all the blood that has been shed under the persecutions of Jews and Pagans, as well as nominal Christians, is shed upon one and the same principle, and that decidedly a popish one—the pretended right of controlling consciences: it was found in Rome, the great manufactory and depot (if we may so speak) of persecution. To calculate the quantity of this blood, we must write a martyrology.

Ver. 8. Utterly burned with fire.—[She says in her heart, like ancient Babylon, "I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow;" she glories, like ancient Rome, in the name of "the eternal city;" but notwithstanding, "she shall be utterly burnt with fire." Probably her destruction will be finished by some immediate judgment of God; and the nature of the soil in the vicinity, the frequent irruptions of subterraneous fires, and terrible earthquakes, which have often occurred, seem to point out the method: the combustibles are provided, and the train is already laid; there only wants "the breath of the Almighty to kindle it."]—Bagster.

Ver. 10 Alas, alas—[Or, Woe! woe! for this will form a part of the last wo. This lamentation coincides in many particulars with that over Tyre; and the enumeration of the various articles of commerce is calculated to convey some idea of the splendour, luxury, and excess which have so long triumphed in the powerful, magnificent, and elegant metropolis of popery.]—Bagster.

Ver. 12. Thyine wood.—Margin, "sweet;" i. e. sweet-scented—probably burnt for incense.

Ver. 13. And slaves, and souls, &c.—"And bodies and souls of men." So Woodhouse. This is literal, and we see no reason for departing from it. "It is true, in fact, (says Lowman,) that her slaves (those of Papal Rome) lose all religious, as well as civil, liberty."

Ver. 15. The merchants, &c.—Many of the images in this chapter seem taken from the Lamentation for Tyre, Ezek. chap. xxvii.

Ver. 20. Rejoice over her, &c.—Compare Jer. li. 47, &c. [It is peculiarly worthy of remark that the apostles, who are idolatrously honoured at Rome

21 And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus [a] with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.

22 And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a millstone [b] shall be heard no more at all in thee;

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the [c] bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants [d] were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries [e] were all nations deceived.

24 And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of saints, and of all that were slain [f] upon the earth.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 God is praised in heaven for judging the great whore, and avenging the blood of his saints. 7 The marriage of the Lamb. 10 The angel will not be worshipped. 17 The fowls called to the great slaughter.

AND after these things I heard a great voice [a] of much people in heaven, saying, [b] Alleluia; [c] Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God:

2 For [d] true and righteous are his judgments: for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged [e] the blood of his servants at her hand.

3 And again they said, Alleluia. And her smoke [f] rose up for ever and ever.

4 And the four and twenty elders and the four beasts fell down and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen; Alleluia.

5 And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise [g] our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

6 And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for [h] the Lord God omnipotent reigneth.

7 Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage [i] of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself [j] ready.

8 And to her was granted that she should be arrayed [k] in fine linen, clean and [l] white: for the fine linen is the righteousness [m] of saints.

9 And he saith unto me, Write, [n] Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper [o] of the Lamb. And he saith unto me These [p] are the true sayings of God.

10 And [q] I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me, See thou do it not: I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus: worship God: for the testimony of [r] Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.

11 And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white [s] horse; and he that sat upon him was called [t] Faithful and True, and in righteousness [u] he doth judge and make war.

12 His [v] eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many [w] crowns; and he had a name [x] written, that no man knew, but he himself.

A. M. cir. 4100
A. D. cir. 96.

a Je.51.64.
b Je.25.10.
c Je.7.34. 16.9. 33.11.
d Is.23.8
e 2 Ki.9.22. Na.3.4.
f Je.51.49.
a c.11.15.
b ver.3,4,6.
c c.7.10,12.
d c.16.7.
e c.18.20.
f Is.34.10. c.18.9,18.

g Ps.135.1.
h Ps.97.1,12
i Mat.25.10
j Is.52.1.
k Is.61.10 c.3.4.
l or, bright.
m Ps.132.9.
n Lu.14.15.
o c.3.20.
p c.22.6.
q c.22.8,9.
r Ac.10.43. 1Pe.1.10, 11.
s c.6.2.
t c.3.14.
u Ps.45.3,4. Is.11.4.
v c.1.14. 2.18.
w Ca.3.11. Is.62.3. Zec.9.16. He.2.9. c.6.2.
x c.3.12.

This sublime ode is continued in the first ten verses of the following chapter, where we shall be greeted by a song from heaven.

CHAP. XIX. Ver. 1—10. Heaven rejoicing in the fall of Babylon—the Marriage Supper of the Lamb.—Alas! how estranged is earth from heaven!—that which gives joy to one, is matter of lamentation to the other. How many scenes are there of pleasure and hilarity on earth, which are enough to make an "angel weep" to view them! We need not wonder, then, if sometimes, when earth is weeping, heaven should be rejoicing. Hark to the shout of heaven! "Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God! . . . . He hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants at her hand." This is an act of retributive justice, and while we remain sinners we may well tremble at its exercise; but in a state of perfect holiness, it should appear, saints and angels rejoice as well in the exercise of the divine truth and equity, as in the display of the milder perfections of the Deity.

"And again they said, Alleluia!" The praises of heaven are incessant and unwearied; that which is with us duty, is with them enjoyment. It was said in the preceding chapter, "Rejoice over her, thou heaven; and ye holy apostles and prophets, for God hath avenged you on her;" namely, on the great harlot, which debauched the world, and persecuted the church. But victory is not the only source of joy; the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife has made herself ready.

The harlot who had pretended to be the spouse of Christ, being "convicted of fornication with the worldly powers," and for ever discarded, "the attention of heaven and earth (says Archdeacon Woodhouse) is naturally turned to that chaste and pure virgin, who is now to be presented to her Lord. The choral song brings her to view; arrayed, not in purple and scarlet, and gold and precious stones; not in worldly splendour, like the harlot, but in pure, simple, and resplendent garments, which are the clothing of the heavenly inhabitants. She has washed her garments, and 'made them white in the blood of the Lamb.' By faith in her Redeemer she is become righteous—for this is the fine linen, the righteousness of the saints."

The marriage of the Lamb being announced, a blessing is pronounced on all those who are invited to his marriage supper. This supper is by some commentators considered as the Millennium, but is by no means to be confined thereto. Whenever the Lord Jesus vouchsafes to his people a display of his redeeming mercy, it is a marriage feast, whether in earth or in heaven; and happily we are invited to such a feast, without waiting for the Millennium.

> "How rich are thy provisions, Lord;
> Thy table furnish'd from above!
> The fruits of life o'erspread the board,
> The cup o'erflows with heavenly love!"—Watts.

But a remarkable incident is here introduced. The prophet dazzled, perhaps, with the glory of the angel that appeared to him, or peculiarly struck with the solemnity of his words—"These are the true sayings of God"—seems to have mistaken him for the Lamb himself, and fell at his feet to worship him. The angel, however, instantly corrects his error: "See thou do it not; I am a fellow-servant of thine, and of thy brethren, who hold the testimony of Jesus; worship God." This seems to us, as plain and as strong a prohibition of worshipping angels, as we can well conceive—"See thou do it not."

The angel thus classing himself with St. John and his brethren, intimates, that both his office and theirs was to honour the Lord Jesus, by bearing witness to him. "The testimony of Jesus (saith he) is the spirit of prophecy;" or, as Dr. Doddridge and Bishop Hurd invert the sentence, without any material change of sense—"The spirit of prophecy is the testimony of Jesus:" to bear witness to his glory, is the great object of prophets on earth, and of angels in heaven.

Ver. 11—21. The grand contest between the Word of God and the beast and false prophet.—This description is an evident amplification of a former one, chap. vi. 2, though it appears to refer to a very different event. The conqueror here described is the Logos, or Word of God. His name is Faithful and True, and who in righteousness alone maketh war. His eyes are described as before, (chap. i. 14, &c.) "like a flame and daily worshipped, should be specially mentioned as rejoicing in her fall; as if it "avenged them" on her, for the dishonour cast on their characters, while it vindicated the glory of God.]—Bagster.

---

Ver. 21. Thus with violence, &c.—See Jer. li. 63, 64. [This was to represent the violence of her fall, and that she should never rise again; which is farther illustrated by varied emphatical expressions taken from the ancient prophets. But Rome is still standing and flourishing, and honoured by many nations as the metropolis of the Christian world; she still resounds with singers and musicians; she still excels in arts, which serve for pomp and luxury; she still abounds with candles, and lamps, and torches, burning even by day, as well as by night; and consequently this prophecy has not been, but remains to be, fulfilled.]—Bagster.

Ver. 23. The light of a candle.—Doddridge, "lamp."

CHAP. XIX. Ver. 1. Alleluia.—Heb. "Hallelujah."

Ver. 4. The four beasts—i. e. "living creatures," as before.

Ver 8. Clean and white.—Doddridge, "pure and resplendent."—The righteousness.—Doddridge, "the righteous acts of the saints." He remarks, "So dikaiomata (the Greek word here used) evidently signifies . . . . . though I make no doubt but it is with regard to the obedience and righteousness of the Son of God, that all our righteous acts are accepted before God."

Ver. 10. See thou do it not.—The Rhemish translators sadly equivocate here, as supposing that the angel only forbade that supreme worship, (la ria,) which is peculiar to the Deity, and not the inferior worship which the church allows to saints and angels, but certainly without any authority from the Scriptures. Nor do the common people know any thing of this distinction.—See Fletcher's Lectures against the Roman Catholic Religion, Lect vi.—Thy fellow-servant.—Doddridge and Woodhouse, "A fellow-servant with thee and thy brethren, who keep (or hold) the testimony of Jesus."

Ver. 11. Behold a white horse.—This evidently refers to the same Conqueror introduced in chap. vi. 2. There he had a crown; here he has many crowns implying that he had gained many victories.

Ver. 12. Many crowns.—Greek, "diadems."

13 And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The [y] Word of God.

14 And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed [z] in fine linen, white and clean.

15 And out of his mouth [a] goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod [b] of iron: and he [c] treadeth the wine-press of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God.

16 And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, [d] KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven,

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

y Jn.1.1.
z Mat.28.3.
a c.1.16.
b Ps.2.9.
c Is.63.3.
d c.17.14.
e Ezc.39.17 .20.
f c.16.14,16.
g c.16.13,14
h Da.7.11. c.20.10.

[e] Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God;

18 That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great.

19 And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war [f] against him that sat on the horse, and against his army.

20 And the beast [g] was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshipped his image. These both were cast alive into a [h] lake of fire burning with brimstone.

of fire," and upon his head were "many crowns," or diadems, expressive of the honours he had already won. His vesture was "dipped in blood," as expressive both of his sufferings and achievements; and he was called the Logos, or "WORD of God," which we suppose to be the name here intended, whereof it is said, "no man knew (it) but himself;" meaning, as we apprehend, that no one but himself could fully comprehend its mysterious import.

"The armies which were in heaven followed him;"—and who are they? Chapter xvii. 14, will give the answer—"They that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful." It may be worthy of remark, that though the great leader in this battle, The Word of God, is described as having his "vesture dipped in blood," his followers had no stain upon their garments: they were all clothed in "fine linen, white and clean." This seems to have an evident allusion to Isa. lxiii. 1, &c. where an illustrious conqueror, and doubtless the same here spoken of, says—"I have trodden the wine-press alone, and of the people there was none with me: for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury: and their blood shall be sprinkled on my garments, and I will stain all my raiment." HE it is, we see, that fights the battles of his church, and gains the victory; and he also expressly states, "of the people there was none with me"—none to help—"therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me; and my fury, it upheld me." This accounts for the garments of his followers being "white and clean," while their Leader himself has his garments not only stained, but even dyed with blood. It is to be hoped, that Christians will bear this in mind, whenever the eventful period now under consideration shall arrive, and not attempt to forward the kingdom of Christ by those sanguinary means which himself forbids. He is King of kings, and Lord of lords; and "in righteousness he maketh war:" but let us keep our garments clean from the stain of human blood.

A new vision now presents itself, at ver. 17. "I saw," says our apostle, "an angel standing in the sun." He is going to address eagles, and vultures, and birds of prey, which soar on high, and love to fly direct toward the sun: he therefore takes his station above them, as it were to collect them about his feet, and calls them to the supper of the great God. "That great Being who openeth his hand," and supplieth every living thing. He feeds the young ravens when they cry, and the young lions when they roar, for food: the numberless tribes of the ocean wait on him; and when he collects the eagles in the sunbeams, he provides for them; nor does a sparrow fall to the ground without his notice.

"The supper of the great God," here referred to, can be none other, as we conceive, than "the battle of Armageddon," before spoken of. The beast and the false prophet, with the frog-like spirits emitted from their mouths, went (as we have seen, chap. xvi. 14) on a mission through the earth, and have collected together all its kings and armies in hostility against the Lamb and his little company; but instead of conquering, they become themselves food to the birds of prey; and even the beast and the false prophet are taken prisoners, and cast alive into the "lake of fire burning with brimstone."

"By the false prophet" is evidently meant the second beast, described in chap. xiii.; and, more immediately considered as the great antichrist of St. John; and whose character seems perfectly to correspond with the "man of sin," or grand apostacy, described by St. Paul in 2 Thess. chap. ii. The most striking points of similitude are, that both assumed the prophetic office, and worked false miracles, and lying wonders; and both presided in the church of God. Of "the man of sin," this is expressly stated; and of the other it is strongly implied, in his having "the horns of a lamb," which marks his ecclesiastical character; and in the voice with which he spake, being that of the dragon, we have a plain indication of the authority which he assumed. To both the beasts above referred to, secular and ecclesiastical, divines sometimes refer this character, though it belongs more eminently to the latter; but they, in fact, act so completely in unison, that both their bodies may be said to be animated by one spirit; and it is "the old serpent," the dragon, that inspires them both.

Roman Catholic writers, indeed, object, that St. John, in his Epistle, describes antichrist as one that denies both the Father and the Son: but he says, also, that "there are many antichrists," (chap. ii. 18,) and the false prophet here spoken of is eminently, if not exclusively, entitled to that character. In short, any one who assumes the place of Christ, and denies his doctrine, is an antichrist. It would not be difficult, therefore, to demonstrate, that by admitting the worship of saints and angels, and the doctrines of human merit and priestly pardon, the adherents to Popery deny both the Father and the Son.

We conclude all our remarks on antichrist, however, with an extract from Bishop Hurd (in the conclusion of his Lectures on Prophecy) on this subject:—

"To draw, then, what hath been said on the several marks of antichrist, to a point: consider within what part of the world he was to appear; in what seat or throne he was to be established; of what kind his sovereignty was to be; with what attributes he was to be invested; in what season, or about what time, and for how long a time, he was to reign and prosper: Consider these FIVE obvious characters of antichrist, which the prophets have distinctly set forth, and which, from them, I have successively held up to you: and then compare them with the correspondent characters which you find inscribed by the pen of authentic history, on a certain power sprung up in the West, seated in the city of Rome, calling himself the Vicar of Christ, yet full of names of blasphemy; that is, stigmatized with those crimes which Christianity, as such, holds most opprobrious—the crimes of tyrannic dominion, of persecution, and even idolatry: and, lastly, now subsisting in the world, though with evident symptoms of decay, after a long reign; whose rise and progress can be traced, and whose duration, hitherto, is uncontradicted by any prophecy: put, I say, all these correspondent marks together, and see if they do not furnish, if not an absolute demonstration, yet a high degree of probability, that apostate Papal Rome is the very ANTICHRIST foretold."—(Sermon xi.)

But we must here add a word on the fate of antichrist, in the conclusion of this chapter. It is remarkable, that though we have a pretty full account of the preparations for this battle, and of its issue, we have no account of the battle itself. The arm of omnipotence being displayed in this conflict, we are not to wonder that its decision was so sudden and complete. By what specific means this victory shall be obtained is not distinctly stated, but is sufficiently indicated in the name of the victor—The Word of God. So St. Paul says, respecting the "Man of sin," that "the Lord shall consume him with the breath (or spirit) of his mouth," and "the brightness of his coming."

But how is this antichrist, which we consider not as an individual, but as a body politic, or rather ecclesiastical, to be cast into a lake of fire? "It is true," says Mr. Fuller, "that neither political nor ecclesiastical bodies, as such, can be literally cast into a place of torment, as individual unbelievers that compose them will be: they may, however, be cast into perdition, so as never to rise any more, which may be the whole of what is intended. As the Christian church in her millennial glory is described in language applicable to indivi-

Ver. 13. A vesture dipped in blood.—Compare Isa. lxiii. 1, &c.

Ver. 15. Rule them with a rod.—Another allusion to Ps. ii. 9, before repeatedly referred to.

Ver. 16. King of kings, &c.—This title was often affected by the eastern despots. So Cyrus had engraved on his tombstone—"Here am I buried, Cyrus, King of Kings." Other Asiatic monarchs followed the example; and medals also of Parthian kings, of Tigranes, of Pharnaces, &c. are found with the same title inscribed.—Woodhouse.

Ver. 17. An angel.—Greek, "one angel;" which Doddridge renders "a single angel."

Ver. 18. That ye may eat the flesh of kings, &c.—This is an evident imitation of Ezekiel xxxix. 17. Forbes (author of the "Oriental Memoirs") states, as an illustration of this passage—"that during the night after a sanguinary battle in India, hyenas, jackalls, and wild beasts of various kinds prowled over the field with a horrid noise; and the next morning a multitude of vultures, kites, and birds of prey, were seen asserting their claims to a share of the dead."—Orient. Mem.

Ver. 20. These both were cast alive.—This marks a most exemplary punishment, as Lowman observes: they were not slain, and their carcasses burnt; but they were burnt alive, and were so to continue tormented for ever and ever.

21 And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh.

CHAPTER XX.

Satan bound for a thousand years. 6 The first resurrection: they blessed that have part therein. 7 Satan let loose again. 8 Gog and Magog. 10 The devil cast into the lake of fire and brimstone. 12 The last and general resurrection.

AND I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key [a] of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he laid hold on the [b] dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound [c] him a thousand years,

3 And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal [d] upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season.

4 And I saw [e] thrones, and they sat upon them, and [f] judgment was given unto them: and I saw the [g] souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned [h] with Christ a thousand years.

5 But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

i c.1.16. ver 15.
j ver. 17,18.
a c.1.18. 9 1.
b c.12.9.
c 2Pe 2.4. Jude 6.
d Da.6.17.
e Da 7 9. 22 27 Lu.22.30.
f 1Co.6.2,3
g c.6 9.
h c.5.10.

---

dual believers, (ver. 8,) so the antichristian church is represented as a hardened sinner, arrested in a course of wickedness, and sent to his own place."

The beast and the false prophet being thus assigned to their proper and deserved fate, still there is a remnant of their followers left; and it might naturally be asked, What shall become of them? The answer is, "They were slain by the sword of him that sat upon the horse"—whose name is called The Word of God: and the instrument by which they were subdued is "the sword which proceedeth from his mouth."

CHAP. XX. Ver. 1—3. The Millennium.—"The removal of the beast and the false prophet, is followed by the decline of impiety and wickedness, and by the rapid growth of true religion and virtue. This is symbolically displayed. The dragon, that ancient foe of man, who, under the disguise of a serpent, had beguiled Eve; who had lent his throne, his authority, and his arts to the beast and the false prophet, to mislead the nations and their kings, is taken and confined. His influence upon earth is wonderfully diminished. And this important object is accomplished by the same superior agency. For though an angel is represented as binding Satan, yet whence has he the commission and the power? Whence the key of the bottomless deep, but from Him who alone is described as having the keys of hell and of death; from Him who shutteth and no man openeth? By his permission the bottomless deep had been opened; by his power it is now closed and sealed. The author of all iniquity is confined in it for a time; after which he is permitted to come forth again 'for a season,' and 'to deceive the nations.' But the beasts rise up no more. They are no longer the successful agents of Satan. He is no longer permitted to employ this kind of civil and religious tyranny against true religion and the happiness of man. The blissful season during which Satan continues bounden is called a thousand years." (Archdeacon Woodhouse.)

These thousand years, usually denominated the Millennium, (which signifies the same thing,) must now become the object of our attention, and the more so as some opinions have been lately revived respecting it, which we consider of a dangerous tendency.

The first event which we consider as connected with this period, and indeed as introducing it, viz. a powerful restraint upon Satan, and all the powers of darkness, is here expressed by the binding of Satan in a strong chain, and casting him down into the abyss—the prison assigned to him on his fall. This restraint, we apprehend, includes a great decrease of vice and infidelity; a suppression of those diabolical arts by which the great enemy of God and man has deceived and enslaved the more ignorant part of mankind, such as necromancy, witchcraft, and devil-worship, still practised among many of the ruder nations of Africa, and we fear partly among some nearer home.

2. The suppression of war is another happy event to which the confinement of Satan, and the restraint put upon his influence, must directly lead. War is, indeed, sport to him, though it is death to us; but it shall be brought to its termination by the "Prince of Peace." It has been long since predicted by the evangelical prophet, that under his reign men shall "learn war no more." (Isa. ii. 4.) We even flatter ourselves that we see some indications of this event approaching in the improved state of knowledge, and the spread of the gospel; but when the great "war spirit" shall be chained in the abyss, then shall universal peace take place.

3. The rapid progress of the arts and sciences and general knowledge may, we hope, add something in promotion of this great event. The invention of printing, and the improvements in navigation, we know have done much to promote the circulation of the Scriptures and the gospel through the world; and we may hope that the invention of stereotype and steam printing, steam navigation, and other new discoveries, may, by the end of the present century, produce effects no less salutary and important. But in no art or science, perhaps, are improvements more rapid than in the healing art; and it seems not too much to expect that the progress of medical and surgical knowledge, with the suppression of war, and the improvement in men's moral habits, may contribute to extend considerably the period of human life. (See Isa. lxv. 20, &c., with our exposition.)

4. Improvements in education and in the acquirements of foreign languages, especially the languages of the heathen; also the formation of societies to support and promote the exertions of competent individuals; are farther appearances in Providence much to be admired. But on the growth of knowledge, and especially of religious knowledge, we shall take the liberty to insert a few lines from the eloquent pen of the late Rev. Robert Hall. He remarks:—

"In the representation of that glorious period, usually styled the Millennium, when religion shall universally prevail, it is mentioned as a conspicuous feature, that 'men shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.' That period will not be distinguished from the preceding, by men's minds being more torpid and inactive; but rather by the consecration of every power to the service of the Most High. It will be a period of remarkable illumination, during which 'the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun, as that of seven days.' Every useful talent will be cultivated, every art subservient to the interests of man be improved and perfected; learning will amass her stores, and genius emit her splendour; but the former will be displayed without ostentation, and the latter shine with the softened effulgence of humility and love.

"We have hitherto spoken of the advantages of knowledge in general: we proceed to notice the utility of religious knowledge in particular. Religion, on account of its intimate relation to a future state, is every man's proper business, and should be his chief care. Of knowledge in general, there are branches which it would be preposterous in the bulk of mankind to attempt to acquire, because they have no immediate connexion with their duties, and demand talents which nature has denied, or opportunities which Providence has withheld. But with respect to the primary truths of religion, the case is different; they are of such daily use and necessity, that they form, not the materials of mental luxury so properly, as the food of the mind. In improving the character, the influence of general knowledge is often feeble, and always indirect; of religious knowledge, the tendency to purify the heart is immediate, and forms its professed scope and design."—(Hall's Sermon on Knowledge.)

Ver. 4—6. The first resurrection.—The great question here to be considered is, whether this resurrection should be literally or figuratively understood? We shall endeavour to state the arguments on both sides with brevity and candour. In favour of a literal interpretation, we shall quote Bishop Newton, who remarks—"In the general, that there shall be such a happy period as the Millennium; that 'the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High;' (Dan. vii. 27;) that Christ shall have 'the heathen for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession;' (Ps. ii. 8;) that 'the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea;' (Isa. xi. 9;) that 'the fulness of the Gentiles shall come in, and all Israel shall be saved;' (Rom. xi. 25, 26;) in a word, that the kingdom of heaven shall be established upon the earth, is the plain and express doctrine of Daniel, and all the prophets, as well as of St. John; and we daily pray for the accomplishment of it, in praying, 'Thy kingdom come!' But of all the prophets, St. John is the only one who hath declared particularly, and in express terms, that the martyrs shall rise to partake of the felicities of this kingdom, and that it shall continue upon earth a thousand years; and the Jewish church before

---

CHAP. XX. Ver. 1. The bottomless pit.—See note on chap. ix. 1.

Ver. 2. Laid hold on the dragon.—[This appears to be an emblematical representation of the restraints that would be laid on Satan, and the consequent reign of piety, peace, and righteousness on the earth. Multitudes will then be raised up, as if animated with the souls of the martyrs, and live and reign on earth in victory, honour, holiness, and joy; but "the rest of the dead will not live till the thousand years be ended"—they will have no successors of the same persecuting spirit till Satan is loosed after the Millennium.]—Bagster.—A thousand years.—All sober commentators take this literally; the hypothesis which makes these 360,000 years, (a day for a year,) we think most extravagant, and unwarranted by analogy.

Ver. 4. I saw thrones, and they sat upon them—i. e. the souls of the martyrs, &c.—Which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, &c Compare chap. xiii. 12, 15.

[h] hath no power, but they shall be priests [i] of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.

7 And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

8 And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, [k] Gog and Magog, to [l] gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.

9 And [m] they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 And the devil that deceived them was cast

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 95.

[i] c. 2. 11. 21. 8.
[j] Is. 61. 6. c. 1. 6.
[k] Eze. 38. 2. 39. 1.
[l] c. 16. 14. Is. 8. 8. Eze. 38. 9, 16.

him, and the Christian church after him, have farther believed and taught, that these thousand years will be the seventh millenary of the world."

The learned prelate here cites several passages from the Rabbins, and the early Christian Fathers, to the same general effect; and in particular from Justin Martyr, who, in the second century, certainly maintained, that this resurrection of the martyrs was to be literally understood, and that Jesus Christ would descend from heaven, and reign with his saints personally in Jerusalem; and that, at the end of this thousand years, should follow the general resurrection, and the final judgment. These opinions, it is granted, were afterwards carried to a pitch of extravagance, which sunk them into disrepute; but they were again purified and revived, and, among the moderns, have been ably and strenuously defended by Mr. Jos. Mede, Dr. Thomas Burnett, Dr. Jno. Gill, Mr. Faber, Mr. Frere, Dr. Hales, and others, on the same principles as Bishop Newton, already cited. The Bishop lays particular stress on the fifth verse, which asserts, that the rest of the dead lived not till a thousand years after the resurrection of the martyrs. Both passages (he contends) must be understood in the same manner. "If the martyrs rise only in a spiritual sense, then the rest of the dead rise only in a spiritual sense; but if the rest of the dead really rise, the martyrs rise in the same manner." So argues his lordship, and with considerable force.

On the other hand, it must be acknowledged, that this doctrine of a literal resurrection, and the personal reign of Christ on earth, met with early opposition, particularly from Origen, and Dionysius of Alexandria; it never was received as the universal opinion of the Christian church; and the most eminent expositors of modern times lean decidedly the other way, that is, to the figurative or spiritual interpretation of this mysterious passage. We recollect particularly, Dr. Whitby, Prof. Witsius, Pres. Edwards, Mr. Lowman, Dr. Guise, Dr. Hopkins, Dr. Er. Johnstone, Mr. Fuller, Mr. T. Scott, Dr. Bogue, and Dr. Boothroyd. Dr. Doddridge, and Archdeacon Woodhouse, hesitate. The grounds on which these reason, we shall now explain.

That this resurrection must not be literally explained, they argue, 1. Because the removal of saints and martyrs from heaven to earth for a thousand years, would, (they conceive,) so far from being a reward to their fidelity, prove a deterioration of their happiness; especially while the world is subjected to sin and sorrow, which must evidently be the case till after the defeat of Gog and Magog. They cannot suppose the saints in heaven will be gratified to leave their celestial thrones for earthly ones below, much less to fight with infidels.

2. It seems utterly incongruous to associate "the children of the resurrection" with the subjects of mortality and sin. It is true, that some of the saints arose, in consequence of the earthquake that attended our Lord's crucifixion; but we have good reason to believe, that, like Lazarus and others miraculously raised, they died again, which is not supposed of these martyrs. (See our exposition of Matthew xxvii. 45—54.) The children of the resurrection "neither marry nor are given in marriage;" how then shall they associate with flesh and blood? They have rested from their labours upon earth; are they then to renew them for their reward?

3. The idea of our Lord himself leaving his seat upon the Father's throne in glory, to occupy one on earth, seems still more unscriptural and absurd. He has told us repeatedly and emphatically, that his kingdom is not of this world, and shall he, after all the glories of his exaltation, stoop to wield an earthly sceptre? And is he again personally to recommence his warfare with the devil? Every way in which this subject can be viewed, either with respect to himself or the saints, it seems utterly inconsistent, both with Scripture and common sense.

4. The very terms in which this resurrection is spoken of, are thought inapplicable to a literal resurrection. "I saw the souls of them that were beheaded," &c., which is an expression never used of the resurrection of the body. The reanimation of their spirits, is like the reappearance of Elias in the person of John the Baptist. It is, in the figurative language of this book, a reanimation of the church, by the same spirit and temper being given, as was displayed in the saints and martyrs of former ages; for the same spirit, poured from on high, will ever form the same holy and zealous characters. This spiritual resurrection is in analogy with the resurrection and ascension of the two witnesses, in chap. xi., and, indeed, with the style of the whole book.

Lastly, the idea of the saints, or a part of them, being raised a thousand years before mankind in general, does not appear at all to agree with other descriptions of the general resurrection; that, in particular, in the close of this chapter, wherein the dead, "small and great"—righteous and wicked—those whose "names were written in the book of life," and those not therein written, stand together before the throne of judgment. (Compare Matt. xxv. 31, &c. John v. 28, 29. Rom. xiv. 10—12. 2 Cor. v. 10. 1 Thess. iv. 14—17, &c.) Now though we should admit that "the dead in Christ shall rise first," that is, before the wicked; yet, that they shall rise a thousand years before the wicked—yea, even before the final contest recorded below, (ver. 8, 9,) appears to many, and, we confess, to us, very improbable and inconsistent.

With respect to the expression, (ver. 5,) "the rest of the dead lived not," that may be understood figuratively, as well as the resurrection in ver. 4. So Mr. Lowman explains "the rest of the dead," of that remnant which was slain with the sword of Him that sat on the white horse, (chap. xix. 21.) "Thus, (he remarks,) the dead church raised to life, and living and reigning for a thousand years, and the enemies of the church remaining dead, and not living again till the thousand years were finished, will exactly agree in the same figurative meaning. This will be a sense consistent with the resurrection of the antichristian party also for a little season, (ver. 3,) after the thousand years shall be finished." So also Mr. Fuller.

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection!" So saith our apostolic prophet: they are raised from a death in sin to holiness in heart and life, and on such "the second death (which will be the portion of the wicked) shall have no power." "The first resurrection (says Mr. Fuller) supposes a second, which seems to be that of the just and the unjust. In this the wicked shall be raised to die a second death; but over the followers of Christ the second death shall have no power. As a pledge of their victory, they are already made priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign in spiritual prosperity from generation to generation, for the space of a thousand years."

Ver. 7—10. Infidelity supported by the armies of Gog and Magog, which are destroyed by fire from heaven.—The imagery of this chapter is also doubtless borrowed from Ezekiel, chap. xxxviii. and xxxix., to which we beg leave to refer our readers, in order to avoid repetition. By Gog and Magog, we suppose, must be understood some of the northern idolatrous nations, who had continued to refuse obedience to the gospel, or, at least, had apostatized therefrom. Indeed, such is human nature, that it is always prone to decline from practical religion; and it should seem, that even in those who may experience the power of religion during the happy period of the Millennium, there will be a great decline toward the end of it, and many will be seduced to listen to the infidel suggestions of the devil, as our Lord himself hath said, "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith in the earth?" (Luke xviii. 8.)

Satan once more loosed from his prison, will employ all his emissaries (as under the sixth vial) to gather together (as it were) "the whole world" from all quarters, to besiege the camp of the saints and the beloved city, by which is generally understood Jerusalem, rebuilt and enlarged to accommodate the Hebrew nation on their return. The invaders are neither the followers of the beast, nor the false prophet, for they are consigned to their own place; but, probably, a host of infidel philosophers, such as are described by Peter (2 Epis. iii. 4) and by Jude, (ver. 18, 19.) This is properly the reign of infidelity, and Satan is their king. But he also is taken as the beast and false prophet had been before, and cast into the same lake of burning. Now is the triumph of Christ, and the defeat of Satan, complete and final.

But, previous to the commencement of the Millennium, Christians generally expect, not only the fall of Popery and Mahometanism, but the national conversion of the Jews, and the return of a large body of them, at least, to their own land. We have already expressed our sentiments on this subject in our exposition of Jer. ch. xxx. and xxxi. Romans xi., and other parts of Scripture which seem to us to have an evident reference to this subject. But, we confess, we feel disappointed in finding so little in this book that has any explicit reference to this important subject. The restoration of Israel is, by the prophet Ezekiel, compared to a resurrection, and pos

Ver. 8. Four quarters—i. e. the cardinal points of the compass.—Gog and Magog.—Those who date the conversion and return of the Jews within this period, consider this as an attack upon them by the Tartars. [Gog and Magog seem to have been anciently the name of the northern nations of Europe and Asia, as the Scythians have been since, and Tartars are at present; but this seems to refer to a different nation from that mentioned by Ezekiel, which was to come exclusively from "the north quarters," while this comes from "the four quarters of the earth;" and the events in Ezekiel's prophecy relate to the times previous to the Millennium, while this refers to the transactions subsequent to that period.]—Bagster.

Ver. 9. Went up on the breadth.—This seems to us to imply a globular form of the earth, and to represent persons as rising from the under hemisphere on every side.—And fire came down, &c.—This is an evident allusion to the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. Gen. xix. 24 25 into the lake [n] of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

11 And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the [o] earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

12 And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books [p] were opened: and another book [q] was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according [r] to their works.

13 And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and [s] hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

14 And [t] death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of [u] fire.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

n c 19.20.
o 2 Pe 3.10, 12.
p Da 7.10.
q Da 12.1. c 21.27.
r Jr 32.19. Mat 16.27
s or, the grave
t Ho 13.14. Co 15. 26,54.
u Mat 25.41
a Is 65.17.. 19. 66.22. 2 Pe 3.13. b Is 52.1. He 11.10. 12.22

CHAPTER XXI.

1 A new heaven and a new earth. 10 The heavenly Jerusalem, with a full description thereof. 23 She needeth no sun, the glory of God is her light. 24 The kings of the earth bring their riches unto her.

AND I saw a new [a] heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

2 And I John saw the holy [b] city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, sibly the first resurrection in this chapter may refer to it: the same prophet describes a new Jerusalem and a new temple in terms so analogous to chap. xxi. of this Apocalypse, that many able commentators think that chapter may be retrospective—that is, that it may refer to the Millennium, and describe the call of the Jews together with the fulness of the Gentiles; but on this we shall farther remark presently.

---

One other inquiry, which we have hitherto passed over, now demands some attention; and, indeed, has been an object of primary importance with many commentators—namely, that of the disciples to our Lord—"Tell us, when shall these things be?" (Matt. xxiv. 3.) That this, when properly and modestly conducted, is a lawful subject of inquiry, we have no doubt, since we are in some measure furnished with the means of answering it. The continuance of the beast and false prophet, the sojourns of the woman (or church) in the wilderness, the prophesying of the witnesses in sackcloth, are all limited to 42 months, or 1260 days or years, as we are expressly told; and if we can find their beginning, it will be easy to find their close; and, consequently, nearly to ascertain the commencement of the Millennium. After examining a variety of hypotheses on this subject, with which we think it unnecessary to trouble our readers, we remark, that having, with Mr. Fuller, commenced the prophecies of this book from the time of Pentecost, A. D. 33, and using the number of the beast, 666, chronologically, (in which we are by no means confident,) it will bring us very nearly to the close of the seventh century. From this time, date the 1260 years above mentioned, and they will bring us to about A. D. 1960, leaving 40 years from the fall of Popery, to prepare for the gradual introduction of the Millennium. This great event, the best expositors, ancient and modern, commence with the seventh chiliad (or 1000 years) from the creation, which ancient traditions, both Jewish and Christian, consider as the great sabbath of the world. We may now compare the respective systems of a few of the most popular commentators on this book of the present day. The earliest date usually employed for the commencement of the 1260 years, is A. D. 533, which is the system of Mr. Frere and the Rev. Mr. Irving. But if this were correct, the time must have expired in 1793, when, it must be admitted, Popery received "a deadly wound," but is not yet dead, nor apparently in dying circumstances, though that was 34 years ago. Mr. Faber dates from A. D. 606, when the Pope assumed the title of Universal Bishop; and, accordingly, expects the fall of Popery in 1866.

Mr. Lowman, though an earlier commentator, is (we believe) far more generally followed; and he commences the 1260 days from about 756, when, by aid of Pepin, King of France, the Pope obtained considerable temporalities. This carries on the reign of Popery to 2016, or sixteen years into the commencement of the Millennium, as it is generally reckoned. Dr. Bogue, however, who is one of the most able, recent, and temperate writers on this subject, thinks this carries the period on twenty or thirty years too late: and these years deducted will carry back their commencement nearly to the time above suggested; and we cannot pretend to be exact. Certain it is, the Pope began to acquire secular power, and temporal possessions, very early in the eighth century.

Ver. 11—15. The general resurrection and final judgment.—There is something peculiarly sublime in the scene now before us—"a great white throne"—that is, a throne, not of ivory, nor of silver, but of white and pure light. Of him that fills the throne there is no description; but his presence is of such awful majesty, that heaven recedes before him, and the earth vanishes. Nothing is great enough, or pure enough, to be visible when he appears: so the glow-worm becomes invisible as the sun rises.

But the dead, "small and great,"—that is, of every rank and class, must appear before him as their judge. It is observable that we have here no description of the process of the resurrection—such as poets and painters have sometimes injudiciously attempted. The Judge appears, and the dead—just and unjust—stand instantaneously before his bar. The books are opened, and the dead are judged out of the things written in those books, according to their works. The record of their actions is written by the pen of omniscience and eternal justice; and who dare object? But here is mention of another book, of which we often read in the sacred Scriptures—it is "the book of life—the book of life of the Lamb slain,"—that is, as we humbly conceive, (in allusion to human affairs,) the Lamb's own book, in which he enters the objects of his love and grace. The records of justice would certainly condemn us all; but this is a register of mercy, in which, as good Bp. Beveridge expresses it, "the black lines of our sins are crossed out by the red lines of our Saviour's blood." All whose names are not written there are without hope, though their names may be written on earth in marble or in gold.

But what is the meaning of being judged according to our works? Applied to mankind in general, it implies a judgment proportioned to their sins, and to the circumstances under which they are placed. Applied to believers, though in no case can any degree of merit be admitted, yet does it furnish the scale of measurement, if we may so speak, by which their rewards will be adjusted, as respects their diligence and fidelity. "To them who, by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, and honour, and immortality, [he will give] eternal life." (Rom. ii. 7.)

That death and the grave (or invisible world) gave up their dead we can easily understand; but what is meant by "death and hell," or the grave, or invisible world, being "cast into the lake of fire," is not so clear. We apprehend, with Mr. Lowman, that it is designed to intimate that there will be in future no intermediate state, no death, no grave—the whole human race will in future be found in heaven or hell, in eternal life or everlasting misery!—Awful thought! how important is it to secure a place for our names in the Lamb's book of life!

CHAP. XXI. Ver. 1—8. The new heaven and earth, and who shall be excluded therefrom.—Before we enter upon this chapter, it will be necessary to revert to some passages in the second epistle of Peter, and other scriptures, which we have already briefly noticed. St. Peter tells us, that "The heavens and earth which are now, are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men;—that the day of the Lord [here spoken of] will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works that are therein, shall be burned up. . . . . Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." Let us now contemplate the fulfilment of this Scripture; but previous to our surveying the new heaven and earth, let us pause a moment, and admire the astounding scene, of "A God in glory, and a world on fire!"

Dr. Thos. Burnett, whose "theory of the earth" is too philosophical, or rather too fanciful, to be adopted in our pages, has some contemplations that have been admired for their beauty and sublimity, and well deserve to be read for their practical effect. From these we shall give one short extract on the scene before us. Dr. B. supposes the conflagration now universal and complete; and seated, as it were, upon a vagrant cloud, he looks down and asks, "Where are now the great empires of the world, and their great imperial cities?—their pillars, trophies, and monuments of glory? Show me where they stood?" And then turning his eye, as it were, to look for a spot of peculiar interest, he exclaims—"Rome itself, eternal Rome, the great city, the emperess of the world, whose domination and superstition, ancient and modern, make a great part of the history of this earth—what is become of her now? She laid her foundations deep, and her palaces were strong and sumptuous. She glorified herself, and lived deliciously, and said in her heart, I sit a queen, and shall see no sorrow! But her hour is come; she is wiped away from the face of the earth—buried in perpetual oblivion. But they are not cities only, and works of men's hands, but the everlasting hills, the mountains and rocks of the earth, are melted as wax before the sun, and their place is no where found."

Ver. 10. Where the beast and the false prophet are.—See chap. xix. 20.
Ver. 11. A great white throne.—Compare Dan. vii. 9.
CHAP. XXI. Ver. 1. A new heaven, &c.—[As this immediately succeeds the account of the last judgment, it must refer exclusively to the heavenly state: "the new heaven and the new earth" and "the new Jerusalem" being emblematical of the glory and happiness which will be the portion of the good for ever.]—Bagster.—No more sea.—This may metaphorically intend, that whereas the beasts, both of Daniel and St. John, rose out of that state of tur-prepared as a [c] bride [d] adorned for her husband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the [e] tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, [f] and God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

4 And God shall wipe away all [g] tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more [h] death, neither [i] sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

5 And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful.

6 And he said unto me, It is [j] done. [k] I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is [l] athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcometh shall inherit [m] all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

8 But the [n] fearful, and [o] unbelieving, and the [p] abominable, and [q] murderers, and [r] whoremongers, and [s] sorcerers, and [t] idolaters, and all [u] liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.

9 And there came unto me one of the seven [v] angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will show thee the bride, the Lamb's [w] wife.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

c Is.54.5.
d Ps.45.9.. 14.
e 2 Co.6.16.
f Zec.8.8.
g Is.25.8. c 7.17.
h 1 Co.15. 26,54.
i Is.35.10.
j c.16.17.
k c.1.8. 22.13.
l Is 55.1. Jn.4.10, 14. 7.37. c 22.17.
m or, these.
n Lu.12.4..9
o 1 Jn.5.4, 10
p 1 Co.6.9, 10
q 1 Jn 3 15
r He.13.4.
s Mal 3.5.
t 1 Co 10. 20,21. u Pr 19.5,9. c 22.15
v c.15.1,6,7.
w c.19.7.

10 And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great [x] city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory [y] of God: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal;

12 And had a wall great and high, and had twelve [z] gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel:

13 On the east three gates; on the north three gates; on the south three gates; and on the west three gates.

14 And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and [a] in them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

15 And he that talked with me had a golden reed [b] to measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 And the city lieth four-square, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal.

17 And he measured the wall thereof, a hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is, of the angel.

18 And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass.

19 And the foundations [c] of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of pre x Eze.40.48.

y Is.60 1,2.
z Eze.48.31, 34.
a Ep.2.20.
b Eze.40.3. Zec.2.1. c.11.1
c Is.54.11.

> "The cloud-capt towers, the gorgeous palaces,
> The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
> Yea, all which it inherits, shall dissolve,
> And, like the baseless fabric of a vision,
> Leave not a wreck behind."—Shakspeare.

But let us turn our attention to the new heavens and the new earth now before us. We have already mentioned, that many divines, those in particular who expect the personal reign of Christ in the Millennium, consider this chapter as retrospective, and designed to give a more full account of the events of that period, and particularly the restoration of the Jews. But, upon a most attentive consideration of the subject, we confess ourselves compelled to reject that idea, and chiefly for this reason, that sin, and sorrow, and death, are now for ever done away; which cannot be the case in the Millennium, because that will end with the insurrection of Gog and Magog. But no enemy now remains: not only the beast and the false prophet, but Satan himself, is cast into the bottomless pit, to be liberated no more for ever. God and redeemed sinners are completely and for ever reconciled, therefore will he dwell for ever with them, and be their God. But he that is now shut out of this celestial state, must be shut out for ever. "The fearful and unbelieving"—by whom we do not understand timid and weak believers, but cowardly apostates, and impenitent transgressors—"the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; which is the second death." On the contrary, he that has been "faithful unto death," and overcome the world, with its temptations and its snares, "he shall inherit all things;" or, as the margin explains it, "all these things," great and blessed as they are, which God has provided and reserved for them that love him.

Ver. 9—27. The New Jerusalem described, with the privileges of its inhabitants.—The quadrangular was the favourite form of the ancients, in building both their cities and their houses. And though, as Mr. Lowman suggests, there may be no necessity for supposing the height of the walls equal to the dimensions of the city; yet as the foundations were twelve layers deep, so the walls were, doubtless, furnished with lofty turrets, which would make the whole appear very considerable; and high walls and towers were thought not only an ornament, but a protection to a city. Wherefore the Psalmist says—"Walk about Zion, and count the towers thereof. Mark ye well her bulwarks; consider her palaces." (Ps. xlviii. 12, 13.) And if the proud sons of Babel (Gen. xiv.) were ambitious to build their tower to the skies; and if it is said of the cities of Canaan, that they were "walled up to heaven," (Deut. i. 28,) it could not be an unwarrantable hyperbole to say of the New Jerusalem, that its height was equal to its breadth. The ideas meant to be conveyed, were certainly grandeur and security.

To view this city, St. John was conducted to an exceedingly high mountain, from whence he saw the New Jerusalem, or perhaps a model of it, gradually descending from the throne of God in heaven. She is spoken of as the bride, the Lamb's wife, and is said to be "adorned as a bride for her husband," which accounts for the gold and jewels with which she (the city) is so richly embellished. Her foundations being of precious stones, and inscribed with the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb, plainly indicates the precious truths which they delivered in his name. (See 1 Pet. ii. 4, 7.) Her gates are pearls, on which are engraved the names of the twelve tribes of Israel; intimating, that none but Israelites indeed are admitted within these walls. When it is said, the street, or open part of the city, is "pure gold, transparent as glass," we may understand, that the materials of which the city is composed are distinguished both by splendour and intrinsic value. "There being no temple, nor sun, nor moon, (says Mr. Fuller,) denotes that there will be no need of those means of grace which we now attend upon: what we now receive mediately, we shall then receive immediately. Finally, the nations of the saved walking in the light of it, may allude to the interest which surrounding nations take in a metropolitan city; and denotes that the saved, who have been gathered from all nations, will rejoice in the honour which God will have bestowed upon his church."

The city before us is represented as of immense size, namely, 12,000 furlongs (or 1500 miles) in length and breadth; yet there is no surrounding country mentioned, though much seems to be implied, by its gates remaining always open; and by kings

---

ble and commotion which is represented by the sea, the cause shall be now done away for ever. If taken literally, it may intend, that the whole globe will be rendered habitable.

Ver 6. I am Alpha and Omega, &c.—See note on Rev. i. 11.

Ver. 8. The fearful and unbelieving.—Woodhouse. "The cowardly and the faithless." Lowman, "The cowardly and distrustful."

Ver. 10. That great city.—[The interchange of emblems from "the bride, the Lamb's wife," to "that great city, the holy Jerusalem," shows that we should only take in general ideas of them, and not enter minutely into particulars; and that our complex view of such subjects must be deduced from the whole of them compared together.]—Bagster.

Ver. 14. Twelve foundations.—The ancients built their walls with alternate layers of brick and stone, here improperly (perhaps) rendered foundations.—But instead of this wall being built with alternate layers of brick and common stone, it is built with layers of various precious stones, which rendered even the foundations inconceivably beautiful and splendid.—Orient. Cust. No. 1400.

Ver. 16 The city lieth four-square.—Woodhouse. "quadrangular:" i. e. having four equal sides.—Twelve thousand furlongs—i. e. says Mr. Lowman, 1500 miles in compass, each side being 375 miles long.—The length, and the breadth, and the height equal.—Mr. Lowman explains this, not as forming an exact cube, but as having all the parts in a due proportion; or as being of a uniform height. [The square form of this city probably denotes its stability; while its vast dimensions, being 1500 miles on each side, is emblematical of magnificence, and of its capability of containing all the multitude of inhabitants which should ever enter it, however immense or innumerable.] —Bagster.

Ver. 19. Garnished with all manner of precious stones.—Compare Isa. liv. 11, 12; on which Bishop Lowth pertinently observes, "These seem to be general images, to express beauty, magnificence, purity, strength, and solidity, agreeably to the ideas of Eastern nations; and to have never been intended to be strictly scrutinized, or minutely and particularly explained, as if each of them had some moral and precise meaning."—Chalcedony.—[Chalcedony is a species of quartz, semi-pellucid, of a whitish, bluish, smoky-gray, or yellow and red colour, and is 2½ times heavier than water.]—Bagster.

cious stones. The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald;

20 The fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolyte; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every several gate was of one pearl: and the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

22 And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it.

23 And the city had no need of the [d] sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light [e] thereof.

24 And the nations [f] of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it: and the kings [g] of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.

25 And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day: for [h] there shall be no night there.

26 And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

27 And [i] there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book [j] of life.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96.

d Is 60.19, 20.
e 22 5.
e Jn 1.4.
f Is 60.3.. 11.. 66 10..12
g Ps 72.11.
h Zec 14.7.
i Is 35.8. 52.1 60.21. Joel 3.17. Mat.13. 41. 1 Co 6 9, 10. Ga.5.19.. 21. Ep.5.5. He 12.14.
j c 13 8.

a Eze.47.1, 12.
b c 21 21.
c c 2.7.
d Zec.14.11
e Eze.48.35
f c.7 15
g Mat 5 8 J n 12 26. 17 24 1 Co.13.12 1 Jn.3.2.
h c 3 12.
i c 21 23,25
j Ps.36 9.
k Re 5 17.
l c 1 1.
m ver 10,12, 20.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 The river of the water of life. 2 The tree of life. 5 The light of the city of God is himself. 9 The angel will not be worshipped. 18 Nothing may be added to the word of God, nor taken therefrom.

AND he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2 In [a] the midst of the street [b] of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree [c] of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

3 And there [d] shall be no more curse: but the throne of [e] God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants [f] shall serve him:

4 And [g] they shall see his face; and his name [h] shall be in their foreheads.

5 And [i] there shall be no night there: and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them [j] light: and they shall reign [k] for ever and ever.

6 And he said unto me, These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent [l] his angel to show unto his servants the things which must shortly be done.

7 Behold, I come [m] quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

bringing into it their "glory and honour," as is customary in royal cities. But we understand "nations walking in the light of it," in a manner somewhat different from Mr. Fuller, as above quoted. Many divines have supposed, that this New Jerusalem will be enlightened by a divine shechinah, a glory so brilliant and so elevated, as that all the nations of the redeemed may be illumined by it. But nothing defiling or defiled can enter into this heavenly world.

One thing, perhaps, has not been sufficiently considered, namely, that there "was no more sea." It is well known, that the ocean covers by far the larger part of our present globe, and if all the parts covered by seas, and lakes, and marshes, and barren rocks and arid sands, were clothed with vegetable food, as was paradise at the creation, it would not, perhaps, be too much to suppose that the earth could maintain many times its present number of inhabitants: not to say, from the enlarged scale on which every thing in this new world is represented, it seems highly probable that the new earth may be very considerably enlarged, and even perhaps a communication allowed with other worlds of pure and happy beings. But this is offered only as conjectural.

CHAP. XXII. Ver. 1—5. The river and tree of life, and the glory of this New Jerusalem.—Our Lord assures us, that the children of the resurrection "neither marry nor are given in marriage," it not being the design of God farther to increase the species. It has been hence also generally inferred, that they will neither eat nor drink: and it may be so; yet our Lord ate even animal food after his resurrection; (Luke xxiv. 42, 43;) and here is described a paradise of fruits, resembling that given to Adam in his state of innocence, but without "the tree of knowledge of good and evil." (Gen. ii. 9, 16, 17.) We are well aware, that evangelical expositors explain these fruits allegorically, for fruits of holy enjoyment; as well as the water of life, for the influences of divine grace and consolation. But if we are to have material bodies, (though highly purified,) and if we are to inhabit a material world, of which there seems no question; if our Lord himself ate with his disciples after his resurrection, we should be afraid to say that these promises in no degree admit of a literal interpretation; though some think that our Lord's body did not fully attain its glorified state till the hour of his ascension.

There are some trees that, by engrafting, produce different fruits, and at different seasons, from the same stock; there seems no absurdity, therefore, in admitting a literal interpretation of what is said, that "they yield twelve manner of fruits," and one or other of them "monthly," though we would by no means contend for it. We have mentioned in our remarks upon the paradise of Adam, Dr. Kennicott's hypothesis, that the tree of life was not an individual, but a species. Here we find it on either or both sides of the river; as also in Ezek. xlvii. 7. Mr. Fuller remarks, "There is doubtless an allusion in these verses to Ezek. xlvii. 1—12. Both Ezekiel and John make mention of a city—of a river—of trees growing upon the banks of it—and of the fruit thereof being for meat, and the leaf for medicine. Ezekiel's waters flowed from the temple, near the altar; those of John, out of "the throne of God and the Lamb." The city is doubtless the same in both; but, I conceive, at different times. Ezekiel's city had a temple; but that of John, as we have seen, had no temple, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it. The first, therefore, describes the church in her latter-day glory; the last, in a state of perfection; and which answers to the promise in chap. ii. 7: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of God."

But the most important clause in this section of Scripture is the last—"And they shall reign for ever and ever." This may be literally rendered, "for ages of ages;" and some have strenuously argued from hence, against the eternity of misery inflicted on the finally impenitent. For "ages of ages," say they, means only for a long period. God forbid we should take pleasure in such a painful subject! But have those persons considered, that while they are endeavouring to comfort the wicked, they are distressing the pious and the just? If there may be an end to the punishment of sinners, why not to the happiness of good men? The duration of both is expressed in the same terms, and God forbid we should comfort the former to distress the latter!

Ver. 6—21. Conclusion of this book, and of the New Testament.—The angel confirms his message by a solemn asseveration in the name of God; and the following words, "Behold, I come quickly," are evidently spoken in the name of Christ, and as from him. These expressions, "the time is at hand," and "behold, I come quickly," imply only, that their accomplishment was shortly to commence, and would rapidly proceed; but, certainly, not that their accomplishment would shortly be completed, for they contain the fate of many centuries.

Our Lord Christ, having, from the 10th to the 16th verse,

Ver. 20. Sardonyx.—[Sardonyx, as well as onyx, is a kind of chalcedony, generally marked with alternate stripes of white and black.—Sardius.—The Sardius, or Sardine stone, is a precious stone of a blood-red colour.—Chrysolite.—The chrysolite or gold-stone, now called the Oriental topaz, is of a dusky green, with a cast of yellow, and is very beautiful.—Chrysoprasus.—The chrysoprasus, which Pliny reckons among the beryls, is generally considered a kind of chalcedony, and is an extremely hard stone, of a clear and delicate apple-green colour.—Jacinth.—The jacinth, hyacinth, or ligure, is a dark orange-red variety of jargoon.]—Bagster.

Ver. 21. Every several gate.—[This may denote, that every thing will be superlatively glorious beyond all comparison with any thing ever seen on earth.] —Bagster.—The street of the city.—"This seems well understood by Grotius, (says Mr. Lowman,) of the Forum, or place of public assembly, which is described as paved either with squares of gold and crystals, or with crystal squares set in gold borders; than which imagination can conceive nothing more rich and magnificent."

Ver. 23. The glory of God did lighten it.—Not only Mr. Fleming, and other Millenarians, explain this of the shechinah, or cloud of glory, which led the Israelites through the Red sea, and in their subsequent journeys, (Exod. xiv. 20. 24. &c.;) but even Lowman and Doddridge give this explication: and let no philosopher sneer at it, since Dr. Herschell thinks that he has discovered our sun to be an opaque body, enlightened by a phosphoric atmosphere.

Ver. 24. Kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.—That is, says Doddridge, "If you were to conceive all the monarchs upon earth uniting all their treasures to adorn one single place, they would produce nothing comparable to what I then saw." Compare Isa. lx. 3.

CHAP. XXII. Ver. 2. The tree of life.—[Rather, the definite article not being in the original, "a tree of life;" for there were three trees; one in the street, and one on each side of the river.]—Bagster.—For the healing of the nations.—This seems to imply that the inhabitants will be still subject to disease, which, we apprehend, was not intended. The original word signifies to serve, as well as to heal; and the writer begs leave to suggest, that the passage might be rendered, for the service of the nations, without restraining it to healing; or, as Wesley explains it, "for the continuing of their health, not the restoring it, for no sickness is there."

Ver. 5. And they need no candle.—Doddridge, "lamp."

Ver. 6. And he said.—Doubtless the angel who had been instructing St. John in the preceding visions.—These sayings.—Compare chap. xix. 9; xxi. 5.

Ver. 7. Behold, I come.—Perhaps the words, 'He said" or "saying."

8 And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which showed me these things.

9 Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God.

10 And he saith unto me, Seal not [n] the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 He [o] that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is [p] righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

12 And, behold, I come [q] quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according [r] as his work shall be.

13 I [s] am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

14 Blessed [t] are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

15 For without [u] are [v] dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie.

16 I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the [w] root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star.

17 And the Spirit and the bride [x] say, [y] Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And [z] let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

18 For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add [a] unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

19 And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away [b] his part [c] out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

20 He which testifieth these things saith, Surely [d] I come quickly; Amen. [e] Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

21 The [f] grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

A. M. cir. 4100.
A. D. cir. 96

n Dan.8.26.
o Pr.1.24.. 33. Ec.11.3. Mat.25. 10. 2 Ti.3.13.
p Pr.4.18. Mat.5.6.
q Zep.1.14.
r c.20.12.
s Is.44.6.
t Lu.12.37, 38.
u c.21.8,27.
v Phi.3.2.
w c.5.5.
x c.21.2,9
y Is.2.5.
z c.21.6.
a Pr.30.6.
b c.3.5.
c or, from the tree.
d ver.7,12.
e He.9.28. Is.25.9.
f 2 Th.3.18

addressed the apostle, now, in verse 17, and sequel, addresses himself to the churches of Asia, as in the beginning of the book; not separately, but connectedly, and through them to true Christians in every age. "Reader, (as if he should say,) you have read of the water of life: you are invited to come and drink freely of it. You have heard or read of the Spirit that spake to the churches; he speaks also to you individually, and the sum of what he saith is, Come. You have heard of the bride, and of the glories prepared for her: she does not covet to enjoy these things by herself, but joins with the Spirit of inspiration in inviting you to come. Nay, every one that heareth, and believeth these things, is warranted to invite his neighbour. And let every one who has any regard for his own soul, avoid the cup of the mother of harlots, and come to the living waters. There need be no hesitation on the score of qualification, for it is free to all who are willing to receive it.

"Know, also, that the words of this prophecy are sacred. If any man add to them, God will add to him its plagues; and if any man take away from them, God will take away from him whatever he may have expected to receive of its blessings. He who testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. To this solemn testimony of Christ, the apostle adds his solemn Amen. Even so; come, Lord Jesus."—(Fuller.) should be supplied between the verses. Archbp. Newcome supplies, "saith Jesus:" Behold, [saith Jesus] I come quickly.

Ver. 8. I fell down.—It is difficult to account for the apostle attempting to worship the angel a second time; but Mr. Fuller thinks it was the same incident a second time related. The reproof is the same, and does not charge him with a repetition of his fault. To this inclines also Archdeacon Woodhouse.

Ver. 10. Seal not the sayings.—The contrary of what was said to him, chap. x. 4. Comp. chap. i 11.

Ver. 12. Behold, I come quickly.—Here again the angel speaks in the name of Christ. See also ver. 19.

Ver. 13. I am Alpha, &c.—Compare chap. i. 8, 11; xxi. 6.

Ver. 15. Without are dogs.—Dogs in the East are generally left to range the streets at large, except they are wanted to guard any particular premises, and then they are chained up outside the door they are to guard. See note on Phil. iii. 2.

Ver. 17. Water of life freely.—It is delightful to notice that the revelation of God closes with a free, full, and unlimited offer of salvation, in which the Holy Spirit and the church unite, whilst all are charged to circulate the joyous news of free and full salvation. See note on Mark ii. 7.

Ver. 19 His part out of the book of life.—Margin, "From the tree of life." So read some copies; but compare chap. iii. 5, and exposition xx. 15, &c.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF REVELATION.

[Concerning the Revelation, Dr. Priestley (no mean judge of Biblical subjects, where his own peculiar creed was not concerned) has declared, "I think it impossible for any intelligent and candid person to peruse this Book without being struck, in the most forcible manner, with the peculiar dignity and sublimity of its composition, superior to that of any other writing whatever; so as to be convinced, that, considering the age in which it appeared, none but a person divinely inspired could have written it. These prophecies are also written in such a manner as to satisfy us that the events announced to us were really foreseen; being described in such a manner as no person, writing without that knowledge, could have done. This requires such a mixture of clearness and obscurity, as has never yet been imitated by any forgers of prophecy whatever. Forgeries, written of course after the events, have always been too plain. It is only in the Scriptures, and especially in the Book of Daniel, and this of the Revelation, that we find this happy mixture of clearness and obscurity in the accounts of future events." The obscurity of this prophecy, which has been urged against its genuineness, necessarily results from the highly figurative and symbolical language in which it is delivered, and is, in fact, a strong internal proof of its authenticity and divine original: "For it is a part of this prophecy," as Sir Isaac Newton justly remarks, "that it should not be understood before the last age of the world; and therefore it makes for the credit of the prophecy that it is not yet understood. The folly of interpreters has been, to foretell times and things by this prophecy, as if God designed to make them prophets. By this rashness, they have not only exposed themselves, but brought the prophecy also into contempt. The design of God was much otherwise. He gave this, and the prophecies of the Old Testament, not to gratify men's curiosities by enabling them to foreknow things, but that, after that they were fulfilled, they might be interpreted by the event; and his own Providence, not the interpreters, be then manifested thereby to the world. For the event of things, predicted many ages before, will then be a convincing argument that the world is governed by Providence. For as the few and obscure prophecies concerning Christ's first coming were for setting up the Christian religion, which all nations have since corrupted: so the many and clear prophecies concerning the things to be done at Christ's second coming, are not only for predicting, but also for effecting a recovery and re-establishment of the long-lost truth, and setting up a kingdom wherein dwells righteousness. The event will prove the Apocalypse; and this prophecy, thus proved and understood, will open the old prophets; and all together will make known the true religion, and establish it. There is already so much of the prophecy fulfilled, that as many as will take pains in this study, may see sufficient instances of God's promise; but then the signal revolutions predicted by all the holy prophets, will at once both turn men's eyes upon considering the predictions, and plainly interpret them. Till then we must content ourselves with interpreting what hath been already fulfilled." And, as Weston observes, "if we were in possession of a complete and particular history of Asia, not only of great events, without person or place, names or dates, but of the exactest biography, geography, topography, and chronology, we might, perhaps, still be able to explain and appropriate more circumstances recorded in the Revelation, under the emperors of the East and the West, and in Arabia, Persia, Tartary, and Asia, the seat of the most important revolutions with which the history of Christianity has ever been interwoven and closely connected." History is the great interpreter of prophecy. "Prophecy is, as I may say," observes Newton, "history anticipated and contracted; history is prophecy accomplished and dilated; and the prophecies of Scripture contain the fate of the most considerable nations, and the substance of the most memorable transactions in the world, from the earliest to the latest times. Daniel and St. John, with regard to those latter times, are more copious and particular than the other prophets. They exhibit a series and succession of the most important events, from the first of the four great empires to the consummation of all things. Their prophecies may really be said to be a summary of the history of the world; and the history of the world is the best comment upon their prophecies... and the more you know of ancient and modern times, and the farther you search into the truth of history, the more you will be satisfied of the truth of prophecy." The Revelation was designed to supply the place of that continued succession of prophets, which demonstrated the continued providence of God to the patriarchal and Jewish churches. "The majority of commentators on the Apocalypse," says Townsend, "generally acted on these principles of interpretation. They discover in this Book certain predictions of events which were fulfilled soon after they were announced; they trace in the history of later years various coincidences, which so fully agree with various parts of the Apocalypse, that they are justly entitled to consider them as the fulfilment of its prophecies; and, by thus tracing the one God of Revelation through the clouds of the dark ages, through the storms of revolutions and wars, through the mighty convulsions which, at various periods, have agitated the world, their interpretations, even when they are most contradictory, when they venture to speculate concerning the future, are founded on so much undoubted truth, that they have materially confirmed the wavering faith of thousands. Clouds and darkness must cover the brightness of the throne of God, till it shall please him to enable us to bear the brighter beams of his glory. In the mean time, we trace his footsteps in the sea of the Gentile world, his path in the mighty waters of the ambitious and clashing passions of man. We rejoice to anticipate the day when the bondage of Rome, which would perpetuate the intellectual and spiritual slavery of man, shall be overthrown, and the day-spring of united knowledge and holiness bless the world."]—Bagster.

END OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

INDEX TO THE PRINCIPAL NOTES IN THE COTTAGE BIBLE.

THE READER, when he meets with a passage of Scripture which appears not to be illustrated in this work, is particularly requested not to conclude that it is really the case till he has consulted this INDEX for the principal subjects; for it very frequently happens that one Note illustrates many, not only similar, but very dissimilar texts: this is particularly and generally the case with respect to the names of Places and Persons, Natural Productions, Manners and Customs. It is to be observed, that the Notes which are merely explanatory of the passage under consideration, unless it be a Proper Name, have been omitted in the following Index.

ALV

AARON'S tomb, description of, Nu.20.22.
Abana, now Barrada, account of, 2Ki.5.12.
Abarim, mountains of, description of, Nu.33.47.
Abel Beth-maachah, situation of, 2Sa.20.14.
Abel-maim, why called Abel-beth-maachah, 2Ch.16.4.
Abel-meholah, situation of, Ju.7.22.
Abel-mizraim, meaning of, Ge.50.11.
Abel-shittim, situation of, Nu.33.49.
Abia, or Abijah, course of, 1Ch.24.10.
Abiathar also called Ahimelech, 1Ch.24 3.Ma 2.26.
Abihail, probably the grand-daughter, and not the daughter, of Eliab, 2Ch.11.18.
Abijam, should be Abijah, 1Ki.14.31.
Abilene, situation of, Lu.3.1.
Abimelech, meaning of the word, Ge.26.26.
Abraham, meaning of the word, Ge.17.5.
Abram, the age of his father Terah when he was born, Ac.7.4.
Absalom's pillar, account of, 2Sa.18.18.
Abshai, the same as Abishai, 1Ch 19.11.
Accho, now Acre, situation of, Ju.1.31.
Aceldama, description of, Ac.1.19.
Achad, rendered one, probably the same as Adad, a Syrian idol, Is.66.17.
Achaia, description of, Ac.18.12.
Achan and Jakan the same, 1Ch.1.42.
Achan and Achar the same, 1Ch.2.7.
Achbor and Abdon the same person, 2Ch.34.20.
Achish, why called Abimelech, Ps.34.title.
Achmetha, or Ecbatana, description of, Ezr.6.2.
Achshaph, situation of, Jos.11.1.
Achzib, now Zib, situation of, Ju.1.31.
Acrostic Psalms, see Alphabetical Psalms.
Adam, meaning of the word, Ge.1.26.
——, a type of Christ, Ro.5.14.
Adar, probably the same as Hazar-addar, Jos.14.3.
Addan and Addon, the same, Ne.7.61.
Adder, deaf, account of, Ps.58.4.
Addressing a great man in the East, mode of, 2Sa.16.2.
Adithaim, situation of, Jos.15.36.
Adjuration, solemn form of, De.4.26.
Adoration, import of, 1Ki.19.18.
Adramyttium, situation of, Ac.27 2.
Adria, sea of, described, Ac.27.27.
Adullam, situation of, Ge.38.1.1Sa.22.1.
Adultery, ancient punishment of, Eze.23.25.
——, woman taken in, evidence of the genuineness of the account, Jn.8.5.
Adummim, situation of, Jos.15.7.
Affection, maternal, instance of, 1Sa.20.30.
Agabus, a famine predicted by, Ac.11.28.
Agar, how it answereth to Jerusalem, Ga.4.25.
Agate, description of, Ex.39.12.
Agrippa, king, account of, Ac.25.24.
Agur, probably a teacher, Pr.30.1.
Aha! Aha! a note of extreme contempt, &c. Ps.70.3.
Ahasuerus, or Cambyses, account of, Ezr.4.6.
——, the same as Artaxerxes Longimanus, Es.1.1.
Ahasuerus, or Astyages, account of Da.9.1.
Ahava, river, description of, Ezr.8.15.
Ahaziah, Jehoahaz, and Azariah, the same person, 2Ch.22.6.
Ahimelech, Abiathar so called, 1Ch.24.3.
Aholah, a name applied to Samaria, meaning of, Eze.23.4.
Aholibah, a name given to Judah, import of, Eze.23.4.
Ai, situation of, Ge.13.3.Jos.8.17.
Aiath, or Ai, situation of, Isa.10.28.
Aijeleth Shahar, meaning of, Ps.22.title.
Ajah or Aiah, the same in the original, 1Ch.1.40.
Ajalon, situation of, Jos.19.22.
Ain and Ashan the same place, 1Ch.6.59.
Alamoth, meaning of, Ps.46.title.
Alexander the Great and his conquests predicted, Da.8.5.6.
Alexander, predictions concerning his kingdom, Da.11.3.
Alexander, probably Alexander Lysimachus, alabarch of Alexandria, Ac.4.6.
Alexandria, situation of, Ac.27.6.
Algum, or Almug, trees, what, 2Ch.2.8.
Alhema, description of, De.21.12.
All-to, meaning of the phrase, Ju.9.53.
Allon-bachuth, meaning of, Ge.35.8.
Almighty, import of word rendered, Ex.6.3.
Almon, why called also Alemeth, 1Ch.6.60.
Almon-diblathaim, probably the same as Beth-diblathaim and Diblath, Nu.33.46.
Almond tree blossoms early, and is the symbol of promptitude, Je.1.11.
Almond tree when flouishing like an old man with white locks, Ec.12.5.
Almonds, Ge.43.11.
Aloes, Lign, description of, Nu.24.6.
Alphabetical Psalms, 25, 34, 37, 111, 112, 119, 145.
Altar of burnt-offering, description of, Ex.38.1.
—— of incense, account of, Ex.30.1.
—— in the temple of Ezekiel, description of, Eze.43.14.15.
Altars without steps, reason of, Ex.20.26.
—— places of refuge, 1Ki.2.34.
Al-taschith, meaning of, titles of Ps 57,59.
Alvah and Alah the same, 1Ch.1.51.
Alvan and Alian the same 1Ch.1.40.

ASH

Amalekites, country inhabited by, 1Sa.15.3.
Ambassador, import and illustration of the word thus rendered, Jos.9.4.
Amber, description of, Eze.8.2.
Amen, import of, Ps.41.13.
Amethyst, description of, Ex.39.12.
Ami and Amon, the same, Ne.7.59.
Ammi, signification of, Ho.2.1.
Ammonites, fulfilment of the prediction of their destruction, Eze.21.32.; 25.10.
Amorites, where they inhabited, De.7.1.
———, a general name for the Canaanites, 2Sa.20.2.
Amphipolis, description of, Ac.17.1.
Ananias, account of his miserable death, Ac.23.3.
Anathema Maran-atha, meaning of, 1Co.16.22.
Anathoth, situation of, Jos.21.18.Is.10.28.
Anethothite and Antothite the same, 1Ch.11.28.
Angels, why said always to behold the presence of God in heaven, Mat 18.10.
Anger, ill effects of, Pr.16.32.
Animals, distinction of, into clean and unclean, reason of, Le.11.46.
Animals worshipped by the Egyptians, Ex.9.3.
Anise, properly dill, Mat.23.23.
Annas, account of, Jn.18.24.
Anointing of Christ at Bethany only once, Ma.14.8.
Ant, economy of, Pr.6.6.
Ants, wisdom of, Pr.30.25.
Antelope or gazelle, description of, De.15.22.
Antioch of Syria, description of, Ac.15.22.
——— of Pisidia, situation of, Ac.14.19.
Antiochus Epiphanes, predictions respecting, Da.11.21,25,28,30.
Antiochus Theos, predictions respecting, Da.11.6.
Antiochus the Great, predictions respecting, Da.11.10,11,15,17.18.
Antipatris, description of, Ac.23.31.
Antithetic parallels, account of, Pr.10.1.
Apes, rather monkeys, 1Ki 10.22.
Aphek of Syria, situation of, Jos.13.4.1Ki.20.26.
——— of Judah, situation of, 1Sa 4.1.
Apollonia, situation of, Ac.17.1.
Apostle, meaning of, Lu.6.13.
Apparel, exchange of, between the sexes, the reasons why prohibited, De.22.5.
Apparel, changeable suits of, meaning of word so rendered, Is.3.22.
Appeal to Cæsar highly respected, Ac.25.11.
Appearances of the heathen gods derived from those of Jehovah, Ex.19.9.
Apphia, meaning of, Philem.1.
Appii forum, situation of, Ac.28.15.
Apples of gold in pictures of silver, illustration of, Pr.25.11.
Ar, or Areopolis, situation of, De.2.9.
Arab chiefs, despotic conduct of, not imitated by David, 1Sa.25.7.
Arabah, meaning of the word, Jos.18.18.
Arabia, description of, Ga.1.17.
Arabians, compared to locusts, Re.9.4.
Arabs, eagerness with which they lie in wait for travellers, Je.3.2.
Arabs, their sudden retreats into the deserts, Je.49.8.
Arad, situation of, Jos.12.14.
Ararat the same as Armenia, Ge.8.4.Je.51.27.
Archippus, import of the name, Philem.1.
Ard and Addar the same, 1Ch.8.3.
Aretas, account of, 2Co.11.32.
Ariel, a name for Jerusalem, and also the altar, Is.29.2.
Ark, dimensions of, Ge.6.19.
—— of the covenant, description of, Ex 25.10.
——, contents of, 2Ch.5.9.
——, imitations of, Ex.40.21.
Armed men, attendance of, in Palestine when sowing, Ne.4.16.
Armenia, or Ararat, account of, 2Ki.19.37.
Armour, whole, what, Ep.6.13.
—— of an enemy greatly desired by ancient warriors, 2Sa.2.21.
Armour placed in temples as a trophy, 1Sa.31.10.
Arms anciently hung up in temples by soldiers when they retired from war, 2Ch.23.9.
Arnon, river, description of, Nu.21.26.
Aroer, now Araayr, situation of, Nu.32.34.
Arpad, or Arphad, the same in the origina Is.38.19.
Arpad, situation of, 2Ki.18.34.
Arrow, shooting of, a symbolical action, 2Ki.13.17.
Arrows, fiery, what, Ps.76.3.
———, divination by, description of, Eze.21.21.
——— of the Almighty, used metaphorically for calamities, fine illustration of, Job.6.4.
Arrows termed the sons of the quiver, La.3.13.
Artaxerxes, or Smerdis, account of, Ezr.4.7.
——— Longimanus, account of, Ezr.6.14.
Artillery, singular use of the word, 1Sa.20.40.
Arumah, where situated, Ju.9 41.
Arvad, or Aradus, situation of, Eze.27.8.
Asaiah and Asaiah, the same in the original, 2Ch.34.20.
Asarelah and Jesharelah, 1Ch.25.14.
Ashan, or Beth-ashan, situation of, 1Ch.4.32. 1Sa.30.30.
Ashchenaz, a part of Phrygia, Je.51.27.
Ashdod, description of 1Sa.5.1.

BAN

Asher, meaning of the name, Ge.30.13.
——, town of, where situated, Jos.17.7.
Ashima, account of, 2Ki.17.30.
Ashteroth Karnaim, the same as Ashteroth, Ge.14.5.
Ashurites, who, 2Sa.2.9.
Asia Minor, description of, Ac.19.31.
——, Proconsular, account of, Ac 16.6.
——, chiefs of, who, Ac.19.31.
Asps, gall of, what, Job 20.14.
Ass, why requiring only a bridle in the East, Pr.26.3.
Ass, prophecy that the Messiah should enter Jerusalem on one, fulfilled by Jesus, Mat.21.5.
Ass, wild, description of, Job 39.5.
Ass of brend, what, 1Sa.16.20.
Asses, honourable for riding, and sometimes made presents of in the East, Nu.16.15.
Asses, general use of, in the East, 2Ki.4.24.
Ass's head, exorbitant price of, 2Ki.6.25.
Assos, situation of, Ac.20.13.
Assur and Asshur, the same in the original, Ps.83.8.
Asuppim, import of, 1Ch.26.15.
Assyria, description of, Is.36.4.
Atad, import of the word Ge.50.10.
——, threshing floor of, situation of, Ge.50.10.
Athens, description of, Ac.17.15.
Attalia, situation of, Ac.14.25.
Augustus, import of the term, Ac.25.25.
Authority, to exercise, import of the word so rendered, Mat.20.25
Aven, situation of, Am.1.5.
Awake the morn, illustration of, Ps.57.8.
Azariah the same as Uzziah, 2Ki.15.6.
Azariah and Seraiah, the same person, Ezr.2.2.
——————— Ne.11.11
Azekah, situation of, Jos.15.35
Azmon, situation of, Jos.15.4.
Aznoth-tabor, situation of, Jos.19.34
Azotus, or Ashdod, description of, 1Sa.5.1.

BAAL, high places of, where situated, Nu.22.41.
Baalah, where situated, Jos.15.9.
Baal-berith, account of, Ju.8.33
Baali, meaning of the word, Ho.2.16.
Baal-meon, situation of, Nu.32.38.
Baal-shalisha, situation of, 2Ki.4.42.
Baal-tamar, situation of, Ju.20.33.
Baal-zebub, account of, 2Ki.1.6.
Baal-zephon, situation of, Ex.14.2.Nu.33.7.
Babel, import of the word, Ge.11.9.
——, tower of, description of, Ge.11.9.
Babylon, description and history of, Is.13.18.
——— built with the spoils and blood of nations, and therefore destroyed, Hab.2.12
Babylon, inhabited by a mixture of people, Is.47.15.
Babylon, rivers of, what, Ps.137.1.
——, ——, taking of, by the Medes and Persians, as foretold, Is.21.1,7.
Babylon, account of the taking of, by Cyrus, Is.45.1.
Babylon, her great stores, when taken by Cyrus, Je.50.26
Babylon, the stratagem by which it was taken, Je.50.24,31
Babylon, her young men killed in her streets, Je.50.30.
Babylon, cowardice of the mighty men of, Je 51 30.
———, gradual desolation of, Is.13.18.Je.50.45.
———, the judgment on her graven images, Is.46.1.Je.51.52.
Babylon, ceased to be the lady of kingdoms after it was taken by Cyrus, Is.47.5.
Babylon, taken suddenly by Cyrus, and also by Darius, Is.47.9.
Babylon, the destruction of her walls and gates, Je.51.58.
Babylon, the complete fulfilment of the predictions respecting, Je.51.59.
Babylon the Great, the Roman church so called, Re.17.5.
Babylonians, antiquity of, Je.5.15.
—— ———, dress of, Da.3.21.
—— ——, destruction of their navigation by Cyrus, predicted, Is.43.14.
Babylonians vanquished by Darius Hystaspes, Zec.2.7.
Babylonish garment, what, Jos.7.21
Baca, valley of, account of, Ps.84.6.
Backsliding, origin of the term Je.3.22.
Badger's skins, what, Ex.26.14.
Bags, money placed in, and sealed, 2Ki.12.10
Baking, Arabian mode of, 2Sa 13.8
Bahurim, probably the same as Alemeth, 2Sa.16.5.
Baladan, the same as Belesis, 2Ki.15.25
Baldness, making, on the head, reason why forbidden, Le.21.4.
Balm, description of, Ge.37 25.
—— of Gilead, what, Je.8.22.
Bamoth-baal, same as the high places of Baal, Jos.13.17
Bank, or mount, used in a siege, description of, 2Sa.20.15.
Banquet, description of a Persian one, Es.5.4.
Banquets in the East frequently spread by the side of fountains, 2Ki 1 8.

BIR

Baptism for the dead, what, 1Co.15.29.
Barhumite, probably a mistake for Bahurumite, 1Ch.11.33.
Barley, import of the word, Ex.9.31.
Barley harvest, time of, Ru.1.22.
Barrenness deemed a reproach, Ge.30.23.
Baruch, some account of, Je.36.4.
Bashan, situation and description of, De.3.1.
———, kine of, meaning of, Am.4.1
Basket, import of, De.28.5.
Basins, probably such wooden bowls as the Arabs eat out of, 2Sa.17.28.
Bat, description of, Is.2.20.
Bath, capacity of, Eze.45.11. Lu.16.6.
Battlement, necessity of, to Eastern houses, De.22.8.
Bay tree, meaning of word so rendered, Ps.37.35.
Bazluth and Bazlith, the same, Ne.7.54.
Bdellium, description of, Ge.2.12.
Be used for the indicative plural are, Mat.29.2.
Be, not to, import of the phrase, Ge.5.24.
Beard, combing and dying of, in the East, 2Sa.19.24.
———, high estimation of, in the East, 2Sa.10.4.
———————————, Is.50.6.
———, kissing of, in the East, 2Sa.20.9.
———, cutting off, a mark of mourning, degradation, or slavery, 2Sa.10.4.
Beard, not to be rounded, reason why, Le 21 4.
———, inconvenience of, in battle, 2Sa.2.16.
Beast, an emblem of an idolatrous and tyrannical kingdom, Da.7.3.
Beast, number of, what, Re.13.11.
Beasts, of the earth, meaning of, Ge.1.24.
———, wild, ancient mode of hunting, Is.24.17.
———, swift, import of word so rendered, Is.66.20.
Beautiful, gate of the temple so called, account of, Ac.3.2.
Bedan, probably a mistake for Barak, 1Sa.12.11.
Bed, decorations of an Eastern one, Pr.7.16.
Beds, construction of Eastern, 1Sa.19.15.
———, raised situation of, in Eastern houses, 2Ki.1.16.
Beds of skins, mats, and carpets, 2Sa.17.28.
——— of ivory, what, Am.6.4.
——— of gold, properly couches, Es.1.6.
Bed chamber, properly a repository for beds, 2Ki.11.2.
Beelzebub, why called Beelzebul, Mat.10.25.
Beer, situation and description of, Ju.9.21.
Beeroth of Benjamin, situation of, Ju.18.25.
Beersheba, meaning of the name, Ge.26.33.
———, situation of, 1Ch.4.28.
Bees, formidable enemies, De 1.44.
Beesh-terah, probably the same as Ashtaroth, Jos.21.27.
Before, used to denote the east, 1Ki.11.7.
Behemoth, or hippopotamus, description of, Job 40.15.
Behind, used for the west, 1Ki.11.7.
Belial, import of the word, Nu.13.13.
Believed, most surely, import of the word so rendered, Lu.1.1.
Bellerophon, story of, supposed to be founded on the history of Joseph, Ge.39.14.
Belshazzar, account of, Da.5.2,13.
Ben-ammi, meaning of, Ge.19.37.
Benjamin, meaning of the word, Ge.35.18.
———, borders of the tribe of, Jos.18.19.
Ben-oni, meaning of the word, Ge.35.18.
Berea, situation of, Ac.17.10.
Berenice, prediction respecting her marriage with Antiochus Theos, Da.11.6.
Bernice, account of, Ac.25.13.
Berodach-baladan, the same as Merodach-baladan, Is.39.1.
Berothai, situation of, 2Sa.8.8.
———, probably the same as Chun, 1Ch.18.8.
Beryl, description of, Ex.39.13. Eze.10.19.
Betah, situation of, 2Sa.8.8.
———, probably the same as Tibhath, 1Ch.18.8.
Beten, situation of, Jos.19.25.
Beth-anath, situation of, Jos.19.38.
Bethany, description of, Mat.21.17.
———, whence our Lord ascended, where situated, Ac.1.12.
Beth-aram, or Livias, situation of, Jos.13.27.
Beth-arbel, situation of, Ho.10.14.
Beth-barah, situation of, Ju.7.24.
Beth-car, situation of, 1Sa.7.11.
Bethel, import of the name, Ge.28.19.
———, situation of, Ge.13.3. Jos.8.17.
———, probably the same as Bethul in Simeon, situation of, 1Sa.30.27.
Bether, situation of, 2Sa.2.29. Ca.2.17.
Bethesda, pool of, described, Jn.5.2.
Beth-haccerem, situation of, Ne.3.14.
Beth-hogla, situation of, Jos.15.6.
Beth-horon, situation of, Jos.16.5.
Beth-jesimoth, situation of, Nu.33.49.
Bethlehem, description of, 2Ch.11.6.
Beth-nimrah, probably now Nemrim, where situated, Nu.32.36.
Beth-palet and Beth-phelet, the same in the original, Ne.11.26.
Beth-peor, situation of, De.4.46.
Bethphage, situation of, Mat.21.1.
Bethsaida, situation of, Ma.6.45.
Bethshean, or Bisan, situation and description of, Jos.17.11.
Beth-shemesh, situation of, Jos.15.10.
———, in Egypt, or Heliopolis, description of, Is.44.13.
Beth-zur, situation of, 1Ch.2.45.
Betrothing, mode of, De.20.7.
Bezek, situation of, Ju.1.4.
Bezer, the same as Bozra, De.4.43.
Bezor, brook, description of, 1Sa.30.10.
Binnui and Bani, the same, Ezr.2.10.
Bird, word so rendered also denotes a sparrow, Le.14.4.
Bird, the mother, why not to be taken with her young, De.22.7.
Bird, a ravenous, or eagle, the ensign of Cyrus, Is.46.11.

CAN

Birds, migration of, Job 39.26.
Bishop, meaning of the word, Phi.1.1.
Bithron, or Betarus, situation of, 2Sa.2.29.
Bittern, import of word so rendered, Is.34.11.
Blasphemy, import of, Mat.12.31.
Blind, cure of by Jesus, perfectly miraculous, Jn.9.32.
Blindness, meaning of word thus rendered, Ge.19.11.
Blood, possessed of life, Le.17.11.
———, prohibited, Le.3.17. Le.7.26.
———, to be poured out at the bottom of the altar, Le.4.18.
Blood, necessary for the expiation of sin, He.10.4.
———, defiling nature of, Nu.31.19. 1Ch.22.8.
———, houses built, and fortunes made by, visited with the Divine judgments, Hab.2.12.
Blood, a sweat of, sometimes happens, Lu.22.44.
Blotting out, import of, Ex.32.32.
Blue colour, properly azure, Ex 25.4.
Boar, wild, description of, Ps.80.13.
Boaz, import of, 1Ki.7.21.
———, supposed to be the same with Ibzan, Ru.2.1.
Body, human, wonderful texture and formation of, Ps.139.14,16.
Body, Christians one, 1Co.10.17.
——— and its members, a fine allegory of, 1Co.12.12.
——— used for carcass, Lu.17.37.
Bodies, dead, thrown to the dogs, 1Ki.21.19.
———————————, 2Ki.20.7.
Boil, import of word so rendered, Job.2.7.
Boils, sore, probably the black leprosy, Ps.32.3.
Bones used for the body, ——— of kings, &c. not unfrequently burnt at the sacking of cities, Je.8.1.
Bonnets of the priests, description of, Je.8.13.
Book of the generations, meaning of, Ge.5.1.
Bosom, the lap, or fold, in the bosom of a garment so called, Lu.6.38.
Bosom, lying in, what, Jn.13.23.
Bottle in the smoke, illustration of, Ps.119.83.
———, putting tears into, illustration of, Ps.56.8.
Bottles, anciently of skin, and capable of mending, Jos.9.4.
Bottles, old, why unfit to hold new wine, Mat.9.17.
Boughs, an emblem of apostles, evangelists, and ministers, Eze.17.23.
Bow, import of word rendered, Ge.47.31.
——, probably the name of a song, 2Sa.1.18.
Bowels, disease of, probably a violent dysentery, 2Ch.21.15.
Bowl, what, Nu.7.31.
Bozra, situation of, Ge.36.33.
Bracelet, meaning of, Ge 24.22.
——— one of the insignia of royalty, 2Sa.1.10.
———, description of, Ge.38.18. Ex.35.22.
Branch, putting one to the nose, an idolatrous rite, Eze.8.17.
Branch of the cedar, the highest, an emblem of Jeconiah, Eze.17.3.
Branch, the Messiah so called, Zec.3.8. Zec.6.12.
Brass, word rendered, properly copper, Ex.25.3.
Brazen gates and bars, illustration of, 1Ki.4.13.
Bread, why to be cast on the waters, Ec.11.1.
——— of men, what, Eze.24.17.
Breast-plate, description of, Ex.28.4. Ep.6.14.
Breeches of the priests, Ex.39.28.
Bricks, mode of making, Ex.5.7.
Brigandines, what, Je.46.4.
Brimstone, meaning of, Ge.19.24.
Brother, the term, applied to a person of the same tribe, or a companion, 1Ch.6.39.
Brut, meaning of the word, Je.10.22.
Buffalo, flesh of, eaten in the East, 1Ki.4.23.
Buffeted, import of word so rendered, Mat.26.67.
Building, sometimes means fortifying, 1Ki.15.17.
Bull, wild, import of word so rendered, Is.51.20.
Bulrushes, vessels of, used by the Egyptians, Ex.2.3. Is.18.2.
Bundle of life, being found in, import of, 1Sa.25.29.
Burning woods, a practice in uncultivated countries, Ps.83.14.
Burnt-offering, account of, Le.1.10.
Bushel, capacity of, Mat.5.15.
Butler, properly a cupbearer, Ge.40.1.
Butter, probably buttermilk, ———, words said to be smoother than, illustrated, Ps.55.21.
Buyers, dishonest conduct of, Pr.20.14.

CABUL, signification and situation of, Jos.19.27.
———————————, 1Ki.9.13.
Cæsar, some of the household of, converted to the Christian faith, Phi.4.22.
Cæsarea of Palestine, description of, Ac.10.24.
Cæsarea Philippi, now Banias, situation and description of, Mat.16.13.
Caiaphas, account of, Mat.26.3.
Cainan improperly inserted by the Septuagint, Ge.10.24. Ge.11.12.
Calamus, description of, Ex.30.23.
Caleb, son of Hur, 1Ch.2.50.
———, why said to have another spirit, Nu.14.23.
———, son of Hezron, time when he lived, 1Ch.2.18.
———, situation of, 1Sa.30.14.
Call on the name, import of the phrase, Ge.21.38.
Callinicus, prediction respecting, Da.11.7,8.
Calno, Calneh, or Ctesiphon, description of, Is.10.9.
Camel, description of, 1Ch.5.21.
———, she, importance of, Ge.32.14.
———, to go through the eye of a needle, illustration of the phrase, Mat.19.24. Lu.18.25.
Camels, meaning of the word so rendered, Es.8.10.
Camp, circular form of an Arab one, 1Sa.26.5.
——— of the Israelites, description of, Nu.2.2,28.
Cana of Galilee, description of, Jn.2.11. Jn.4.46.
Canaan, prophecy against, fulfilled, Ge.9.25.
———, land of, description of, Ge.12.5.
———, boundaries of, to the Israelites, Jos.1.4.
———, division of, Nu.26.56.
Canaanite, the same as Zelotes, Mat.3.18.
Canaanites, chiefly inhabited Phœnicia, De.7.1.

CHR

Canaanites, probably infected with idolatry in the time of Abraham, Ge.24.37.
Canaanites justly exterminated by the Israelites, Jos.6.21.
Candle, or lamp, to light, meaning of, Ps.18.28
Candlestick, description of, Ex.35.14.
Cane, sweet, account of, Je.6.20.
Canker-worm, meaning of word so rendered, Joel 1.4.
Canopy, origin of, 1Sa.19.13.
Capernaum, situation of, Ma.1.21.
Captain of the temple, who, Lu.22.4. Ac.4.1.
Captains, import of the word so translated, Da.3.3.
Captives, effect produced upon, when their liberty was proclaimed, illustrated, Ps.126.1.
Carbuncle, description of, Ex.28.17.
Carcasses of detestable things, what, Je.16.18.
Cardinal, import of the word, Jos.9.4.
Carmel, mount, in Asher, description of, 1Ki.18.19.
———, altar, erected by Elijah upon, accounts of from heathen authors, 1Ki.18.30
Carmel in Judah, situation of, 1Sa.25.2.
Carpenters, four, emblematical signification of, Zec.1.20.
Carriage, word so rendered properly baggage, Jn.18.21. Ac.21.15.
Casement, properly a lattice, Pr.7.6.
Casiphia, probably the Caspian mountains, Ezr.8.17.
Castle of Antonia, description of, Ac.21.34.
Castles, import of the word so rendered, Ge.25.16.
Caterpillars, probable meaning of word so rendered, 2Ch.6.28. Ps.78.46. Joel 1.4. Am.7.1.
Cattle, import of the word, Ge.1.24. Ge.47.6.
Cauls, meaning of the word thus rendered, Is.3.18.
Caves used as places of retreat, Ju.6.2. 1Sa.24.3.
Cedar, description of, 1Ki.4.33.
——— used as an emblem of the royal family of David, Eze.17.3.
Cedron, see Kidron.
Ceilings of wood in the East, Je.22.13.
Cenchrea, situation of, Ac.18.18.
Chain, a prisoner bound with one to a soldier among the Romans, Ac.28.20.
Chains, two, Roman mode of securing a prisoner with, Ac.12.7.
Chains of gold worn round the necks of Eastern ladies, Ca.1.10.
Chains, word so rendered denotes earrings or drops, Is.3.19.
Chalcedony, description of, Rev.21.19.
Chaldean monarchy represented by a head of gold, Da.2.38.
Chaldean monarchy represented as a lion with eagle's wings, Da.7.4.
Chaldean cavalry, swiftness, courage, and ferocity of, Hab.1.8.
Chaldee, though a dialect of the Hebrew, in many respects very dissimilar, Je.5.15.
Chamber, little, or oleah, description of, 2Ki.4.10.
Chambers, inner, description of, 2Ch.18.24.
——— of God represented as built upon the waters, Ps.104.3.
Chamberlain, meaning of word so rendered, Ro 16.23.
Chameleon, word so rendered, the warii lizard, Lo.11.30.
Chamois, word so rendered, probably a species of goat or deer, De.14.5.
Chapters, improper divisions of, Jos.5 15.
Charchemish, or Circesium, situation of, 2Ch.35.20.
Charger, what, Nu.7.31.
Chariot, word so rendered probably denotes a palanquin, Ca.3.9.
Chariot of love, what, 2Ki.2.11
Chariots of iron, description of, Jud.4.13
———, four, emblematical meaning of, Zech.6.1.
Charity, proper signification of, Ro.14.15.
Charmer, import of the term, De.18.10.
Charming of serpents, possibility of, Ps.58.5.
Chebar, river, account of, Eze.1.1.
Cheeks of ladies decorated with coins in the East, Ca.1.10.
Chelubai the same as Caleb, 1Ch.2.18.
Cherethites, who they were, 1Sa.30.14.
Cherubim, description of, Ex.36.8.
———, probable meaning of their symbolical figures, Eze.10.14.
Chesnut tree, word so rendered, properly the plane tree, Ge.30.37.
Chesuloth, probably the same as Chisloth-tabor, Jos.19.18.
Chezib, situation of, Ge.38.5.
Child, word so rendered, properly means a lad, or youth, Ge.21.14. 1Ki.11.17.
Child, disgraceful to fall by the hands of, Ju.8.21.
Children, little, words so rendered to denote young men, 2Ki.2.23. Da.1.4.
Children, numerous, instances of, 2Ki.10.1.
———, considered as the property of parents, and disposable, 2Ki.4.1
Children mean not only descendants, but inhabitants, Ezr.2.3.
Children, bringers up of, what, 2.Ki.10.6
Chileab, probably the same as Daniel, son of David, 1Ch.3.1.
Chimham, habitation of, what, Je.41.17.
Chinneroth, probably Tiberias, Jos.11.2.
———, sea of, description of, Jos.12.3.
Chios, now Scio, account of, Ac.20.13.
Chisleu, month of, account of, Zec.7.1.
Chisloth-tabor, situation of, Jos 19 12.
Chiun, probably Saturn, Am 5.26.
Chor-ashan, probably the same as Ashan, 1Sa.30.30
Chorazin, situation and total destruction of, Lu.10.13.
Christ, genealogy of, by Matthew and Luke reconciled, Lu.3.23,36.
Christ, how said not to be come to send peace but a sword, Mat.10.34

INDEX TO THE PRINCIPAL NOTES IN THE COTTAGE BIBLE.

CUP

Christ fully aware of the sufferings that awaited him, Jn.18.4.
Christs, false, predictions of, Mat.24.26.Lu.21.8.
Christians, persecutions of, foretold, Mat.24.9.
Chronicles, interesting nature of, among the Persians, Es.6.1.
Chrysolite, description of, Eze.10.9.Re.21.20.
Chrysoprasus, description of, Re.21.20.
Church, kings her nursing fathers, and queens her nursing mothers, Is.49.23.
Cilicia, description of, Ac.15.23.
Cinnamon, description of, Ex.30.23.
Circumcision, first practised by Abraham, Ge.17.10.
———— practised by the Arabs, as well as Jews, and at what age, Ge.17.25.
Circumcision of the heart, what, Re.2.29.
Cistern, the right ventricle of the heart, so called, Ec.12.6.
Cities, ancient fortifications of, 2Ki.9.13.
——, walled up to heaven, import of the phrase, De.1.28.
Clauda, description of, Ac.27.16.
Claudius Cesar, account of, Ac.11.28.
Cleanliness, necessity of, in camps, De.23.12.
Cleave, proper meaning of word so rendered, Mat.19.5.
Cleopatra, prediction respecting, Da.11.17.
Cloak, a kind of gown, Lu.6.29.
Close, keeping one's-self, import of, 1Ch.12.1.
Cloth, new, why unfit to put in an old garment, Mat.9.16.
Clothes, presentation of, a mode of honouring in the East, Ge.45.22.
Clothes, accumulation of, by great men, Job 27.16.
———————————————, Is.3.7.
Clouds, the strength of God said to be in, Ps.68.34.
——, meaning of the word so rendered, Job 35.5.
Clouted, meaning of the word, Jos.9.5.
Cnidus, situation of, Ac.27.7.
Coal, metaphorically used for a man and his descendants, 2Sa.14.7.
Coals of fire, why doing acts of kindness to an enemy is compared to heaping them on his head, Pr.25.22.
Coat, properly a tunic, or under garment, Lu.6.29.
—— of many colours, description of, Ge.37.3.
Coats of the priests, description of, Le.8.13.
Cockle, import of word so rendered, Job 31.40.
Coin, the currency of, an acknowledgment of subjection to a king, Mat.22.21.
College, probable meaning of the word so rendered, 2Ch.34.22.
Coney, or Shaphan, account of, Le.11.5.
————————, wisdom of, Pr.30.26.
Conscience, used for consciousness, 1Co.8.7.
———————————————, He.10.2.
Constantine, prediction concerning, Da.11.36.
Constantine, prediction of his accession to the throne, and of the changes it introduced, Re.6.12; 7.3.
Consulter of familiar spirits, meaning of, De.18.10.
Contention, meaning of the word so rendered, 1Th.2.2.
Conversant, import of the word, Jos.8.35.
Conversation, meaning of, 2Co 1.12.
Coos, account of, Ac.21.1.
Copper, fine, as precious as gold, what, Ezr.8 27.
Cor, capacity of, 2Ch.27.5.Lu.16.6.
Coral, description of, Job 28.18.
Corban, meaning of, Ma.7.11.
Corinth, description of, Ac 18.1.
Corinthian brass, what, Ezr.8.27.
Corinthians, second Epistle to, genuineness and authenticity of, 2Co.8.19.
Cormorant, probably the cataract, De.14.17.
——, word so rendered, properly the pelican, Is.34.11.
Corn prepared by God, Ps.65.9.
—— with seven ears on one stalk, Ge.41.5.
——, parched, a frequent food in the East, 2Ki.4.42.
Corn, a certain quantity of, allowed to soldiers in the East, 2Sa.4.6.
Corn, plucking ears of, on the sabbath, why found fault with by the Pharisees, Mat.12.1.
Cornet, the place of honour in the East, Is.38.2.
Cornet, description of, 1Ch.15.20.
——, meaning of word so rendered, Da.3.5.
Corruption, mount of, the same as the mount of Olives, 2Ki.23.13.
Council, the Sanhedrim, or Senate of the Jewish nation, Mat.5.22.
Councils, or Sanhedrims, what, Ma.13.9.
Counsellors, word so rendered, illustrated, Da.3.3.
Counsellors, seven, why employed by the kings of Persia, Ezr.7.14.
Coup de soleil, occurrence of, in Palestine, 2Ki.4.19.
Covenant, ancient ceremony of entering into, De.29.12.Jos.9.6.
Covenant, to be in, with death, or any thing, illustrated, Is.28.15.
Covering of badger's skins for the tabernacle, account of, Nu.4.6.
Coverings of the tabernacle, description of, Ex.36.19.
Covetous man, his insatiableness, Job 3.15.
Cracknells, import of word so rendered, 1Ki.14.3.
Crane, the proper name of, in Hebrew, Je.8.7.
Creeping things, import of, Ge.1.24.
Crete, description of, Ac.27.7.
Crowns, extraordinary size and weight of some ancient ones, 2Sa.12.30.
Crucifixion, description of, Jn.19.6.
Crystal, description of, Eze.1.22.
——, word so rendered, probably glass, Job 28.17.
Cubit, length of, Eze.40 10.
——, used to signify any short duration, Mat.6.27.
Cuckoo, probably the sea-gull, De 14.15.
Cucumber, description of, Nu.11.5.
Cummin, description of, Mat.23.23.
Cup used for divination, Ge.44.5.
—— of blessing, what, Ps.116.13.

DIV

Cup of consolation, what, Je.16.7.
—— of salvation, what, Ps.116.13.
—— of intoxicating liquors an emblem of the judgments of God, Ob.16
Cupbearer, honourable office of, Ne 1.11.
Curious arts, what, Ac.19.19.
Curse, or devote, people to destruction, supposed power of men to, Nu 22.17.
Cush the Benjamite, who, Ps.7.title.
Custom, receipt of, what, Mat.9.9.
Cut off, import of the term, Le.22.3.
Cuth, situation of, 2Ki.17.30.
Cymbals, description of, 1Ch.15.16.Ps.150.5.
Cyprus, description of, Ac.4.36.
Cyrene, situation of, Ac.13.1.
Cyrenius, an account of his taxing, Lu.2.2.
Cyrus, account of, Ezr.1.1.
——, the various nations he conquered, Is 45.1.
——, extent of his kingdom, Ezr.1.2.
——, foretold as drying up the rivers of Babylon, a century before his birth, Is.44.27.
Cyrus, prediction of his victories over the Chaldeans and their allies, Is.41.25.
Cyrus, the nations which composed his army, Je.50.9.
Cyrus, the amount of gold and silver taken by him, when he conquered Asia, Je.50.37.

DABERATH, now Daboura, situation of, Jos.19.12.
Dagon, an account of, 1Sa.5.4.
Dalmanutha, situation of, Ma.8.10.
Damascus, description of, 1Ki.11.24.
———, taken by Alexander, Zec.9.1.
———, wilderness of, where situated, 1Ki.19.15.
Damn, properly means to condemn, Ro.14.23.
Damnation, properly judgment or punishment, 1Co.11.29.
Dan, meaning of the name, Ge.30.6.
——, Laish, or Leshem, situation of, Ju 18.7.
Darda and Dara, the same, 1Ch.2 6.
Darius Hystaspes, account of, Ezr.4.24.
—— the Median, account of, Da.5.31 ; 6 1.
Darkness, a metaphor for affliction, or calamity, Ps.18.28.La.3.2.Am.5.20.
Darkness and night worshipped by the Egyptians, Ex.10.21.
Darkness at the crucifixion, supernatural, Mat.27 25.
Darmesek, the same as Damascus, 2Ch 16.2.
Darts, fiery, what, Ps.76.3.
Daughters frequently given in marriage to slaves by persons in the East, when they have no sons, 1Ch.2.35.
Daughters, inheritance of, Nu 27.2 ; 36.2,7,12.
David, properly the eighth son of Jesse, though termed the seventh, 1Ch.2.15.
David, probable time of the year when he was crowned, 1Ch.12.40.
David, disinterested and gallant conduct of, 1Sa.23.2.
David, noble conduct of, in choosing the pestilence, 1Ch.21.13.
David, review of his life and character, 1Ch.29.28.
——, the Messiah so called, Je.30.9.Eze.34.23.
———————, Ho.3.5.
David, city of, stairs of, what, Ne.12.37.
——, tower of, the neck compared to, Ca.4.4.
Day, division of into hours by the Jews, Mat.20.9.
——, extreme heat of, in the East, Je.36.30.
——, let it perish, import of, Job 3.3
Days, fortunate and unfortunate ones marked in the calendar, Job 3.3.
Days, full of, illustration of the expression, 2Ch.24,15.
Daysman, meaning of the word, Job 9.33.
Deacon, import of the word, Phi.1.1.
Dead men, the gods of the heathen such, Ps.106.28.
Deal, meaning of the word, Ex.29.40.
Death, the pestilence so called, Je.15.2.
——, a step between one and, illustration of the phrase, 1Sa.20.3.
Death, shadow of, illustration of, Job 10.22.
——, to see, meaning of, Lu.2.26.
Debir, situation of, Jos.10.38.
Decapolis, account of, Mat.4.25.
Dedan, situation of, Eze.27.15.
Dedications among the heathen, Nu.7.35,51,84.
Deep, what, Lu.8.31.
Degrees, song of, what, Ps.122.tit.
Deluge, duration of, Ge.8.14.
——, truth of, established, Ge.7.19,23.
Demoniacal possession, reality of, Mat.12 43.
———————————-Ma.5.2 ; 9.18,25.Lu.8.33.
Derbe, situation of, Ac.14.6.
Desert of the sea, a periphrasis for Babylon, Is.21.1.
Desire of all nations, the Messiah so called, Hag.2.6.
Destruction, city of, where situated, Is.19.18.
Deuel and Reuel, the same person, Nu.1.14.
Devils, import of the word rendered, Le.17.7.
——— really possessed persons, Mat.9.33.
Dew, definition of, Pr.3.20.
——, genial influence of, Ps.72 6.
—— an emblem of a numerous army, 2Sa.17.12.
Dial of Ahaz, probable form of, Is.38.8.
Diamond, description of, Ex.39.11.
———, really the import of word so rendered, Je.17.1.
Diana of Ephesus, some account of, Ac.19.28.
Diblath, situation of, Eze.6.14.
Dibon, now Diban, where situated, Nu.32.34.
———————————, Jos.13.17
Didrachma, value of, Mat.17.24.
Dimon and Dibon the same, Is.15.9.
Dinah, meaning of the name, Ge.30.21.
Dipping the bread in the dish common in the East, Ru.2.14.
Distaff, mode of using, Pr.31.19.
Divination, import of the term, De.18.10.
Divorce, women had the power of, among the Jews, Ma.10.12.
Divorces, excess of, among the Jews, Mat.5.31.

ELE

Dizahab, a place near Moab, De.1 1.
Dodai and Dodo the same, 1Ch.11.12.
Dogs, the heathen so called by the Jews, Mat.15.26
———, bodies thrown to, in the East, Ps 79.3.
Dog's head, a proverbial expression illustrated, 2Sa.3.8.
Dominion, to exercise, meaning of word so rendered, Mat.20.25
Door, import of word so rendered, Ge.19.6.
——, used metaphorically for entrance, occasion, or opportunity, Col.4.3.
Dor, now Tortura, situation of, Jos.17.11
Dorcas, meaning of, Ac.9.36
Dothan, situation of, 2Ki.6.13
Dove, account of, Le.14.22.
———, rapidity of, Ps.55.6.
Doves, the eye compared to, Ca.5.12.
——'s dung, as an article of food, what, 2Ki.6.25.
Drachma, value of, Lu.15.8.
Dragons, why represented as snuffing in the wind, Je.14.6.
Dragons used for the Egyptian people, Ps.74.13.
Dram, or daric, value of, Ne.7.70.
Draught house, making a place one, an Eastern mode of degradation, 2Ki.10.27
Drink, strong, account of, Le.10.9.
Drinking, various modes of, in the East, Ju.7.5.
Dromedaries, young, meaning of word thus rendered, Es.8.10.
Drunken, but not with wine, illustration of the expression, Is.51.21.
Dulcimer, import of word so rendered, Da.3.15.
Dumah, probable situation of, Is.21.11.
Dumb, word so rendered properly means silent, Lu.1.20.
Dumb person really possessed with a devil, Mat.9.33.
Dung port, situation of, Ne.2.13.
Dust, laying of, customary in the East, before persons of distinction, 2Sa.16.13.
Dust, casting of, in the air, import of the action, 1Sa.16.23.
Dwelling deep, meaning of, Je.49.8.

EAGLE, description of, Le.11.13.
———, longevity and vigour of, Ps 103.5.
———, its quick sight, Job 39.29.
———, rapidity of, La.4.19.
———, an emblem of Nebuchadnezzar, Eze.17.3.
———, an emblem of Pharaoh-hophra, Eze.17.7.
Eagles, emblems of the Roman armies, Lu.17.37.
Ear, why said to be planted, Ps 94.9.
——, bored with an awl, import of, Ex.21.6.
Earing, meaning of the word, Ge.45.6.
Earnest, import of, 2Co.1.22.
Ear-ring, word so rendered, properly a nose-ring, and still worn in the East, Ge.24.22.
Ear-rings, meaning of word rendered, Is.3.20.
———, immense spoils of, Ju.8.26.
Earth, originally in a fluid state, 2Pe.3.5.
——, foundations of, what, Pr.8.29.
——, how said to be visited by God, Ps.65.9.
—— used for the land of Judea, Ps.37.9.
Earthen vessels given as presents in the East, 2Sa.17.28.
East country, what, Ge 25.6.Ge.29.1.
—— wind, or Simoom, account of, Ge 41 23.
Easter, properly the Passover, Ac.12.4.
Eastern dress, description of, Ju.14.12.
Eat, to, a book, import of, Eze.3.1.
Eating bread always at a royal table, meaning of, 2Sa.9.10,13.
Ebal, mount, description of, De.11.29.
Ebed-melech, excellent character of, Je 38.12.
Ebiasaph and Asaph the same, 1Ch.26.1.
Ebronah, situation of, Nu.33.34
Ecbatana, description of, Ezr.6.2.
Eden, import of the word, Ge.2.10
———, garden of, where situated, Ge.2.10.
———, country of, situation of, Is.37.12.
———, or Beth-eden, where situated Am.1.5.
Edom, import of the name, Ge.25.30
———, land of, where situated, Ge.32.3.
———, ancient fertility of, Ge.27.39
———, mountainous and rocky, Ob.3.
———, subjugation of by the Israelites, Eze.25.14.
———, total desolation of, Eze.35.9.
———, a name applied to the enemies of the church, Is.63.3.
Edrei, now Draa, situation of, De.3.1.
Eglah, probably the same as Michal, 1Ch.3.3.
Eglaim, situation of, Is.15.8.
Egypt, description of, Is.18.2.
———, fertility of, Ge.41.31.
———, the anarchy which prevailed in it after the death of Tirhakah, foretold, Is.19.3.
Egypt, its conquest by Nebuchadnezzar, the Persian kings, and Alexander the Great, foretold, Is.19.4.
Egypt, conquest of, by Nebuchadnezzar, foretold, Je.46.13.
Egypt, the propagation of the knowledge of the true God in, foretold, Is.19.18.
Egypt, Ethiopia, and Seba, given as a ransom for the Jews, Is.43.3
Egypt the basest of kingdoms, according to the prediction, Eze.29.15.
Egypt, idols of, Eze.8.10.
———, river of, what, Ge.15.18.
———, put for bondage, Ho.9.3.
Egyptian impostor, a seditious one, some account of, Ac.21.38.
Egyptians, dispersion of, by Nebuchadnezzar, Eze.30.21.
Egyptians, captivity of, by Nebuchadnezzar, and probable restoration by Cyrus, Eze.29.12.
Ekron, situation of, Jos.19.43.
Elah, valley of, situation and description of, 1Sa.17.19.
Elam, description of, Je.49.34.
Elamites celebrated as archers, Je.49.35.
Elath, Eloth, or Æla, account of, 2Ki.14.22.
Elealeh, now El-Aal, situation of, Nu.32.37

FEE

El-beth-el, meaning of the word, Ge.35.7.
Elect Lady, who, 2Jn.1.
Election put for the elect, Ro.11.5.
El-elohe-Israel, meaning of, Ge.33.20.
Elephantiasis, account of, Job 2.7.
Eliada, probably written Beeliada by mistake, 1Ch.14.7.
Eliezer, import of the name, Ex.18 4.
Elihu and Eliab, the same, 1Ch.27.18.
Elijah really fed by ravens, 1Ki.17 5.
Elim, situation of, Ex 15.27.
Eliphalet and Elipheiet, the same, 1Ch 14 7.
Elishah, probably Elis, Ezc.27.7.
Elishama, probably a mistake for Elishua, 1Ch.14.5.
Ellasar, probably the same as Telassar, Is.37 12.
Embalming, description of, Ge 50.1,3.
Emerald, description of, Ex 28 18.
Emmaus, situation of, Lu.24.13.
Enchanter, import of the term, De.18.10.
Enchantments, meaning of word rendered, Ex.7.11.
Endor, description of, 1Sa.28.7.
Engedi, situation of, Jos 15.62.
Engines to shoot arrows and stones, what, 2Ch 26.15.
En-hakkore, meaning of, Ju.15.19.
Enjoy, power to, the gift of God, Ec.2.25 ; 6.2.
En-mishpat, or Kedesh, situation of, Ge.14.7.
En-Rimmon of Judah, situation of, Ne.11.29.
En-rogel, situation of, Jos.15.7.
En-shemesh, import of, Jos.18.17.
————, situation of, Jos.15.7.
Ephah, capacity of, Eze.45.11.
Ephes-dammim and Pas-dammim, the same, 1Ch.11.13.
Ephesus, description of, Ac.19.1.
Ephod, description of, Ex.28.4 Le 8.7.
Ephraim, import of the name, Ge.41.52.
————, humanity and excellent conduct of the heads of, 2Ch.28 9.
Ephraim, situation of, Jn.11 54.
————, wood of, where situated, 2Sa.18 6.
————, situation of, 2Ch 13.19.
Epicureans, some account of, Ac.17.18.
Esar-haddon, account of, Is.37.38.
Esau, import of the word, Ge.25.25.
——, in temporal condition, equal to his brother, Ge.27.39.
Esek, meaning of, Ge.26.20.
Eshcol, meaning of the name, Nu.13 24.
Eshtaol, situation of, Jos.15.33.
Eshtemoa, situation of, Jos.21.14.
Etam, situation of, 1Ch.4.32.
Etham, situation of, Nu.33.6.
——, wilderness of, where situated, Nu.33.8.
Ethan, probably the same as Jeduthun, 1Ch.25.1.
Ether or Etham, situation of, 1Ch.4.32.
Ethiopia, or Cush, three countries so called, Is.37.9.
Ethiopia, or Cush, the country of the Cussæi, Ge.2.13.
Ethiopia, proper, description of, Is.37 9.
Eunuch, signification of, Ge 37.36.
Eunuchs, black, bad character of, in the East, Je.38.12.
Euroclydon, wind, what, Ac.27 14.
Evenings, two, among the Hebrews, Ex.12.6.
Evil-merodach, account of, 1Ki.25.27.
Execrations upon the rebuilders of cities, Jos.6.26.
Executioner, import of word so rendered, Ma.6.27.
Exodus, a modern one, Nu.1.46.
Expedient, import of word so rendered, 1Co.6 12.
Ezer and Ezar, the same in the original, 2Ch.1.38.
Ezion-gaber, situation of, Nu.33.35.
Ezra, amiable spirit of, Ezr.7.27.
—— and Nehemiah, difference between, in the numbers of the captives who returned, Ezr.2.64.
Eye, apple of, use and wonderful mechanism of, Pr.7.1.
Eye, daughter of, what, Ln.2.18.
Eye-lids, effect of painting of, Pr.6.25.
Eyes, painting of, illustration of, 2Ki.9.30.
————————, Eze.23.40
Eyes, having, and seeing not, ears and hearing not, illustration of, Je.5.21.
Eyes, right, why thrust out, 1Sa.11.2.

FACE, covering of, a token of reverence, 1Ki.19.13.
———— sign of condemnation, Es.7 8.
Faces, differences of, wonderful, Ge.27.22.
Fair havens, situation of, Ac.27 8.
Faith, as a grain of mustard seed, what, Mat.17.20.
——, growing of, illustrated, 2Th.1.3.
Fallow-deer, word so rendered probably denotes the buffalo, 1Ki.4 23.
Familiar spirit, one who has, import of, 1Sa.28.7.
Families carried to war in the East, 2Sa.15.22.
Family, a large, considered a blessing, Ge.24.60.
Famous, used for notorious, Eze.23.10.
Farthing, meaning of the word, Ma.12.42.
————, value of word so rendered, Mat.10.29.
Fat prohibited, Le.3.17 ; 7.23.26.
——, heart to be, illustration of the expression, Ps.119.70.
Father, the term frequently used to denote an ancestor, Da.5.12.
Father, applied to the founder or prince of a city or people, 2Ch.2.42.
Father sometimes reckoned with his sons, 1Ch.3.22 ; 7.3.
Father and mother, to be without, meaning of, He.7.3.
Fathers, their authority over their children, Ju.1.12.
Fear, or terror, a line strung with feathers used to frighten beasts into the pit, Is.24.17.
Feast of trumpets, design of, Le.23.24.
———— tabernacles, account of, Le.23.34.
Feathers used to denote subjects, Eze.17.3.
Feet, dressing of, customary in the East, 2Sa.19.24.
Feet, having washed, an excuse for not rising from bed, in the East, Ca.5.3.

GAT

Felix, Claudius, account of, Ac.23.24 ; 24.2.
Females employed in drawing water and collecting fuel, in the East, Jos 9.25.
Ferret, word rendered, a spotted lizard, Le.11 30.
Festus, Porcius, account of, Ac.24.27.
Field, treasures of corn ', what, Je.41.8.
Fig tree, description of, Mn.11.13.
Figs, various crops of, Is.28.4.
——, the early and winter, account of, Je.24 2.
——, poultice of, beneficial effects of, 2Ki.20.7.
Filled with a person, meaning of, Ro.15.24.
Fining pot, Jerusalem represented as, Eze.22.19.
Fingers, instances of persons having six on each hand, and six toes on each foot, 1Ch.20.6.
Fire, sacred, imitations of, Le.6.13 ; 9.24.
——, the heathen priests boasted that it had no power over them, Da.3.27.
Fire, tongue of, a fine metaphor for a flame, Is.5.24.
Fire, the word of God compared to, Je.23.29.
—— and water worshipped by the Egyptians, Ex.9.18.
Firmament, import of, Ps.19 1.
———— displays the power of God, Ps.150.1.
First-born, slaying of the, perfectly equitable, Ex.12.29.
First-born, redemption of, Nu.18.16.
First-fruits, illustration of the law of, Le.23.10.
Fish very prolific, Ge.48.16.
——, an emblem of converts, Eze.47.10.
Fishers, Apostles and preachers so termed, Eze.47.10.
Fitches, import of word so rendered, Is.28.25.
————————, Eze.4.9.
Flax, description of, Ex.9.31.
Flea, metaphor taken from one, 1Sa.26.20.
Flesh of peace-offerings not to be left, Le.7.15.
Flies, swarms of, import of word rendered, Ex.8.21.
Flies have often proved plagues, Ex.8.24.
——, dead, how they change the odour of ointments, Ec.10.1.
Flock, great care requisite in driving, Is.40.11.
Flute, meaning of word so rendered, Da.3.5.
Fly, dog, description of, Ps.105.31.
Folly, a little tarnishes the reputation, Ec.10.1.
Food, the providing of, for various animals, a proof of the wisdom, providence, and goodness of God, Ps.135.25.
Food of heathens first offered to their idols, Da.1.8.
Fool, how said to eat his own flesh, Ec.4.5.
Foot, irrigation of land by, De.11.10.
Foreheads, writings worn on, Ex.13.9.
Forgetfulness, land of, what, Ps.88.12.
Forswearing, the execrable morality of the Jews on this point, Mat.5.33.
Fountain, the left ventricle of the heart so called, Ec.12.6.
Fountains of the great deep, what, Ge.7.11.
————, stopping up of, when an enemy invades a land, a practice in the East, 2Ch.32.4.
Fowl, meaning of the word, Ge.1.20.
——, of every wing, a metaphor for all the inhabitants of the earth, Eze.17.23.
Foxes, or rather jackals, account of, Ju.15.4.
Foxes, lying prophets compared to, Eze.13.4.
Fray, signification of, Zec.1.21.
Friend, how the countenance of one is sharpened by another, Pr.27.17.
Friend, why one who blesseth with a loud voice is to be suspected, Pr.27.14.
Friend, properly a companion, Mat.26.50.
Fringes, form and use of, Nu.15.38.
Frog, import of the word, Ex.8.2.
Frogs have sometimes proved great plagues, Ex.8.6.
Fruit, the term used for children, Eze.17.9.
——, an emblem of converts, Eze.17.23.
Frying pan, description of, Le.2.7.
Fruit trees, to be spared in a siege, De.20.19.
Funeral banquets usual in the East, Je.16.7.
Furbish, origin and import of, Je.46.4.
Furniture, camel's, description of, Ge.31.34.

GABA, or Geba, where situated, Jos.18.24.
Gad, import of the name, Ge.30.11.
——, inheritance of the tribe of, Nu.34.15.
——, the name of an idol, probably means good fortune, Is.65.11.
Gadara, situation and description of, Mat.8.28.
Galatia, description of, Ac.16.6.
Galbanum, description of, Ex.30.34.
Galeed, import of the name, Ge.31.47.
Galileans, the peculiar dialect of, Ma.14.70.
————, seditious character of, Lu.13.1.
Galilee, description of, Ma.1.39.
————, Jewish traditions that the Messiah should be first manifested there, Lu.4.44.
Gall, meaning of word so rendered, Pr.69.21.
Gallim, situation of, 1Sa.25.44.
Gallio, some account of, Ac.18.12.
Games, allusions to the Isthmian and Olympic, 2Co.10.13.
Gardens, mode of irrigating, Pr 21.1.
Garments, spreading of, before or under persons, illustration of, 2Ki.9.13.
Gate, sitting in, an ancient Eastern custom, 2Sa.19.8.
Gate, sitting in, illustration of, Es.3.2.
——, exalting of, in the East, danger of, Pr.17.19.
——, east, or sun, where situated, Je.19.6.
——— of the fountain, where situated, Ne.2.14.
——— of the valley, situation of, Ne.2.15.
——, horse, situation of, 2Ch.23.15.
Gates, the place for the transaction of public business, Ge.23.10.
Gates, courts of judicature held in, De.16.18.
——, used as markets in the East, 2Ki.7.1.
——, not open in the East after sunset nor before sunrise, Ne.7.3.
Gates of the tents of the Lord, meaning of, 2Ch.31.2.

GRA

Gath, situation of, 1Sa.21.10.
Gath-rimmon, situation of, Jos.21.24.
Gaulonitis, now Djolan, account of, De.4.43.
Gaza, situation and account of, Ju.16.1.
——— which is desert, meaning of Ac.8.26.
Geba, situation of, Is.10.25.
Gebal, a part of Seir, account of, Ps.83.7.
———, or Byblos, situation and description of, Jos.13.5.
Gedor, situation of, 1Ch.4.18.
Gelilioth, meaning and situation of, Jos.18.17.
Genealogies, difference in, probably occasioned by the same person having different names, 1Ch.4.24.
Generations, import of the word, Ge.37.2
———, a usual mode of reckoning, Ge.15.16.
Gennesaret, land of, description of, Mat.14.34.
Gennesaret, lake of, description of, Jos.12.2.
Geography of the Scriptures, difficulties attending, Jos.15.1 ; 17.7.
Gerar, where situated, Ge.20.1.
Gergesenes, who, Mat.8.28.
Gerizim, mount, description of, De.11.29.
Gershom, meaning of the name, Ex.2.22 ; 18.3.
——— and Gershon the same, 1Ch.23.6.
Geshur of Syria, situation of, 2Sa.13.38.
Gethsemane, description of, Mat.26.36.
Gezer, where situated, Jos.10.33 ; 12.12.
Gezrites, or Gerzites, habitation of, 1Sa.27.8.
Giants, account of some, 1Sa.17.4.
———, Argob, the land of, tradition respecting, De.3.13.
Gibbar and Gibeon the same, Ne.7.25.
Gibbethon, situation of, Jos.21.23.
Gibea in the tribe of Judah, 1Ch.2.49.
Gibeah, situation of, Ju.19.12.
——— of Saul, situation of, Is.10.28.
Gibeon, situation of, Jos.10.2.
Giblites, the inhabitants of Gebal or Byblos, Jos.13.5.
Gideon, known by the name of Jerubbaal, or Jerombalus, among heathen writers, Ju.7.1.
Gier-eagle, a species of vulture, De.14.17.
Gifts or offerings, include sacrifices, He.8.4.
Gihon, the Araxes, now Arass, Ge.2.13.
———, fountain of, situation and description of, 1Ki.1.45.
Gilboa, mount, situation of, 1Sa.31.1.
Gilead, the same as Galeed, Ge.31.48.
Gilgal, why so called, Ge.31.46.
———, situation of, Jos.4.19.
———, house of, situation of, Ne 12.29.
Ginnetho a mistake for Ginnethon, Ne.12.4.
Girdle, description of, Ex.39.29.
———, curious, description of, Ex.29.5.
———, use of, Ps.18.32.
Girgashites dwelt beyond Jordan, De.7.1.
Gittah-hepher, situation of, Jos.19.13.
Gittith, meaning of, Ps.8.title.
Glass, invention of, De.33.19.
Gleam, import of the term, Ru.2.15.
Gleaning, right of, not recognised by law, Ru.2.15.
Glede, import of the word so rendered, De.14 13.
Glory, the word used for wealth, Ge.31.1.
Goad, description of, Ju 3.31.
Goat, wild, account of, De.14.5 Ps.104.18.
———, wild, description of the female, Pr.5.19.
Goats, hair of, very fine in the East, Ge.27.16.
————, description of, Ex.26.7.
God, import of the word Elohim so rendered, De.5.9. De.6.4.
God, none like him, Ps.71.19.
——, Jesus Christ so called, 2Pe.1.1.
——, frequently said to do what he only permits, Ez.14.9.
God, supposed danger from the appearance of, Ex.33.20. Ju.18.22.
God, appearance of, gave rise to the mythological representations of the Greeks and Romans, Ge.18.21.
God, spoken of in the language of men, Ge.18.22.
——, how said to minister seed to the sower, 2Co.9.10.
God, as an antecedent, frequently understood, Ps.73.15.
God, the term, frequently used to denote the superlative, 2Sa.9.8.
God, we ought to obey him, rather than men, illustrated, Ac.5.29.
God forbid, this phrase not justified by the original, Ro.3.31.
God, daughter of a strange, what, Mat.2.11.
Gods, monuments of deliverance offered to, 1Sa.6.5.
Gods, heathen, degrading notions respecting, 1Ki.18.27.
Gods, each district supposed to have a tutelary one, 1Ki.20 23.
Gog and Magog, probable meaning of the prophecy respecting, Ez.38.16.&c.—XXXIX
Gog and Magog mentioned by St. John different from those mentioned by Ezekiel, Re.20.8.
Golan, where situated, De.4.43.
Gold-dust put in the hair by the Jews, 2Sa.14.27
Golden bowl, the brain so called, Ec.12.6.
Golden candlestick, imitations of, Ex.37.17.
Goliath, extraordinary size of, 1Sa.17.4
———, traditions respecting, 1Sa.17 50.
Goldsmiths, import of word so rendered, Ne.3.32.
Goodly person, import of, Ge 39.6.
Goshen, country of, where situated, Ge.45.10
———, city of, situation of, Ge.46.28.
——— in Judah, where situated, Jos.10.41.
Go to, import of the phrase, Ge.11.7.
Gourd, probable meaning of the word so rendered, Jon.4.6.
Gourds, wild, or colocynth, description of, 2Ki.4.39.
Governor, import of the word, Ge.42.6. Ju.3.3.
Gozan, river, where situated, 2Ki.18.11.
Grace, a charitable contribution so called, 2Co.8.19
Grass, an emblem of the transitory condition of man. Ps 103 15.

HEA

Grass upon the house-tops, an emblem of the evanescent condition of the wicked, Ps.129.6.
Grass, mown, rather pastured, Ps.72.6
Grave, the common receptacle of all, Job 3.19.
Grave-clothes, what, Jn 11.44.
Grecian or Macedonian, empire, represented by the belly and thighs of brass, Da.2.39.
Grecian empire, represented by a leopard with four wings and four heads, Da.7.6.
Grecian empire, represented by a he-goat, Da.8.5.
———, division of into four kingdoms predicted, Da.8.22.
Greece, description of, Ac.20.2.
Grinders, teeth so called, Ec.12.3.
Grizzled, import of the word, Ge.31.10.
Grove, import of word so rendered, Ge.21.33.
———, word so rendered probably the same as Ashtaroth, 1Ki.18.19.
Groves, idolatrous worship in, De.12.2; 16.22.

HABERGEON, meaning of the word, Ne.4.16.
Habor, situation of, 2Ki.18.11.
Hachilah, situation of, 1Sa.23.19.
Hadadezer, probably a mistake for Hadarezer, 1Ch.18.3.
Hadar and Hadad, the same person, 1Ch.1.50.
Hadid, or Adida, situation of, Ez.2.33.
Hadrach, probably Cœle-Syria, Zec.9.1.
Hagaba and Hagabah, the same, Ez.2.45.
Hagarites, where they inhabited, 1Ch 5.19.
Hai, the same as Ai, Ge.13.3.
Hail, the formation of, Ps.147.17.
Hair, long, why a glory to a woman, 1Co.11.15.
——, long, why a shame to a man, 1Co.11.14.
——, the weight of Absalom's, 2Sa.14.27.
—— of the Nazarite dedicated to God, Nu.6.7,18.
——, employed as an expressive emblem, Eze.5.1.
Hairy man, meaning of the expression, 2Ki.1.8.
Halah, situation of, 2Ki 18.11.
Hallel, great, what, Ps.113.1.
Ham, signification of, Ge.10.6.
——, descendants of, Ge.10.6.
——, land of, Egypt so called, Ps.106.22.
Hamath, now Hamah, description of, 2Ki.18.34.
Hammer, the word of God compared to, Je.23.29.
Hammoth, situation of, Jos.21.32.
Hamonah, signification of, Eze.39.16.
Hamon-Gog, import of, Eze.39.11.
Hamor, signification of, Ge.34.13.
Hand, lifting up the, a mode of swearing, Ex.6.8.
——, plucking of, from the bosom illustrated, Ps.74.11.
Hand, the soul or life to be in, illustrated, Ps.119.109.
Hand or arm placed on a pillar as a trophy, 1Sa.15.12.
Hands, stretching out of, in prayer, Le.9.22.
———————, Ps.77.2.
Hands, clapping of, curious mode of, 2Ki.11.12.
——, to strike, illustration of, Pr.6.1.
——, giving or joining the, a pledge of friendship and fidelity, 2Ki.10.15. Pr.11.21.
Hands, marks made on, by the Orientals, Ex.13.9.
Hanes, probable situation of, Is.30.4.
Hang upon one when speaking, illustration of, Lu.19.48.
Hanging of the door of the tabernacle, description of, Ex.26.36.
Haphraim, situation of, Jos.19.19.
Haran, or Charræ in Mesopotamia, situation of, Ge.11.32. Is.37.12.
Harem, how supplied, Es.2.3.
——, inviolability of, 1Sa.19.16.
Harhas, probably written Hasrah by mistake, 2Ch.34.22.
Harlot, real import of, Ge.38.21.
——, word rendered, probably denotes a tavern-keeper, Ju.2.1; 11.1. 1Ki.3.16.
Harness, import of the word, 1Ki.20.11.
——, properly a coat of mail, 2Ch.18.33.
Harnessed, import of word rendered, Ex.13.18.
Harodite and Hararite, the same, 1Ch.11.27.
Harp, ancient, description of, 1Ch.13.8.
——, word so rendered the guitar, Da.3.15.
Hart, import of the word so rendered, 1Ki.4.23.
—— ensnared, an Egyptian emblem of a man overthrown by flattery, Pr.7.22.
Harvests, two, in Egypt, Ex.9.31.
Hasenuah and Pedaiah, the same, Ne.11.7.
Hashupha and Hasupha, the same, Ezr.2.43.
Hath not, to take from him who, meaning of the expression, Lu.19.26.
Havilah, situation of, 1Sa.15.7.
Hawk, rapidity of its flight, Job 39.26.
——, night, probably the oriental owl, De.14.15.
Hay, word so rendered denotes herbage, Pr.27.25.
Hazar-gaddah, situation of, Jos.15.27.
Hazel, word so rendered properly the almond, Ge.30.37.
Hazeroth, situation of, Nu.12.16.
——, a place near Moab, De.1.1.
Hazezon-tamar, situation of, Ge.14.7.
Hazor, situation of, Jos.15.23,25. Je.49.33.
——, in Naphtali, situation of, 1Ki.9.15.
He, sometimes equivalent to the true and eternal God, Je.14.22.
He that cometh, a title of the Messiah, Mat.11.3.
Head, why a man dishonoureth it, by having it covered, 1Co.11.4.
Head, why a woman dishonoureth it, by having it uncovered, 1Co.11.5.
Head, shaven, a punishment of adultery, 1Co.11.5.
——, to lift up, meaning of, Je.52.31.
Heads of enemies brought to the conqueror, Ju.7.25.
Heads, barbarous mode of making heaps, 2Ki.10.8.
Health, proper sense of word so rendered, Ge.33.6.
Heaps of stones, description of, Ge.31.46.
Heart, perfect, meaning of, 1Ch.12.38.
——, double, meaning of, 1Ch.12.38.
Hearth, rather a brazier Je.36.22.
Heaven, corn of, what, Ps.78.24.

HYS

Heaven, used metaphorically for an empire, Eze.32.7.
Heaven of heavens, import of, De.10.14. 2Ch.6.18.
——————, Ps.136.5.
Heavens made by the wisdom of God, ———, God's spreading them out as a curtain, illustrated, Is.40.22.
Heavens, He who rideth upon, illustration of the expression, Ps.68.33.
Hebrew, Abram so called from Eber, Ge.14.13.
———, simplicity and force of, Ge.26.13.
Hebron, description of, Jos.10.3. Lu.1.39.
Heifer, red, institution of, Nu.19.2.
Helbon, or Chalybon, now Aleppo, description of, Eze.27.18.
Heleb, Heled, and Heldai, the same, 1Ch.11.30.
Helez, why called the Paltite and Pelonite, 1Ch.27.10.
Hell, meaning of the word, Ps.16.10. Mat.5.30.
Heman the Ezrahite, who, Ps.88.title.
—— and Homan, the same person, 1Ch.1.39.
Hemdan and Amran, the same person, 1Ch.1.41.
Hermon, mount, description of, De.3.9.
———, dew of, account of, Ps.133.3.
Herod Antipas, account of, Mat.14.1.
———, bad character of, Lu.13.32.
Herod, dreadful death of, confirmed by Josephus, Ac.12.21.
Herodias, account of, Mat.14.1,3.
Herodias's daughter, account of, Mat.14.11.
Heshbon, now Heshban, situation of, Nu.21.26.
———, the eyes compared to the fish-pool of, Ca.7.4.
Hierapolis, account of, Col.4.13.
Hiezaion, meaning of, Ps.9.16.
High Priest, consecration of, among the Romans, Le.8.24.
Hinnom, valley of, where situated, Jos.15.8.
———————, described, Je.19.6.
Hiram and Huram, the same, 2Ch.4.16.
Hittites, where they dwelt, De.7.1.
Hivites, their country, De.7.1.
Hoar-frost, the formation of, Ps.147.16.
Hodaviah, Hodevah, and Judah, the same, Ezr.3.9.
Hodaviah and Joed, the same, Ne.11.7.
Holon and Hilen, the same, 1Ch.6.58.
Holy of Holies, not always accessible, Le.16.2.
—— Land, extent and boundaries of, as described by Ezekiel, Eze.47.17.
Holy Land, division of among the tribes, as described by the prophet, Eze.48.4.
Holy City, vast dimensions of, Eze.48.30.
Homer, capacity of, Le 27.16. Eze.45.11.
Honey, wild, abundance of in Judea, 1Sa.14.25.
——, date, account of, Ge.43.11. 2Ch.31.5.
Honouring, singular mode of, Es.6.11.
Hook usually put in the nose of beasts in the East, 2Ki.19.28.
Hooks of the pillars of the tabernacle, what, Ex.26.32.
Hor, mount, situation of, Nu.20.22.
Horeb, situation and description of, Ex.19.2.
——, rock of, description of, Ex.17.6.
Horn, the son of oil, meaning of, Is.5.1.
———, defiling of, in the dust, Job 16.15.
Horns used to ancient altars, Ex.38.2.
—— of the altar, use of, Ex.27.2.
—— worn in the East, 2Ch.18.10.
———— by the Abyssinian kings, Ps.75.5.
——, the enemies of the Jews so represented, Zec.1.18.
Hornet, description of, Ex.23.28.
Horonaim, situation of, Je.48.4.
Horse, why requiring a whip, Pr.26.3.
—— in a chariot, a lady compared to, Ca.1.9.
——, red, the emblem of war, Zec.6.1.
———, an emblem of the Divine judgments on the enemies of Christianity, Re.6.4.
Horse, black, the emblem of famine and pestilence, Zec.6,1. Re.6.5.
Horse, white, the emblem of removal of these judgments, Zec.6.1.
Horse, white, an emblem of the triumphs of Christianity, Re.6.2.
Horse, grizzled, the emblem of a mingled dispensation, Zec.6.1.
Horses, why not to be multiplied, De.17.16.
———————, 2Ch.9.28.
—— unshod in the East, Ju.5.22.
——, peculiar kind used by the kings of Persia, Es 6.8.
Horses dedicated to the sun, 2Ki.23.11.
——, company of, meaning of word rendered, Ca.2.9.
Hospitality, eastern and primitive, Ge.18.1.
———, high notions respecting, in the East, Ju.19.24.
House of God, the tabernacle so called, Mat.12.4.
——, keepers of, the hands so called, Ec.12.3.
Houses, description of, in the East, Ps.128.3.
——, redemption of, Le.25.29.
House-tops used in the East for the purpose of announcing any thing, Lu.12.3.
House-tops, used for sleeping, 1Sa.9.26.
———— resorted to in the East in the event of an alarm, &c. Is.22.1.
House-tops have stairs on the outside, and form continued terraces in walled towns, Lu.17.31.
Humility, advantages of, Pr.25.7. Lu.14.8.
Huppim, Hupham, and Huram, the same, 1Ch.8.5.
Hyena, description of, Je.12.9.
Hyke, or plaid, of the Arabs, description and use of, De.24.13.
Hymns, import of, Ep.5.19.
Hyperbaton, instance of, De.32.42.
Hyperbole, strong eastern one, Jn.21.25.
Hyperbolical expressions used in the East, instances of, 2Sa.14.17; 17.11.
Hyssop, description of, Ex.12.22.
—— a species with a reedy stalk Jn.19.29.

JER

I AM, import of, Ex.3.15.
——, a title claimed by Jesus, Jn.8.58.
Ibleam, called Bileam, by transposition of letters, 1Ch.6.70.
Iconium, situation of, Ac.13.51.
Idle word, meaning of, Mat.12.36
Idolatry, objects of Egyptian, De.4.17.
——— retained among the Israelites Jos 24.14.
———, folly of, exhibited, Is.41.12.
Idols, vanity of, illustrated, Ps.115.4.
——, the memory of some, totally perished, Is.65.11.
Idols, contrast between them and God, Ps.115.13.
Ignorance, law relative to sins of, Nu.15.22.
Ije-abarim, meaning of, Nu.21.11; 33.44.
Ijon, situation of, 1Ki.15.20.
Ilex, or holly-oak, description of, Is.1.29.
Illyricum, description of, Ro.15.19.
Imagination, extensive import of the word, Ge.6.5.
India, description of, Es 8.9.
Iniquity, used for the punishment of it, Job 21.19.
———, they who plough, also reap it, illustration of, Job 4.8.
Ink, word rendered, proved to have this meaning, Je.36.18.
Inkhorn, shown to be a proper rendering of the word, and the mode of wearing it illustrated, Eze.9.2.
Inn, description of an eastern, Ge.42.27.
Interest, exorbitant rate of, Ne 5.11.
Interpreter, import of word rendered, Ge.42.23.
Ir-shemesh, situation of, Jos.19.41.
Iron, northern, what, Je.15.12.
Isaac, import of the name, Ge.17.19.
Iscah, probably the same as Sarai, Ge.11.29.
Ishi, import of the name, Ho.2.16.
Ishmael, import of the name, Ge.16.11.
———, prophecies concerning the descendants of, verified, Ge.16.12.
Israel, chief of the fathers of, who, 2Ch.23.2.
———, the term, applied in a general way to Judah, 2Ch.23.2; 28.27
Israel, wonderful continuance of, as a nation, while the very names of their enemies have become extinct, Je.31.36.
Israelites, preserved a distinct people, Nu.23.9.
———, order of their march, Nu.10.14.
———, families of, Nu.26.25.
Israelitish tribes, numbers of, Nu.26.51.
Issachar, meaning of the name, Ge.30.18.
Isthmian games, referred to by St. Paul, 1Co.9.24.
Instructed, import of word so rendered, Phi.4.12.
Isui and Ishui, the same in the original, 1Ch.7.30.
Italian band, account of, Ac.10.1.
Italy, account of, Ac.27.1.
Ithra and Jether, the same, 1Ch.2.17.
Ittai the same as Ithai, 1Ch.11.31.
Iturea, account of, Lu.3.1.
Ivory houses, what, 1Ki.22.39.
Izeharites and Izharites, same in the original, 1Ch.24 22.

JAALAH and Jaala, the same, Ne.7.58.
Jabbok, now the Zerka, situation of, Ge.33.22.
Jabesh-gilead, situation of, Ju.21.8.
Jabneh, or Jamnia, description of, 2Ch.26.6.
Jachin, meaning of, 1Ki.7.21.
Jacinth, description of, Re.21.20.
Jacob's well, description of, Jn.4.6.
Jaddua, account of, Ne.12.11.
Jah, signification of, Ps.68.4.
Jahaz, or Jahaza, situation of, Jos.13.18.
Janohah, situation of, Jos.16.6.
Japheth, enlargement of the boundaries of, Ge.9.27.
Japhia, situation of, Jos.19.12.
Jarmuth, situation of, Jos.12.11.
———, probably the same as Remeth and Ramoth, Jos.21.29.
Jasher, book of, what, 2Sa.1.18.
Jashobeam, probably called by a mistake Adino the Ezrite, 2Sa.23.8.
Jasper, description of, Ex.39.13.
Jattir, situation of, Jos.21.14.
Javan, denotes the Grecians, Is.66.19.
Javelin, or spear, an emblem of royal authority, 1Sa.18.10.
Jazer, situation of, Jos.13.25.
Jealousy, spirit of, Nu.5.14.
———, trial of, Nu.5.15,.14.
Jebusi, where situated, Jos.18.16.
Jebusites inhabited about Jerusalem, De.7.1.
Jeconiah, why called Assir, 1Ch.3.17.
Jedidiah, signification of, 2Sa.12.25.
Jeduthun, the same as Ethan, 1Ch.23.1. Ps.39.title.
Jegar-sahadutha, meaning of, Ge.31.47.
Jehiel and Jehieli, the same, 1Ch.26.22.
Jehoadah and Jorah, the same, 1Ch.9.42.
Jehoahaz, why called Shallum, 1Ch.3.15.
Jehoash, how called Joash, 2Ch.24.1.
Jehoiarib and Jojarib, the same, Ne.11.10.
Jehoram associated with his father, 2Ch.21.3.
Jehoshaphat, meaning of the name, Joel 3.12.
———, pious conduct of, 2Ch.20.23
———, valley of, where situated, Joel 3.12.
Jehozadak and Josedech, the same in the original, Hag.1.1.
JEHOVAH, meaning of, Ex.3.15.
Jehovah-nissi, import of, Ex.17.15.
Jemsheed, cup of, traditions respecting, Ge.44.5.
Jerahmeelites, who, and where they inhabited, 1Sa.30.19.
Jeremiah, disinterested and patriotic conduct of, Je.40.6.
Jericho, road to, from Jerusalem, dangerous, Lu.10.30.
Jerijah and Jeriah, the same in the original, 1Ch.24.23
Jerubbaal, why called Jerubbesheth, Je.11 13.
Jeruel, wilderness of, where situated, 2Ch.20.
Jerusalem, description and history of, 1Ch.9.3.
———————, surrounded by mountains, Ps.125.2

KIR

Jerusalem, a fast kept by the Jews for the destruction of, by Nebuchadnezzar, Je.52.12.
Jerusalem, dedication of the wall of, Ne.12.27.
———, great population of, after the captivity, Zec.2.4.
Jerusalem, surrounded with a rampart by Titus, Lu.19.43.
Jerusalem, the destruction of, preceded by false Christs, Lu.21.8.
——— By wars and rumours of wars, Lu.21.9.
——— By nation rising against nation, Lu.21.10.
——— By earthquakes and famines, Lu.21.11.
——— By fearful sights and signs from heaven, Lu.21.11.
Jerusalem, distress from famine at the siege of, De.28.54.
Jerusalem, terrible calamities of the Jews at the destruction of, Lu.23.29.
Jerusalem, dreadful slaughter and captivity of the Jews at the destruction of, Lu.21.24.
Jerusalem, no Christian perished at, Lu.21.21.
———, utter destruction of, Lu.21.24.
Jeshaiah, probably contracted or corrupted into Isshiah, 1Ch.24.21.
Jeshanah, situation of, 2Ch.13.19.
Jeshimon, situation of, 1Sa.23.19.
Jeshua and Joshua, the same, Hag.1.1.
Jesiah and Isshiah, the same in the original, 1Ch.24.25.
Jether and Ithram the same, 1Ch.7.37.
Jetur, the father of the Itureans, Ge.25.13.
Jew, name of, a proverbial mark of contempt, De.28.37.
Jew, one inwardly, what, Ro.2.29.
Jews, a blessing to all nations, Zec.8.13.
——, various minor captivities of, Je.52.28.
——, have wholly forsaken idolatry since the Babylonian captivity, as predicted, Eze.23.27
Jews, destruction of at, and subsequent to the siege of Jerusalem, De.28.62.
Jews, numbers sold as slaves in Egypt, De.28.68.
——, their miserable dispersion, De.23.65.
Jewels, import of word so rendered, Ge.24.53.
Jezreel, signification of, Ho.1.4,11.
———, situation and account of, 1Sa.29.11.
Jimnah and Imnah, the same in the original, 1Ch.7.30.
Jogbehah, situation of, Ju.8.11.
John the Baptist, Josephus's account of his imprisonment and death, Mat.14.10.
John, probably the same as Johanan ben Zaccai, Ac.4.6.
Joiarib, a contraction of Jehoiarib, ——— thought an honour to be descended from, 1Ch.24.7.
Joined together, proper meaning of, Mat.19.6.
Jokneam, river before, what, Jos.19.11.
Joktheel, the same as Selah or Petra, which see.
Jonadab, some account of, Je.35.6.
Jonath-elim-rechokim, meaning of, Ps.56.title.
Joppa, now Yaffa, description of, Ez.3.7.
Jorah and Hariph the same, Ne.7.24.
Joram, probably a mistake for Hadoram, 1Ch.18.10.
Jordan, description of, Jos.3.1.
———, banks, width, and overflowing of, Jos.3.15.
Jordan, miraculous passage of, Jos.3.17.
Joseph, import of the name, Ge.30.24.
——, beauty of, celebrated in the East, Ge.39.6.
Josiah, amiable character of, 2Ki.22.1.
Josiah's conduct in fighting against Necho vindicated, 2Ch.35.22.
Jotbathah, where situated, Nu.33.33.
Jubilee, an account of, Le.25.11,21,52.
———, typical design of, Is.61.1.
Judah, meaning of the name, Ge.29.35.
——, perhaps a town so called, Jos.19.34.
Judas of Galilee, account of, Ac.5.37.
Judea, or Jewry, description of, Jn.7.1.
——, represented as a woman sitting on the ground, La.2.10.
Judges, Israelitish, Jos.1.10.Ju.2.16.
——, meaning of the word so rendered, Da.3.3.
Judgment, meaning of, De.4.1.
———, import of word so rendered, Mat.5.22.
Juniper, word so rendered probably denotes broom, Job 30.4 Ps.120.4.
Jupiter, some account of, Ac.14.12.
Juttah, situation of, Jos.21.16.

KADESH, or En-mishphat, situation of, Ge.14.7.
———, in the wilderness of Zin, where situated. Nu.20.1.
Kanah brook, where situated, Jos.17.9.
——— town, situation of, Jos.19.28.
Karkaa, situation of, Jos.15.3.
Kartan, probably the same as Kiriathaim, Jos.21.32.
Kedar, the father of the Cedreans, Ge.25.13.
——, or Kedarenians, account of, Ps.120.5.
——, a clan of Arabians, Is 42.11.
Kedemoth, situation of, Jos.13.18.
Kedesh in Galilee, situation of, Jos.20.7.
Keilah, situation of, 1Sa.23.1.
Kemuel, probably the father of the Kamilites, Ge.22.1.
Kenath, or Kanatha, situation of, 1Ch.2.23.
Kenites, where they inhabited, 1Sa.30.29.
Kerchief, import of the term, Eze.13.18.
Keys, ancient ones very large, and a mark of office, Is.22.22.
Kibroth-hattaavah, meaning of, Nu.33.16.
Kid, mode of dressing in the East, Ju.6.19.
——, why not to be boiled in its mother's milk, Ex 23.19.
Kidron, or Cedron, description of, 2Sa.15.23.
King, word rendered, sometimes denotes a governor or ruler, Jn.18 1.
King of Kings, a title of the Persian monarchs, Ez.7.12.
King's pool, situation of, Ne.2 14.
Kir, situation of, 2Ki 16 9.
Kir-haraseth, probably Ar, or Areopolis, 2Ki 3.25.
Kiriathaim, situation of, Ge.14.5.

LIO

Kirjathaim, situation of, Jos.13.19.
Kirjath-arim, probably Kirjath-jearim, Ne.7 29.
Kirjath-huzoth, meaning and situation of, Nu.22 39.
Kirjath-jearim, situation of, Ju.18.12.
Kishi and Kushaiah the same, 1Ch.15.17.
Kishon, river, account of, Jos.19.11.
Kison and Kishon the same in the original, Ps.83.9.
Kissing the hand towards an idol, and kissing the idol, a mode of adoration, 1Ki.19.18.
Kitron, situation of, Ju.1.30.
Kneading-troughs, description of, Ex 12.34.
Knives of stone anciently used, Jos.5.2.
Know, to, nothing to oneself, meaning of, 1Co.4.4.
Knowledge, meaning of the term, Ex.35.31.
Korah and Kore the same, 1Ch.26.19.

LABAN, a place near Moab, De.1.1.
Labours used for the produce of labour, Je.20.5.
Lachish, situation of, Jos.10.31 ; 12.11.
Ladies, eastern, often prepare cakes, pastry, &c. 2Sa 13 8.
Laish, or Dan, situation of, Ju.18.7.
Lamb, word so rendered also denotes a kid, Ex.12.3.
Lamb of God, an allusion to the morning and evening sacrifice, Jn.1.36.
Lamp of the tabernacle always burning, Ex.27.20.
Land flowing with milk and honey, illustration of, Le.20 24.
Land marks, what, and laws relative to, De.19.11.
Laodice, wife of Antiochus Theos, predictions respecting, Da.11.6.
Laodicea, description of, Col.4.13.
Lap, shaking of, illustrated, Ne.5.13.
Lapwing, import of word so rendered, De.14.18.
Lasea, situation of, Ac.27.8.
Latter days, meaning of, Joel 2.28.
Lattices, or balustrades, on the roofs of Eastern houses, account of, 2Ki.12.2.
Law, extensive meaning of the term, Ro.4.15.
——, the term, used by the Jews for the whole Scriptures, 1Co.14 21.
Law, he who offends in one point of, is guilty of all, illustrated, Ja.2.10.
Lazarus, on the raising of, Jn.11.1.
Lead anciently employed for the purpose of separating alloy from metals, Je.7.27.
Leaves, the term, used for nobles, Eze.17.9.
Lebana and Lebanah, the same, Ez.2.45.
Lebanon, mount, description of, De.3.25.
———, snow of, utility of, Je.18.14.
———, why the nose is compared to the tower of, Ca.7.4.
Lebanon used for Jerusalem, Eze.17.3.
———, the temple so called, Zec.11.1.
Lebonah, situation of, Ju.21.19.
Left-handed, import of the phrase, Ju 20.16.
Legion, number of men which composed it, Mat.26.53.
Legs, breaking those of criminals, a usual custom, Jn.19.31.
Lepers, and the unclean, reason for their expulsion from the camp of the Israelites, Nu.5.2.
Leprosy, account of, Le.13.2.
———, a species harmless, Le.13.13.
———, a species called bohak, account of, Le.13.39.
Leprosy, propriety of the rules respecting, Le.13.22.
Leprosy in garments, account of, Le.13.47.
——— in houses, account of, Le.14 34,45.
Leshem, Laish, or Dan, situation of, Ju.18.7.
Let, meaning of the word, Ex.5.4.
Letters, sealed up in a bag in the East, and an insult to send one open, Ne.6.5.
Levi, import of the name, Ge.29.34.
Leviathan, or crocodile, description of, Job 41.7,30,32.
Leviathan used for the Egyptian government, Ps.74.14.
Levites, choice of, for the service of God, Nu.3.12.
———, given for the redemption of the first-born, Nu.3.46.
Levites, how offered to God, Nu.3.6 ; 8.13.19.
———, number of, Nu.3.39 ; 4.36.
———, numbered from a month old, Nu.3.28.
———, charge of, Nu.3.25.
———, each appointed to his several office, Nu.4.27.
———, families of, adapted to their several services, Nu.4.24 ; 7.2,&c.
Levites, term of their servitude, Nu.8.24.1Ch.23.24.
———, portion of, De.14.28.
Levitical cities, Jos.21.41.
———, suburbs of, Nu.35.4.
Lex talionis, existence of, among various nations, Ex.21.24.
Libnah, where situated, Jos.10.29 ; 12.15.
Libni and Laadan, the same person, 1Ch.23.7.
Libya, situation of, 2Ch.12.3.
Lice, meaning of the word so rendered, Ex.8.16.
Light, wonderful celerity of, Ps.139.9.
——— of the world, one of the titles of the Messiah, claimed by Jesus, Jn.9.6.
Light, shining, the path of the just compared to, Pr.4.18.
Light, an emblem of prosperity, La.3.2.Am.5.20.
Lights, import of the word so rendered, Ge.1.14.
Lightning produces rain, Job 38.26.Ps.135.7.
Ligure, description of, Ex.39.12.
Lily, description of, Lu.12.27.
Line, to stretch out one over a place, import of, 2Ki.21.13.
Line, or cord, used for sound, Ps.19.4.
——, import of word so rendered, 2Co.10.13.
Linen, fine, word so rendered properly cotton, Ex.39.27.
Linen, fine, meaning of word so rendered, Pr.31.22.
Linen yarn, various senses given to the word so rendered, 2Ch.1.16.
Lion, word so rendered probably a serpent Ps 91.13.

MEH

Lion, young, Pharoah compared to, Eze.32.2
Lioness, an emblem of Judea Eze.19 2
Lions, emblems of kings, Eze.19.2.
——, young, emblems of princes, Eze.19.2.
Lips, to put a bridle in, illustrated, Is.37.29
——, burning, and a wicked heart, why compared to a potsherd covered with silver dross, Pr.26.23.
Litters, meaning of word so rendered, Is.66.20.
Live for ever, may the king, illustrated, Ne.2.3.
Living creatures, an emblem of what, Eze.1.6.
Lizard, import of word rendered, Le.11.30.
Lo-ammi, import of, Ho.1.9.
Loaves, eastern, form and size of, 1Sa.25.18.
Locust, description of, Ex 10.4
———, four species of, Joel 1.4.
Locusts, brought and carried off by winds, Ex.10.13.
———, wisdom of, Pr.30.27.
———, dreadful ravages of, Joel 1.12 ; 2.2.7.
Lod or Lydda, situation and description of, 1Ch.8.12.
Lo-debar, probably the same as Debir, 2Sa.9.4.
Loins, necessity of girding, on account of the eastern dress, 2Ki.9.1.
Looking glasses, properly brazen mirrors, Ex.38.8.
Lord, the Messiah so called, Mic.4.7.Mal.3.1.
——, a title refused by Augustus and Tiberius, but demanded by Nero, Ac.25.26.
Lord our Righteousness, proper rendering and import of, Je.33.16.
Lo-ruhamah, meaning of, Ho.1.6.
Lot, division of the land among the Israelites by, Jos.14.2
Love, not to be in word, but in deed and in truth, illustration of, 1Jn.3.18.
Love, a chariot paved with, probable meaning of, Ca.3.10.
Lubim, probably the inhabitants of Libya, 2Ch.12.3.
Luhith, situation of, Je.48.5.
Lunatic, meaning of, Mat.17.15.
Lycaonia, description of, Ac.14.6.
——— speech of, what, Ac.14.11.
Lydda, or Lod, description of, 1Ch.8.12.
Lying, erroneous notions of heathens respecting, 1Sa.21.2.
Lystra, situation of, Ac.14.6.

MAACAH, probably the father of the Macetes, in Arabia Felix, Ge.22.24.
Maachah, daughter of Absalom, and Michaiah the daughter of Uriel, the same, 2Ch.13.2.
Maacah, king, the same as king of Maachah, 1Ch.19.7.
Macedonia, description of, Ac.19.29.
Madman, instances of persons acting as such, 1Sa.21.14.
Madmannah, situation of, 1Ch.2.49.
Madon, situation of, Jos.11.7.
Magdala, situation of, Mat.15.39.
Magi, attended the kings of Persia in war, Je.39.3.
Magicians, account of, Ge 41.8.
Magog, probably the Scythians or Tartars, Eze.38.2.
Magor-missabib, meaning of, Je.20.3.
Mahalath, meaning of, Ps.53.title.
Mahanaim, import of, and where situated, Ge.32.2.
Maimed, word so rendered properly denotes one who had lost a limb, Mat.15.30.
Makkedah, situation of, Jos.10.28.
Malchiah and Malchijah, the same, Ne.10.3.
Malchijah and Malchiah, the same, Ez.10.31.
Male, any, proverbial mode of expressing, 1Sa.25.22.
Mallows, import of word so rendered, Job 30.4.
Mammon, signification of, Mat.6.24.
Man, meaning of the Hebrew word, Ge.1.26
——, the term, signifies both man and woman, Ro.7.2.
Man, how said to have no pre-eminence over a beast, Ec.3.19.
Manasseh, meaning of the name, Ge.41.51.
———, inheritance of the half tribe of, east of Jordan, Nu.34.15.
Manasseh, son of Joiada, account of, Ne.13.28.
Mandrakes, description of, Ge.30.14.
Maneh, weight and value of, Ezc.45.12.
Manna, description of, Ex.16.22,31.
Manslaughter, laws of, Nu 35.26.
Man-stealing, a capital crime, Ex.21.16.
Maps, probably used in the time of Joshua, Jos.18.9.
Mara, meaning of the word, Ru.1.20.
Marah, signification of, Ex.15.23.
Marble stones, probably Parian marble, 1Ch.29.2.
Mareshah, situation and account of, 1Ch 4.21.
Marriage with near relatives, Ge.38.26.
———, various modes of, Ge.38.26.
Marriages, prohibited, Le.18.6.
Marriage-feast, nature and duration of, Ge 29 28.
Marrying, oriental and royal mode of, 1Sa.25.39.
Maschil, import of, Ps.42.title.
Massah, import of the word, Ex.17.7.
Meadow, import of word so rendered, Ge.41.2.
Measure, first, what, 2Ch.3.4.
———, word so rendered, the cor, 2Ch.27.5
———, capacity of word so rendered, Mat.13 33.
———, meaning of word so rendered, 2Co.10 13.
Measures, word so rendered baths, Lu.16.6.
———, word so rendered cors, Lu.16.7.
———, divers, prohibited, De.25.14.
Meat, meaning of word rendered, Ge.45.23.
Meat-offering, account of, Le.2.1.
Meat-offerings among the heathen, Le.2.14.
Mebunnai and Sibbecai the same, 1Ch.11.29
Megiddo, situation of, 2Ki.23.29
Media, description of, Es.10.2.
Medes and Persians, empire of, represented by the breast and arms of silver, Da.2.39.
Medes and Persians, empire of, represented as a bear, Da.7.5.
Medo-Persian empire represented by a ram with two horns, Da.8.3.
Mehunim and Meunim, same in the original, Ne.7 5.

MOS

Mekonah, situation of, Ne.11.18.
Melchizedek, probably Shem, Ge.14.18.
Melita, or Malta, description of, Ac.28.1.
Memphis, or Moph, account of, Je.46.19.
Men, sacrificed by the Egyptians, Ex.9.9.
——, strong, legs so called, Ec.12.3.
—— and women, figures of, cities so represented, Da.2.31.
Meni, probably a name for the moon, Is.65.11.
Menstruation, necessity of in Egypt, Is.18.2.
Mephaath, situation of, Jos.13.18.
Merchants, a city of, Babylon so called, Eze.17.4.
Mercury, some account of, Ac.14.12.
——, the god of highways, Pr.26 8.
Meribah, meaning of the name, Ex 17.7.
Merodach-baladan, account of, Is.39 1.
Merom, waters of, description of, Jos.11.5.
Meshech, probably the Moschi, Is.66.19. Eze.32.26.
—— ——, situation of, Ps.120.5.
Mesopotamia, situation and account of, Ju.3.8.
Messenger of the covenant, a name of the Messiah, Mal.3 1.
Messes proportioned to the rank of the guests, Ge.43.34.
Messiah, pre-existence of, believed by the Jews, Jn.8.58.
Messiah, the miraculous conception of, foretold, Je.31.23.
Messiah, to be pierced by the Jews, Zec.12.10.
——, the consequences of the advent of, Mal.3.5.
Messiah took our infirmities, &c. Mat.8.17.
——, prophecy respecting his sitting at the right hand of God, Mat.22.44.
Messiah, kingdom of, represented by a stone cut out without hands, Da.2.44.
Messiah expected by the Jews to give them bread from heaven, Jn.6.51.
Metheg-ammah, import of, 2Sa.8.1.
Miamin, Mijamin, and Miniamin, the same, Ne.10.7 ; 12.17.
Micah and Michah, the same in the original, 1Ch.24.24.
Mice, accounts of devastations by, 1Sa.6.5.
Michaiah, called by abbreviation, Micah, 2Ch.34.20.
Michmas and Michmash, the same, Ne.7.31.
Michmash, situation of, 1Sa.13.2.Is.10.28.
—— to Ajalon, distance from, 1Sa.14.31.
Michmethah, situation of, Jos.17.7.
Michtam, import of, Ps.57.title.
Midian, situated on the coast of the Red sea, Ex.4.19.
Midian, east of the Dead sea, 1Ki 11.18.
Migdol, signification and situation of, Ex.14.2.
——, or Magdolus, situation of, Je.46.14.
Miletus, situation of, Ac.20.13.
Military harangues, instances of fine ones, 2Sa.10.12.
Millennium, what, Re.20.2.
Millet, import of word so rendered, Eze.4.9.
Millo, description of, 1Ki.9.15.
Mill, hand, description of, Mat.24.41.
Millstones, description and necessity of, De.24.6.
Millstones, the absence of the sound of, a sign of desolation, Je.25.10.
Millstone, punishment of criminals by drowning with one round the neck, Mat.18.6.
Mina, weight and value of, Lu.19.13.
Mingled people, who dwell in the desert, probably the Bedouin Arabs, Je.25.24.
Miniamin, the same as Mijamin, 1Ch.24.9.
Minister, properly a servant at table, Mat.20.26.
Minni, the lesser Armenia, Je.51.27.
Minnith, situation of, Ju.11.31.
Mirth, why commended, Ec.8.15.
Miry places, emblematical meaning of, Eze.47.11.
Mishnah, account of, Mat.15.2.
Mischief, or evil, devisers of, themselves punished, Es.7.9.
Misheal, situation of, Jos.19.26.
Misperith and Mizpar, the same, Ezr.2.2.
Mite, meaning and value of, Ma.12.42.
Mitre, description of, Ex.29.6.
Mitylene, situation of, Ac.20.13.
Mixtures of various kinds forbidden, Le.19.19.
Mizpah, import of the name, Ge.31.40.
——, several places of this name, 2Ki.25.23.
Mizpeh, of Benjamin, situation of, Jos.18.26.
——, of Gilead, situation of, Je.11.11.
Mnason, some account of, Ac.21.16.
Moab, import of the name, Ge.29.37.
——, judgments upon, Eze.25.4.
——, destruction of, Je.38.44.2.
——, restoration of foretold, Je.48.47.
Moadiah and Maachiah, the same, Ne.12.5.
Mohammed, prediction of his rise, Re.9.4.
Mohammedanism, prediction concerning, Da.12.11.
Moladah, situation of, Jos 15.26.1Ch.4.28.
Mole, word rendered, the Chameleon, Le.11 30.
——, description of, Is.2.20.
Molech, the sun, Le.18.21.
——, an account of, Le.20 2.
——, passing through the fire to, Le.18.21.
Monarchs, despotic powers of eastern, 1Sa.8.13.
Money weighed in the East, Ge.23.15.
——, how said to answer all things, Ec.10.19.
——, unsatisfying nature of, Ec.5.10.
——, meaning of word so rendered, Ma.6.8 ; 12.41.
Month, fourth, when it commenced, Je.39.2.
——, fifth, when it commenced, Je.28.1.
——, seventh, when it commenced, Je.41.1.
——, tenth, when it commenced, Je.39.1.
Moon, time measured by, Ps.89.37.
——, light of, how caused, and how it may be said to rule the night, Ps.136.9.
Moon, an emblem of a queen, or some state less than a kingdom, Eze.32.7
Moph, see Noph and Memphis.
Morning and evening made to rejoice by God, Ps.65.8.
Moseroth, situation of, Nu.33.30.

OAK

Mosaic laws, superiority of, Le.19.9.
Moses, meaning of the name, Ex.2.10.
——, extraordinary beauty of, He.11.23.
——, life of, distinguished into three remarkable periods, De.31.2.
Mosquito nets used in the East, 1Sa.19.13.
Mote, meaning of word so rendered, Mat.7.3.
Mother, reproach of one, galling nature of, 1Sa 20.30.
Mountains, shadow of, like men, Ju 9.36.
—— used for idolatrous worship, De.12.2,13.
——, removing, meaning of, Ma.11.23.
—— and hills breaking forth into singing, illustrated, Is.55.12.
Mounts used to plant engines on in sieges, description of, 2Sa.20.15 Je.32 24.
Mourning, signs of, Je.41.5.
——, various modes of evincing, Jos.7.6.
——, rending clothes, &c. signs of, 1Sa.4.11.
——, instances of laceration in, De.14.1.
—— women employed in the East, Je.9.17.
—— of the easterns boisterous, Ge.45.2.
Mournings among the Egyptians frantic, Ex.12.30.
Mouse, extensive meaning of the word, Le.11.29.
Mowings, king's, what, Am.7.1.
Music, soothing influence of, 2Ki.3.15.
—— daughters of, the voice and ear so called, Ec.12.4.
Musical instrument, three stringed, what, 1Sa.18.6.
Mulberry-tree, probable meaning of the word so rendered, 2Sa.5.23.
Mules, import of word so rendered, Ge.36.24. Es.8 10.
Mustard, description of, Ma.4.31.
Muth-labban, import of, Ps.9.title.
Myra, situation of, Ac.27.5.
Myriad, the highest number known in Greek arithmetical notation, Mat.18.24.
Myrrh, description of, Ex.30.23.
——, meaning of word so rendered, Ge.37.25.
Mysia, description of, Ac.16.7.

NAARAN, or Naarath, situation of, 1Ch.7.28.
Naim, situation of, Lu.7.11.
Naked, import of the term, Ex.32.25.2Sa.5.20.
——, frequent meaning of the word, Jn.21.7.
Name of the Lord, on blaspheming of, Le.24.11,16.
——, change of, meaning and prevalence of the custom, 2Ki.24.17.
Names, variations in, probable causes of, 1Ch.6 36,70.
Naomi, meaning of the name, Ru 1.20.
Naphtali, meaning of the name, Ge.30.8.
Natural man, who, 1Co.2.14.
Nature, wheel, or course of, what, Ju.3.6.
Nazarites, account of, Nu.6.2.
——, institution of, Nu.6.3.
——, a common practice for persons to bear their expenses for sacrifices, Ac.21.24.
Nazareth, description of, Lu.2.39.
Neapolis, description of, Ac.16.11.
Nebajoth, the father of the Nabatheans, Ge.25.13.
Nebo, mount, situation and description of, Nu 33.47.
Nebo, city, situation of, 1Ch.5 8.
—— in Judah, situation of, Ezr.2.29.
Nebuchadnezzar and Nebuchadrezzar, the same, Je.21.7.
Nebuchadnezzar, account of, 2Ki.24.1.Je.21.7.
——, associated with his father, two years before his death, Je.25.1.
Nebuchadnezzar's madness, nature of, illustrated, Da.4.25.
Nebuchadnezzar, the success of, predicted, Je.27.8.
Necho, why so called, 2Ch.35.20.
Neck, stiff, illustration of, Ps.75.5.
Necks, hardening of, origin of the phrase, Je.19.15.
Necromancer, import of the term, De.18.10.
Neginoth, meaning of, Ps.4.title.
Nehelamite, meaning of, Je.29.24.
Nehemiah, vindication of, Ne.13.14.
Nehiloth, meaning of, Ps.5.title.
Nehum, written Rehum, probably by mistake, Ezr.2.2.
Nephishesim and Nephishesim, the same, Ne.7.52.
Nergal, account of, 2Ki.17.30.
Nergal-sharezer, who, Je.39.3.
Net, sacrificing unto, illustrated, Hab.1.16.
——, drag, description of, Mat.13.47.
Nettles, import of word so rendered, Job 30.7.
New, nothing, under the sun, Eccl.1.9.
——, sometimes denotes excellent, Ps.149.1.
New-year's day, celebration of, Nu.29.1.
Nibhaz, account of, 2Ki.17.30.
Night, extreme cold of, in the East, Je.36.30.
Nile, fertility of Egypt, dependant upon its overflowing, Ge.41.31.
Nile, worshipped by the Egyptians, Ex.7.20.
Nineveh, description of, Jon.3.2.
——, population of, Jon.4.11.
—— taken and destroyed by the Medes and Babylonians, exactly in the same manner as foretold, Na.2.6,10 ; 3.11,18.
Nitocris, queen of Babylon, who, Dn.5.10,13.
Nitre, or natron, account of, Pr.25.20.
—— used for washing in the East, Je.2.22.
Noah, meaning of the name, Ge.5.28.
No-amon, or Diospolis, description of, Nah.3.8.
Nob, situation of, 1Sa.21.1.Is.10.28.
Nobah, situation of, Ju.8.11.
Nod, import of the word, Ge.4.16.
Noon, to rest at, customary in the East, 2Sa.4.5.
Noph, Moph, or Memphis, account of, Je.46.19.
Numbering of the Israelites, reason of, Nu.1.2.
Numbers, variations in, probable causes of, 1Ch.6.60 ; 19.18 ; 21.12.
Nursing-fathers, instances of, 2Ki.16.6.
Nuts, pistachio, account of, Ge.43.11.

OAK, word so rendered, probably the ilex or holly oak, Is 1.29.
Oak, longevity of, Is.65.22.

PER

Oath, mode of taking, by placing the hand under the thigh, origin of, Ge.24.2.
Oath, how understood by the ancients, Ge.24.39.
Obed, meaning of the name, Ru.4.17.
Oboth, situation of, Nu.21.11.
Observer of times, import of, De 18.10.
Oded, the prophet, affecting speech of, 2Ch.28.9.
Offered, proper meaning of word rendered, Ph.2.17.
Offering, import of the term, Lev.1.2.
Officers of the Israelites in Egypt, Exod.5.6.
—— among the Israelites, Jos.1.10.
Oil, said to be pernicious to a naked bone, Ps.109.18.
Oil olive, pure beaten, description of, Ex.27.20.
Oil tree, what, Is.41.19.
Old age, infirmities of, exemplified in the case of the good old Barzillai, 2Sa.19.37.
Olive tree, description of, Ju.9.8.
Olivet, mount, description of, 2Sa.15.30.
Omer, capacity of, Le.27.16.
Omission, instance of, in the Hebrew text, Ge.2.24
On, or Heliopolis, description of, Je.44.13
Onesimus, meaning of the name, Philem.1.
Ono, situation of, 1Ch.8.12.
Onycha, description of, Ex.30.34.
Onyx, description of, Ge.2.12.Ex.39.6.
Onyx stones, word so rendered, probably denotes a kind of marble, called Onychites, 1Ch.29.2.
Open a book, properly to unroll, Lu.4.17.
Ophel, a tower or fort in the city wall, 2Ch.27.3.
Ophir, where situated, 2Ch.8.18.
Ophni, or Gophna, situation of, Jos.18.24.
Ophrah, situation of, Jos.18.23.
Oracle in the temple, what, 1Ki.6.16.
Oracles, heathen, ambiguous answers of, 1Ki.22.6,15.
Oreb, rock, situation of, Ju.7.25.
Organ, a kind of pipe, Ge.4.21.Ps.150.4.
Osprey, word so rendered, the black eagle, Le.11.13.
Ossifrage, account of, Le.11.13.
Ostracism, early instance of, Ge.16.16.
Ostrich, description of, La.4.3.
Ouches, properly sockets, Ex.39.6
Oven, eastern, description of, Le.2.4.
Owl, meaning of word so rendered, Is.34.11.
——, great, import of word so rendered, Is.34.15.
Owls, word so rendered properly ostriches, Job 30.29.
Ox, wild, probably the oryx, De.14.5.
Oxen, round the molten sea, probably a mistake for knops, 2Ch.4.3.

PALACES, eastern, description of, Ju.15.27.
Palmer-worm, import of word so rendered, Joel 1 4.
Palm tree, description of, 1Ki 6.29.
——, various uses of, Ps.92.12.
Pamphylia, description of, Ac.15.38.
Pan for cooking, description of, Le.2.5.
Panic, origin of the word, and instances of persons seized with. 1Ki.20.20.
Papal supremacy represented by a little horn, Da.7.24,25.
Paphos, situation of, Ac.13.6.
Papyrus, description of, Exod.2.3.
Parable, import of the term, Nu.23.7.
——, properly a poetic composition, Ps.78.2.
——, meaning and definition of, Mat.13.3,
Paran, wilderness of, where situated, Nu.13.3.
——, city, situation of, 1Ki.11.8
——, a place near Moab, De.1.1.
Parbar, signification of, 1Ch.26.18.
Paring the nails, meaning of, De.21.12.
Parlour, summer, what, Ju.3.20.
Paronomasia, instances of, Nu.18.2.Ju.15.16. Is.5.7.Je.1.11.Ezc.7.6.Am.5.5 ; 8.2.Zep.2.4. Philem.
Parosh and Pharosh, the same in the original, Ezr.8.3.
Partridge, Arab mode of hunting, an illustration of Saul's mode of pursuing David, 1Sa.26.20.
Parvaim, probable situation of, 2Ch.3.6.
Paschal lamb, why to be wholly eaten, Nu.9.12.
Pasach and Phaseah, the same in the original, Ne.7.50.
Passover, typical nature of, owned by the Jews, Lu.22.19.
Passengers, valley of, where situated, Eze.39.11.
Patara, situation of, Ac.21.1.
Pau and Pai, reason of the variation, 1Ch.1.50.
Paul, his conversion a demonstration of the truth of Christianity, Ac.22.6.
Paul, his bodily presence weak, 2Co.10.10.
——, account of his death, Ac.28.80.
Pavilion, import of the word, 1Ki.20.12
Peacocks, word rightly rendered thus, 2Ch.9.21.
Pearls, description of, Pr.8.11.
Peep, meaning of the word, Is.10.14.
Pelican, description of, Ps.102.6.
Penuel or Peniuel, import of the name, and situation of, Ge.32.30.
Penny, or denarius, value of, Mat.18.28; 20.2 ; 22.19 Ma.6.37.
Penny, or denarius of Cesar, account of, Lu.20.24.
People of the land, common people, Le.4.27.
Perez and Pharez, the same in the original, Ne.11.4.
Perez-uzzah, meaning of, 2Sa.6.8.
Perfumes and oil, general use of, Es.2.12.
Perga, situation of, Ac.14.25.
Pergamos, description of, Re.2.12.
Perizzites, their habitation, De.7.1.
Persia, description of, Es.10.2.
——, prediction respecting several kings of, Da.11.2.
Persian king's table, none but his mother and wife permitted to sit at, Es.5.12.
Persian monarchs, no one, except their ministers, admitted to their presence, Es 4.11.

INDEX TO THE PRINCIPAL NOTES IN THE COTTAGE BIBLE

PRO

Persian monarchs gave their wives cities and provinces for supplying articles of dress, Es.2.18.
Perida and Perida, the same, Ne.7.57.
Peter's denial, reconciliation of the apparent discrepancies of the Evangelists in their accounts of, Lu.22.58.
Pethor, or Pathura, where situated, Nu.22.5.
Petra, description of, 2Ki.14.7.
Pharaoh, signification and application of the name, Ge.12.15.
Pharaoh-hophra, account of, Je.37.5.
———————, pride and wickedness of, Eze.29.2.
Pharaoh-hophra, his arms broken by Nebuchadnezzar, Eze.30.21.
Pharaoh-hophra given into the hands of his enemies, as predicted, Je.44.30.
Pharaoh-nechoh, account of, 2Ki.23.29.
Pharez, meaning of, Ge.38.29.
——— and Perez, the same in the original, Ne.11.4.
Pharisees, character of them according to Josephus, Mat.23.14.
Pharpar, probably a branch of the Barada, 2Ki.5.12.
Phenice, or Phœnicia, description of, Ac.15.3.
———, a sea-port town of Crete, Ac.27.12.
Philadelphia, description of, Re.3.7.
Philemon, meaning of the name, Philem.1.
———, excellence of the Epistle to, Philem.15.
Philip Herod, who, Mat.14.3.
Philippi, situation of, Ac.20.6.
Philistines, fulfilment of the prophecies against, Eze.25.16.
Philistines, Divine judgments on, and given to Judah, Zep.2.7.
Phrygia, account of, Ac.16.6.
Phylacteries, what, Mat.23.5.
Physicians, embalmers, Ge.50.1.
———, ignorance of, among the Jews, Ma.5.26.
Pi-beseth, or Bubastum, situation of, Eze.30.17.
Piece of money, a stater, Mat.17.27.
Pieces of silver, probably shekels or staters, Mat.26.13.
Pieces of silver, word so rendered denotes drachms, Lu.15.8.
Pi-hahiroth, signification and situation of, Ex.14.2.
Pilate, Pontius, account of, Mat.27.2.
Pilgrimage, days of the years of, illustrated, Ge.47.9.
Pillar, seat by, honourable, 2Ki.11.14.
Pillows, or cushions, used to prop up the arms in the East, Eze.13.18.
Pins of the tabernacle, description of, Ex.35.18.
Pipe, the sound of the heart compared to, illustrated, Je.48.36.
Pisidia, description of, Ac.14.24.
Pison, the Phasis, a river of Colchis, Ge.2.11.
Pit, made of taking wild beasts in, Ps.119.85.
——————————, Is.24.17.
Pit, he who digged one shall fall therein, Pr.26.27.
Pit, bars of, what, Job 17.16.
Pitcher, the vena cava so called, Ec.12.6.
Pitching tents, time of, in the East, Ju.19.9.
Plain, word so rendered an oak, Ge.12.6.
Planets, word so rendered, probably denotes the signs of the zodiac, 2Ki.23.5.
Plate of gold on the mitre of the high priest, description of, Ex.28.36.
Ploughing with an ox and ass, why prohibited, De.22.10.
Poison, the Apostles exempt from the deadly effects of, Ma.16.18.
Pollution from dead bodies, Nu.31.19.
Polygamy, ill effects of, Ps.69.8.
Pomegranate, description of, 1Sa.14.2.
Pool, upper, probable situation of, 2Ki.18.17.
Poplar, green, properly white poplar, Ge.30.37.
Porters, to the temple, properly guards, 1Ch.26.6.
———, division of, 1Ch.26.1.
Portions of a banquet sent in the East to those who cannot attend, Es.9.19.
Posts, rather runners or couriers, 2Ch.30.6.
———, swiftness of, Job 9.25.
Pot, meaning of word so rendered, Ma.7.6.
Potters' wheels, description of, Je.18.3.
Pottage, red, description of, Ge.25.30.
Pound, maneh, or mina, weight and value of, Ne.7.71.Lu.19.13.
Power, used for sign or token of being under it, 1Co.11.10.
Pygarg, description of, De.14.5.
Prætorium, what, Ma.15.16.
Prayer, houses of, among the Jews, Ac.3.1.
Prayers, extraordinary length of some, among the Jews, Mat.23.14.
Precious things, meaning of, Ge.24.53.
Presents to a superior indispensable in the East, 1Sa.9.7 Mat.2.11.
Presents, acceptance of, a pledge of friendship, Ge.33.10.
Prevent, meaning of the word, Ps.20.3.
Prevented, meaning of, Ps.119.147.
Pride, crown of, a periphrasis for Samaria, Is.28.1.
Priest, second, what, 2Ki.25.18.
Priests, why to be without blemish and impurity, Le.21.21 ; 22 2.
Priests, portion of, Nu.18.20.
———, courses of, continued till the time of Christ, 1Ch.24.10.
Prince of Israel, probably a temporal ruler, Eze.44.3.
Princes of the tribes, what, 1Ch 27.16.
———, offering of, at the dedication of the altar, Nu.7,3,5,7,8,9.10.17,84.
Princes, import of word so rendered, Da.3 3
Prison, import of word so rendered, Ge.39.20
Prisons, account of eastern, Je.37.15 ; 38.6.
Profane, import of, Mat 12.5
Prolepsis, instances of, Ge.13.3 ; 21.15.1Sa.4.1.

REU

Pronouns, the antecedents of, frequently understood, Eze.7.24.
Proper, used for fine or beautiful, He.11.23.
Property unjustly acquired, evanescent nature of, Pr.13.22
Prophecy, word so rendered, an oracle, Pr 30.1.
Prophesy, import of, 1Ch.25.1.
Prophesying, import of, Nu.11.25.
Prophet, import of the word so rendered, Ge.20.7.
Prophets, false, prediction of, verified, Mat.24.26
Prove, to, a metaphor taken from the melting, or refining of metals, Ps.66.10.
Province, Judea so called, Ac.25.1.
Provision furnished by the Persian monarchs to their courtiers from their own table, Da.1.5.
Psalm, meaning of the Hebrew word so rendered, Ps.3.title.
Psalm, meaning of the Greek word so rendered, Eph.5.19.
Psaltery, description of, Da.3.15.
——— -, or Nabla, account of, 1Ch.13.8.
Ptolemais, Accho, or Acre, situation of, Ju.1.31.
Ptolemy Epiphanes, prediction respecting, Da.11.15,17.
Ptolemy Euergetes, prediction respecting, Da.11.7.
Ptolemy Lagus, prediction of, Da.11.5.
——— Philadelphus, predictions respecting, Da.11.6.
Ptolemy Philometor, prediction respecting, Da.11.25.
Ptolemy Philopater, predictions respecting, Da.11.11,15.
Publican, meaning of the word, and explanation of the office of, Mat.5.46.
Publican, chief, what, Lu.19.2.
Pul, king of Assyria, account of, 2Ki.15.19.
—— and Lud, used for the south, Is.66.19.
Pulling down a city or tower by ropes, &c., instances of, 2Sa.17.13.
Pulse, import of word so rendered, Da.1.12.
Punishment by precipitation, instances of, 2Ki.9.33.
Punon, situation of, Nu.33.42.
Pur, and Purim, meaning of the word, Es.9.24.
Purifications among the Africans, Le.14.9.
Purple, description of, Ex 25 4.
Purple and scarlet, frequently used indifferently, Mat.27.28.
Purses, value of eastern, 2Ki.12.10.
Put on a person, meaning of, Ro.13.14.
Puteoli, situation of, Ac.28.13.

QUAILS, description of Ex.16.13.Nu.11.31.
Queen of heaven, the moon so denominated and worshipped, Je.7.18 ; 44.17.

RAAMIAH, probably a mistake for Reelaiah, Ezr.2.2.
Rabbah, or Rabbath-Ammon, now Amman, description of, 2Sa.12.26.
Rabbi, meaning of, Mat.23.8.
Rab-mag, meaning of, Je.39.3.
Rab-saris, meaning of, 2Ki.18.17.Je.39.3.
Rab-shakeh, import of, 2Ki.18.17.
———————, account of, 2Ki.18.19.
Raca, signification of, Mat.5.22.
Rachal, perhaps the same as Hachilah, 1Sa.30.29.
Raguel, the same as Reuel, Nu.10.29.
Rahab, the Delta, or lower Egypt, Ps.89.10.
Raiment, goodly, of Esau, what, Ge.27.15.
Rain, absence of, in Egypt, Ex.9.18.
——— caused by lightning, Job 38.26.
——— brought by a north wind in Palestine, Pr.25.23.
Rain, former and latter, account of, Je.3.3.
Rainbow, nature and appointment of, Ge.9.13.
Rainy season in Palestine, Eze.10.9.
Ram of consecration, description of, Ex.29 27.
Ramah of Benjamin, situation of, Jos.18.25.
——————————, Is.10.28.
——— of Asher, situation of, Jos.19.29.
Ramathaim-Zophim, now Ramla, description of, 1Sa.1.11.
Ramath-lehi, meaning of, Ju.15.17.
Ramoth in Gilead, situation of, De.4.43.
———, south, in Simeon, 1Sa.30.27.
Rameses, situation of, Nu.33.5.
Rams'-skins, red, account of, Ex 26 14.
Rapha and Rephaiah the same, 1Ch.9.43.
Raven, description of, Lu.12.24.
Ravens really fed Elijah, 1Ki.17.5.
Ravening, import of the word, Ezc.22.25.
Reaiah, the same as Haroeh, 1Ch.2 25.
Reapers, servant set over, who, Ru.2.6.
Rechabites, some account of, Is.35.2,6,19.
Red sea, why so called, and description of, Ex.14.16.
Reed, Ezekiel's, length of, Eze.40.10.
Reformation, emblematical representations of, Re.14.14.
Refuge, cities of, Nu.35.11,14.Jos.20.7.
———, cities of, imitations of, De.19.2.
Rehob, city of, where situated, Nu.13.27.
Rehum and Nehum, the same, Ne.7.7.
Remphan, probably Saturn, Am.5.26.
Renowned in the congregation, meaning of the phrase, Nu.1.16.
Rephaim, or giants, valley of, Jos.15.8.
Rested, import of the Hebrew word so rendered, Ge.2.2.
Restitution, necessary to forgiveness, Nu.5.7.
——————————, Eze.33.15.
Resurrection, the opinions of the Jews respecting, Ma.12.24.
Resurrection of Jesus, reconciliation of the apparent discrepancies in the accounts of the Evangelists respecting, Lu.24.1,4.Ma.16.2,5 Jn.20.1.
Resurrection of Christ, evidence of, Jn.20.28.
Reuben, import of the word, Ge.29.32.
———, inheritance of the tribe of, Nu.34.15.
Reuel and Raguel, the same, Nu.10.29.
——— and Deuel, the same person, Nu.1 14.

SAL

Reverence of the aged prevalent among the Egyptians, Romans, &c. Ge.48.12.
Reverence, idolatrous, required by the Persian monarchs, Es.3.2.
Revenues in the East paid in kind, 1Ki.4.7.
Rezeph, situation of, 2Ki.19.12.
Rhegium, situation of, Ac.28.13
Rhodes, island, description of, Ac.21.1.
Riblah, now Homs, account of, 2Ki.23.33
Rich, not to labour to be, Pr.23.4.
———, he that maketh haste to be so not innocent, Pr.28.20.
Riches, vast, of some persons, Es.3.9.
———, instability of, Pr.23.5.
Righteousness, extensive meaning of the word so rendered, Is.51.5.
Rimmon, signification of, 1Sa.14.2.
———, idol, account of, 2Ki.5.18
———, rock, where situated, Ju.20.47
——— of Judah, situation of, Ne.11.29.
Rimmon-parez, situation of, Nu.33.19
Rings worn on the ankles by eastern ladies, Is.3.16.
Rising early, import of, Je.25.4.
Rissah, situation of, Nu.33.21.
Rithmah, situation of, Nu.33.18.
Rivers and fountains, places of resort in the East, 1Ki.1.9.
Rivers, banks of, used for religious meetings, Ps.137.1.
Rivers, drying up, with the sole of the foot, illustrated, Is.37.25.
Rivers running like oil, meaning of, Eze.32.14
Roaring used for the pangs which occasion it, Ps.32.3.
Robe, description of, Ex.28.4.
Rock, inhabitants of, who, Is.42.11.
———, shadow of, desirable in a hot country, Is.32.2.
Rocks, dwellings in, Ob.3.
———, used for places of retreat, Ju.20.47.
Rod, passing under, meaning of, Le.27.32.
—— of Aaron, budding of, Nu.17.8.
—— of Moses gave rise to the Thyrsus of Bacchus, Ex.4.2.
Rod, or staff, a sign of office, Nu.17.2.
Rods, strong, emblems of powerful sovereigns, Eze.19.1
Roe, word so rendered, the rock goat, Pr.5.19.
Roe-buck, word so rendered properly the gazelle or antelope, De.15.22.
Rolls, ancient, account of, Lu.4.17.
Roman empire, represented by legs of iron and feet of iron and clay, Da.2.40,42
Roman empire represented as a king of fierce countenance, Da.8.23,25
Roman empire represented by a great and terrible beast, with ten horns, Da.7.7.
Roman empire, represented by a beast with seven heads and ten horns, Re.13.1.
Roman empire, division of into ten kingdoms represented by ten horns, Da.7.20.
Roman empire, invasion of, by the Goths, predicted, Re.8 7.
Roman empire, invasion of, by the Huns, predicted, Re.8.8.
Roman empire, invasion of, by the Vandals and Moors, Re.8.10.
Roman empire, gradual extinction of, Re.8.12.
Roman citizens, privileges of, Ac.22.25.
——— hierarchy, represented by a beast with two horns like a lamb, Re.13.11.
Romans, prediction respecting, Da.11.36.
———, seven forms of government among, denoted by seven heads, Re.17.10.
Romans, Epistle to, authenticity and excellence of, Ro.15.24 ; 16.3
Rome, situation of, Ac.28.16.
———, Bishops and Church of, predictions concerning, Da.11.36,38 ; 12.7
Rome, duration of the idolatry and tyranny of the church of, Re.11.2.
Romans, or light-armed troops of the Romans, why so called, 2Sa.17.12.
Rosh, probably the Russians, Eze.38 2
Round, keeping up, the abominable custom of, Es.1.8.
Royal family, instances of the destruction of, 2Ki.11.1
Ruby, description of, Pr.8.11.
Rudder bands, what, Ac.27.40.
Ruhamah, meaning of, Ho.2.1.
Rule, meaning of word so rendered, 2Co.10.13
Ruler of the Israelites, office of, Le 4.22.
Rumah, situation of, 2Ki.23.36
Rump, or tail, of eastern sheep very large, Ex.29.22.
——————————, Le.3.9.

SABBATH, perpetuity of, Ro.14.5.
———, second after the first, what, Lu.6.1.
———, what the Jews deemed lawful on, Mat.12.1
Sabbath, covert for, what, 2Ki.16.18
———, day's journey, what, Ac.1.12.
Sabeans, who they were, Job 1.15.
———, majestic appearance of, Is.45.14.
Sackbut, meaning of, Da.3.15.
Sacrifices to be perfect, illustration of Le.22.21.
——— to be a certain age, Le.22.27.
———, animals used in, Nu.15.3.
———, various kinds of, Nu.28.2.
———, monthly account of, Nu.28.14.
———, annual amount of, Nu.29.39.
———, human, prevalence of, De.12.31.
———————, 2Ki.3.27.Ps.106.37
Saddle, import of word so rendered, Le.15.9.
Saint, meaning of the word, Col.1.2.
Salamis, situation of, Ac.13.5.
Salathiel and Shealtiel, the same in the original, Hag.1.1.
Salem, probably Jerusalem, Ge.14.18.
Sallai and Sallu, the same, Ne.12.7.
Salmone, situation of, Ac 27.7
Salome, account of, Mat 14.11.
Salt, description of Lu.14.34.

SHA

Salt, used for food or maintenance, and the symbol of friendship and hospitality, Ezr.4.14.
Salt, in large quantities, destructive of vegetation, Ju.9.45.
Salt, sowing with, import of, Ju.9.45.
——, to be salted with, meaning of, Ma.9.49.
——, city of, where situated, Jos.15.62.
——, valley of, where situated, 2Ki.14.7.
—— sea, situation and description of, Nu.34.3.
Salutations, eastern, Ge.37.4.
Samaria, city of, situation and description of, 1Ki.16.24.
Samaria, destruction of, by Hyrcanus, and rebuilding of by Herod, Mi.1.6.
Samaria, country of, described, Ac 8.5.
Samaritans, account of, Ezr.4.1.
Samgar-nebo, meaning of, Je.39.3.
Samos, island of, account of, Ac.20.13.
Samothracia, account of, Ac.16.11.
Samuel, meaning of the name, 1Sa.1.20.
——— and Shemuel, the same in the original, 1Ch.6.33.
Samuel, appearance of, real, 1Sa.28.19.
Sanctify, import of word so rendered, Ex.13.2.
Sanctuary, large portion assigned for, probably intimates the great extent of the Church, Eze.45.1 ; 48.15.
Sand of the sea, numerous forces compared to, 2Sa.17.11.
Sandal, description of, Ma.6.9.
Sapphire, description of, Ex.24.10.
Sarah, import of the name, Ge.17.15.
——, the only woman whose age, death, and burial, are recorded in the Scriptures, Ge 23 1.
Sardis, description of, Re.3.1.
Sardius, description of, Re.21.20.
———, word so rendered, a ruby Ex.28.17.
Sardonyx, description of, Re.21.20.
Sarepta, description of, Lu.4.26.
Sargon, the same as Sennacherib, Is.20.1.
Sarsechim, who, Je.39.3.
Satan, meaning of, 1Th.2.18.
——, binding of, probable meaning of, Re.20.2.
Satyr, word so rendered, probably a he-goat, Is.34.14.
Saul and Shaul, the same in the original, 1Ch.1.48.
———— Doeg died with the same sword as that with which the priests of God were slain, 1Sa.31.4.1Ch.10.4.
Saul, history of, among the Afghans, 1Sa.10.9.
Savour of life and of death, meaning of, 2Co.2.14.
Savoury meat, probable nature of, Ge.27.9.
Sayest, thou, a solemn mode of affirmation among the Jews, Lu.23.3.
Scapegoat, account of, Le.16.8,22,26.
Scarlet, colour, account of, Ex.25.4.
Sceptre, golden, borne by the kings of Persia, Es.4.11.
Scorpion, description of, Lu.11.12.
Scribe, ready, meaning of, Ezr.7.6.
Scriptures, contain sufficient proofs of their Divine origin, Lu.16.31.
Scriptures, succeeding parts of, attest the truth of the former, Da.9.13.
Scriptures, present us with a faithful delineation of human nature, 1Sa.27.10.
Scourging, horrible punishment of, Mat.27.26.
Scythians, probably Magog, Eze.38.2.
Sea-weeds of, gathered, and retained by God, in one place, Ps.33.7.
Sea, confined by the tides, Job 38.11.
——, the sand placed as a boundary of, Je.5.22.
——, brazen, size of, 1Ki.7.26.
————, capacity of, 2Ch.4.5.
Seah, capacity of, Ru.3.15.2Ki.7.1.
Seas, God stilleth the noise of, Ps.65.7.
Seasons, division of, Ge.8.22.
Seat, empty, illustration of the expression, 1Sa.20.18.
Seats at banquets, disputes about, among the Jews in the time of our Lord, Lu.14.8.
Sebat, the month, account of, Zec.1.7.
See, sometimes equivalent to hear, Ge.42.1.
See one another, meaning of, 2Ch.25.21.
Seed of the land, Zedekiah so called, Eze.17.5.
Seed-times, two in Egypt, Ex.9.31.
Seer, meaning of the term, 1Sa.9.19.
Seir, the present Shera, where situated, Ge.32.3.
Selah, probable meaning of, Ps.3.3.
Selah, or Petra, description of, 2Ki.14.7.
Seleucia, situation of, Ac.13.4.
Seleucus Ceraunus, prediction respecting, Da.11.10.
Seleucus Nicator, prediction respecting, Da.11.5.
———— Philopater, prediction respecting, Da.11.20.
Sennacherib, account of, Is.36.4.
Sepharvaim, situation of, Is.36.19.
Sepphoris, situation of, Ju.11.30.
Sepulchres, ancient form and splendour of, Is.22.16.
Seraiah and Azariah, the same, Ne.7.7.
———, probably called Jehoiada, Je.29.25.
———, put to death by Nebuchadnezzar, 1Ch.6.14.
Serpent, meaning of word rendered, Ex.7.9.
———, crooked, probably the constellation Ophiuchus, Job 26.13.
Servant, properly a slave, Mat.20.27.
———, the Messiah so called, Mat.12.18.
Servants, release of, Le.25.50.
Seth, meaning of the word, Ge.4.25.
Seven, a number of perfection, Le.4.6.
——— frequently denotes many times, Ps.119.164.
Sextarius, capacity of, Mat.7.4.
Shaalabbin, situation of, Jos.19.42.
Shadow used for night, Job 7.2.
———, metaphorical use of the term, Nu.14.9.
Shadow, the lengthening of, an emblem of the fleetness of life, Ps.109.23.
Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, miraculous preservation of, Da.3.27.
Shaft, polished, applied to words, Is.49.2.
Shallecheth, meaning of, 1Ch.26.16.

SLE

Shalmaneser, account of, 2Ki.17.3.
Shame, a nickname for Baal, Je.11.13.
Shamer and Shomer, the same, 1Ch.7.32.
Shamlai, a mistake for Shalmai, Ezr.2.46.Ne.7.48
Shammah, Shammoth, and Shamhuith, the same, 1Ch.11.27.
Shammah, or Shammoth, why called the Harodite and Izrahite, 1Ch.27.8.
Shammuah, Shammua, and Shimea, the same, 1Ch.14.4.
Shapher, mount, situation of, Nu.33.24.
Sharon, situation and description of, 1Ch.5.16.
Shaving the head, custom of, De 21.12.
Shearing sheep, ancient mode of, 1Sa.25.2.
Sheba, queen of, account of, 2Ch.9 9.
Shebah, meaning of the name, Ge.21.31 ; 26.33.
Shechaniah and Shebaniah, the same, Ne.12.14.
Shechem, now Nablous, situation and description of, Ge.33.18.
Sheep roasted whole in the East, Ex.12.46.Nu.9.12.
——— gate, situation of, Ne.3.1.
Sheepfolds, instances of persons taken from, to the throne, Ps.78.70.
Sheet, literal and emblematical meaning of, Ac.11.5.
Shekel of the sanctuary, what, Le 27.25.
———, value of, Ge.23.15.
Shelemiah, an abbreviation of Meshelemiah, 1Ch.26.1.
Shelomith and Shelomoth, the same, 1Ch.24.22.
Shem, import of the name, Ge.10.21.
———, descendants of, Ge.10.21.
Shenir, same as Hermon, De.3.9.
Shepherd, dignity of the office of, in ancient times, Ge.29.9.
Shepherds, why an abomination to Egyptians, Ge.43.32 ; 46.34.
Shepho and Shephi, the same, 1Ch.1.40.
Sheriffs, import of word so rendered, Da.3.3.
Sheshach, probably a Babylonian idol, Je.51.41.
Shew-bread, why so called, Mat.12.4.
Shibboleth, meaning of, Ju.12.6.
Shield, description of, Ep.6.16.
Shields anciently anointed and placed in cases, Is.22.6.
Shiggaion, import of, Ps.7.title.
Shihon, situation of, Jos.19.19.
Shiloh, situation of, Jos.18.1.
Shiloni, the import of, Ne.11.5.
Shimeah and Shimeam, the same, 1Ch.9.38.
Shimi and Shimei, the same in the original, 1Ch.23.7.
Shimron, where situated, Jos.11.1.
Shishak, king of Egypt, probably the same as Sesonchis, 1Ki.11.40.
Shittim wood, description of, Ex.25.23.
———, distance of, from Jordan, Jos.3.1.
Shobach and Shophach, the same, 1Ch.19.16.
Shoe, pulling off, disgrace of, De.25.9.
——, plucking off, and giving it, a sign of purchase, Ru.4.7.
Shoes, ancient, rather sandals, Ge.18.4.
Shoshannim, import of, Ps 45.title.
Shoulder, an emblem of government, 1Sa.9.24.
Show, vain, man represented as walking in, Ps.39.6.
Shrines of Diana, what, Ac.19.24.
Shubael and Shebuel, the same, 1Ch.26.24.
Shumeri, situation of, 2Ki.4.8
Shuppim, Shupham, and Shephuphan, 1Ch.8.5.
Shur, desert of, where situated, Ge.16.7.Ex.15.22.
Shushan, description of, Ne.1.1.
Shushan-eduth, meaning of, Ps.60.title.
Shut up, meaning of, when applied to the extermination of a royal family, 1Ch.12.1.
Sia, a contraction of Siaha, Ezr.2.44.
Sibboleth, import of the word, Ju.12.6.
Sibmah, situation of, Jos.13.19.
Side, children nursed or carried at, in the East, Is.60.4.
Signet, description of, Ge.38.18.
Silk, word so rendered, denotes fine linen or cotton, Pr.31.22.
Siloah, Shiloah, or Siloam, pool of, description of, Ne.3.15.
Silver, an excessive heat required to purify it, Is.48.10.
Silver, pieces of, probably shekels, Ge.20.16.
See Pieces.
Silver cord, the spinal marrow so called, Ec.12 6.
Simeon, import of the name, Ge.29.33.
Simon Magus, some account of, Ac.8.13.
Simoom, or east wind, description of its terrible effects, Ge.41.23.2Ki.19.35.
Simplicity of ancient manners, Ru.3.7.
Sin, the cause of all disease, Ma.2.5.
——, desert of, where situated, Ex.16.1.
——, Pelusium, or Tinch, situation of, Eze.30.15.
Sinai, mount, situation and description of, Ex.19.2.
Sinai, wilderness of, situation of, Ex.19.2.
Sincere, meaning of word so rendered, Phi.1.10.
Sinim, land of, probably China, Is.49.12.
Sinner, a woman which was, not Mary Magdalene, Lu.7.45.
Sion, the same as Hermon, De.4.48.
Siphmoth, probably the same as Shepham, 1Sa.30.28.
Sirion, the same as Hermon, De.3.9.
Sit down, word so rendered properly to recline, Mat.8.11.
Sitnah, meaning of the word, Ge 26.21.
Sitting, mode of, in the East, Is.52.2.
———— on the ground, a posture of mourning, Le.2.10.
Skill, to, obsolete word for to be skilful, 2Ch.34.12.
Skin for skin, meaning of, Job 2.4.
Skins of the burnt-offerings given to the priest, Le.7.8.
Skins used as mats or seats in tents, Le.15.17.
Skirt, the spreading of, over a person, meaning of, Ru.3.9.
Slaves, female, the patrimony of a wife, Ge.16.2.
Sleep with the fathers, import of the phrase, De.21.16.

SUC

Slime, the word so rendered bitumen Ge.14.10.
Sling, importance of, Ju.20.16.
Smite with the palms of the hands, import of word so rendered, Mat.26.67.
Smiths carried away from various countries by conquerors, 1Sa.13.19
Smoke, disagreeable effects of, on the eyes, Pr.10.26.
Smyrna, description of, Re.1.11.
Snare, or toil, description of, Is.24.17.
——, to cast, upon one, illustration of, 1Co.7.35.
Snail, word rendered, a species of lizard, Le.11.30.
——, comparison of the wicked to the wasting away of one, illustrated, Ps.58.8.
Snow, account of the formation of, Ps.147.16.
Socoh, situation of, Jos.15.35.
Soldiers, meaning of word so rendered, Lu.3.14.
Soldiers, pay of, consists of corn, &c. in the East, 2Sa.4.6.
Solomon's porch, description of, Ac.5.12.
Son, extensive use of the term, La.3.13.Da.5.22.
——, applied to grandsons, and also descendants, 1Ch.7.6,15.
Son, probably applied to a successor, 1Ch.3.16.
—— of God, meaning of, Mat.27.54.
—— of man, a title of the Messiah, Ma.14.62.
———————————, Jn.5.27.
Son of man, coming of, Mat.10.23 ; 16.28.
Songs, spiritual, what, Ep.5.19.
Sorcerer, import of word so rendered, Ex.7.11.
Sorek, meaning of the word, Is.5.2.
Sorrow of the world, how it worketh death, 2Co.7.10.
Sound, the rate at which it is propagated, Job 38.26
Soul, distempers of, represented by those of the body, Ps.38.5.
Soul, immateriality of, Nu.27.16
——, immateriality and immortality of, believed by the Jews, Lu.20.37
South, application of the word, Ge.13.1.
Sowing, mode of, in Egypt, Is.18.2.
Spain, some account of, Ro.15.24.
Span, used to denote any short duration, Mat.6.27
Spider, word so rendered, a species of lizard, Pr.30.28.
Spider's web, an emblem of life, Ps.90.9.
——————, the professions and works of a hypocrite like, illustrated, Is.59.5.
Spicery, meaning of word so rendered, Ge.37.25
Spices, great quantities used at funerals, Jn.19.39.
Spies, account of Eastern, Ge.42 9.
Spikenard, description of, Jn.12 3.
Spindle, mode of using, Pr.31 19.
Spirit, he that ruleth, superiority of, Pr.16 32.
——, to be in, what, Ro.4.2.
——, taking a man, illustrated, Lu.9.39.
Spirits, evil, clearly distinguished from bodily disorders, Lu.7.21.
Spiritual songs, what, Ep.5.19.
Spitting in the presence of any one in the East, highly offensive, Is.50.6
Spitting before a person, a mark of detestation, De.25.9.
Spittle, to swallow, a proverbial expression, illustrated, Job 7.19
Spoils, consecrated to God, Nu.31.50.
Spoon, properly a censer, Nu.7.32.
Springs, origin of, Ps.104.10.
Stacte, description of, Ex.30.34
Stars, number of, seen by the naked eye, De.1.10.
——, amazing number of, Ps.147.4.
——, emblem of dependent states, Eze.32.7.
Stater, value of, Mat.17.27.
Stature, import of word so rendered, Mat.6.27.
Statute, import of the term, De.4.1.
Steel, word so rendered properly denotes brass, Ps.18.34.
Stocks, the real import of the word so rendered, Je.20.2.
Stoics, some account of, Ac.17.18.
Stone, casting one into a river or the sea, an emblem of irretrievable ruin, Je.51.63.
Stone, head, or chief, the Messiah so called, Zec.4.7.
Stone, rejected by the builders, refers to the Messiah, Ma.12.10.
Stones, erection of, as a memorial, usual in the East, Ge.28.18.
Stones, heaps of, the ancient mode of burial, 2Sa.18.17.
Stones, heap of, raised over a criminal, Pr.26.8.
———, extraordinary size of, used in ancient buildings, 1Ki.7.10.
Stones, account of the roasting of, in order to extract ore, Je.23.29.
Stones, and other inanimate objects, witnesses of words and actions, Jos.24.27.
Stones, smooth, worship of among the heathen, Is.57.6.
Stones, glistening, word so rendered, probably denote black marble, 1Ch.29.2.
Stoning, mode of, among the Jews, Lu.20.18.
Store, meaning of, De.28.5.
Stories in the heaven, meaning of, Am.9.6.
Stork, description of, Ps.104.17.
Storm, description of, Ps.107.26.
Straight, a street in Damascus so called, account of, Ac.9.11
Stratagem of war, singular one, 2Ki.7.12.
Straw, use of, in the East, Ju.19.19
———, reduced to a kind of chaff, and used for food for the cattle in the East, Ge.24.32.
Straw, used for making bricks, Ex.5.7.
Streets, word so rendered properly open fields or pastures, Ps.144.13.
Streets, obtaining, in a city, what, 1Ki.20.34
———, doors of, lips so called, Ec.12.4
Stuff, import of the term, Eze.12.3.
Suburbs, application of the term, 1Ch.5.16.
Succoth, meaning of the name, and situation of, Ge.33.17.
Succoth, in Egypt, situation of, Nu.33.6.
Succoth-benoth, account of, 2Ki.17.30.

THI

Sukkur, probably the Troglodites, 2Ch.12.3.
Summer and winter made by God, Ps.74.17.
Summer fruit, what, 2Sa.16.1.
————, import of the emblem of a basket of, Am.8.2.
Sun and Moon, how they rule the day and night, Ps.136 9.
Sun, worship of by the Persians, Eze.8.16.
——, an emblem of a king, Eze.32.7.
Suph, or Zuph, improperly rendered Red sea, situation of, De.1.1.
Swallow, meaning of word so rendered, Ps.84.3.
————, the proper name of, in the original, Je.8.7.
Swan, perhaps the goose, De.14.16.
Swiftness of foot reckoned a great accomplishment in heroes, 2Sa.2.18.
Swine, on the devils being permitted to enter the herd of, Lu.8.33.
Sword, to turn the edge of, illustrated, Ps.89.43.
Swords, beating of, into ploughshares, illustration of. Is.2.4.
Swords, words compared to the piercing of, illustrated, Pr.12.18.
Swords in one's lips, illustrated, Ps.59.7.
Sycamine tree, probably the same as the sycamore, Lu.17.6.
Sycamore tree, description of, 1Ch.27.28.
————, mode of ripening the fruit of, by scraping it with iron combs, Am.7.14.
Sycamore, value of, to the Egyptians, Ps.78.47.
Sychem, or Shechem, the patriarchs probably first buried there, Ac.7.16.
Syene, now Essuan, situation of, Eze.29.10.
Synagogue, import of word so rendered, Ps 74 8.
Syracuse, description of, Ac 28 12.
Syria, description of, Ac 15.23.
Syriac, import of the term, Da.2.4.

TAANATH-SHILOH, situation of, Jos 16 6.
Tabbath, situation of, Ju 7.22.
Tabernacle, plan of, Ex 40.33.
————, description of, Ex 26 1.
————, hanging for the door of, Ex 36 37.
————, veil of, description of, Ex 36 35.
————, boards of, description of, Ex 36.21.
————, weight and value of the gold, &c. employed in, Ex.38.24.
Tabernacle, removal of, Nu.4.5,6,7,13,16,18,20,&c.
————, imitations of, Ex.40.2.
————, of the congregation, description of, Ex.33.7.
Tabernacle, the term, applied to the body, 2Co.5.1.
Tabernacles, feast of, Nu.29 12.35.
Tabitha, meaning of, Ac.9.36.
Table, eastern posture at, reclining, Lu.7.38.
——, princely one of eastern nobles, Ne.5.18.
——, of shew-bread, imitations of, Ex.37.10.
Tables of stone anciently used for writing on, Ex.31.18.
Tablets, description of, Ex.35 22.
————, import of word so rendered, Is 3 20.
Tabor, mount, situation and account of, Ju.4.12,14.
——, city, situation of, 1Ch.6.77.
Taches, meaning of, Ex.35.11.
Tadmor, or Palmyra, description of, 2Ch.8.4.
Tahapanhes, or Talpanhes, situation of, Je.43.7.
Tale, import of the word, Ex.5.8.
Talent, value of, Mat.18.24.
Talitha cumi, meaning of, Mat.5.41.
Talmuds, account of, Mat.15.2.
Tammuz, or Adonis, account of, Eze.8.14.
Tanach, probably the same as Aner, situation of, 1Ch.6.70.
Tares properly darnel, Mat.13 27.
Tarshish, situation of, 1Ki.22.48.2Ch.9.21 ; 20.36.
————, used for the East, Is.66.19.
Tarsus, description of, Ac.21.39 ; 22.28.
Tartan, signification of, 2Ki.18.17.
Task-masters, Egyptian, Ex.5.6.
Tatnai, account of, Ezr.5.3.
Taverns, three, situation of, Ac.28.15.
Teil tree, description of, Is.6.13.
Tekoah, situation and description of, 2Sa.14.2.
Tel-abib, situation of, Eze.3.15.
Telassar, probable situation of, Is.37.12.
Tel-harsa, and Tel-haresha, the same, Ne.7.61.
Teman, or Temani, situation of, Ge.36.34.
——, used for Idumea, Ob.9.
Temple, Solomon's, size of, 1Ki.6.2.
————, a fast kept by the Jews for the destruction of, by Nebuchadnezzar, Je.52.12.
Temple, second, magnitude and beauty of the stones with which it was built, Ma.13.1.
Temple, adorned and enriched with gifts, Lu.21.5.
————, now the glory of the second, surpassed that of the first, Hag.2.9.
Temple, total demolition of by Titus, according to the prediction of Christ, Mat.24.2.
Temple of Ezekiel, vast dimensions of, probably shows that it is to be understood mystically, Eze.42.16.
Temple, described by Ezekiel, probable reference of, Eze.40.2.
Tempt, meaning of the word, Ge.22 1.
Ten times, the phrase used as an indefinite number, Ge.31.7.
Tent, women's, distinct from that of the men in the East, Ge.24.67.
Tents used by persons of royal dignity, 1Ki.20.12.
Teraphim, description of, Ge.31.19.
Terebinth, or turpentine tree, description of, Is.6.13.
Testament, properly covenant, He.7.22 ; 9.20.
Tetrarch, signification of, Lu.9.7.
Thanah, and Tamah, the same in the original, Ne.7.55.
Thebez, situation of, Ju.9.50.
Thessalonica, description of, Ac.17.1.
Theudas, account of, Ac.5.36.
Thigh, smiting on, an expression of deep affliction, Eze.21.12.
Thigh, inscriptions on customary, Re 19.16.
Think used for what is certain, 1Co 7 40.

THI

Thirty, word so rendered, probably means captains, 2Sa.23.13,59.
Thistle, word so rendered, probably the black thorn, 2Ki.14.9.
Thorns, crown of, what, Jn.19.2.
Thought, to take no, meaning of word so rendered, Mat.6.25.
Three and four, singular use of, illustrated, Am.1.11.
Threshold, those who leap on, who, Zep.1.9.
Threshing, account of the eastern modes of, Is.41.15.
Threshing, with oxen, description of, De.25.4.
Threshing floors, description of ancient ones, 2Sa.24.18.2Ch.18.9.
Throne, used for a palace, Ne.3.7.
Thumbs and great toes, cutting off of, not unusual in ancient times, Ju.1.7.
Thunder, cause of, Job 38.26.
Thyatira, description of, Re.2.18.
Tiberias, description of, Jn.6.23.
Tiglath-pileser, account of, 2Ki.15.29.
Tiles and bricks, anciently used as tablets, Eze.4.1.
Timbrel, description of, Ex.15.20.
Time, a year in prophetic language, Da.4.16.
——, process of, meaning of, Ge.4.3.
Timna, the concubine of Eliphaz, 1Ch.1.36.
Timnath, situation of, Ge.38.12.
Tirhakah, account of, 2Ki.19.9.
Tirshatha, signification of, Ezr.2.33.
Tirzah, account of, 1Ki.14.17.
Title on the cross, the apparent discrepancies between the accounts of, reconciled, Jn.19.19.
Titus called the prince, Da.9.26.
Tob, land of, where situated, Ju.11.3.
Toi, probably a mistake for Tou, 1Ch.18.9.
Tokens of God, at which men are afraid, what, Ps.65.8.
Tongue, a soft one, how said to break a bone, Pr.25.15.
Tongue, a lying one, hates those whom it afflicts, Pr.26.28.
Topaz, description of, Ex.28.17.
Tophel, a place near Moab, De.1.1.
Topheth, account of, Is.30.33.
Tortoise, word so rendered, a kind of lizard, Le.11.29.
Towers built in the desert, for what purpose, 2Ch.26.15.
Trachonitis, description of, Lu.3.1.
Tradition, import of, Mat.15.2.
Traffic, a land of, Chaldea so called, Eze.17.4.
Transposition, instance of, 1Sa.17.31.
Travellers, food used by, in the East, 2Sa.17.28.
Treasures, word so rendered illustrated, Da.3.3.
Tree, high, an emblem of Jeconiah, Eze.17.24.
——, low, and also green, emblem of Zedekiah, Eze.17.24.
Tree, dry, an emblem of the low state of the family of David, Eze.17.24.
Trees, longevity of, Is65.22.
——, all, of the field, a metaphor for all the inhabitants of the earth, Eze.17.24.
Trees for meat, probably emblematical, of believers, Eze.47.12.
Trench, import of word so rendered, 1Sa.26.5.
——, or rampart, Jerusalem surrounded with one by Titus, Lu.19.43.
Trespass-offerings and sin-offerings, distinction between, Le.5 6.
Tribes of Israel, number of, Nu.1.21,42.
——, order of their inheritance, Nu.34.17.
Tribute money, what, Mat.17.24.
Triumph, cause to, an allusion to triumphal processions, 2Co.2.14.
Troas, situation of, Ac.20.5,6.
Trogyllium, situation of, Ac.20.13.
Troop, meaning of word so rendered, Am.9.6.
Trumpet, description of, 1Ch.15.20.
Trumpets, form and uses of, Nu.10.2.
———— of ram's horn, what, Jos.6.4.
——, feast of, Nu 29.1.
Tubal, the Tibarenians, Is.66.19.Eze.32.26.
—— and Javan used for the north, Is.66.19.
Turks, predictions respecting, Re.9.17.
Twig, a tender, an emblem of the Messiah, Eze.17.22.
Twigs, young, of the cedar, an emblem of the princes of Judah, Eze.17.4.
Tyre, description and history of, Is.23.1.
——, a colony of the Zidonians, Is.23.12.
——, why called the daughter of Tarshish, Is.23.10.
Tyre, Nebuchadnezzar employed 13 years in the siege of, and found nothing worth his labour, Eze.29 18.
Tyre and Sidon taken by Alexander, Zec.9.2.
——, fulfilment of predictions concerning, Eze.26.3,12,14.
Tyre, prince of, who, Eze.28.1.

UNCOVERED, frequent meaning of the phrase in Scripture, 2Sa.5.20.
Understanding, import of the term, Ex.35.31.
Unicorn, or rhinoceros, description of, Nu.23.22.
Unjust, heathen magistrates so called, 1Co.6.1.
Ur, probably Ouri in Mesopotamia, Ge.11.31.
Urim and Thummim, description of, Ex.28.30.
Utter, import of the word, Eze.40.37.
Uz, land of, where situated, Job 1.1.
Uzziel, probably a mistake for Azareel, 1Ch.25.18.

VAIL, word so rendered, probably a finer kind of hyke, Ru.3.15.
Valley, word so rendered also means a torrent, De.21.4.
Van of the ancients, description of, Is.30.28.
Vanity, original sense of the word so rendered, Ps.144.4.
Vapours, ascension of, caused by God, Ps.135.7.
Vashti, noble conduct of, Es.1.12.
Veil, indecency of appearing without one in the East, Pr.7.13.

VEI

Vessel, extensive use of the word, Ge.24.53.
———————, Ac.10.11.
Vine, uselessness of, when cut down, Eze.15.2.
Vinegar used with bread in the East, Ru.2.14.
——, effects on the teeth, illustrated, Pr.10.28.
——, meaning of, Mat.27.34.
Virgin, applied to unmarried persons of both sexes, 1Co.7.25.
Virgins, a custom in the East for young men that were never married always to marry them, Is.62.5.
Vision, valley of, a periphrasis for Jerusalem, Is.22.1.
Volume, import of the word, Eze.2 9.
Vows, laws of, Nu 30 2.
——, estimation and redemption of, Le.27.2..22.
——, execrable ones practised by the Jews, Ac.23.12.
Vulture, meaning of word so rendered, Job 28.7

WAIT, meaning of word so rendered, Ps.37.34
Walls very high in the East, De.1.28.
——, building of extensive ones, in short periods, Ne.6.15
War, time of year to which it was limited in the East, 2Sa.11.1.
Warriors, ancient mode of summoning, Ju.19.29.1Sa.11.7.
Warriors, anciently buried in their armour, with their swords under their heads, Eze.32.27.
Washing the hands a symbolical action, De.21.6.
Washings, high importance of, among the Jews, Ma.7.3.
Watcher, who, Da.4.13.
Watches, night, division of, among the Jews, Ps.119.148.
Watches, division of the night into, Mat.14.25.
Watchmen, account of the singular practices of Eastern, Is.62.6.
Water, of what it is composed, Job 38.26.
——, exact proportion of, for evaporation, &c. Job 28.26
Water, creation of the world from, 2Pe.3.5.
——— of Egypt very delicious, Ex.7.18.
——, appearance of, as blood, probable cause of, 2Ki.3.22.
Water, drawing and pouring out of, meaning of the ceremony, 1Sa.7.6.
Water, pouring of, on the hands of a person, a mark of servitude, 2Ki.3.11
Water gate, where situated, Ne.3.26
——— pots anciently used, description of, Jn.4.46.
Waters issuing from the temple, probable meaning of, Eze.47.1.
Waters of the Dead sea, healing of, its probable meaning, Eze.47.8.
Waters of separation, what, Nu.19.9.
Water-spout, description of, Ps.42.7.
Wave-offering, description of, Ex.29.27.
Way, preparing and making straight, a practice among Eastern monarchs, Is.40.3.
Way, used for the right way, Pr.23.19.
Wean, import of the word, Ge.21.8.
Weapons of war, length of time required to burn, illustrated, Eze.39.9.
Weasel, word so rendered, the mole, Le.11.29.
Week, in prophetic language, seven years, Da.9.24.
Weeks, seventy, Daniel's prophecy of, Da.9.24,&c.
Weights, divers, prohibited, De.25.13.
Well-favoured, meaning of, Ge.39.6.
Wells, importance of, in the East, Ge.21.25 ; 26.15.
——, great depth of in the East, Ge.26.22.
——, stones placed on the mouth of, Ge.29.2.
——, stopping up of, Ge.26.15.
——— frequented by banditti in the East, Ju.5.11.
Well-spring of life, import of, Pr.16.22.
Whale, word so rendered denotes any large fish, Mat.12.40.
Whale, Pharaoh compared to, Eze.32.5.
Wheat-harvest, thunder and rain unusual in, in Judea, 1Sa.12.17.
Wheel in the middle of a wheel, probable meaning of, Eze.1.16.
Wheel, the great aorta so called, Ec.12.6.
Whelps, emblems of young princes, Eze.19.2.
Whirlwinds, terrible effects of, in the East, Job 1.19.Is.21.1.Je.23.19
Whit, import of the word, 1Sa.3.18.
Whore, great, Papal Rome represented by, Re.17.1,3,&c
Whoredom, idolatry so called, Ho.1.2.Re.17 1
Whoring, import of, Le.17.7.
Wicked, prosperity of, thought by the heathen a reproach to God, Ps.73.3.
Widows in the East sometimes return to their father's house, Le.22.13.
Wilderness, inhabitants of, who, Is.42.11.
Willows, abundance of, at Babylon, Ps.137.2.
Wind, the weight of, the gravity of the atmosphere, Job 28.25
Windows of heaven, meaning of, Ge.7.11
———, those that look out at, the eyes so denominated, Ec.12 3
Wine, description of ancient, Ge 40 11.
——, mixed, what, Ps.73.8.Pr.23.30.
——— mingled with myrrh, probably the same as vinegar mingled with gall, Mat.27.34
Wings, great, used for extensive empire, Eze.17.3.
——, shadowing with, probably a periphrasis for Egypt, Is.18.1.
Wings of the morning, what, Ps.139.9.
Winnowing, eastern mode of, Ru.3.2.
Winter in Palestine, account of, Ezr.10.9
—— house, what, Je.36.22.
Wisdom, import of the term, Ex.35.31.
———, is strength, Pr.24 5.
———, why better than strength, Ec.9 14.
——— of God, probably a name assumed by our Lord, Lu.11 49
Wisdom of God, peculiar meaning of the phrase, 1Co.1.21
Wise man, strength of, Pr.24.5.
Wist, signification of, Ac.12.9

WOR

Wit, to meaning of, Ge.21.26; 24.21.
Witch, import of the term, De.18.10.
Wives sometimes purchased, Ge.29.18; 34.12.
——— of a king the property of his successor or conqueror, in the East, 2Sa.16.23.
Wizard, meaning of the term, De.18.10.
Wolf dwelling of, with the lamb, illustrated, Is.11.6.
Woman, disgraceful to be killed by, Je.9.54.
———, used as an honourable appellation, Jn.2.4.
Woman, in an ephah, emblem of the Jewish nation, Zec 5.6.
Women ordained as door-keepers, 1Ch 26 8.
——— employed to dance and sing before captive princes in the East, Je.38.22.
Women, apartments of, separated from those of the men, Ge.24.28.
Women, apartments of, inviolable in the East, Es.2.11.
Women of the emperor of China shut up in a palace on his death, 2Sa.20.3.
Women, two, with wings like a stork, an emblem of the Roman armies, Zec.5.6.
Wood-offering, feast of, Ne.10.34.
Word, frequently means a thing, Mat.4.4.
World, the term, applied to the Roman, Chinese, and Persian empires, &c. Ge.41.45.
World, how said not to be able to contain all the books that might be written of Jesus, Jn.21.25.

ZEC

Wot, meaning of, Ge.21.26.
Writing, various modes of, Job 19.23.

XERXES, his riches and wars foretold, Da.11.2.

YEAR, how crowned by the goodness of God, Ps.65.11.
Year, in a certain one, frequently means after that period, 1Ki.18.1.
Year, solar, in use among the antediluvians, Ge.8.14.
Yoke, put on the necks of a new married couple by the ancients, Mat.19.6

ZAAVAN and Zavan, the same in the original, 1Ch.1.42.
Zabdi and Zimri, the same, 1Ch.2.6.
Zacher and Zechariah, the same, 1Ch.9.27.
Zair, probably the same as Seir, 2Ki.8.21.
Zanoah, where situated, Ne.3.13.
Zaphnath-paaneah, signification of the name, Ge.41.45.
Zarephath, the same as Sarepta, Lu.4.26.
Zarthan, situation of, 1Ki.7.46.
Zattu and Zatthu, the same in the original, Ne.10.14.
Zebulun, import of the name, Ge.30.20.
———, town of, where situated, Jos.19.27.
Zechariah, son of Jehoiada, barbarous murder of, 2Ch.24.22.

ZOR

Zedekiah, the captivity of, foreshown, Eze 12.5,6,13
Zelotes, meaning of, Mat.3.18.
Zemaraim, situation of, 2Ch.13.4.
Zephaniah, the second priest, Je 29.25.
Zephathath, valley of, where situated, 2Ch.14.10.
Zephi and Zepho, variation of, caused by the mutation of two letters, 1Ch.1.36.
Zered, brook, description of, De.2.13.
Zererath, probably Zartanah, Ju.7 22.
Zeri and Izri, the same, 1Ch.25.11
Zerubbabel, Messiah so called, Hag 2 23.
Zethar, Zaecur, and Zabdi, the same, Ne 11 17.
Zidon, now Saide, situation of. Ju.1.31.
———, fulfilment of the propnecies against, Eze.28.21
Ziklag, situation of, 1Sa.27.6.
Zin, wilderness of, where situated, Nu.13.21.
Zion literally ploughed like a field, and a description of its present state, Je.26.18.
Ziph, wilderness of, situation of, 1Sa.23.14.
———, town of, situation of, Jos.15.24.
Ziz, cliff, situation of, 2Ch.20.16.
Zizah, probably written Zina by mistake, 1Ch.23.10.
Zoan, situation of, Ge.13.10.
———, or Tanis, account of, Ps.78.12.
Zobah, situation of, 2Sa.8.5.
Zorah, situation of, Jos.19.41.
Zoreah, Zorah, and Zareah, the same in the original, Ne.11.29.
Zoreah, situation of, Jos.15.33

A CHRONOLOGICAL INDEX TO THE HOLY BIBLE,

ACCORDING TO THE COMPUTATION OF ARCHBISHOP USHER;

SHOWING IN WHAT YEAR OF THE WORLD, AND WHAT YEAR BEFORE CHRIST, OR AFTER CHRIST, EACH EVENT HAPPENED, AND THE PLACES OF SCRIPTURE WHERE THEY ARE RECORDED; INTERSPERSED WITH THE PRINCIPAL EVENTS IN PROFANE HISTORY.

It may be necessary here to premise a few observations in explanation of the various eras introduced into this work, by which any year of these eras which corresponds to a given year of the Christian era, or the year of the world, may be easily discovered by the application of the rules of addition or subtraction. The Alexandrian era is that chronological computation which was used by the people of Alexandria, who reckoned 5502 years before A. D. The Antiochian era is a correction of the preceding, made in the fourth century, by Pandorus, an Egyptian monk, and used by the people of Antioch; and it differs from the Alexandrian only by subtracting ten years. The Constantinopolitan era is that used by the Byzantine historians, and by the Greek church, which reckons 5508 years before Christ. The Julian Period is a factitious era, conceived by Joseph Scaliger, to facilitate the reduction of the years of any given epoch to that of another; and is the result of the lunar and solar cycles, and the indictions, multiplied by each other. Thus, 19, the lunar cycle, multiplied by 28, the solar cycle, produces 532, which multiplied by 15, the cycle of indictions, amounts to 7980 years, which constitute the Julian Period; in the first year of which all these three cycles begin together; and in the 4714th year of which falls the first year of the Christian era. The Solar Cycle is a revolution consisting of 28 years; the Lunar Cycle, or Golden Number, of 19; the Cycle of Indictions, of 15 years; and the Dionysian Period, of 532, being the product of the Solar and Lunar Cycles multiplied by each other, called also the Paschal Cycle, because in that period the Christian Passover, or Easter, a moveable feast, has gone through all possible variations, and the Solar and Lunar Cycles, Dominical, or Sunday Letters, Paschal Terms, Epacts, New Moons, &c. all recommence exactly as they had done 532 years before. The Nabonassarean era takes its name from Nabonassar king of Babylon, and commences 747 years before A. D. The era of Iphitus, king of Elis, took its rise 884 years before Christ, in consequence of his restoration of the Olympic games. The Olympiads derive their origin from the institution of the Olympic games, which were celebrated every four years, at the time of the first new moon after the summer's solstice; and the first Olympiad is commonly reckoned from the conquest of Olympia by Corœbus, B. C. 776: it need scarcely be added, that each Olympiad consists of four years. The year of the building of Rome, (A.U.C.) is an important era among the Roman historians, and commenced, according to Varro, which is generally received, B. C. 753; but according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, B. C. 752; according to Polybius, B. C. 751; and according to Fabius Pictor, B. C. 747.

The Samaritan Pentateuch places the primordial epoch B. C. 4700; the Septuagint, 5872; the Talmudists, 5344; Scaliger, 3950; Petavius, 3984; and Dr. Hales, 5411; who enumerates above 120 various opinions on this subject, the difference between the latest and remotest date of which is no less than 3268. The generally received epoch of 4004, B. C., however, seems to be as well established as any other; and it is worthy of remark, that the celebrated astronomer La Place has observed, that that year was distinguished as a remarkable astronomical epoch; the earth's orbit then coinciding with the line of the equinoxes, and consequently the true and mean equinoxes being united.

PERIOD I.

From the Creation to the Deluge, 1656 years.

A.M.	B.C.
1	4004	The creation of all things in six days	Ge.1.11.
2	4003	The fall of Adam, and the promise of a Saviour	iii.
		The birth of Cain and Abel, and their subsequent occupation and character	4.1..7.
129	3875	The murder of Abel, and punishment of Cain	4.8..15.
130	3874	The birth of Seth, Adam his father being 130 years old	4.25; 5.3,4.
235	3769	Enos born, Seth his father being 105 years old	4.26; 5.6.
325	3679	Cainan born, when Enos his father is 90	5.9.
395	3609	Mahalaleel born, when Cainan is 70	12.
460	3544	Jared born, when Mahalaleel is 65	15.
622	3382	Enoch born, Jared being 162	18, 19.
687	3317	Methuselah born, Enoch being 65	21, 22.
874	3130	Lamech, father of Noah, born, Methuselah being 187	25.
930	3074	Adam dies, aged 930 years	4, 5.
987	3017	Enoch is translated, aged 365 years	23, 24.
1042	2962	Seth dies, aged 912 years	7, 8.
1056	2948	Noah is born, his father Lamech being 182	28, 29.
1140	2864	Enos dies, aged 905 years	11.
1235	2769	Cainan dies, aged 910 years	13, 14.
1290	2714	Mahalaleel dies, aged 895 years	16, 17.
1422	2582	Jared dies, aged 962 years	19, 20.
1536	2468	God denounces the Deluge, and commands Noah to build the ark, and to preach repentance to a guilty world, 120 years before the flood came	6.3..22. He.11.7. 1 Pe. 3.20. 2Pe.2.5.
1556	2448	Japhet born, his father Noah being 500 years old	Ge.5.32; 10.21..
1558	2446	Shem, the second son of Noah, born	32.
1560	2444	Birth of Ham, third son of Noah	32.
1651	2353	Lamech, the father of Noah, dies, aged 777	30, 31.
1656	2348	Methuselah, the oldest man, dies, aged 969 years in the same year, and in the 600th year of Noah's age, the Flood comes upon the earth, and destroys all its inhabitants, except Noah and those with him in the ark	26, 27. vii.Jot 22.16. Mat.24.37. Lu.17. 26. 1Pe.3.19,20. 2Pe.2. 5; 3.6.

PERIOD II.

From the Deluge to the call of Abraham, 420 years, 6 months.

A.M.	B.C.
1657	2347	Noah and his family, &c. leave the ark after the deluge	Ge.viii.15.
1658	2346	Arphaxad, son of Shem, born	11.10,11.
1693	2311	Salah, son of Arphaxad, born	12
1723	2281	Eber, son of Salah, born	14
1757	2247	Peleg, son of Eber, born	16.
1757	2247	About this time the tower of Babel is built, which is followed by the confusion of languages and the dispersion of mankind	Ge.11.1..9.
1771	2235	About this time Nimrod builds Nineveh, and founds the Assyrian empire	10.8..11.
		Astronomical observations began at this time to be made at Babylon; for Callisthenes sent Aristotle a register of them for 1903 years, extending back from the taking of that city by Alexander, B. C. 331	Porphyr. ap. Simplic. l. ii. de Cœlo.
1787	2217	Reu, son of Peleg, born	Ge.11.18.
1816	2188	Mizraim, grandson of Ham, founds the Egyptian empire; which continues 1663 years, till the conquest of Egypt by Cambyses	Ps.105.23. Is.19. 11. Constant. Man. in Annal.
1819	2185	Serug, son of Reu, born	Ge.11.20.
1849	2155	Nahor, son of Serug, born	22.
1878	2126	Terah, son of Nahor and father of Abram, born	24, 25.
1920	2084	About this time Ægialeus founds the kingdom of Sicyon	Eusebius in Chron. p. 19.
1948	2056	Nahor and Haran, sons of Terah, born	Ge.11.26.
1996	2008	Peleg, son of Eber, and sixth from Noah, dies, aged 239	19.
1997	2007	Nahor, son of Serug, and ninth from Noah, dies, aged 148	25.
2006	1998	Noah dies, aged 950, 390 years after the flood	29.
2008	1996	Abram, son of Terah, born	26, 32. Ac.7.4.
2018	1986	Sarai, afterwards wife of Abram, born	Ge.11.29, 30. 17.17; 20.12.
2026	1978	Reu, son of Peleg, and seventh from Noah, dies	Ge.11.21.
2049	1955	Serug, son of Reu, and eighth from Noah, dies	23.
2079	1925	Chedorlaomer, king of Elam, subdues the kings of Sodom, Gomorrah, &c. who serve him twelve years	14.4.
2082	1922	The call of Abram from Ur of the Chaldees to Haran in Mesopotamia, where his father Terah dies, aged 205 years	11.31, 32. Ne.9.7, 8. Ac 7.2, 3.

PERIOD III.

From the second call of Abraham to the Exodus of the Israelites, 430 years.

A.M.	B.C.
2083	1921	Abram, at God's command, leaves Haran, and comes to sojourn in Canaan, in his 75th year	Ge.12.1..4. Jos.24. 2,3. Ac.7.4,5. Ho. 11.8.
2084	1920	Abram goes into Egypt because of a famine, and causes Sarai to pass for his sister. Pharoah (Apophis) takes her to his house, but soon restores her	Ge. 12. 10, &c. Ps. 105. 9..15. Ga.3.17.

A.M.	B.C.
2086	1918	Abram and Lot return to Canaan, and separate: Lot goes to Sodom, and Abram to the valley of Mamre	Ge.xiii.
2090	1914	The kings of Sodom and Gomorrah, &c. revolt from Chedorlaomer king of Elam	14. 4, &c.
2091	1913	Chedorlaomer and his allies subdue the king of Sodom and his confederates, and take Lot captive; but Abram pursues and vanquishes them, and rescues Lot, and is blessed by Melchizedek, to whom he gives a tenth of the spoils	4..20.
		God makes a covenant with Abram, promises him a numerous posterity, and Canaan for their inheritance	He.7.1..11. Ge.xv. Ne.9.7,8. Ac.7.6. Gal.3.17.
		About this time Bela, the first king of Edom, begins to reign	Ge.36.32.
2092	1911	Sarah, being barren, gives Hagar to Abram	16.1,2. &c.
2094	1910	Ishmael, son of Abram and Hagar, born	15; 25.12.
2096	1908	Arphaxad, the third from Noah, dies, aged 438	11.13.
2107	1897	God covenants with Abram, changes his name to Abraham, institutes circumcision, and promises Isaac by Sarai, whom he calls Sarah	17.5, &c.
		Abraham entertains three angels, who renew the promise of Isaac's birth, and foretel the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, for which Abraham intercedes	xviii. He.13.2.
		Sodom and Gomorrah, &c. destroyed by fire from heaven; Lot is preserved, and retires to Zoar, and thence to the mountains	Ge.xix. Isa.1.9, 10. Eze 16.46., 50. 2Pe.2.6..8. Jude 7.
		Abraham retires to Beer-sheba, and thence to Gerar, where Abimelech, the king, takes Sarah to wife, but is obliged to restore her	Ge.xx.
2108	1896	Isaac is born in the 100th year of Abraham	21.2,3. Ac.7.8. Ro.9.9. He.11. 11,12.
		Moab and Ben-ammi, sons of Lot, born	Ge.19.36.
2114	1892	Abraham sends away Ishmael and Hagar	Ge.21.9. Ga 4.22,31.
2126	1878	Salah, the fourth from Noah, dies	Ge.11.15.
2132	1872	To prove Abraham's faith, God commands him to sacrifice his son Isaac	xxii. He.11. 17..19. Ja.2.21
2135	1869	About this time Jobab, second king of Edom, begins to reign	Ge.36.33.
2145	1859	Sarah dies at Hebron, aged 127 years	23.1,2.
2148	1856	Isaac marries Rebekah, in his 40th year	xxiv.
		About this time the kingdom of Argos was founded by Inachus	Euseb.in Chr.
2150	1854	About this time, Abraham marries Keturah, by whom he has several children	Ge.25.1..11.
2158	1846	Shem, the son of Noah, dies	11 10,11.
2168	1836	Jacob and Esau born, Isaac being 60 years of age	25 24.
2177	1827	About this time, Husham, third king of Edom, begins to reign	36.34.
2183	1821	Abraham dies, aged 175 years	25.7.
2187	1817	Eber, the fifth from Noah, dies, aged 464	11.17.
2230	1774	Isaac covenants with Abimelech, king of Gerar	xxvi.
2238	1766	Esau marries two Canaanitish women	26.34.
2249	1755	About this time Hadad, fourth king of Edom, begins to reign	36.35.
2251	1753	Ishmael dies, aged 137 years	25.9.
2252	1752	Evechous begins to reign over the Chaldeans	Jul.Africanus.
2244	1760	Jacob having fraudulently obtained the blessing from Isaac, flees into Mesopotamia from the rage of Esau, and serves Laban, his mother's brother	Ge.xxvii.xxviii. 29.1..14.
		About this time Ogyges begins to reign in Attica, in whose time a remarkable deluge happens in his kingdom	Euseb.Chron. Num.266.
2251	1753	After seven years service, Jacob marries Leah and Rachel	Ge.29.15..30.
2252	1752	Reuben, son of Jacob and Leah, born	32.
2253	1751	Simeon, son of Leah, born	33.
2254	1750	Levi, son of Leah, born	34.
2255	1749	Judah, son of Leah, born	Ge.29.35.
2256	1748	Dan, son of Jacob and Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid, born	30 5,6.
2257	1747	Gad, son of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid, born	10,11.
		Naphtali, son of Bilhah, born	7,8.
		Asher, son of Zilpah, born	12,13.
		Issachar, son of Leah, born	17,18.
2258	1746	Zebulun, son of Leah, born	19..20.
2259	1745	Dinah, daughter of Leah, born	21.
		Joseph, son of Rachel, born, Jacob being about 90	23,24.
2261	1743	About this time Samlah, fifth king of Edom, begins to reign	36.36.
2265	1739	Jacob, having served Laban twenty years, sets out with his family to return to Canaan. Laban pursues him, but is pacified. Jacob meets with angels at Mahanaim, with God at Penuel, and with Esau, who receives him with affection; and he safely arrives at Shechem, where he dwells	xxxi.. xxxiii.
2272	1732	Dinah is ravished, and the Shechemites murdered	xxxiv.
		Jacob removes to Bethel, where Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, dies	35.1..15.
		Rachel dies in childbed of Benjamin	16..20.
2276	1728	Joseph is sold by his brethren to the Midianites, who sell him to Potiphar the Egyptian	xxxvii.
2283	1721	Pharez and Zarah, the twin sons of Judah, by Tamar, born about this time	xxxviii.
2285	1719	Joseph, through the false accusation of his mistress, is thrown into prison	xxxix. 35.28.
2288	1716	Isaac dies, aged 180 years
2289	1715	Joseph interpreting Pharaoh's prophetic dreams, is made lord of the land; and the seven years of plenty commence	xli. Ac.7.10. Ps.105.19..21.
2292	1712	About this time is born Manasseh, Joseph's first-born	Ge.41.51.
2291	1711	About this time is born Ephraim, Joseph's second son	41.52.
2296	1708	Commencement of the seven years' famine	53..57.
2297	1707	Jacob sends his sons to Egypt to buy corn	xlii.
2298	1706	Jacob having sent them again with Benjamin, Joseph makes himself known to his brethren, and engages them to come to Egypt with their father, then 130 years old	xliii..xlvi. Jos.24.4. Ps.105.17..23. Ac.7.11..15.
2300	1704	Joseph sells corn to the Egyptians, and gets all the money of Egypt into the royal treasury	Ge 47.14.
2301	1703	He gets all the cattle for the king	47.16.
2302	1702	The Egyptians sell their lands and liberties	18, &c.
2303	1701	The seven years of famine end, and Joseph returns the Egyptians their land and cattle	23..26.
		About this time Saul, sixth king of Edom, begins to reign	36 37.

A.M.	B.C.
2315	1689	Jacob having blessed his sons, dies in Egypt, aged 147, and is buried in Canaan	48.4..13.
2345	1659	About this time Baal-hanan, seventh king of Edom, begins to reign	36.38.
2369	1635	Joseph dies, aged 110 years	4.22..26 Heb.11.22.
2375	1629	About this time Acencres son of Orus begins to reign in Egypt, and reigns 12 years and one month
2385	1619	The Cushites, from beyond the Indus, settle in Egypt
2387	1617	About this time Hadar, or Hadad, eighth and last king of Edom, begins to reign	Ge.36.39.
		Rathotis, brother of Acencres, begins to reign over the Egyptians about this time, and reigns 9 years
2396	1608	Acencheres, son of Rathotis, succeeds his father, and reigns 12 years and six months
2409	1595	Ancencheres succeeds Acencheres, and reigns 12 years and six months
2421	1583	Armais succeeds Ancencheres, and reigns 4 years and one month
		About this time Kohath, son of Levi, dies, aged 133	Exod.6.18.
2425	1579	Rameses succeeds Armais, and reigns one year and four months
2427	1577	Rameses Miamun succeeds Rameses, and reigns 67 years, and cruelly persecutes the Israelites	Exod.1.8, &c.
2429	1575	About this time the regal government of the Edomites is abolished, and the first aristocracy of dukes begins	Ge.36.15,16.
2430	1574	Aaron, son of Amram and Jochebed, born	Ex.6.20; 7,7
2431	1573	About this time Pharaoh orders all the male children of the Hebrews to be drowned	1.22.
2433	1571	Moses is born, and adopted by Pharaoh's daughter	2.1..10.
2448	1556	The kingdom of Athens founded about this time by Cecrops. The Parian marbles place it 26 years earlier	Euseb.in.Chr Num.460. Ep. Marm.
2465	1539	The Chaldeans wage war with the Phœnicians
2466	1538	About this time the Arabians subdue the Chaldeans, and take possession of their country
2471	1533	About this time the second aristocracy of Edomitish dukes begins	Ge.36.40..43.
2473	1531	Moses, being 40 years of age, kills an Egyptian, whom he found smiting a Hebrew; in consequence of which he flies to Midian, and there marries Zipporah	Exod.2.11..13 Ac.7.23..29. Heb.11.24..26.
2474	1530	Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, is born	Jos.14.7,10.
2494	1510	Rameses Miamun, king of Egypt, dies about this time, and is succeeded by his son Amenophis, who reigns 19 years and six months
2495	1509	Amram, father of Moses and Aaron, dies about this time
2513	1491	God appears to Moses in a burning bush, while keeping the flocks of Jethro at Horeb, and sends him to deliver Israel	Exod.iii.iv.
		Pharaoh refuses to set the Israelites at liberty, and increases their burdens. Moses, by God's direction, inflicts ten plagues on him and his people; after which the Israelites are expelled from Egypt, on the 14th or 15th of the month Abib	v..xiii.
2501	1503	The Deluge of Deucalion in Thessaly is supposed to have happened about this time PERIOD IV.

From the Exodus of the Israelites to their settlement in Canaan, at the death of Joshua, 48 years.

A.M.	B.C.
2513	1491 Abib	The Israelites, by several encampments, arrive at the Red Sea; where being overtaken by Pharoah, God opens a passage for them through the sea, through which they pass as on dry ground, which the Egyptians essaying to do, are all drowned	Ex.13.20..22. xiv.; 15.1..22.
	Ijar or Zif	From Marah, where they murmur because of the bitter water, they come to Elim at the beginning of this month	15.23..27.
		On the 15th of the month, they come to the desert of Sin, where God sends manna and quails	xvi
		They arrive at Rephidim, where, upon their murmuring, God supplies them with water from a rock	17.1..7.
		Here the Amalekites attack them, and are defeated	8..16.
	Sivan	They arrive at mount Sinai, where God delivers the ten commandments and other precepts, and instructs Moses concerning the formation of the tabernacle, the priests' garments, the dedication of Aaron and his sons to the priesthood, &c.	xix..xxxi.
	Ab	Moses delaying to come down from the mount, the people make a molten calf and worship it. Moses, in descending, seeing their idolatry, is distressed, and breaks the tables of the law, burns and destroys the idol, puts 3000 of the idolaters to death, and intercedes for the rest of the people	xxxii.
		Moses is again called up to the mount, where God renews the covenant, writes the two tables again, and shows him a glimpse of his glory	Ex.33.18..23. xxxiv.
2514	1490 Tisri	From this time to the month Adar, Bezaleel, Aholiab, and their assistants, are employed in constructing the tabernacle, &c.	xxxv..xxxix
	Abib or Nisan	On the first of this month, being the first month of the second year of the Exodus, the tabernacle is erected, and Aaron and his sons consecrated	xl. Lev.1..xxvii.
		Nadab and Abihu, for offering strange fire, are struck dead with fire from heaven	Lev.x.
	Ijar or Zif	The people are numbered, formed into a regular camp, for the fixing and removal of which certain regulations are made, and the princes present offerings at the dedication of the tabernacle, &c.	Num.i..x.
		Jethro brings Zipporah and her sons, to Moses in the wilderness, and gives him advice concerning the best mode of governing the people, which Moses thankfully accepts, and God approves	Ex.xviii.
		The people lust for flesh; and God gives them quails in wrath, at Kibroth-hattaavah	Num xi

A. M.	B.C.
2514	1490	God punishes the sedition of Miriam and Aaron by the leprosy of Miriam, which he heals at the prayer of Moses	Num.xii.
		Having arrived at the wilderness of Paran, they send twelve chosen men, one of each tribe, to examine the land of Canaan; who, after forty days, return to Kadesh-barnea, and bring an evil report of the land. Caleb and Joshua withstand them; but the people murmur and rebel; and God swears in his wrath, that none of the murmurers shall enter the land, but be consumed in the desert, where they are doomed to wander 40 years. The people resolve to enter Canaan against the will of God, but are repulsed by the Amalekites	xiii. xiv.
2515	1489	The people continue many days at Kadesh-barnea, whence they depart towards the Red Sea	Deut.1.46.
2552	1452	Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, about this time rebel against Moses, and are swallowed up by the earth, with 250 of their associates; and 14,700 men are destroyed by a plague, for murmuring against Moses and Aaron, whose authority is fully established	Num.xv.xix.
2551	1453	The Olympic games first celebrated at Elis by the Idæa Dactyli
2553	1451	After wandering in the deserts of Arabia for 37 years, the Israelites arrive at Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin, where Miriam dies, aged 130, in the first month of the 40th year of their departure from Egypt	xxxiii. 20.1.
		The Israelites again murmur for want of water, which Moses, by God's direction, brings from a rock; but he and Aaron having shown some distrust, God forbids their entrance into Canaan	2..13.
		Moses sends ambassadors to the king of Edom, who refuses a passage through his territories	14..21.
		From Kadesh they go to mount Hor, where Aaron dies and is buried, aged 123 years	22..29.
		The king of Arad attacks the Israelites, and takes several captives	21.1..3.
		Departing from mount Hor, to compass the land of Edom, the people murmur at the length of the way, and are plagued with fiery serpents; but, on their repentance, they are healed by a brazen serpent	4..9.
		About the end of this year, all those who murmured against God being dead, the Israelites pass over the brook Zered, and come to the borders of Moab; where they defeat Sihon king of the Amorites, and Og king of Bashan, who came against them	10..35.
		Balak king of Moab sends for Balaam to curse the Israelites; but he is constrained by the Spirit of God to bless them altogether	Num.xxii..xxiv.
		By the advice of Balaam, the women of Moab and Midian seduce the Israelites to commit whoredom and idolatry, in consequence of which 24,000 of the people are destroyed	Num.xxv. De.4.3. Ps. 106.23. 1Co.10.8. Re. 2.14.
		The Israelites are again numbered by Moses and Eleazar, in the plains of Moab, opposite Jericho	Num.xxvi.
		Various laws are given respecting the inheritance of daughters, offerings, feasts, and vows	xxvii..xxx.
		The Israelites vanquish the Midianites, and slay Balaam, all the males, and all the women, except virgins	xxxi. Jos.13.21,22.
		The lands of Sihon and Og are divided among the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh	Num.xxxii. De.iii.
	Sebat	Moses, in the prospect of death, renews the covenant of Israel with Jehovah, recapitulates various laws and ordinances, blesses each of the tribes, and ascending mount Nebo, there dies, aged 120, and is succeeded by Joshua	De.i..xxxiv.
	Adar	Joshua being confirmed in his government by God, sends spies from Shittim to Jericho	Jos.i.ii.
	Abib	On the tenth day of this month, the Israelites, under the conduct of Joshua, pass the Jordan dry shod	iii.iv.
		The following day Joshua renews circumcision	Jos.5.1..9.
		On the 14th of the same month, they keep the passover	10.
		The next day the manna ceases	11,12.
		Jericho is taken on the 7th day, the walls falling down at the sound of the priests' trumpets; when all the inhabitants are slain, except Rahab and her family	vi.
		The Israelites are smitten before Ai, in consequence of Achan's sacrilege; which being expiated by his death, Ai is taken and utterly destroyed	vii.viii.
2554	1450	The Gibeonites having craftily obtained a covenant with Joshua, five kings of Canaan, who had combined against Israel, make war upon them, and are defeated by Joshua, at which time the sun stands still	ix.x.
2559	1445	The conquest of Canaan is completed; and Joshua, at God's command, begins to divide the land	xi..xvii.
2560	1444	The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh, the rest of the land is divided, and the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, are dismissed to their possessions east of Jordan	xviii..xxii.
2561	1443	Joshua having gathered together all Israel, exhorts them to obedience, renews the covenant between them and God, and dies, aged 110 years	xxiii.xxiv.

PERIOD V.

From the settlement of the Israelites in the land of Canaan to the building of Solomon's temple, 440 years.

A.M.	B.C.
2385	1419	After the death of Joshua, and the elders who succeeded him, the Israelites do evil in the sight of the Lord; Micah makes an image, which the Danites seize upon, and so establish idolatry at Dan; and the Levite's concubine is abused and killed by the men of Gibeah, which causes a destructive war between the Benjamites and the other tribes	Judg.xvii..xxi.
2591	1413	God delivers the Israelites into the hands of Chushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia, whom they serve eight years	3.8.
2634	1406	Minos, king of Crete, issues his celebrated laws; and about the same time iron is discovered by the Dactyli by the accidental burning of the forests on mount Ida

A.M.	B.C.
2599	1405	Othniel conquers Chushan-rishathaim, delivers the Israelites, and governs them 40 years	Jud.3.10,11.
2618	1386	The Eleusinian mysteries are introduced at Athens by Eumolpus, son of Musæus
2662	1342	Othniel being dead, the Israelites again sin against God, and are delivered into the hands of Eglon, king of Moab, whom they serve 18 years	12..14.
2678	1326	The Isthmian games first instituted by Sisyphus, king of Corinth
2679	1325	Ehud slays Eglon, and delivers Israel	15..30.
		After him, Shamgar slays 600 Philistines with an ox-goad, and avenges Israel	31.
2697	1307	The Olympic games established by Pelops, in honour of Jupiter, according to some
2699	1305	The Israelites having returned to their old sin of idolatry, after the death of Ehud, are delivered into the hand of Jabin, king of Canaan, whom they serve twenty years	4.1..3.
2719	1285	Deborah and Barak deliver them; and the land rests forty years after the former rest obtained by Ehud	4..24. v.
2737	1267	About this time Ninus, son of Belus, founds the Assyrian empire
2741	1263	The Argonautic expedition. The Pythian games first celebrated by Adrastus, king of Argos
2752	1252	The Israelites again sinning, are delivered into the hands of the Midianites for seven years	6.1..10.
		Tyre, or Tsor, is supposed to have been founded about this time by the Sidonians
2759	1245	Gideon delivers Israel, and governs them nine years	Ju.vii.; 8.1..3
2768	1236	Gideon dies, and the Israelites again fall into idolatry	8.33..35.
2769	1235	Abimelech, the son of Gideon by his concubine, slays 69 of his brethren, and is proclaimed king by the Shechemites	9.1..6.
2771	1233	He and his adherents quarrel and destroy one another, and he perishes at the siege of Thebez, according to the warning of Jotham	9.7..57.
2772	1232	Tola governs Israel 23 years	10.1,2
2773	1226	The Nemean games are instituted by Adrastus, in honour of Hercules and Jupiter
2779	1225	The Theban war of the seven heroes against Eteocles, commonly called the war of the Epigoni, is revived, and rages with great fury for ten years
2781	1223	The commencement of the kingdom of the Lydians, under Argon, who reigned at Sardis; which continued 505 years	Herodot.l.i c.7.
2789	1209	Jair succeeds Tola, and judges Israel 22 years	Jud.10.3.4
		Semiramis marries Ninus, and reigns 42 years over nearly the whole of Asia
2799	1205	The Israelites having again relapsed into idolatry, are delivered into the hands of the Philistines and Ammonites, whom they serve 18 years	6..8
2816	1188	Jair dies, having judged Israel 22 years	4.
2817	1187	Jephthah being made judge, defeats the Ammonites, slays 42,000 Ephraimites, and governs 6 years	xi.; 12 1..7.
2820	1184	Troy taken and burnt by the Greeks, after a siege of ten years. Æneas sails to Italy
2823	1181	Ibzan succeeds Jephthah, and judges Israel 7 years	12.8..10.
2830	1174	Elon succeeds Ibzan, and governs 10 years	11,12.
		Semiramis dies, aged 62, having reigned 42 years, and is succeeded by Ninyas
2840	1164	Abdon succeeds Elon, and judges Israel 8 years	13..15.
2848	1156	Eli, the high-priest, succeeds Abdon, and judges Israel 40 years	1Sam.4.18.
		The Israelites again provoke the Lord, who delivers them into the hands of the Philistines for forty years	Jud.13.1.z.
2849	1155	Samson is born at Zorah	24.
2867	1137	Samson marries at Timnath, and begins to deliver Israel: he continues 20 years	Judg.xiv.
2868	1136	He burns the corn of the Philistines, and kills a thousand of them with the jaw-bone of an ass	xv.
2887	1117	Samson is betrayed by Delilah, delivered into the hands of the Philistines, and has his eyes put out; and, while making sport for them, pulls down the temple of Dagon, and buries himself and multitudes in the ruins	xvi.
2888	1116	The ark is taken by the Philistines, and the two sons of Eli slain; who falls from his seat, and dies, aged 98	1Sam.iv.
2889	1115	The Philistines are constrained by Divine judgments to send back the ark, which is placed at Kiriath-jearim	v.; 7.1.2.
2900	1104	The Heraclidæ return into Peloponnesus, 80 years after the taking of Troy; and two years afterwards divide the country among them; whence begins the kingdom of Lacedæmon under Eurysthenes and Procles
2903	1096	The Israelites, by Samuel's instructions, solemnly repent at Mizpeh, and are delivered from the Philistines	7.3..17
2909	1095	Samuel, when old, employs his sons as judges under him, who by their misconduct, give the Israelites occasion to desire a king; and Saul, whom God had selected and commanded to anoint, is acknowledged king, after relieving Jabesh-Gilead	viii..xi
2911	1093	War with the Philistines, in which Saul rashly sacrifices, and is rejected by God	xiii.
2916	1088	The kingdom of Sicyon now ends
2917	1087	Jonathan, the son of Saul, smites a garrison of the Philistines, and obtains a complete victory over them	xiv.
2919	1085	David, the youngest son of Jesse, is born	17.12.
2925	1079	God finally rejects Saul, in consequence of his sparing Agag, king of the Amalekites, and the best of the spoil	xv.
2934	1070	The kingdom of Athens ends in the death of Codrus, and is afterwards governed by archons
2941	1063	Samuel is sent to Bethlehem to anoint David	xvi.
		David slays Goliath, the champion of the Philistines	xvii.
2942	1062	Saul, urged by jealousy, seeks to kill David, who escapes into the wilderness of Judea	xviii..xxiii.
2943	1061	David spares Saul's life, when in his power	xxiv. 25.1.
2944	1060	Samuel dies, and is buried at Ramah
		David marries Abigail, formerly wife of Nabal, and Ahinoam	25.2..29. xxvi.
		David again spares Saul's life
2946	1058	He flees to Achish at Gath, who gives him Ziklag	27.1.7.

A.M.	B.C.
2948	1056	He invades the Geshurites, Gerzites, and Amalekites, and puts them all to the sword	1Sam 8..12.
2949	1055	Saul is slain on mount Gilboa, in a war with the Philistines	xxv.ii...xxxi.
		David is anointed king by the tribe of Judah, at Hebron, where he reigns 7 years and 6 months	2Sam.1; 2..1..7.
		Abner makes Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, king over the rest of Israel, at Mahanaim	2Chr.12.23.
2951	1053	Amortal skirmish takes place between the soldiers of Joab, the nephew and general of David, and those of Abner, the general of Ishbosheth	2Sam.2..8..11.
2956	1048	Abner leaves Ishbosheth, resorts to David, and is treacherously murdered by Joab	2Sam.2.12..32.
		Ishbosheth being assassinated by Baanah and Rechab, David is anointed king over all Israel	iii. iv; 5.1..5. 1Chron.xi.
2957	1047	David taketh the fort of Zion from the Jebusites, and calls it the City of David; and making Jerusalem the seat of his government, he reigns there 33 years	2Sam 5.6.&c. vi.1Chr.xiii. xvi.2Chr.1.4.
2959	1045	David brings the ark of the covenant from Kirjath-jearim, and places it in Zion
2960	1044	David purposes to build a temple to Jehovah, but is informed by Nathan the prophet, that this should be accomplished by a son to be born to him	2Sam.vii. 1Chr.xvii.
		The settlement of the Ionian colonies in Asia Minor
2964	1040	David subdues the Philistines, Moabites, Syrians, and Edomites	1Sam.viii. 1Chr.xviii.
		David kindly provides for Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan	1Sam.ix.
2967	1037	David overcomes the Ammonites, whose king had insulted his ambassadors	2Sam.10.1..14.
2968	1036	David smites the Syrians, who had assisted the Ammonites	15..19.
2969	1035	While Joab besieges Rabbah, the capital of Ammon, David commits adultery with Bathsheba, whose husband Uriah he causes to be basely slain	xi; 1Ch.xx.
2970	1034	The child thus begotten in adultery being born, David is reproved for his crime by Nathan, and deeply repents	12.1..23.Ps.li.
2971	1033	Solomon is born of Bathsheba, and called Jedidiah	2Sa.12.24,25.
		Rabbah, the capital of Ammon, is taken, and the people totally subdued	26..31.
2972	1032	Amnon, David's eldest son, ravishes Tamar	13.1..22.
2974	1030	Absalom avengeth his sister Tamar, and slays Amnon; in consequence of which he flees to Geshur, to Talmai his maternal grandfather, where he remains three years	23..39.
2977	1027	David is induced by Joab to permit his return	14.1..21.
2979	1025	David is fully reconciled to him	28..33.
2980	1024	Absalom steals the hearts of the people	15.1..6.
2983	1021	He rebels against his father, and is killed by Joab	15.7, xix.
		The sedition of Bichri appeased by Joab	xx.
2986	1018	A famine sent to avenge the Gibeonites for the cruelty of Saul, and which had endured three years, is removed by delivering seven of his sons to them to be put to death	xxi.
2987	1017	David numbers Israel, and is punished by a dreadful pestilence	xxiv 2Ch xxi.
2988	1016	Rehoboam is born to Solomon, by Naamah, an Ammonitess	1Kl.14.21.
2989	1015	David dies, aged 70, and is succeeded by Solomon	i..ii.
2990	1014	Solomon marries the daughter of Pharaoh king of Egypt	3.1.2Ch.8.11
2992	1012	He lays the foundation of the temple, 480 years after the Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt	6.1.2Ch.3.1.
3000	1004	The temple is finished in the eleventh year of Solomon's reign, having been seven years and a half building	vi.vii. 2Ch.iii.iv.

PERIOD VI.

From the building of the Temple to the Babylonish captivity, 400 years.

A.M.	B.C.
3000	1004	Solomon dedicates the temple with great solemnity and joy, and peculiar tokens of Divine acceptance	1Kl.viii.lx. 2Chr.v..vii.
3013	991	Solomon finishes his palace, and that of his queen	1Kl.ix.
3014	990	The queen of Sheba visits Solomon	x.
3026	978	Jeroboam rebels against Solomon, and flies into Egypt	xi.26..40.
3029	975	Solomon, having reigned forty years, dies, and is succeeded by Rehoboam; who having answered the elders of Israel harshly, is rejected by the ten tribes; over whom Jeroboam begins to reign, Judah and Benjamin only adhering to the house of David	1Kl.11.41..43. xii. 2Chron.ix.
3030	974	Jeroboam, king of Israel, abolishes the worship of Jehovah, and establishes that of the golden calves at Dan and Bethel, and is reproved by a prophet from Judah, who disobeying God, is slain by a lion	1Kl.12.26..32. xiii.

That the chronology of the separate kingdoms of JUDAH and ISRAEL may be viewed to the best advantage, we here insert a table, in which their contemporaneous acts are noted. Of necessity, many of the same incidents are repeated in the general chronological index.

A.M.	B.C.	JUDAH.
3029	975	Rehoboam, highly offended at the revolt, meditates an attack upon the ten tribes, to reduce them to obedience; but the attempt being forbidden by a prophet, he wisely refrains.	1Kings xii.. xii.17.
3030	974	The priests, however, generally, and many pious Israelites, withdraw from Jeroboam, induced, no doubt, by a desire to enjoy the temple worship uninterrupted. But Rehoboam gives up himself to impiety and vice;
3033	971	Shishak, king of Egypt, comes to Jerusalem, and plunders both the temple and the king.	xiv.25.
3046	956	Rehoboam and the princes repent on the preaching of the prophet Shemaiah; but the former dies, after reigning 17 years over Judah.	xiv.
		Abijam succeeds Rehoboam, but reigns only three years	xv

A.M.	B.C.	ISRAEL.
3029	975	Jeroboam, son of Nebat, the first king of the ten revolted tribes. He repairs Shechem (which had been destroyed by Abimelech 258 years before,) and there fixes his royal residence for some time, but afterwards at Tirzah.	1Kings xii.25. xiv.7.
3030	974	He sets up golden calves in Dan and Bethel, (perhaps to mimic the cherubim,) and forbids his subjects to go to Jerusalem to worship, lest more of them should return to Rehoboam.
		Jeroboam, whilst worshipping at Bethel, is warned by a prophet of the judgments which shall fall upon that altar and upon its priests.	32
017	957	Jeroboam is defeated in an engagement with Abijam, with the loss of five hundred thousand men.	2Chron. xiii.

A.M.	B.C.	JUDAH.
3055	949	Asa succeeds Abijam, and suppresses idolatry in Judah. He gains a decisive victory over Zerah, the Ethiopian.	1Kings xv.8. 2Chron. xiv.9
3064	940	He bribes Benhadad, king of Syria, to attack Baasha, in order to stop him from building Ramah.	1Kings xv.18.
3057	917	Asa, troubled, with lameness, (supposed from gout,) places his confidence, not in God, but in his physicians.	2Chron. xv..12.
3090	914	He dies (having reigned 41 years,) and is succeeded by his son Jehoshaphat.	13.
3106	898	Jehoshaphat unites with him in the government, his son Jehoram.	2Kings iii.1
3107	897	Jehoshaphat accompanying Ahab in his expedition against Ramoth-gilead, very narrowly escapes with his life, in the same battle in which Ahab is slain.	1Kings xxii 2Chron. xviii.
3108	896	Jehoshaphat uniting with Ahaziah, equips a fleet for Ophir, which is destroyed by tempest. About this time, Jehoshaphat is invaded by the Ammonites and Moabites, over whom he obtains a miraculous victory.	1Kings xxi. 48,49.
3112	892	Jehoshaphat now grown old, portions off his other sons, and resigns the kingdom to Jehoram.	2Chron. xxi.2,3. 2Kings viii.16.
3115	889	Jehoshaphat dying soon after, Jehoram no sooner finds himself secured in the throne, than he puts all his brethren to the sword; and soon after, by the wicked counsel of Athaliah, (daughter of Ahab,) sets up the idolatry of Baal, and compels his subjects to worship with him. About this time, a letter addressed to him by the prophet Elijah, before his translation, comes into the hand of Jehoram, warning him of the approaching judgments. He reigned only four years.	2Chron. xxi.4,5. 11. 12.
3119	885	Ahaziah, son of Jehoram, succeeds his father in the throne of Judah.	2Kings viii.25.
3120	884	Ahaziah slain by Jehu.—(See the other side.)	ix.27.
		Athaliah destroys all the royal family, and usurps the kingdom; but Jehosheba, daughter of king Jehoram, and wife to the high priest, Jehoiada, secretes Jehoash, one of the infants, in the temple, and thus preserves it from the general massacre of the blood royal.	xi. 2Chron. xxii.10.
3126	878	Jehoiada, the high priest, brings out Jehoash, now seven years old, and anoints him king; causes the wicked Athaliah to be slain; restores the worship of Jehovah, and destroys the house and worship of Baal.	2Chron. xxiii. 2Kings xi.
3147	857	Jehoash, in the 23d year of his age, orders the temple to be repaired, under the direction of Jehoiada, the high priest. He reigns forty years.	xii.7.
3164	840	Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, for reproving the idolatry of the people, after the death of his father, is stoned to death in the court of the temple, by command of that very Jehoash whom his father had made king in Judah, but who had now fallen into idolatry. This Jehoash is next year murdered by his servants on his bed, and succeeded by his son Amaziah.	2Chron. xxiv. 2Kings xii.20.
3178	826	Amaziah, growing proud of his success against the Edomites, provokes Jehoash, king of Israel, to a war, and is taken prisoner by him.	xiv. 2Chron. xxv.
3194	810	Amaziah being slain at Lachish, is succeeded by Uzziah, or Azariah, who reigns fifty-two years, though a leper	2Kings xv.

A.M.	B.C.	ISRAEL.
3050	954	Jeroboam dies, after reigning 22 years, and Nadab his son succeeds him.	1Kings xiv.20 xv..
		After two years, Nadab is slain by Baasha, who succeeds him, and destroys all the family of Jeroboam.	25—27
3064	940	He builds Ramah, to prevent Israel from going to Jerusalem, and reigns 24 years.
3074	930	At Baasha dies, and is succeeded by his son Elah.	xvi 6.
3075	929	Elah is slain by Zimri, who usurps the kingdom for seven days, and destroys the whole family of Baasha; but being besieged by Omri, when the army had made king, burns himself to death in the palace.	8.
3079	925	Omri reigns alone in Asa's 31st year, upon which he builds Samaria for his capital	23,24
3086	918	Omri dies, and is succeeded by his wicked son Ahab, in the reign Elijah prophesies. He challenges and slays the false prophets of Baal.	29.
3096	908
3103	901	Benhadad besieges Samaria, but is forced to quit it; and returning the following year, is defeated at Aphek.	xx.
3104	900
3105	899	Ahab, by advice of Jezebel, causes Naboth to be stoned.	xxi.
3106	898	Ahab associates his son Ahaziah with him in the kingdom.	xxii.51
3107	897	He is killed, warring against Ramoth-gilead in disguise.
3108	896	Ahaziah succeeds, but soon after being dangerously ill, in consequence of a fall, sends to consult Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron. The prophet Elijah meeting the messenger, sharply reproves him, and sends word that he shall die. The king, in consequence sends three successive companies to apprehend him, two of which are destroyed by fire from heaven: but he goes with the third, and reproves the king to his face, predicting his death as both near and certain; which accordingly came to pass, after reigning only two years.	2Kings i.
		Soon after this, Elijah is removed to heaven in a fiery chariot.	ii.11.
3120	884	Jehoram king of Israel, and Ahaziah king of Judah, lead their united armies to Ramoth Gilead, against Hazael, successor of Benhadad, king of Syria, when the former is dangerously wounded, and retires to Jezreel for a cure. In the mean time, Elisha the prophet, who had succeeded Elijah, sends a young prophet to anoint Jehu, the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, king over Israel, for the special purpose of rooting out the house of Ahab. Jehu, being proclaimed king by the army, marches straight to Jezreel, kills Jehoram in the field of Naboth, and causes Jezebel to be cast out of a window, where she is eaten of dogs.	viii.28 2Kings ix. v.
		He also despatches letters to Samaria, and causes 70 of Ahab's children to be beheaded. Then comes himself to Samaria, and destroys the whole family of Ahab, and all the priests of Baal. Notwithstanding this, he departs not himself from the worship of Jeroboam's calves.
		Still farther, he pursues Ahaziah, king of Judah, who had fled toward Megiddo, and causes him to be slain; also 42 of his kindred, at Samaria.	ix. x.
3147	857	Jehoahaz succeeds his father Jehu, and reigns seventeen years, all the time subject to the vexations and oppressions of Hazael, king of Syria.	xii.1
3163	841	Jehoash, the son of Jehoahaz, united with his father in the kingdom of Israel.	10
3165	839	Jehoahaz dies; and is succeeded by Jehoash, who, soon after his father's funeral, visits Elisha the prophet, then lying sick, and he promises him victory over the Assyrians, which came to pass.	14. 25.
3168	836	Jeroboam II is this year hinged with his father Jehoash, upon his going to war against the Syrians.	xv.1.
3178	826	Jehoash, prevailed to war with Judah, breaks down part of the wall of Jerusalem, spoils the temple and the palace, and returns in triumph to Samaria.	xiv. 2Chron. xxv.
3179	825	Jehoash dies, and is succeeded by his son, Jeroboam II.	2Kings xiv.13.

A.M.	B.C.	JUDAH.
3246	758	Jotham succeeds Uzziah at the age of 25, and reigns sixteen years in Jerusalem, during which he subdues the Ammonites, and makes them tributary during three years.	2Ki. xv. 5—7. 32—38. xvi. 1—4.
3362	742	Ahaz succeeds Jotham, and reigns sixteen years. This year Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah king of Israel, unite against Ahaz; but he is delivered from them, according to the promise by Isaiah.	5. 2Chron. xxviii.
		Ahaz, however, falling soon afterwards into idolatry, is delivered into the hands of Pekah, who defeats his army, and carries away many captives; but these, by the direction of a prophet, are returned to him.
3264	740	The Idumæans and Philistines invade Judea, when Ahaz invites to his assistance Tiglath Pileser, king of Assyria, and submits to pay him tribute.	2Kings xviii.
3268	736	Hezekiah succeeds Ahaz, and destroys idolatry, and prospers: he also celebrates a solemn Passover; and begins to gather the first fruits and tithes, for the maintenance of public worship. He reigns 29 years, including one in which he reigned with his father.

A.M.	B.C.	ISRAEL.
3220	784	Jeroboam II. dies: Zachariah his son succeeds him, but the extent of his reign is very uncertain, generally supposed to be only six months, at the end of which he is murdered by Shallum. The chronology is here, however, very perplexed, and an interregnum (ten or eleven) years is generally supplied.	2Ki. xiv. 29. xv. 8—12
3232	772	Shallum reigns one month only, when he is killed by Menahem, who becomes tributary to Pul, king of Assyria: but in the 50th year of Uzziah, he is succeeded by Pekahiah, who reigns two years only, when he is slain by Pekah, one of his own captains, who succeeds him, and reigns twenty years.	13—19. 23,24. 25—27
3264	740	Tiglath Pileser, king of Assyria, defeats and slays Rezin, king of Damascus, enters the land of Israel, and carries away many captives, chiefly from Reuben, Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh.	29.
		Hoshea, son of Elah, murders Pekah, and takes his kingdom, which seems to have been involved in similar anarchy and confusion, as in the reign of Zachariah.	30.
3276	728	Shalmaneser compels Hoshea to pay him tribute.	xvii. 3.
3279	725	Hoshea refusing to continue his tribute, Shalmaneser lays siege to Samaria, and, in the end of the third year, takes it, and carries away the remainder of the tribes of Israel beyond the Euphrates.	4.
		Thus ends the kingdom of Israel, 250 years after its separation from Judah.

A.M.	B.C.
3030	974	The priests and Levites, and pious Israelites, leave their possessions in Jeroboam's kingdom, and are incorporated into the kingdom of Judah	2Chr. 11.13..17.
3032	972	Jehoiada, the priest, born about this time
3033	971	Shishak, king of Egypt, invades Judea, and plunders Jerusalem and the temple	1Ki.14.25..28. 2Chr.xii.
3040	964	Capys Sylvius succeeds Capetus in the kingdom of Alba, and reigns 28 years	Dion.Halicar.
3046	958	Rehoboam dies, having reigned 17 years, and is succeeded by Abijah, who reigns 3 years	1Ki.15.1..7.
3047	957	Abijah vanquishes Jeroboam, killing 500,000 men	2Ch.12.15; xiii.
3049	955	Abijah is succeeded by Asa, who reigns 41 years	14.1.2Ki.15.8.
3050	954	Jeroboam, king of Israel, is succeeded by Nadab	1Ki.14 20. 15.25.
3051	953	Nadab is slain by Baasha, who destroys all the family of Jeroboam, usurps the kingdom, and reigns 24 years	15.25..31.
3052	952	About this time flourished the prophets Jehu, Hanani, and Azariah
		Phorbas succeeds Thersippus as perpetual archon of the Athenians, and governs 31 years
3055	949	Jehoshaphat, son of Asa, born	22.42.
3063	941	Asa overcomes Zerah the Ethiopian, who had invaded Judea with an immense army	2Chr.xiv.
3068	936	Calpetus, Carpetus, or Capetus, succeeds Capys in the kingdom of Alba	Dion.Halicar.
3074	930	Baasha, king of Israel, dies, and is succeeded by Elah	1Ki.16 6..8.
3075	929	Zimri murders Elah, and reigns seven days; being dethroned by Omri, who reigns jointly with Tibni about five years	16. ..21. 22.
3079	925	Tibni dying, Omri reigns alone about 7 years	23,24.
3080	924	Omri makes Samaria the seat of his government
3081	923	Tiberinus Sylvius succeeds his father Calpetus in the kingdom of Alba, and reigns 8 years
3083	921	Megacles succeeds Phorbas as archon of the Athenians, rules 30 years	Plut.in Sol.
3086	918	Omri, king of Israel, dies, and is succeeded by his son Ahab, who reigns 22 years	1Ki.16.25..29.
3087	917	Asa, king of Judah, begins to be diseased in his feet	15.23.
3089	915	Tiberinus, king of Alba, being drowned in the Albula, (from him called the Tiber,) is succeeded by Agrippa Sylvius, who reigns 40 years	Liv.l.1.c.3.Cic.deNat. D.1.2.c.20.Dion.Hal. l.1.c.8.
3090	914	Jehoshaphat succeeds his father Asa in the kingdom of Israel, and reigns 25 years	1Ki.15.24; 22.41,42. 2Ch.16.13,14.
3092	912	Jehoshaphat having demolished the high places and groves, sends Levites with the princes to instruct the people in the law of God, in which they greatly prosper	2Chr.xvii.
3094	910	Elijah foretels to Ahab a dreadful famine, and is fed by ravens	1Ki.17.1..7. 8..24.
3096	908	Elijah raises the widow's son
3097	907	Polydectes, of the family of the Procliдæ, succeeds Eunomus on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns nine years	Pausan.l.iii.c.7.
		About this time Homer and Hesiod flourished, according to the Parian marbles
3098	906	Elijah having proved by fire from heaven that Jehovah is the true God, slays the prophets of Baal; and rain is sent in answer to his prayers	1Ki.xviii.
		Elijah is sent to anoint Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha	xix.
3103	901	The Syrians, by the direction of a prophet, are defeated by Ahab	xx.1..21. 22..43.
3104	900	The Syrians are again defeated by Ahab
3105	899	Ahab, by means of Jezebel, murders Naboth, and seizes his vineyard, for which he and Jezebel are doomed by Elijah to utter destruction; but Ahab repenting, it is deferred	xxi.
3106	898	Ahab, king of Israel, associates his son Ahaziah with him in the kingdom; and Jehoshaphat, his son Jehoram	22 51. 2Ki.3.1.
		Lycurgus begins to govern at Lacedæmon, under the title of preceptor to Charilaus, the posthumous son of his brother Polydectes	Plut. in Lycurg. Justin, l.iii.c.2. Dionys. Hal.ii.
3107	897	Ahab, being joined with Jehoshaphat against the Syrians, is slain at Ramoth-gilead, and succeeded by Ahaziah	1Ki.xxii. 2Chr.xviii.

A.M.	B.C.
3108	896	Ahaziah, when sick, having received a reproving message from Elijah, sends captains and soldiers to apprehend him, most of whom are slain by fire from heaven; and Ahaziah dies, according to the word of Elijah, and is succeeded by Jehoram	2Ki.i. ii
		Elijah is taken to heaven in a fiery chariot
3110	895	Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, and Jehoram, king of Israel, by following the counsel of Elisha, are miraculously supplied with water, and obtain a complete victory over the Moabites	iii.
3112	892	Jehoshaphat associates his son Jehoram with him in the government of the kingdom	8 16..18 2Ch.21.2,3.
3113	891	Diognetus succeeds Megacles as perpetual archon of the Athenians, and governs 23 years
3115	889	Jehoshaphat dies, and is succeeded by Jehoram, in the fifth year of Jehoram king of Israel	1Ki.22.50. 2Ch.21.4,5.
3116	888	Jehoram, king of Judah, having murdered his brethren, and introduced idolatry into Judah, is warned of his miserable end by a letter left for him by Elijah	21.12..15
3117	887	He is smitten with an incurable disease in his bowels	18.
3119	885	He dies most miserably, and is succeeded by his son Ahaziah	19,20. 2Ki.8.25.
3120	884	Jehu slays Jehoram king of Israel, with Ahaziah king of Judah, and reigns over the kingdom of Israel 46 years	ix.x. 2Ch.22 1..9.
		Athaliah, mother of Ahaziah, murders all the royal family, except Joash, and usurps the throne of Judah six years	10..12. 2Ki.11.1,2.
		Lycurgus, being 42 years of age, establishes his laws at Lacedæmon, and, with Iphitus and Cleosthenes, restores the Olympic games at Elis, about 108 years before the æra commonly called the first Olympiad
3136	868	Jehoiada the priest anoints Joash king, slays Athaliah and her idolatrous priests, and renews the covenant with Jehovah	2Ki.11.3..21. 2Chr.xxiii.
3139	865	Alladius, or Romulus, Sylvius succeeds Agrippa in the kingdom of Alba, and reigns 19 years	Dionys. Hal. l.i.c.8.
3155	849	Carthage is built by Queen Dido
		Phido, king of Argos, is supposed to have invented scales and measures, and first coined silver, at Ægina	Herodot.l.vi.c.127.
3141	865	Amaziah, son of Joash, and afterwards king of Judah, born
		Phereclus succeeds to the archonship of the Athenians
3142	862	About this time the Ninevites repent at the preaching of the prophet Jonah	Jonah i..iv.
3148	856	Joash gives orders for repairing the temple, which is performed under the direction of Jehoiada	2Ki.12.4..16. 2Ch.24.4..14
		Jehu, king of Israel, dies, and is succeeded by his son Jehoahaz, who reigns 17 years	2Ki.10.31..36. 13.1
		Aventinus Sylvius succeeds Alladius Sylvius in the kingdom of Alba, and reigns 37 years	Dion.Hal.Liv. Ovid Fast.iv.51
3160	844	Ariphron succeeds Phereclus in the perpetual archonship of the Athenians
3162	842	Jehoiada, the high priest, dies, aged 130 years	2Ch.24.15,16.
3163	841	Jehoash is associated with his father Jehoahaz
3164	840	Zechariah, the priest, son of Jehoiada, is stoned by order of Joash, in the temple, for reproving their idolatry	24 17 22.
3165	839	Joash, king of Judah, is murdered by his servants, and is succeeded by his son Amaziah, who reigns 29 years	23 27 2Ki.12.19..21
		Jehoahaz, king of Israel, dies and is succeeded by his son Jehoash, or Joash, who reigns in all, 16 years	13 1 10.
		Jehoash, king of Israel, visits Elisha, when near death, and is assured of several victories over the Syrians	14 .19.
3165	839	Hazael, king of Syria, dies, and is succeeded by Benhadad	2Ki.13.24.
3173	826	Amaziah, king of Judah, elated by a victory over the Edomites the previous year, challenges Jehoash, king of Israel, who overcomes and takes him prisoner, breaks down the wall of Jerusalem, and plunders the treasures of the palace and temple	14.7..14. 2Ch.25.11..24.
3179	825	Jehoash, king of Israel, dies, and is succeeded by his son Jeroboam II. who reigns 41 years	2Ki.14.15,16,23.
3180	824	Thespieus succeeds Ariphron in the government of Athens
3184	820	About this time, the fall of the Assyrian empire by the death of Sardanapalus, is supposed to have taken place; when Arbaces, who, with Belesis king of Babylon, had taken Nineveh, founds the empire of the Medes	Euseb.inChr.Her.l.ii. c. 150. Diod. Sic. l.ii. Justin.l.i.c.3.
3190	814	Caranus founds the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 28 years. This kingdom continued 646 years, till the battle of Pydna	Justin, l. vii. c. 1. Patercul. l.i.c.6
3194	810	Amaziah, king of Judah, is slain by conspirators, and succeeded by Azariah, or Uzziah, who reigns 52 years	2Ki.14.17..21. 2Ch.25 25..28. 26.1..3.
3196	808	God grants great success to Jeroboam, king of Israel, according to the word of Jonah	2Ki.14.25..27.
3195	809	Charilaus, the successor of Lycurgus, is succeeded, in the kingdom of Lacedæmon, after a reign of 64 years, by Nicander, who reigns 39 years
3207	797	Ardysus founds the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 36 years	Herodot.l.i.c.a.
		Agamestor succeeds Thespieus in the government of the Athenians
3208	796	Amulius Sylvius and Numitor succeed Procas in the kingdom of Alba; the former of whom reigns 44 years, and the latter two years longer, and is their last king	Dionys. Hal. Liv. l. i, c.3. Plut. in Romul. Flor.l.i.c.1
3212	792	About this time Sosarmus is supposed to succeed Arbaces in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 30 years
3218	786	Cœnus, second king of Macedon begins to reign
		The triremes first invented by the Corinthians
3220	784	Jeroboam II. king of Israel, having reigned 41 years, dies, and an interregnum of between 11 and 12 years follows	2Ki.14.28,29.
3221	783	Jotham, son of Uzziah, king of Judah, born
3225	779	The monarchical government is abolished at Corinth, and the Prytanes elected
3227	777	Æschylus succeeds Agamestor in the perpetual archonship of the Athenians
3228	776	Coroebus conquers Olympia, where he obtains a prize, in the 28th year from the institution of Iphitus, and 23 years before the foundation of Rome: this is commonly called the first Olympiad	Pausanius,lib.v.c.8.

A.M.	B.C.
3220	784	Thurimas succeeds to the throne of Macedon, and reigns 45 years
3224	773	Zachariah, son of Jeroboam, is made king in the 38th year of Uzziah, king of Judah, and reigns six months	2Kl.14.29. 15.8,9.
3232	772	Shallum murders Zachariah, and succeeds him; but, having reigned one month, he is killed by Menahem, who succeeds him, and reigns ten years	10..15.
3233	771	Pul, king of Assyria, who is supposed to have now refounded that empire, invades Israel, and renders Menahem tributary	19,20.
3234	770	Theopompus succeeds Nicander in the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 47 years	Pausan.l.iii 9. Plut. in Lyc.
3239	765	Uzziah, attempting to burn incense upon the altar of incense in the temple, is smitten with leprosy	2Ch.26.16..21.
3243	761	Pekahiah succeeds his father Menahem, in the 50th year of Uzziah, king of Judah	2Kl.15.17..23.
		Alyattes succeeds Sadyattes on the throne of Lydia, and reigns 14 years
3244	760	The Ephori introduced into the government of Lacedæmon by Theopompus	C.Nep.in Paus.Arist. Pol li.7.
3245	759	Pekah, one of Pekahiah's captains, murders and succeeds him	2Kl.15.25.
		Isaiah begins to prophesy	Isa.1.1.
		Hosea, Amos, and Micah, also flourish in this and the following reign	Ho.1 1.Am.1.1.Mi.1.1.
3246	758	Azariah, or Uzziah, king of Judah, is succeeded by his son Jotham, who reigns 16 years	1Kl.15.32..34. 2Ch.26.22,23; 27.1.
		Jotham subdues the Ammonites, and compels them to pay tribute	27.5.
3250	754	Alcmæon, the last perpetual archon of Athens, begins his administration, and rules two years; after whom decennial archons are appointed, Charops being the first	Pausan.l.i.c.18. Paterc.l.i.c.8.
3251	753	Rome built on the 20th of April, according to Varro	DeLing.Lat.llb.v.
3254	750	Hezekiah, son of Ahaz, born
		The rape of the Sabines
3257	747	Nabonassar, or Baladan, supposed by some to be the same as Belesis, ascends the throne of Babylon, from which the Nabonassarean æra commences	Isa.39.1. Nicholas Damascen.inEclog.Vales.p.426,&c.
		Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, supposed by some to be the same as Arbaces, and Ninus Junior, begins to reign at Nineveh, where he reigns 19 years	2Kl.15.29; 16.7,10. Euseb.Chr.p.46.
		Meles succeeds Alyattes on the Lydian throne
3261	743	The first Messenian war begins, and continues 19 years, till the taking of Ithome	Justin.l.iii c.4.&c.
3262	742	Ahaz succeeds his father Jotham, in the 17th year of Pekah, king of Israel, and reigns 16 years	2Kl.15.38; 16.2. 2Ch.27.9; 28.1.
		Rezin, king of Damascus, and Pekah, king of Israel, make war on Ahaz, and besiege Jerusalem, but without success	2Kl.16.5. Isa.vii
		Æsimedes succeeds Charops in the decennial archonship of the Athenians: he is succeeded by Clidicus, who ten years after is succeeded by Hippomenes
3263	741	Ahaz is vanquished, and Judah greatly oppressed by Rezin and Pekah	2Ch.28.1..8.
3264	740	Ahaz invites Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, to his assistance, who slays Rezin, king of Damascus, and carries part of Israel into captivity	2Kl.15.29. 1Ch.5.26.
3265	739	Pekah, king of Israel, is slain by Hoshea, and an anarchy of some years ensues	2Kl.15.30.31.
3269	735	Candaules succeeds Meles on the Lydian throne, and reigns 17 years	Justin.l.i c 7. Her.l.i c.7.&c.
3271	733	Nabius, or Nadius, succeeds Nabonassar on the throne of Babylon, and reigns two years
3272	732	Syracuse built by a Corinthian colony	Strab.l.i.viii.
3273	731	Chinzirus and Porus succeed Nadius on the throne of Babylon, and reign five years	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3274	730	Hoshea begins to reign over Israel, and reigns nine years	2Kl.17.1.
3275	729	Shalmaneser succeeds Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, and reigns 14 years	Castor, ap. Euseb. Chr.p.46.
		Perdiccas succeeds to the throne of Macedon, and reigns 51 years	Herod.l.vii viii. Justin,l.vii.c.2.
3276	728	Shalmaneser invades Israel, and makes Hoshea tributary	2Kl.17.3.
3277	727	Ahaz dies, and is succeeded in Judah by Hezekiah, who restores the worship of God, and reigns 29 years	2Kl 18.20. 2Ch.28.27. xxix xxxi.
		Sabacus, or So, the Ethiopian, made king of Egypt	Herod.l.ii. Euseb. in Chron.
3278	726	Jugæus succeeds to the throne of Babylon, and reigns five years	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3280	724	Hoshea, king of Israel, relying on So, king of Egypt, refuses to pay tribute to Shalmaneser, who takes him captive, and lays siege to Samaria	2Kl.17.4,5; 18.9.
		Zeuxidamus succeeds Theopompus on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 53 years	Pausan.l.iii.c.7.
3283	721	Shalmaneser takes Samaria, carries the ten tribes captive, and puts an end to the kingdom of Israel, in the sixth year of Hezekiah, and the ninth of Hoshea	2Kl.17.6..40; 18.10..12.
		Merodach Baladan, or Mardoc Empadus, son of Belesis, or Baladan, succeeds Jugæus on the throne of Babylon, and reigns 12 years	Isa.39.1. Canon. Ptolemæi.
3284	720	Shalmaneser makes war upon Tyre, and besieges it five years	Menander. ap. Jos. Ant.lx.14.
3285	719	Sevechus, or Sethon, succeeds his father So, or Sabacus, in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 14 years	Africanus ap. Syncell p.74.
3286	718	Gyges, the first of the Mermnadæ, succeeds Candaules on the Lydian throne, and reigns 38 years	Herod.l.i c.8. Val.Max.l.i.c.7.
3289	715	Numa Pompilius succeeds Romulus in the kingdom of Rome, after an interregnum of one year, and reigns 43 years	Liv. l.i. c.18. Flor. l.i. c.2.Plut.inVit.
		Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, dies, and is succeeded by his son Sennacherib, or Sagon, who reigns about eight years	Tobit 1.15.Isa.20.1.
3290	714	About this time Cerdiccas succeeds Medidus in the government of the Medes, and rules thirteen years
3291	713	Sennacherib, king of Assyria, invades Judea, and takes several of the fenced cities, but is pacified by a tribute	2 Kl.18.13..16.
		Hezekiah, king of Judah, falling sick, is miraculously cured, and is promised deliverance from the Assyrians	2 Kl xx.2 Ch.32.34.Is. xxxviii.
3292	712	Merodach-baladan, king of Babylon, sends ambassadors to congratulate Hezekiah on his recovery,

A.M.	B.C.
3292	712	who having offended God in his conduct towards them, the Babylonish captivity is predicted	2 Kl.20.12..20. Isa.xxxix.
		No-Ammon, or Thebes, in Egypt, destroyed about this time by Sennacherib, king of Assyria	Nah.3.10.
3294	710	Sennacherib, on his return from Egypt, again invades Judah; but in answer to the prayers of Hezekiah and Isaiah, his whole army, consisting of 185,000 men, is destroyed in one night by the angel of the Lord	2 Kl.18.17..37.xix. 2 Ch.32.1..23. Is.xxxvi.xxxvii. Herodot.lib.ii
		Arkianus succeeds Merodach-baladan, or Mardoch Empadus, in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns five years	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3298	706	Sennacherib being slain by his two eldest sons, is succeeded by his third son Esarhaddon, who reigns forty-three years	2 Kl.19.37.2 Ch.32.2 Is.37.38.
3299	705	Sevechus, king of Egypt, is succeded by Tirhakah, or Tarachus, the last of that race that reigned in Egypt	Africanus apud Syncellum, p.74.
33 0	704	Arkianus, king of Babylon, dies without issue, and an interregnum of two years succeeds	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3301	703	Corcyra built by the Corinthians, four years after the building of Tarentum by the Parthenians	Plin l iv.c.12. Strab.l.vi. Mela,l.ii.c.7.
3302	702	Leocrates, the successor of Hippomenes, dying, Aspandrus succeeds him in the Athenian government
		Belibus is advanced to the throne of Babylon, and reigns three years	Can. Ptol.
3304	700	Deioces, governor of the Medes, assumes the title of king, and reigns fifty-three years. Ecbatana built	Herodotus,l.i.
3305	699	Apronadius succeeds Belibus on the throne of Babylon, and reigns six years	Ptol. Canon.
3306	698	Hezekiah dies, and is succeeded by his son Manasseh, then only twelve years of age, who reigns fifty-five years	2 Kl.20.20.21.; 21.1. 2 Ch.32.33; 33.1.
3311	693	Regibilus succeeds Apronadius, king of Babylon; and the next year is succeeded by Mesessimordachus, who reigns four years	Canon. Ptolemæi.
3312	692	Eryxius, the last decennial archon of the Athenians, begins his administration
3314	690	Anaxidamus succeeds his father Zeuxidamus on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns thirty-nine years	Pausan.l.iii.c.7.l iv. c.15.
3316	688	In this year, being the 14th year of Manasseh, Tirhakah, king of Egypt, dies, and an interregnum of two years succeeds	African. ap. Syncell. p 74 Diod.Sic.l.i.
		Mesessimordachus, king of Babylon, dies, and an interregnum of anarchy follows for eighteen years	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3319	685	Twelve princes seize on the kingdom of Egypt, and govern it by a joint confederacy fifteen years	Herodotus,l.ii. Diod.Sic.l.i.
		The second Messenian war begins, and continues fourteen years, till the taking of Ira, after a siege of eleven years
3321	683	The government of Athens is intrusted to annual archons, Creon being the first	Paterculus,l.i.c.8
3324	680	Esarhaddon, or Asaraddinus, king of Assyria, seizes on the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns over both countries 13 years	Canon. Ptolemæi
		Ardysus II. succeeds Gyges on the Lydian throne, and reigns 49 years	Herod.l.i.c.15.
3326	678	Argæus, king of Macedon, begins to reign	Justin,l.vii.c 1
		Esarhaddon invades Palestine, and plants a colony of foreigners in Samaria	2 Kl.17.24. Ezr.4.3,9,10.
3327	677	Manasseh, king of Judah, on account of his wickedness and idolatry, is carried captive by him to Babylon; but on his repentance, God restores him to his kingdom	Joseph Ant.l.x.c 4. 2 Ch.33.2..20.
3330	674	The end of the second Messenian war, which confirms the Messenians under the power of the Lacedæmonians
3332	672	Tullus Hostilius succeeds Numa Pompilius in the kingdom of Rome, and reigns 32 years	Dion.H l iii.c.1. Liv.l.i.c 22.
3334	6 0	Psammitichus, one of the twelve confederated princes of Egypt, having overcome the rest, seizes upon the whole kingdom, and reigns 54 years	Herodotus,l.ii. Diod.Sic.l.i.
3337	667	Saosduchinus, supposed to be the same as Nabuchodonosor, succeeds his father Esarhaddon in the kingdoms of Assyria and Babylon	Canon. Ptolemæi. Judith 1.1.
		The battle of the Horatii and Curiatii, to decide the differences between the Romans and Albans	Dion.H.l.iii.c.3. Liv.l.i.c.24,&c.
		Death of Metius Suffetius, the Alban dictator	Flor.l.i.c.3.
3339	6 5	Birth of Amon, son of Manasseh, king of Judah
		Alba destroyed, and the inhabitants established at Rome
3345	659	Cypselus abolishes the Corinthian aristocracy, and reigns 30 years	Pausan.v.c.17. Herod.l.i.c.114.
3346	658	Byzantium, afterwards Constantinople, built by a colony of Athenians according to Ammianus, of Milesians according to Paterculus, or of Lacedæmonians according to Justin
3353	651	Archidamus, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 46 years
3355	649	Birth of Josiah, afterwards king of Judah
3357	647	Phraortes, supposed to be the Arphaxad mentioned in the book of Judith, succeeds Deioces in the kingdom of Media	Herod.l.i.c.102. Judith 1.1,5
		Chinaladanus succeeds Saosduchinus, king of Assyria and Babylon, and reigns 22 years	Canon.Ptolemæi.
3361	643	Amon succeeds his father Manasseh in the kingdom of Judah, and reigns two years	2 Kl.21.18,19. 2 Ch.33.20,21.
3363	641	Amon is murdered by his servants, and succeeded by Josiah his son, only eight years old, who reigns 31 years	2 Kl.21.20..26.22.2. 2 Ch.33.22..25.
		Birth of Thales about this time
3364	640	Philip succeeds Argæus on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 38 years
		Ancus Martius succeeds Tullus Hostilius in the kingdom of Rome, and reigns 24 years	Dion.H.l.iii.c.9. Liv.l.i.c.32 &c
3366	638	Solon is born about this time
3370	634	Josiah, only 16 years of age, begins to manifest great zeal towards the pure worship of God	2 Ch.34.3.
3373	631	Sadyattes succeeds Ardysus II. on the Lydian throne	Herod.l.i.c 16,&c.
3374	630	Josiah commences a thorough reformation in religion, in Judah and Israel	2 Ch.34.4..7.
3375	629	Jeremiah called to the prophetic office	Jer.1.2.
3378	626	Nabopolasar rebels against the king of Assyria and makes himself king of Babylon, where he reigns 21 years	Alexand.Poly.ap Euseb.Ch.p.46.and ap.Syncell.p.210.
3379	625	Cyaxares succeeds Phraortes in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 40 years	Herodot.l.i.
3380	624	Josiah repairs the temple puts down idolatry,

A.M.	B.C.
3380	624	completes his reformation, and keeps a solemn passover	2 Kl.22.3..20; 23.1..20. 2 Ch.xxxiv.
3385	619	Alyattes II. of the family of the Mermnadæ, and father of the celebrated Crœsus, succeeds to the Lydian throne, and reigns 57 years	Herod.l.l.c.16,17,&c. Strabo,l.xiii.
3387	617	Psammitichus, king of Egypt, dies, and is succeeded by Necus, or Pharaoh Necho	Herodotus,l.i.
3388	616	Tarquinius Priscus succeeds Ancus Martius in the kingdom of Rome, and reigns 38 years	Dion H. l.iii.59. Liv l.i c 21.
3392	612	About this time Nineveh is destroyed by the Medes and Babylonians under Nabopolassar and Cyaxares	Nah.i..iii.Euseb. Chr.p.124.Alexand. Poly.
3394	610	Josiah is slain in battle by Pharaoh Necho, and is succeeded by Jehoahaz, who reigns three months	2 Kl.23.29,30;2 Ch.35. 20..27;36.2.
3395	609	Pharaoh Necho carries Jehoahaz captive into Egypt, and makes Jehoiakim king, who reigns 11 years	2 Kl.23.31..35. 2 Ch.36.2..4.
3397	607	Nebuchadnezzar is associated with his father Nabopolassar in the kingdom of Babylon	Ber.ap.Joseph. Ant.l.x.c.11.
		Jeremiah foretells the 70 years captivity	Jer.xxv.
3398	606	Nebuchadnezzar makes war upon Jehoiakim, makes him tributary, and carries Daniel and his friends, with many of the sacred vessels, captive to Babylon; and from this year, the principal computation of the 70 years captivity begins	2 Kl.24.1; 2 Ch.36.6,7. Da.1..3.
3399	605	Nabopolassar, king of Babylon, dies, and is succeeded by his son Nebuchadnezzar, who reigns 43 years	Canon.Ptol.Joseph. An.l.x.c.11.Co.Ap. l.i.
		Agasicles, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 41 years	Pausan.l.iii.c.7. Plut.in Apoph.
3400	604	The Phœnicians sail round Africa by order of Pharaoh Necho, king of Egypt	Herodotus,lib.i.
3401	603	Jehoiakim revolts from Nebuchadnezzar	2 Kl.24.1.
		Daniel reveals and interprets Nebuchadnezzar's dream; in consequence of which he and his friends are greatly advanced	Dan.ii.
3402	602	Æropas succeeds to the throne of Macedon, and reigns 20 years	Justin.l.vii.c.2.
3404	600	Pharaoh Necho, king of Egypt, dies, and is succeeded by his son Psammis, who reigns six years	Herodot.l.ii.
		Darius, the Mede, or Cambyses, is born	Dan.5.31.
		Sappho, the celebrated poetess, is also born about this time	Herod.ii.135. Æl.l xii.c.18,29.
3405	599	Jehoiakim, king of Judah, is slain, and succeeded by his son Jehoiachin, Jeconiah, Jeconias, or Coniah, who reigns three months and ten days	2 Kl.24.2..6. 2 Ch.36.8. Je.22.18,19; 36.30.
		Cyrus, the Persian, is born	Diod.l.i.Her.l.i.
3406	598	Jeconiah, with a great number of Jews, is carried captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, who makes his uncle Zedekiah king in his stead	2 Kl.24.8..16; 2 Ch. 36.9,10. Je.24.1.
		This is another epoch of the 70 years captivity; and from this Ezekiel, who was now carried captive, dates
3412	594	Ezekiel is called to the prophetical office.	Ezek.i.1.
		Psammis, king of Egypt, is succeeded by his son Apries, or Pharaoh Hophra, who reigns 25 years	Herodot.l.ii.
3412	592	Zedekiah rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, and confederates with Pharaoh Hophra	2 Kl.24.20; 2 Ch.36.13. Je.52.3.
3413	591	The Pythian games first established at Delphi
3414	590	Nebuchadnezzar besieges Jerusalem	2 Kl.25.1.Je.39.1.
3415	589	He forces Pharaoh Hophra, who came to relieve it, to retreat	Eze.24.2..Je.37.4..11.
3416	588	He takes and destroys Jerusalem, burns the temple, and carries the people, with Zedekiah, whose sons he had slain, captive to Babylon	2 Kl.25.2..20. 2 Ch.36.17..21. Je.xxxix.lii.
		Thus terminated the kingdom of Judah, 468 years from the accession of David, 398 years from the revolt of the ten tribes, and 134 years from the ruin of the kingdom of Israel
		About this time Obadiah prophesied against the insulting Edomites
		About this time flourished Chilo, Anacharsis, Thales, Epimenides, Solon, Æsop, Stesichoras, &c.

PERIOD VII.

From the beginning of the Babylonish Captivity to the birth of Christ. 588 years.

A.M.	B.C.
3416	588	Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar had made governor of the remnant of the people, is treacherously slain; and the Jews carry Jeremiah along with them into Egypt	Jer.xl..xliv.
3417	587	Ezekiel, in Chaldea, prophesies against the remnant of the people who had been left in Judea, against the land of Egypt, where they had taken shelter, and against the Edomites for their insulting conduct, foretelling the restoration of the captives of Judah, and the destruction of their enemies	Ezek.xxxii..xl.
3418	586	Nebuchadnezzar besieges Tyre for 13 years, Ithobal being then king; during which time he executes the Divine judgments on the Philistines, Idumeans, Ammonites, and Moabites	Joseph.Ant.l.x.c.11. Cont.Ap.l.i.Je. xxvii..xxix.Ezek. xxv.
3419	585	Astyages succeeds Cyaxares on the throne of Media	Herod.l.i.
3420	584	Nebuzaradan sends the scattered remnant of the Jews captive to Babylon	Je.52.30.
3422	582	The Isthmian games are restored, and continued every first and third year of the Olympiads
3424	580	Nebuchadnezzar erects a golden image, which he requires every one to worship; and Shadrach, Meshech, and Abednego, in consequence of refusing to obey, are cast into a fiery furnace, from which they are miraculously delivered	Dan.iii.
3426	578	Servius Tullius succeeds his father Tarquinius Priscus in the kingdom of Rome	Dion.Hal.l.iv. Liv.l.i.c.41.
3428	576	Alcetas, or Alectas, ascends the throne of Macedon, and reigns 29 years
3430	574	The Egyptians revolt from Pharaoh Hophra, in consequence of the loss of the army sent against the Cyrenians	Herod.l.ii.iv. Diod.Sl.l.i.P.2.
3431	573	Nebuchadnezzar takes Tyre, and is promised Egypt for his wages	Ezek.29.17..20.
3432	572	He invades Egypt, and either slays or carries captive nearly all the miserable remnant of Jews who were there	Ezek.xxx. Je.44.27,28.
3433	571	He returns to Babylon, leaving Amasis king
3434	570	Pharaoh Hophra is slain by Amasis, who, from this period, reigns 44 years	Herodot.l.ii. Diod.Sl.l.i.P.2
3434	570	Nebuchadnezzar, rendered insolent by prosperity, is warned by a remarkable dream, which Daniel interprets, of a dire calamity which was coming upon him	Dan.4.1..27.
3435	569	The dream is fulfilled in his extraordinary insanity	28..32.
3436	568	The Nemæan games are restored
3440	564	Ariston, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ, begins to reign, and reigns 38 years	Herodot.l.vi.c.61,&c.
3441	563	At the end of seven years, Nebuchadnezzar recovers his senses, and is restored to his authority	Dan.4.33..37.
		Anaxandrides, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ, succeeds to the throne of Lacedæmon and reigns 33 years	Her.l.i.c.5,7. Pau. l. iii.c.3,&c. Plut.in Apop.l.
3442	562	Nebuchadnezzar dies, and is succeeded by his son Evil-merodach, who reigns two years	Berosus ap.Jos. Cont.Ap.l.i.
3443	561	Evil-merodach releases Jehoiachin from prison, and advances him, and treats him kindly	2 Kl. 25.27..30. Je.52.31..34.
		Crœsus succeeds his father Alyattes in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 14 years	Herodot.l.i.
3444	560	Evil-merodach is slain by a conspiracy, and is succeeded by Neriglissar, who reigns fourteen years	Joseph.ut sup.Eus. Præp.Ev.l.ix. Ptol.Can.
		Astyages, king of Media, dies, and is succeeded by his son Cyaxares II. called Darius the Mede, who reigns 23 years	Xenoph.Cyrop. lib.i.Da.5.31.
3445	559	He associates Cyrus with him in the government, and sends him against the Babylonians	Xenoph.Cyrop.l.i.
3448	556	Cyrus slays Neriglissar in battle, who is succeeded by his son Laborosoarchod	Idem,l.iii..v.
		Laborosoarchod is slain in a conspiracy on account of his cruelty, after he had reigned only nine months	Joseph.Cont.Ap.l.i. Ant.l.x.c 11.12.
3449	555	Nabonadius, or Belshazzar, succeeds him, and reigns 17 years	Euseb Præ Ev.l.ix. Herod.l.i
		Daniel has a vision of four animals as emblematical of the four monarchies, to be succeeded by the kingdom of the Messiah	Dan.vii. viii.
3451	553	Daniel has the vision of the ram and he goat, &c.
3453	551	Belshazzar goes into Asia Minor, and hires a great army against Cyrus, of which Crœsus has the command	Xenoph.Cyrop.lib.vi
3456	548	Cyrus conquers Crœsus at the river Halys, and pursues him to Sardis, which he takes with Crœsus in it	Idem,l.vi.vii. Herodot.l.i. Euseb.in.Chr.
3457	547	Amyntas succeeds his father Alcetas in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 50 years	Justin.l.vii.c.3. Her l.v.vii.viii.
3463	541	Cyrus, having conquered a great part of Asia, besieges Belshazzar in Babylon	Idem,l.i.Xenophon. Cyr.l.vii.
3466	538	He takes Babylon, slays Belshazzar, and constitutes his uncle Cyaxares, or Darius, king of Babylon	Ibid.Da.v.Is.xiii. Je.xxv.l.li.
3467	537	Daniel, being greatly preferred by Darius, is envied and hated by the nobles; and by their artful devices is cast into the den of lions, whence he is miraculously delivered	Dan.vi.
		About this time Daniel had the vision of the 70 weeks	ix.
3468	536	Darius dying, and Cambyses being also dead in Persia, Cyrus succeeds to the whole empire; and, in the same year, he proclaims liberty to the captive Jews, restores their sacred vessels, encourages them to rebuild the city and temple, and thus terminates the 70 years captivity from the third of Jehoiakim	Xenoph.Cyrop.l.viii. 2 Ch.36.22,23 Ezr. 1.1; 5.13 15; 7.6. Isa.45.1..6.
3469	535	The remnant of the Jews having returned to Jerusalem, set up an altar, begin to observe the solemn feasts, and prepare to rebuild the temple	Ezr.3.1..7.
3470	534	They lay the foundations of the temple with mingled tears, and acclamations of praise	8..13.
		About this time Daniel has his last vision	Dan.x..xii.
		Tarquinius Superbus, or Tarquin the proud, succeeds Servius Tullius on the throne of Rome, and reigns 25 years	Liv.l.i.c.46,&c. Dionys.Hal.iii. 48,&c.
3470	533	The Samaritans, bribing the courtiers of Cyrus, obstruct the rebuilding of the temple	Ezr.iv.
3474	530	Cyrus dies, aged 70, and is succeeded by his son Cambyses, or Ahasuerus, who reigns eight years	Xen.Cyr.l.viii.Can. Ptol.Ezr.4.6.
		Cleomenes, of the family of Eurysthenes, succeeds Anaxandrides in the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 31 years	Herod.l.v..vii. Pausan.l.viii. c.3,&c.
3478	526	Demaratus, of the family of Procles, succeeds his father Ariston on the throne of Lacedæmon, but is banished as illegitimate through the intrigues of Cleomenes his royal colleague	Herodot.l.v.c.75,&c. l.vi.c.50,&c.
3479	525	Psammitichus succeeds his father Amasis on the throne of Egypt; but is vanquished by Cambyses, who had invaded that country, and who conquers the whole kingdom	Idem,l.ii.iii.Diodorus Sic.l.i.p.52.
3482	522	Cambyses dies in Syria, and Smerdis the Magian, called in Scripture Artaxerxes, usurps the throne of Persia	Herodot.l.iii
		The Samaritans write to him against the Jews' rebuilding the temple, and obtain a decree forbidding them to proceed	Ezr.4.7..24.
3483	521	Smerdis is slain, and Darius Hystaspes ascends the Persian throne	Herodot.l.iii Justin,l.i.c.10.
3484	520	Zerubbabel and Jeshua, excited by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, set forward the building of the temple	Ezr.5.1,2;6.14.Hag i. ii.Zec.iii.iv
3486	518	The Samaritans and their associates again attempt to hinder the work, but are made to desist by a decree of Darius	Ezr.5.2..7.
3488	516	The Babylonians having revolted from Darius, are reduced, after a siege of twenty months; and the high walls of Babylon are reduced from 200 to 50 cubits, and their 100 gates are taken away.	Herodot.l.iii. Justin,l.i.c.10 Polyænus,l.vii.
3489	514	The temple is finished and dedicated	Ezr.6.14..22.
3490	514	The Jews obtain sentence from Darius against the Samaritans, concerning the tribute of Samaria	8..10. Jos.Ant.l.xi.
3491	513	Darius makes war on the Scythians, and returns with the loss of half his army	Herodot.l.iv. Justin.l.ii.c.5 Herodot.l.v
3492	512	He subdues Thrace, and returns to Susa
3494	510	The Scythians ravage Thrace, and drive Miltiades out of the Chersonesus. On their retreat, he returns, and is reinstated in his former power	Idem,l.vi.
		Hippias, son of Pisistratus, tyrant of Athens, is expelled from the city, with all the Pisistridæ, and the democracy restored	Ibid. Thucyd.l.vii.
3495	509	The Tarquins are expelled from Rome; and the regal government is supplied by two consuls yearly	Liv.l.i.c.46,&c. Flor l i.c.7,&c
3498	506	Darius invades and conquers Inda	Herodot.l.iii.iv

A.M.	B.C.
3504	500	The Athenians, having entered into a confederacy with the Ionians against Darius, burn Sardis, which gives rise to the Persian war against the Greeks	Herodot.l.v.
3507	497	Alexander, son of Amyntas, succeeds his father on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 34 years	Idem,l.v.,ix. Justin.l.vii.c.3.
3513	491	The Persians invade Attica, and are defeated at Marathon with great loss, and obliged to retreat to their ships, and thence into Asia	Herodot.l.vi. Justin.l.ii.c.9. C.Nep.in Milt
		Leotychides, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns 22 years	Pausa.l.iii.7,8. Diodorus,l.xi.
		Leonidas, of the family of Eurysthenes, begins to reign at Lacedæmon, and reigns 21 years	Herod.l.vii.c.120,&c.
3517	487	The Egyptians revolt from Darius
3518	486	Darius, after making great preparations for the invasion of Greece and Egypt, dies, and is succeeded on the Persian throne by his son Xerxes, who reigns 21 years	Herodot.l.vii. Ptol.in Canon. Afric.Euseb.&c.
3519	485	Xerxes confirms to the Jews all the privileges granted to them by his father	Joseph.Ant.l.xi.c.5.
3520	484	He invades and reduces the Egyptians	Herodot.l.vii.
		Herodotus, the celebrated historian, is born at Halicarnassus, in Caria	*Aul.Gel.l.xv.c.23.
3521	483	Joshua, high priest of the Jews, dies in the 53d year of his pontificate, and is succeeded by his son Joiakim	Ne.12.10; Jos.Ant. l.x.c.5; Chr.Alex.
3524	480	Plistarchus, son of Leonidas, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ, succeeds to the Spartan throne, under the guardianship of Pausanias	Herod.l.ix.c.10.
		Xerxes having invaded Greece with an immense army, loses the battle of Salamis, and is obliged to fly to Sardis	Idem,l.vii.; Diod.l. xi.; Justin.l.ii.c.10.
3525	479	The Persians are vanquished at Platæa and Mycale on the same day	Herod.l.viii.ix. Diod.ut sup.
3526	478	Xerxes, on his return toward Susa, destroys the temple of Bel, and other temples, at Babylon, breaks down their images, and carries off their treasures	Arrian.l.vii.; Her.l.i. Diod.l.ii.; Je.50.2; 51.44,47,52.
535	469	Archidamus, grandson of Leotychides, of the family of Procles, succeeds him on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 33 years	Diod.Sic.l.xvi. Xenophon.
3538	466	Plistoanax, son of Pausanias, succeeds Plistarchus on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 55 years	Thucydides.
3539	465	Xerxes, after having given up his unsuccessful war against the Greeks, is treacherously slain by Artabanus	Diod.Sic.l.xi. Justin.l.iii.c.1.
3540	464	Artaxerxes Longimanus, the Ahasuerus of Esther, having been led by Artabanus to slay his eldest brother, ascends the Persian throne, and to secure himself, slays Artabanus
3541	463	Artaxerxes conquers his brother Hystaspes	Idem,Ctesias.Es.1.1. Ctesias,Diod.l.
3542	462	Being thus fully established on the throne, he makes a great feast for his nobles; and divorces Vashti, his queen, for disobedience	Est.i.Jos.Ant. l.xi.c.6.
3544	460	The Egyptians revolt, and make Inarus their king	Thucyd.l.i.Ctesias.
3545	459	Achæmenides, brother of Artaxerxes, is slain by the Egyptians, and the remainder of his army besieged in Memphis	Idem,Diod.Sic.l.xi.
3546	458	Esther, the Jewess, pleases the king, and is made queen instead of Vashti	Est.ii.Joseph. Ant.l.xi.c.6.
3547	457	Ezra is sent by Artaxerxes as governor of Judea	Ezr.vii.
		Mordecai discovers the treason of Bigthan and Teresh	Est.2.21..23.
3548	456	Ezra arriving at Jerusalem, with priests and Levites, and a large company, and considerable treasure, separates the Jews from their heathen wives	Ezr.viii..x.
3550	454	Artabazus and Megabyzus having raised the siege of Memphis, and defeated Inarus, take him prisoner, and again reduce all Egypt under the Persian king	Thucydid.l.i.Diod. Sic.l.xi.Ctesias.
		Perdiccas II. succeeds his father Alexander on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 41 years
3551	453	Eliashib succeeds his father Joachim in the high priesthood of the Jews, and sustains that office 40 years	Ne.12.10.Jos.Ant.l. xi.c.5.Chr.Alex.
		Haman plots the destruction of the Jews	Est.iii.
3552	452	Haman's plot is defeated in his own destruction, in remembrance of which the feast of Purim is instituted	Est.x.
3559	445	Nehemiah is sent governor to Judea, with extensive powers, and rebuilds the walls of Jerusalem	Ne.i..iv
3560	444	He repeoples Jerusalem, and proceeds to reform both the civil and ecclesiastical state of the nation	v..xi.
		About this time it is supposed that Ezra prepared and set forth a correct edition of the Scriptures
3571	433	Nehemiah goes to the Persian court	12..6.
3572	432	Meto begins his famous lunar cycle, also called the golden number, from the numbers being anciently written in golden letters	Diod.Sic.l.xii.Ptol. Magna Syntax.l. iii.c.2.
3573	431	The war between the Athenians and Lacedæmonians, called the Peloponnesian war, begins, and continues 27 years	Thucydides,l.ii. Herodot.l.vii.
3576	428	About this time Nehemiah is supposed to have returned to Judea, and reformed the abuses which had crept in during his absence	Neh.xiii.
		Plato, the celebrated philosopher, is born	Diog.Lært.
3577	427	Agis, son of Archidamus, of the family of Procles, ascends the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 30 years	Thucyd.l.iii.iv.Paus. l.iii.c.8,10.
3580	424	Artaxerxes dies, and is succeeded by Xerxes his son, who is slain by Sogdianus, and he by Ochus, or Darius Nothus, who reigns 19 years	Diod.Sic.l.xii.Ctesi. Ptolemæi Canon.
3584	420	About this time Malachi prophesies	Mal.i..iv.
3591	413	The Egyptians revolt from Darius, and make Amyrtæus their king, who reigns six years	Euseb.in Chron.
		Archelaus succeeds Perdiccas on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 23 years	Diod.Sic.l.xiv. Justin.l.vii.c.4.
		Joiada succeeds his father Eliashib as high priest of the Jews, and holds the pontificate 40 years	Jos.Ant.l.xi.c.7. Chr. Alex.Ne.12.10.
3595	409	About this time Nehemiah effects his last act of reformation, and banishes Manasseh, the son of Joiada, who builds the temple on mount Gerizim	Neh.13.23..31.Joseph. Ant.l.xi.c.7.
3596	408	Pausanias of the family of the Eurysthenidæ, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns 11 years
3597	407	Pausiris succeeds Amyrtæus on the throne of Egypt, and reigns six years	Herodot.l.iii.
3599	405	Darius Nothus dies, and is succeeded by Artaxerxes Mnemon, who reigns 46 years	Diod.l.xiii. Just.l.v.c.8,11.
3600	404	Athens is taken by Lysander, which puts an end to the Peloponnesian war, and is governed by 30 tyrants	Diod l.xiii Xen.Hel. i.ii.Plut.in Ly.
3603	401	Psammitichus succeeds Pausiris on the throne of Egypt, and reigns six years	Diod.Sic.l.xiv.
		Cyrus the younger is slain at Cunaxa, whilst fighting against his brother Artaxerxes	Ibid.Justin,l.v. c.11.Plut.in Ar.
3604	400	Xenophon accomplishes his glorious retreat with the 10,000 Greeks who had followed Cyrus	Xen.Exped.Cyri.
		Socrates is put to death by the Athenians for contemning their gods	Diod.l.xiv. Diog.La.in Soc.
		The thirty tyrants expelled from Athens by Thrasybulus	Diod.l.xiv.C.Nep.in vit.Thr.
3605	399	Amyntas succeeds to the throne of Macedon
3606	398	Pausanias succeeds Amyntas	Diod.Sic.l.xiv
3607	397	Amyntas II. murders Pausanias, and reigns 24 years	Ib.Just.vii.4,9.
		Agesilaus, son of Archidamus, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 36 years	Justin.l.vi.c.1.Plut. and C.Nep.in Vit.
		Agesipolis, of the family of Eurysthenes, ascends the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 17 years	Pausa.l.iii.c.5.l.viii. c.8.Xen.Hel.iii.
3609	395	Nephereus succeeds Psammitichus on the throne of Egypt, and reigns six years	Diod.l.xiv.Justin.vi. 2 Orr. iii
3611	393	Conon rebuilds the walls of Athens, and restores it to its pristine state	C.Nep.in Con. Justin.l.vi.c.5.
3614	390	Amyntas, king of Macedon, is deposed by the Illyrians, and Argæus succeeds to the throne; but in the same year the former is restored by the Thessalians and Spartans	Justin,l.vii.c.2,4,9. Diod.l.xiv &c.
3615	389	Achoris succeeds Nephereus in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 14 years	Diod.l.xv.Theo.in Ex.Ph.
3617	387	The peace of Antalcidas is made between the Lacedæmonians and Persians, by which the Greek cities in Asia are rendered tributary to Persia	Diod.l.xiv.Justin.l. vi.c.6.Xen.Hel.v.
3620	384	Aristotle the philosopher is born
3624	380	Cleombrotus, son of Pausanias, of the family of Eurysthenes, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns nine years	Diod.l.xv.Pausa.l. ix.c.13.
3628	376	Psammuthis succeeds Achoris in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns only one year	Euseb.in Chr.p.127.
3629	375	Nepherites succeeds Psammuthis; and after a reign of four months, he is succeeded by Nectanebis, who reigns 12 years	Ibid.
3630	374	The Persians under Pharnabazus invade Egypt, and are obliged to retreat with ill success	Diod.Sic.l.xv.C.Nep in Iph.
3631	373	Johanan, called also Jonathan, succeeds his father Joiada in the high priesthood of the Jews, which he holds for 32 years	Ne.12.11,22;13.28 Chron.Alex.
3633	371	The Lacedæmonians are overthrown by the Thebans at Leuctra, where Cleombrotus is slain, who is succeeded by his son Agesipolis II. who reigns one year	Diod.l.xv.Xen.Hel. i.vi.Paus.l.13.iii.&
3634	370	Alexander II., son of Amyntas, succeeds to the throne of Macedon; but is murdered the following year by his younger brother Ptolemy, who reigns four years	Justin.l.vii.c.5.
		Cleomenes II., brother of Agesipolis, of the family of Eurysthenes, succeeds him on the throne of Sparta, and reigns 61 years	Pausa.l.iii.c.6.
3638	366	Johanan, high priest of the Jews, kills his brother Jeshua in the temple, for which the nation is fined by the Persians for seven years	Jos.Ant.l.xi.c.7.
		Perdiccas III. succeeds to the throne of Macedon, and reigns six years	Justin.l.vii.&c.
3641	363	Tachos succeeds Nectanebis in the kingdom of Egypt	Diod.l.xv
3643	361	Agesilaus, who had come to assist him against the Persians, revolts from him, and makes Nectanebus king	Ibid.Plut.inAgesil.
		Archidamus, of the family of Procles, succeeds his father on the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 23 years
3644	360	Philip, son of Amyntas, succeeds to the throne of Macedon, and reigns 24 years	Justin,l.vii.&c. Diod.l.xvi.
3645	359	Artaxerxes Mnemon dies, and is succeeded on the Persian throne by Ochus, who reigns 21 years	Diod.l.xv.Plut.in Artax.Ctesias.
3648	356	Alexander the Great, son of Philip is born at Pella in Macedonia	Just.l.xii.c.16. Plut.in Alex.
3653	351	Ochus subdues Cyprus and Phœnicia, takes and destroys Sidon, takes many of the Jews captive, and sends them to Hyrcania, on the shores of the Caspian Sea	Diod.l.xvi.Sol.c.25. Jos.Cont.Ap.l.i. Oro.l.xxxi.c.7.
3654	350	He invades Egypt, expels Nectanebus, and reduces the whole country; which has ever since been enslaved by strangers	Diod.Sicul.l.xvi. Ezek.29.14,15.
3656	348	Plato, the celebrated Athenian philosopher, dies, aged 80	Diog.Laer.in Plut. Athen.l.v.c.13.
3666	338	Ochus, king of Persia, is poisoned by Bagoas, who makes Arogus or Arses king	Diod.Sic.l.xvii. Canon.Ptol.
		Agis II., of the family of the Proclidæ, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns 8 years	Q.Curt.l.vi.c.1.
3667	337	Philip, king of Macedon, is made general of all Greece against the Persians	Diod.l.xvi. Just.l.ix.c.3,5.
3668	336	Bagoas poisons Arogus, and is put to death by Darius Codomannus, who ascends the throne of Persia	Diod.l.xxii.
		Philip, king of Macedon, is slain, and is succeeded by his son Alexander the Great	Idem,l.xvi. Just.l.ix.c.5,6.
3669	335	Alexander the Great is appointed general of Greece against the Persians	Idem,l.xi.c.2. Arrian.l.i.
3670	334	He passes over into Asia, and gains a victory over Darius at the Granicus	Plut.in Alex. Arrian.l.i.
3671	333	He reduces all Asia Minor, and gains another great victory over Darius at Issus	Idem,Q.Curt.l.iii.
3672	332	He destroys Tyre and Gaza, visits Jerusalem peaceably, and conquers Egypt	Diod.l.xvii.Joseph. An.l.i.c.8.
3673	331	He passes the Euphrates and Tigris, and obtains a decisive victory over Darius at Arbela; and thus terminates the Medo-Persian empire, which is succeeded by the Grecian or Macedonian	Plut.inAlex.Q.Curt l.iv.c.8.Arrian.l. iii.Diod.l.xvii. Dan.7.6; 8.5..8.
3674	330	Darius is slain by the traitor Bessus	Q.Curt.l.v.
		Eudamidas, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the Spartan throne, and reigns 35 years	Pausan.l.iii.c.10.
3681	323	Alexander, after the most extensive and splendid conquests, dies at Babylon; and Philip Arideus, his brother, succeeds nominally as king, while the commanders of his army divide the empire among them	Diod.l.xvii.Q.Curt. l.x.c.3.Pl.inAlex Arrian.l.vii.
3683	321	Onias succeeds Jaddua in the high priesthood, and holds the pontificate 21 years	Jos.An.l.xi.c.8. Chron.Alex.
3684	320	Ptolemy Soter seizes upon Phœnicia, Cœlo-Syria and Judea, takes Jerusalem, and carries a great number of Jews into Egypt where they form a colony at Alexandria	Jos.An.l.xii.c.1. Diod. l.xviii Appian.in Syr.

A.M.	B.C.
3688	316	Philip being slain by Olympias, is succeeded on the throne by Alexander Ægus	Diod.Sic.l.xix. Justin.l.xv.
3690	314	Antigonus dispossesses Ptolemy of Judea, &c.	Diod.ut sup.
3694	310	Cassander murders Alexander Ægus, with Roxana his mother	Diod.l.xix. Pausa.in Bœot.
3695	309	Areus, or Aretus, of the family of Eurysthenes, succeeds to the throne of Lacedæmon, and reigns 44 years	Pausa.l.iii.c.6.
3703	301	Antigonus being conquered, the dominions of Alexander are formed into four kingdoms: Egypt, with Judea, Phœnicia, and Cœlo-Syria, under Ptolemy Soter; Macedon and Greece, under Cassander; Thrace, Bithynia, &c. under Lysimachus; and Syria, with all the east, under Seleucus.	Dan.7.6;8.8.Diod.Sic. l.xx.Plut.in Demet.Appian.in Syr.Polybius,lib.v.
3704	300	Onias dies,and is succeeded in the high priesthood by Simon the first	Jos.A.l.xii c.2. Chr.Alex.Euseb.
3706	298	Cassander dies in Macedon; and Philip, who succeeds him, dying soon after, leaves the crown to be contended for between his two brothers, Antipater and Alexander	Dexippus and Porphyrius in Euseb. Chr.pp.50.59,63.
3708	296	Demetrius, son of Antigonus, wastes Samaria	Euseb. in Chr.
3709	295	Archidamus, son of Eudamidas, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the Spartan throne	Pausanias.
3710	294	Antipater having been forced to fly into Thrace, in consequence of having murdered his mother, Demetrius kills Alexander, and seizes upon the throne of Macedon	Idem,in Bœot.Plut. in Demet.et Pyrrh. Just.l.xvi.c.1.
3712	292	Simon the just dies, and is succeeded in the high priesthood by his brother Eleazar, who holds it 15 years	Jos.Ant.l.xii.c.2. Euseb.Chron.Chr.Al.
3717	287	The soldiers of Demetrius having revolted from him, make Pyrrhus king of Macedon	Plut. in Demet. and Pyrrho.
3718	286	Lysimachus having expelled Pyrrhus, seizes upon the throne of Macedon	Justin.l.xv.c.3. Pausa.l.i.c.10.
3720	284	Ptolemy Soter, having placed his son Ptolemy Philadelphus on the throne, dies; and Ceraunus the elder son flies out of Egypt, first to Lysimachus, and then to Seleucus	Just.l.xvi.c.2.Diog. Lært. in Demet. Ptol.Appian.in Syr.
3723	281	Lysimachus is slain in battle by Seleucus, who seizes on all his dominions	Just.l.xvii.c.1. Appian.in Syr.
3724	280	Seleucus is slain by Ptolemy Ceraunus, who thereon becomes king of Macedon	Just.l.xvii.c.2. Pausan.in Att.
3725	279	Antiochus Soter succeeds his father Seleucus on the throne of Syria, and reigns 19 years	Appian.in Syr. Euseb.in Chr.
		Ptolemy Ceraunus is slain by the Gauls, who had invaded Macedon, and is succeeded by Meleager, who reigns only two months	Just. l.xxiv c.5. Pausa.l.x.c.10. Mem.Ex.c.15.
		Sosthenes conquers and expels the Gauls; but he is slain by them the following year, under the command of Brennus	Justin.ut sup.
3727	277	Antipater ascends the throne of Macedon, and reigns only 45 days; when he is succeeded by Antigonus Gonatas, who reigns 34 years	Just.l.xxl.xxv. Plut.in Demet. Polyb.l.i &c.
		About this time the Hebrew Scriptures are translated into Greek by order of Philadelphus	Joseph.An.l.xii. c.2.Aristæas.
3728	276	Manasseh succeeds Onias in the high priesthood
3730	273	Eudamidas, son of Archidamus, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the Spartan throne, and reigns 30 years
3739	265	Acrotatus, son of Areus, of the family of Eurysthenes, succeeds his father on the throne of Sparta, and reigns only one year	Plutarchus in Pyrrho.
3740	264	He is succeeded by his son Areus II. who reigns seven years
3743	261	Antiochus Soter, king of Syria, dies, and is succeeded by his son Antiochus Theus	Trogus in Prologo. l.xxvi.
3747	257	Leonidas, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ, succeeds Areus II. on the throne of Sparta
3754	250	The Parthians rebel from Antiochus, headed by Arsaces, who founds the Parthian empire	Justin.l.xli.c 4. Strab.l.xi.p.515.
		Manasseh, the high priest, dies, and is succeeded by Onias II. the son of Simon the just	Jos.Ant.l.xii.c.3.
3755	249	Peace is made between Ptolemy and Antiochus, on the terms that the latter shall divorce his wife Laodice, and marry Berenice, daughter of Ptolemy	Dan.11.5,6.Polyæn. Strat.l.viii.c.50. Athen.l.ii.c.6.
3757	247	Ptolemy Philadelphus dies, and is succeeded by his son Ptolemy Euergetes	Ath.l xii.c.10. Canon.Ptol.
3758	246	Antiochus puts away Berenice and recalls Laodice, who poisons him, cuts off Berenice and her son, and places Seleucus Callinicus, her son, on the throne	Dan.11.6.Plin.l vii. c.12.Val.Max.l.ix. c.14.Ap.in Syr.
		Ptolemy, to revenge the death of his sister, slays Laodice, and subdues all Syria and Cilicia; and, returning to Egypt laden with spoil, he offers many sacrifices at Jerusalem	Dan.11.7..9. Polybius, l.v.Monum.Adul. Jos.c.Ap.l.ii.
3760	244	Agis, son of Eudamidas, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns 14 years	Paus.l.viii.c.10.
3761	243	Ptolemy makes peace with Seleucus	Just.l.xxvii.c.2.
		Cleombrotus drives his father-in-law Leonidas from the throne of Sparta, which he usurps two years	Idem.l.iii.c.6. Plut.in Cleom.
		Demetrius succeeds his father Antigonus on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 11 years	Just.l xxvi.c.2. Polyb.l.ii.
3763	241	Leonidas is restored to the throne of Sparta
3769	235	Cleomenes succeeds his father Leonidas	Polyb.l.vi.
3772	232	Antigonus Doson being left guardian of his nephew Philip, son of Demetrius, usurps the throne of Macedon, and reigns 11 years	Idem.l.ii.Just. l.xxviii.xxix. Plut.in Cleom.
3774	230	Seleucus is vanquished, and taken prisoner by the Parthians	Athen.l.v.c 13. Just.l.xli.c 4.5.
		Archidamus, of the family of Procles, succeeds to the throne of Sparta, and reigns five years
3779	225	Cleomenes kills his royal colleague, and makes his brother Euclidas king, who reigns six years	Justin.l.xxviii. Plut.in Cleom.
		Seleucus Callinicus dies in Parthia, and is succeeded by his son Seleucus Ceraunus, who reigns three years	Justin.l.xxvii.c.3.
3781	223	Ceraunus is poisoned by his attendants, and succeeded by his brother Antiochus the Great	Idem.l,xxix c.5. Polyb.l.iv.
3782	222	Cleomenes, king of Sparta, is defeated at Sellasia by the Achæans, and is forced to fly into Egypt	Plut. in Vit.
3783	221	Ptolemy Philopater succeeds his father on the throne of Egypt, and reigns 17 years	Dan.11.9. Polyb. l.v.Ptol Cæn.
		Philip, son of Demetrius, succeeds Antigonus on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 42 years	Polyb.l.xvi &c. Just.l.xxix &c.
3785	219	Cleomenes kills himself; and Lycurgus and Agesipolis succeed to the throne of Lacedæmon, under whom the monarchical power is abolished	Plut. in Cleom. Polyb.l.vi.Just. l. xxviii.&c.
3786	218	Antiochus having seized upon Phœnicia and Cœlo-Syria, overthrows the forces of Ptolemy, and makes himself master of Galilee &c.	Da.11.10 Polyb.l v.

A.M.	B.C.
3787	217	Onias II. succeeds his father Simon in the high priesthood, which he holds 22 years	Jos.Ant.l.xii. c.4.Euseb.Chr.
		Ptolemy gains a great victory over Antiochus at Raphia; and coming to Jerusalem, he attempts to enter the Holy of Holies, but is hindered by Onias	Dan.11.11.3 Mac.i. Polyb l v. Just.l xxx.c.1.
3788	216	Having made peace with Antiochus, he attempts to destroy all the Jews at Alexandria, but fails	3 Mac.i..iv.
3800	204	Ptolemy Philopator dies, and is succeeded by Ptolemy Epiphanes, then only five years of age	Dan.11.12. Just.l.xxx.c.1,2.
3801	203	Antiochus combines with Philip of Macedon to divide the dominions of Ptolemy between them, and seizes upon Palestine and Cœlo-Syria	Dan.11 13 Polyb.l.iii. Liv.l.xxxi.
3803	201	The Egyptians implore the assistance of the Romans for their infant king; who send M. Emilius Lepidus into Egypt	Ibid Justin.l.xxx.c. 2,3.Val.Max.vi.6.
3805	199	Antiochus being engaged in war with Attalus, king of Pergamus, Scopas seizes all Judea, and puts a garrison in Jerusalem	Jos.Ant.l.xii.c.3. Hier.in Dan.xi.
3806	198	Having made peace with Attalus, Antiochus vanquishes Scopas at Paneas, and recovers all he had lost	Idem.Liv.l xxxiii.c 19.Just.l.xxxi.c.1.
3809	195	Hannibal, the celebrated Carthagenian general, places himself under the protection of Antiochus, and confirms him in his resolution of making war on the Romans	C. Nep.in Han.Liv l.xxx.Appian.in Syriacis.
		Simon the high priest dies, and is succeeded by his son Onias III. who holds the pontificate 24 years	Jos.Ant.l.xii.c.4. Euseb.Chron.
3811	193	Antiochus marries his daughter Cleopatra to Ptolemy Epiphanes, king of Egypt	Jos Ant xii.4.Liv l. xxxv.c.13.
3813	191	Having passed over to Europe against the Romans, he is driven back into Asia	Id.lib.xxxvi. Athen l x c.12.
3814	190	Lucius Scipio, the Roman consul, follows him, and by a complete victory compels him to make an ignominious peace	Dan.11.17..19.Liv.l. xxxvii. Just.l.xxxi.c.8.
3816	188	Philopœmen takes Lacedæmon, and abolishes the laws of Lycurgus for a short period	Id.l.xxxii.c.4. Plut.in Philop.
3817	187	Antiochus is slain, while attempting to rob the temple of Elymais, and is succeeded by his son Seleucus Philopator	Dan.11.19,20. Just.l.xxxii.c 2
3824	180	Ptolemy Epiphanes having been poisoned, is succeeded by his son Philometor, then only six years of age	Hieron.in Dan.xi.
3825	179	Perseus succeeds his father Philip on the throne of Macedon, and reigns 11 years	Liv lib xlii. Polyb.Leg.60.
3828	176	Heliodorus, by order of Seleucus, attempts to rob the temple, but is prevented by an angel	2 Mac.iii.&c. Jos.de Mac.c.4.
		Seleucus is poisoned by Heliodorus, who attempts to seize the crown	Dan 11 20,21 Appian.in Syr.
3829	175	Antiochus, the brother of Seleucus, obtains the kingdom by flatteries, and reigns 11 years	Idem,l Mac.i.10.
		Jason buys the high priesthood of him, and supplants his brother Onias	2 Mac.4.7,&c. Jos.de Mac.c.4.
3832	172	Menalaus supplants Jason his brother, by buying the high priesthood of Antiochus	2 Mac.4.23..25. Joseph.ut sup.
3833	171	Onias is put to death at Antioch; and Lysimachus, the deputy of Menalaus, is slain in a tumult at Jerusalem	2 Mac.4.26..42.
		Antiochus gains a great victory over the forces of Ptolemy near Pelusium	Dan.11.22. Just l xxxiv c.2.
3834	170	He gains another victory, and makes himself master of all Egypt, except Alexandria	Dan.11.24,25. Dio.Excer.Val.
		A report having spread of his death, Jason surprises Jerusalem, and puts many to death	1 Mac.i.20..25. Jos.Ant.xii.8.
		Antiochus hearing that the Jews rejoiced at the news of his death, takes Jerusalem, slays 40,000 persons, sells as many more for slaves, and plunders and profanes the temple	1 Mac.i.21,22. 2 Mac.v. Jos.Ant.xii.7.
		The Alexandrians make Physcon,brother of Ptolemy Philometor, king of Egypt	Porphyr.in Gr. Eus.Sc p.66,68.
3835	169	Antiochus again invades Egypt, and attempts the siege of Alexandria, without success	Liv.l.xliv.c.19. Just l xxx v.c.2.
3836	168	Hearing that the two brothers had agreed to reign in peace, he again invades Egypt, but is compelled by the Romans to return	Id.l.xxxiv.c.3. Liv.l.xlv.c.11. 12.Dan.11.27.
		Mad with rage, he despatches Apollonius to complete the ruin of Jerusalem, who builds the fortress on mount Acra, and begins his persecution of the Jewish religion	1 Mac.1.43..64.2 Mac. vi.Jos.Ant.l xii.c.7.
		Mattathias and his sons take up arms	Jos Bel l i c.1.
		The Romans having conquered Perseus at Pydna, terminate the kingdom of Macedon	Just l xxx. Flor.l.ii.c.12.
3837	167	The seven Maccabean brethren and their mother martyred; and the persecution of the Jews carried on with great violence	2 Mac.vi.vii.Joseph. de Maccab.
3838	166	Mattathias dies, and is succeeded by his son Judas, who obtains most splendid victories over the generals of Antiochus Epiphanes	1 Mac.iii. 2 Mac.viii.Jos. Ant.xii.9,10.
3839	165	He vanquishes Lysias, recovers Jerusalem, and restores the daily sacrifice and the worship of the temple	1 Mac.iv.2 Mac.x. Jos Ant xii c 11.
3840	164	Antiochus Epiphanes dies miserably in the East, and is succeeded by his son Antiochus Eupator	1 Mac.vi.2 Mac.x. Jos.Ant.l.xii.c.13.
3841	163	Judas, after various successes against the surrounding enemies of the Jews, again vanquishes Lysias, and compels him to peace	1 Mac.v.vi.2 Mac.x. xi.Jos Ant xii.10
		Menalaus is slain, and Alcimus made high priest	Idem.
3842	162	Demetrius Soter, son of Seleucus Philopator, escapes from Rome, kills Antiochus Eupator, and succeeds to the throne of Syria	1 Mac.vii.Polyb. Legat 114.Jos. Ant.l.xii.c.16.
3843	161	Nicanor, sent by Demetrius against the Jews, is slain by Judas, with all his army; but Bacchides, sent to avenge this blow, slays Judas, who is succeeded by Jonathan	1 Mac.viii.ix.2 Mac. xiv.Joseph.Ant l.xii.c.17..19.
3844	160	Alcimus, the high priest, dies, and Bacchides leaving Jerusalem; the Jews enjoy peace	1 Mac.9.55.&c.
3846	158	Bacchides returning into Judea, is routed by Jonathan and Simon his brother, and makes peace with the Jews	Idem,ix 70 Jos.Ant. l.xiii.c.1,2.
3851	153	Jonathan is made high priest by Alexander Balas, in consequence of assisting him on his laying claim to the throne of Syria against Demetrius	1 Mac.x.1..48.Jos. Ant.l.xiii.c.3..5.
3854	150	Demetrius is slain by Alexander Balas, who succeeds him, and reigns five years	1 Mac. 10.49.&c. Jos.Ant.xiii.5.
3855	149	Onias, the son of Onias, who had been high priest, builds a temple in Egypt, like that at Jerusalem	Idem.Ant.l.xiii. c.6.l.xx.c.3.
3857	147	L. Mummius, the Roman consul, conquers the Achæans, burns Corinth, and reduces the whole, with the kingdom of Lacedæmon, into a Roman province	Pausa.l v.c.24. Liv.Epit.l.li. Patei.l.i.c.13
3859	145	Alexander Balas being slain, is succeeded on the throne of Syria by Demetrius Nicator	1 Mac.xi.Joseph. Ant.l.xiii.c.8.
		Ptolemy Philometor dies of the wounds he had received in warring against Alexander, and is succeeded by Physcon	Justin.l.iv.Epit.l.lii Strabo l.xvi

A.M.	B.C.
3860	144	Jonathan, after various successes, in support of the son of Alexander Balus, against Demetrius, is treacherously murdered by Tryphon, and succeeded by Simon	1 Mac.11.54,&c. xii.xiii.Jos.A. l.xiii.c.9,10.
3861	143	Tryphon murders the young Antiochus, and declares himself king; but Simon declaring for Demetrius, and defeating his designs upon Judea, is made sovereign ruler	1 Mac.13.31,&c.Jos. Ant.l.13.c.11,12. Liv.Ep.55.
3862	142	Simon demolishes the fortress of Acra, and levels the hill on which it stood	1 Mac.13.49..53. Jos.Ant.xiii.11.
3863	141	The sovereignty of Judea is confirmed to Simon, and to his posterity, by a general assembly of the Jews at Jerusalem; and he frees them from all tribute to any foreign prince	Id.l.xiii.c.13. 1 Mac.14.26..29.
3864	140	Demetrius being taken prisoner by the Parthians, his brother, Antiochus Sidetes, invited by his queen, ascends the throne	Jos.Ant.l.xiii.c.12. Appian.in Syr.
3869	135	Simon, with two of his sons, is basely murdered by Ptolemy his son-in-law; and is succeeded by his son John Hyrcanus	1 Mac.xvi.Jos.Ant. l.xiii.c.14..16.
3871	133	Attalus, king of Pergamus, bequeaths his kingdom to the Romans	Jus.l.xxxvi.c.4. Flor.l.ii.c.20.
3874	130	Antiochus is slain in the East; and Demetrius Nicator returns, and recovers his kingdom	Just.l.xxxviii.c.10.
		Hyrcanus shakes off the Syrian yoke, makes himself independent, and destroys the temple on mount Gerizim	Jos.Ant.l.xiii.c.16,17.
3875	129	He conquers the Edomites, compels them to be circumcised, and incorporates them among the Jews	Ibid.l.xv.c.11. Strabo,l.xvi.
3878	126	Demetrius being slain, the impostor Zebina ascends the throne of Syria, and reigns two years	Jos.Ant.xiii.17. Just.l.xxxix.
3881	123	Antiochus Gryphus is made king of Syria, and conquers Zebina, who is afterwards slain	Just.xxxix.1,2. Appian.in Syr.
3887	117	Ptolemy Physcon, king of Egypt, dies, and is succeeded by Ptolemy Lathyrus, in conjunction with his mother Cleopatra	Just.l.xxxix.c.3. Ptol.Canon.
3890	114	Antiochus Cyzicenus seizes part of Syria, and reigns at Damascus, while Gryphus reigns at Antioch	Just.l.xxxix.c.2,3. Porphyr.in Gr.
3895	109	Aristobulus and Antigonus, sons of Hyrcanus, take and utterly destroy Samaria	Jos.Ant.l.xiii.c.18.
3897	107	Hyrcanus dies, and is succeeded by his son Aristobulus, who first assumes the insignia and title of king	Id.et Euseb.in Chr.
3878	106	Aristobulus dies, and is succeeded by his brother Alexander Jannæus, who reigns, with great success, during 27 years	Jos.Ant.l.xiii.c.19, &c.Bel.l.i.c.3.
3907	197	Antiochus is succeeded by his son Seleucus	Id.Ant.xiii.21.
3910	94	Selecus slays Cyzicenus, king of Damascus, who is succeeded by Antiochus Eusebus	Ibid.Trogi Prolog.40.
3911	93	Seleucus is vanquished by Eusebus, and succeeded by Philip	Ibid.Por.in Græcis.
3912	92	Eusebus is vanquished by Philip, and succeeded by Demetrius	Ibid.
3917	87	Demetrius dies in Parthia, and is succeeded by Dionysius	Jos.Ant.l.xiii.c.22.
3921	83	Tigranes, king of Armenia, is chosen king by the Syrians	Just.l.xl.c.1,2.
3924	80	Ptolemy Lathyrus, king of Egypt, dies, and is succeeded by Alexander, who reigns 15 years	Jos.Ant.xiii.24. App.Bel.l.i.
3925	79	Jannæus dies, and is succeeded by his wife Alexandra, who makes her eldest son Hyrcanus high priest	Jos.ut sup.et Bel. Jud.l.i.c.4.
3934	70	Alexandra dies, and is succeeded by Hyrcanus, who is dispossessed by his brother Aristobulus	Ibid.
3939	65	Pompey reduces Syria into a province; and thus terminates the Macedonian empire	Jos.Ant.xiv.4. Bel.l.i.c.5.
		The Alexandrians expel Alexander, and make Ptolemy Auletes king, who reigns 12 years	Sue.in Jul.Cæs. 11.Trog.Pr.39.
3941	63	Pompey, appealed to by Aristobulus and Hyrcanus, decides for the latter, takes Jerusalem, and makes Judea tributary	Jos.Ant.l.xiv.c.1..8. Bel.l.i.c.4,5.
3947	57	Aristobulus, and Alexander his son, raise disturbances in Judea; but are vanquished by Gabinius, governor of Syria	Jos.Ant.l.xiv.c.11. Bel.l.i.c.6.
3950	54	Crassus, the Roman general, plunders the temple; and the next year is slain in Parthia	Id.Ant.xiv.12. Plut.in Crass.
3953	51	Ptolemy Auletes, king of Egypt, dies, and is succeeded by his daughter Cleopatra and his eldest son Ptolemy	Ptol.Canon.Cæs. Com.deBel.Civ.l.iii.
3956	48	Julius Cæsar prevails against Pompey at Pharsalia, who flies into Egypt, and is treacherously murdered	Idem.Plut.in Cæsar.et Pomp.
3957	47	Antipater appointed governor of Judea by Cæsar	Jos.Ant.xiv.17.
3960	44	Julius Cæsar is murdered in the senate	Plut.in Cæsar.
3961	43	Antipater is poisoned by Malichus, and succeeded by Herod and Phasael, who revenge his death on the murderer	Jos.Ant.l.xiv.c.18, 19.Bel.l.i.c.9.
3964	40	The Parthians take Jerusalem, slay Phasael, make Hyrcanus prisoner, and place Antigonus, son of Aristobulus, on the throne; but Herod fleeing to Rome, is constituted king of Judea	Idem.Ant.l.xiv.c.25, 26.Bel.l.i.c.11,12.
3967	37	Herod, after various losses, takes Jerusalem, after a year's siege, and is fully established in royal authority, which he holds with great ability though with great cruelty, for 34 years	Idem,Ant.l.xiv.c.23, &c.Bel.l.i.c.13,&c.

A.M.	B.C.
3970	30	Octavianus having vanquished Antony and Cleopatra, compels them to kill themselves, and reduces Egypt into a Roman province	Plut. in Anton. Dion.Cass.l.li.
3977	27	He acquires the monarchy of the Roman empire, with the title of Cæsar Augustus	Idem,l.liii.liii.
3987	17	Herod, after two years preparation, begins to rebuild, or rather repair, the temple	Jos.Ant.l.xv.c.14.
3998	6	The angel Gabriel announces the birth of John the Baptist	Lu.l.11.
3999	5	He announces to Mary the birth of the Messiah	26.
4000	4	John the Baptist is born	57.
		Christ is born at Bethlehem of Judah	2.6

PERIOD VIII.

From the birth of Jesus Christ to the completion of the Canon of the New Testament.

A.M.	B.C.
4001	3	Herod in vain attempts to murder the infant Saviour, but massacres all the male infants at Bethlehem	Mat.2.13..18.
		He puts his son Antipater to death, and five days after, dies most miserably	19. Jos.Ant.xvii.8.
4002	2	Archelaus succeeds his father in Judea, Idumæa, and Samaria; Herod Antipas, in Galilee and Peræa; and Philip, in Auronitis, Trachonitis, Paneas, and Batanea	Mat.2.22.Lu.3.1. Jos.Ant.xvii.13.
		Joseph and Mary return with Jesus from Egypt, and settle at Nazareth in Galilee	Mat.2.19..23.
4004	1	The Christian æra begins, four years after the real time of Christ's birth
A.D.
4012	8	Archelaus deposed, Judea reduced to a province, and Coponius appointed procurator	Jos.Ant.l.xvii. c.15.l.xviii.c 1.
		About this time arose Judas of Galilee	Ac.5.37.
		Jesus, 12 years of age, disputes with the doctors	Lu.2.46.
4014	10	Marcus Ambivius is made procurator of Judea	Jos.Ant.xviii.3.
4016	12	Tiberius is admitted to a share of the government with Augustus	Pater.l.ii.c.121. Suet.in Tib.c.21
4017	13	Annius Rufus succeeds Marcus Ambivius	Idem,c.24.
4018	14	Augustus dies, and is succeeded by Tiberius	Jos.Ant.xviii.3.
4019	15	Valerius Gratus appointed procurator of Judea	Ibid.
4027	23	He makes Ismael high priest, instead of Annas	Ibid.
4028	24	He removes Ismael, and substitutes Eleazar	Ibid.
4029	25	He displaces Eleazar, and appoints Simon	Ibid.
4030	26	Caiaphas made high priest, instead of Simon	Ibid.
		Pontius Pilate appointed governor of Judea, instead of Gratus	Ibid. John 18.13.
		John the Baptist begins his ministry; and soon after baptizes our Lord, being then about 30 years of age, who also enters upon his public ministry	Mat.iii.Mar.i.Luke iii.John 1.7,&c.
4032	28	John the Baptist is beheaded by Herod Antipas	Mat.14.3..15.
4033	29	Our Lord is crucified under Pontius Pilate	xxvii.
		Descent of the Holy Ghost, and Peter's sermon	Acts ii.
		Peter and John imprisoned	iii.iv.
4034	30	Ananias and Sapphira struck dead, &c.	v.
4035	31	Stephen stoned, and the church persecuted	vi.vii.
4036	32	Philip baptizes the Ethiopian eunuch	viii.
4037	33	The conversion of Saul, afterwards called Paul	9.1..12.
4040	36	He escapes from the Jews at Damascus	23..31.
4041	37	Tiberius dies, and is succeeded by Caligula	Sueton.in Callg.
		Peter cures Eneas, and restores Tabitha to life	Acts 9.32..43.
4042	38	Caligula makes Agrippa tetrarch of Galilee
4045	41	Caligula dies, and is succeeded by Claudius	Sueton.in Clau.
		Cornelius the centurion is converted	Acts x.
4046	42	Claudius makes Herod Agrippa king of Judea
4047	43	The disciples first called Christians at Antioch	11.26.
4048	44	Herod puts James the brother of John to death; and soon after is eaten up of worms	xii.Jos.Ant. l.xix.c.8.
4049	45	Cuspius Fadus appointed governor of Judea
		A dreadful famine in Judea, foretold by Agabus	Idem,l.xx.c.2.
4050	46	Tiberius Alexander appointed governor of Judea
4052	48	He is superseded by Ventidius Cumanus
4057	53	Felix appointed governor, instead of Cumanus
4058	54	Claudius is poisoned, and is succeeded by Nero	Sueton.in Nero.
4066	62	Festus succeeds Felix as governor of Judea	Acts 24.27.
		St. Paul is sent to Rome in bonds	xxvii.
4069	65	St. Paul and St. Peter put to death at Rome
		Vespasian, sent by Nero, makes war against the Jews
4072	68	Nero kills himself, and is succeeded by Galba	Plut.and Sue.in G.
4073	69	Galba is murdered and succeeded by Otho, who kills himself, and is succeeded by Vitellius; and Vitellius being cut off, is succeeded by Vespasian	Tacit.Hist. l.ii.c.50,&c.Plut. and Suet.in Vit.
4074	70	Jerusalem is taken by Titus, son of Vespasian; and the city and temple destroyed; 1,100,000 persons having perished in the siege	Jos.Bel.l.vii.c.10,&c
4083	79	Vespasian dies, and is succeeded by Titus	Suet.in Tit.
4085	81	Titus dies, and is succeeded by Domitian	Idem,in Dom.
4099	95	St. John banished to Patmos	Re.1.9.
4100	96	Domitian is slain, and is succeeded by Nerva	Diod.l.lxix.
		St. John is liberated from exile, and writes his Revelation and Gospel
4102	98	Nerva dies, and is succeeded by Trajan	Plin.Paneg
4104	100	St. John dies about this time aged 94

THE END.

HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY

OF PLACES AND PERSONS MENTIONED IN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENT.

BY REV. WM. PATTON, D. D.

AARON, (lofty, mountainous). The eldest son of Amram and Jochebad, Ex. 6: 20, he was of the tribe of Levi, and brother of Moses. He was born B. C. 1574, or, according to Hales, 1730 B. C. He was the First High Priest of the Israelites. Appointed to assist Moses, Ex. 4: 14–27; goes with him to Pharaoh, 5: 1. Marries Elisheba, and has four sons, 6: 23; he and his sons set apart to the priest's office, 28: 1. Consecrated, Levit. 8: 1. Commanded to burn incense, Ex. 30: 7, 8; to make atonement, 30; 10. Makes the golden calf, 32: 1; submissive when his two sons are slain, 10: 3; blesses the people, 9: 22, and Num. 6: 22. He and Miriam complain of Moses, 12: 1; stays the plague, 16: 48; his rods bud, 17: 8; not allowed to enter Canaan, 20: 7, 13; dies on Mt. Hor, 20. 28. Referred to in the New Testament, Luke, 1: 5; Acts, 7: 20; Heb. 5: 4, 7: 1, 9: 4.

ABADDON or APOLLYON, (destroyer). The former as the Hebrew and the latter the Greek name for the angel of death—the king of the locusts, Rev. 9: 11.

ABANA or AMANA, (perennial). The former the Hebrew, the latter the Keri or marginal reading, the name of one of the rivers of Damascus mentioned by Naaman, 2 Kings, 5: 12; it rises in Mount Hermon, and flows through the City of Damascus.

ABARIM, (passages). A range of mountains between the rivers Arnon and the Jordon. The most noted are Nebo, Pisgah and Peor; Numb. 27: 12; Deut. 32: 49.

ABDON, (servant of judgment). The son of Hillel, of the tribe of Ephraim, and tenth judge of Israel. He left forty sons and thirty grandsons; Judges, 12: 13–15. He died B. C. 1112. There were three others of the same name, 1 Chron. 8: 29; 9: 35, and 34: 20. There was also a Levitical city of the tribe of Asher; Josh. 21: 30; 1 Chron. 6: 74.

ABEDNEGO, (savant of Nego, or light). The Chaldee name given to Azariah, one of the three companions of Daniel; Dan. 1: 7, 2: 49, 3: 19.

1, ABEL, (vanity, vapor). Properly Hebel, the second son of Adam, a keeper of sheep; Gen. 4: 2; sacrifice accepted, 4: 4; killed by Cain, 4: 8; the blood of his sacrifice alluded to, Heb. 12: 24.

2, A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 6: 18.

ABEL-BETH-MAACHAH or ABEL MAIM. A city in the north of Palestine, east of Jordan, near Mount Lebanon, 2 Sam. 20: 14, 15, 18; 1 Kings, 15: 20; 2 Chron. 16: 4. Here Sheba posted himself in his rebellion against David. Eighty years after it was sacked by Benhadad, king of Syria, and two hundred years subsequently by Tiglath-pileser, who sent the inhabitants captive into Assyria, 2 Kings, 15: 29.

ABEL-CARMAIM (place of the vineyards). A village of the Amonites, about six miles from Philadelphia or Rabbath Ammon, a place rich in vineyards, Judges, 11: 33.

ABEL MAIN. Same as Abel Maacham.

ABEL-MEHOLAH or ABEL-MEA, (place of the dance). A town near the Jordan, about ten miles south of Bethshan or Scythopolis, 1 Kings, 4: 12; connected with Gideon's victory, Judges, 7: 22, and as the birthplace of Elisha, 1 Kings, 19: 16.

ABEL MIZRAIM, (the mourning of the Egyptians). The name of the threshing-floor where great mournings were made for Jacob, Gen. 50: 11. Jerome locates it between Jericho and the Jordan, where Bethagla afterwards stood.

ABEL-SHITTIM, (place of Acacias). A town in the plains of Moab, on the east of Jordan, between which and Beth-jesimoth was the last encampment of the Israelites on that side of the river, Numb. 33: 49. It is more frequently called Shittim, Numb. 25: 1; Josh 2: 1, 3: 1; Joel, 3: 18; Mic. 6: 5. In the time of Josephus it was known as Abila. This place is noted for the sure punishment of Israel when seduced into the worship of Baal-Peor by Moabites and Midianites.

ABELA. See Abila.

ABEZ, (Muddy). A town in Issachar, Josh. 19: 20.

ABI. The mother of King Hezekiah, 2 Kings. 18: 2.

ABIAH or ABIJAH. (the Lord is my father). One of the sons of Samuel, 1 Sam. 8: 1–5.

ABI-ALBON. See Abiel, 2.

ABIATHA, (father of abundance). The tenth High Priest, and the fourth in descent from Eli. Escaped from Saul, 1 Sam. 22: 20; sent back to Jerusalem with the ark, 2 Sam 15: 29; conspires to make Adonijah king, 1 Kings, 1: 7; is thrust from the priests' office, 1 Kings, 2: 26. Referred to in Mark, 2: 26.

ABIDAN. The son of Gideoni, of the tribe of Benjamin, Numb. 1: 11, 7: 60.

1, ABIEL, (father of strength, i.e. strong). The father of Kish, whose son Saul was the first king of Israel, and of Ner, whose son Abner was captain of the host to his cousin Saul, 1 Sam. 9: 1, 14: 51.

2, One of the most distinguished men of David's army, 1 Chron, 11: 32. He is called Abi-Albon, 2 Sam. 23: 31.

ABIEZER, (father of help). A son of Gilead and Grandson of Manasseh, and founder of the family to which Gideon belonged, Judges, 6: 34, 8: 1–3. Referred to, Josh, 16: 25; Numb. 26: 30.

1, ABIGAL, (father of joy). The wife of Nabal, behaves wisely to David, 1 Sam. 25: 3–14; married to David, 25: 39–42; dwells at Gath, 27: 3; is taken captive 30: 5; is rescued, vs. 18.

2, Sister of David, 1 Chron. 2: 16.

1, ABIHAIL, (father of light, a splendor). Wife of Rehoboam, 2 Chron. 11: 18.

2, ABIHAIL, should be written Abichail, (father of might). This name is born by the son of Huri, of the tribe of Gad, 1 Chron. 5: 14; also by the father of Zuriel, Numb. 3: 35, and again by the father of Queen Esther and brother to Mordecai, Esth. 2: 15.

ABIHU, (father of him). Second son of Aaron, Exod. 6: 23, 28: 1; Numb. 3: 2, 26: 60; 1 Chron. 6: 3, 24: 1; offense and death, Levit. 10: 1–11; Numb. 3: 4, 36: 61.

1, ABIJAH or ABIJAM, (father of the sea). Son of Rehoboam, and grandson of Solomon; the second king of the separate kingdom of Judah, 1 Kings, 15: 1–7; 2 Chron. 13: 1. He reigned three years. He had fourteen wives, and twenty-two sons, and sixteen daughters. Conquers Jeroboam, 2 Chron 13: 13.

2, The only pious son of Jereboam, first king of Israel, 1 Kings, 14: 1–18.

3, One of the descendants of Eleazer, the son of Aaron, and chief of one of the courses of the Priesthood, 1 Chron. 24: 10. He was the eighth course. Only four returned from the captivity, of which that of Abijah was not one. The four were divided into the original number of twenty-four, with the original names. Hence Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, is described as belonging to the course of Abijah, Lu. 1: 5.

ABILA. Capital of Abilene, of Lysanias, Luke, 3: 1.

ABILENE, (father of mourning). A small canton in Syria, which took its name from the chief town, Abila, between the mountains Libanus and Antilibanus Luke. 3: 1.

1, ABIMELECH, (father of the king or royal father). The name of the Philistine king of Gerar, in the time of Abraham, Gen. 20: 1; takes Abraham's wife, Gen. 20: 2.

2, Another king of Gerar, in the time of Isaac, Gen. 26: 1–16.

3, Son of Gideon by a concubine wife, Judges, 8, 31; destroys his brother, 9: 1; takes Thebez, 9: 50; killed by a woman, 9: 54; 2 Sam. 11: 21.

4, Son of Abiathar, one of the priests, 1 Chron. 18: 16.

ABINADAB, (father of voluntariness). Also called Amiriadab, the letters b and m being in the Hebrew often interchanged.

1, One of the sons of Jesse who followed Saul, 1 Sam. 16: 8.

2, One of Saul's sons, slain at Gilboa, 1 Sam. 21: 2.

3 The Levite of Kirjah-jearim, in whose house the ark of the covenant was deposited, 1 Sam. 7: 12; 2 Sam. 6: 3; 1 Chron. 13; 7.

ABIRAM, (father of altitude). One of the chiefs of the tribe of Reuben, who conspired against Aaron and Moses, Numb. 16: 1-11, 26: 9: Moses sent to him, Numb. 16: 12; earth swallows him, 16: 31–34.

—— Eldest son of Hiel, the Bethelite, 1 Kings. 16: 34.

ABISHAG, (father of error). A beautiful young woman, who cherished David in his old age, 1 Kings, 1, 4; asked as a wife for Adonijah, 1 Kings, 2: 21.

ABISHAI, (father of gifts). A nephew of David, a noted warrior; asked liberty to kill Saul, 1 Sam. 26: 5–9; desired to kill Shemei, 2 Sam. 16: 9; slays a giant, 21: 16–17; cuts off 300 men, 23: 18; 1 Chron. 11: 20; victorious over the Edomites, 1 Chron. 18: 12.

ABISHUA, (father of safety) Son of Phinees, and fourth High Priest, 1 Chron 6: 50.

ABIUD. Mathew, 1: 13.

ABNER, (father of light). Cousin of Saul, 1 Sam. 14: 51, and commander of his army, 1 Sam. 17: 55; made Ishbosheth king, 2 Sam. 2: 8; fights wth David, 2: 12; kills Asahel, 2: 23, revolts to David 3: 6–21; killed by Joab, 3: 27: David laments over him, 2 Sam. 3: 23, 34.

ABRAHAM, (father of multitudes). Founder of the Hebrew nation, a native of Chaldea, and the ninth descendant through Heber from Noah. He was born A. M 2008, B. C 1996. When 60 years old he left Ur and went to Charran. At 75 he leaves country and kindred, Gen. 12: 1; builds altars in Canaan, 12: 7, 8 goes to Egypt and denies his wife, 12: 10–20. Returns to Canaan, separates from Lot, 13: 1–12; rescues Lot, 14: 1–16; blessed by Melchizedek, 14: 17–19; son promised, 15: 1; Sarah gives him Hagar, 16: 3; promise renewed, 17: 1–14; circumcises the males of his household, 17: 23; entertains three angels, 18: 1: promise of son by Sarah renewed, 18: 12, 18: 9–15; intercedes for Sodom, 1, 18: 23; sojourns in Gerar, and again denies his wife, 20: 1; makes a treaty with Abimelech, 20: 21; Isaac is born, 21: 1; casts out Hagar and son, 21: 9: Isaac offered, 22: 1; buys a burying place, 23; 1) sends his servant for a wife for Isaac, 21: 1; his sons by Keturah, 25: 1-4; his age and burial, 25: 7; Christ's discourse concerning him, John 8: 37–58; justified, Rom. 4: 1–22; his believing seed the true church, Gal 3: 7, and 4: 22; approved, James, 2: 21.

ABSALOM, (father of peace). The third son of David, 2: Sam. 3: 3; kills his brother Amnon, 13: 23; flies to Talmai, king of Geshur, 13: 37; recalled, 14: 21; his beauty, 14: 25; brought to his father, 14: 33; rebels, 15: 1; defeated and slain, 18: 9.

—— Tomb, a monument outside Jerusalem, in the valley of Jehoshaphat, close by the lower bridge over the Kedron, supposed to refer to 2 Sam. 18: 18. Its architecture is more modern.

ACCAD. City built by Nimrod, in Babylon, Gen. 10: 20.

ACCHO, (enclosed). A town and haven in the territory of Asher, which they never acquired, Judges, 1: 31. The Greeks and Romans called it Ace, but was eventually known as Ptolemais, Acts, 21: 7. It was also called Coloniæ Claudii, Cassris, when honored with the privileges of a Roman city. During the Crusades it was known as Acon, afterwards as St. Jean D'Acre, or simply Acre. This famous city is situated on the northwestern point of a commodious bay of the Mediteranian sea, called the Bay of Acre, near to Mount Carmel. Its fame is rather modern than Biblical.

ACELDEMA, (field of blood). Purchased with Judas' 30 pieces of silver. It lies south of Mount Zion, on the slope of the hills beyond the valley of Hinnom, Mat. 27: 8, Acts, 1: 19.

ACHAIA. A province in the south of Greece, known as the Morea, of which Corinth was the capital, Acts, 18: 12, 27; Rom. 15: 26; 16: 5; 1 Cor 16: 15; 2 Cor. 9: 2; 11: 10; 1 Thes. 1: 7, 8.

ACHIACUS. A native of Achaia and follower of Paul He was the bearer of the first Epistle to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 16; 17.

ACHAN or ACHAR, (troubling). Stoned for embezzlement at the taking of Jericho, Joshua 7:22.

ACHISH. King of Gath, a city of the Philistines; sometimes called Abimilech, the title of, Ps. 34: with whom David sought refuge, Sam. 10-15, 27: 1, 3, 6; 29: 2; 1 Kings 2: 40.

ACHMETHA, (treasury). The capital of Media, Ezra, 5: 17, 6: 2.

ACHOR, (trouble). A valley between Jericho and Ai, where Achan was stoned, Joshua, 7: 26; Isa. 65: 10; 1 Kings, 2: 40.

ACHSAH, (an anklet). The daughter of Caleb, John, 15: 16; Judges, 1: 9–15

ACHSHAPH. A royal city of the Canaanites, Josh 11: 1, 12: 20, 19: 25; in the tribe of Asher, supposed to be another name for Accho.

1, ACHZIB In the tribe of Asher, but always in the possession of the Phonecians, Jud. 1: 31. It is on the Mediteranean coast, ten miles from Acre.

2, In the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15: 44, 19: 29; Mic. 1: 14.

ACRA, (citadel) One of the four hills or prominences on which Jerusalem was built. It was north of the Temple, and on it the citadel was erected.

ACRABBIM, (scorpions). Hills south of the Dead sea, Numb. 34: 4.

ACCRE. See Accho.

ADADAH. Town in south of Judah, Josh. 15: 22.

ADAD-RIMMON. A garden of pomegranates in the valley of Jozred, 2 Kings, 23: 29; Zech. 12; 11.

1, ADAH, (adornment, comliness). One of the wives of Lamech, Gen 4: 19

2, One of the wives of Esau Gen. 36: 4. Also called Judith, Gen 26: 34

1, ADAM, (earthy, or taken out of red earth). Created in the image of God, Gen. 1: 27; placed in Eden, 2: 15; gives names to all creatures, 19; obtains helpmete, 22: violates the law and is banished, 3: 6–24; age and death, 5: 5; death reigned from Adam, Rom. 5: 12–19; 1 Cor 15; 21, 22; type of Christ, 45.

2, A city east of Jordan, Josh. 3: 16, whose waters overflowed.

ADAMAH, (red earth). A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19; 36.

ADAMAI, (earthy). Town in Naphtali, Josh 19: 33.

ADAR. Same as Hazar-Addar; a town in Judah, Numb. 34: 4, Josh 15; 3.

ADBEEL. One of the twelve sons of Ishmael, and founder of an Arabian tribe, Gen. 25: 13, 16.

ADDON. One of the places named, Neh. 7: 61, 63, where the Jews resided in the captivity.

ADITHAIM. Town in Judah, Josh. 15: 36.

ADMAH. One of the cities of the vale of Siddim, Gen. 10:19, 14: 2; destroyed with Sodom, Gen 19: 24; Deut. 29: 23: Hos. 11: 8. See Sodom.

ADONIBEZEK, (Lord of Bezek). Cut off the thumbs and great toes of seventy captive kings, Judges, 1: 5, 6; taken captive, is similarly treated, and dies at Jerusalem, 7.

ADONIJAH, (Jehovah is my Lord). The fourth son of David, 2 Sam 3; 4; claims the kingdom, 1 Kings, 1: 5; flees before Solomon, 1: 50; put to death, 2: 13–25.

ADONIKAM. Children of the provinces, Ezra, 2: 13; Neh. 7: 18.

1, ADONIRAM, (Lord of height). The son of Abda, 1 Kings, 4: 6; also called Adoram, 2 Sam. 20: 24.

2, or HADORAM. Son of Toi, king of Hamath, 1 Chron. 18: 10.

3, Receiver-general of imports in the reign of David, Solomon, and Rehoboam, 1 Kings, 12: 18.

ADONIZEDEK, (lord of justice). King of Jerusalem, there called Zedek, with other kings, opposed Joshua, Josh. 10: 3–5; sun stood still for their overthrow, 10: 12–14.

ADORIAM. A fortified town in the south of Judah, 2 Chron. 11: 9, five miles from Hebron; now called Dura.

ADRA. See Arad.

ADRAMMELECH, (the glory of the king). One of the sons and murderers of Sennachrib, king of Assyria, 2 Kings, 19: 37.

2, One of the idols worshipped by the inhabitants of Separvaim, 2 Kings, 17: 31.

ADRAMYTHEUM, (court of death). A maritime city of Mysia in Asia Minor, at the foot of Mount Ida, opposite the isle of Lestos, Acts, 27; 2.

ADRIA-ADRIATIC. Acts, 27: 27. A gulf on the east of Italy, now known as the gulf of Venice.

ADRIEL, (the flock of God). The son of Barzillai, to whom Saul gave his daughter Merab, 1 Sam. 8: 19; had five sons, who were slain for the cruelty of Saul to the Gibeonites. 2 Sam. 21: 8, 9.

1 ADULLAM. An old city of the tribe of Judah, Gen. 38: 1, 12: 20; Josh. 15: 35. Joshua killed the king of, Josh. 12: 15; fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron, 11: 7: Mich. 1: 15. Mentioned after the captivity, Neh. 11: 30.

2, A cave near the city, where David hid himself, 1 Sam. 22: 1; 2 Sam. 23: 13; 1 Chron. 11: 15.

ADUMMIM. Border between Judah and Benjamin, an ascending road, Josh. 15: 7, 18: 17; Luke, 10: 30.

AGABUS, (a locust). The name of a prophet, supposed to be one of the seventy disciples of Christ, Acts, 11: 28, 21: 10.

AGAG, (roof). The name of two kings of the Amalakites, perhaps a common name of their kings. Compare Numb. 24: 7; Sam. 15: 8, 9, 20, 32. Spared by Saul and put to death by Samuel.

AGAGITE. A gentile name for Amalakite, Est. 3: 1–10, 8: 35.

AGRIPPA. See Herod. Acts, 25: 13, 22; 26: 7, 28.

AGUR, (a stranger). His confession and prayer, Prov. 30: 1–3, 7–9.

1, AHAB, (father's brother). Son of Omri and sixth king of Israel, 1 Kings, 16: 29, 30; marries Jezebel, defeats Benhadad, 20: 20–29; takes him prisoner and dismisses him, 33: 34, 35; takes the vanguard of Naboth, 21: 15; condemed for it, 17; his death, 22: 37.

2, The name of a false prophet who deceived the Israelites in Babylon, and was slain, Jos. 29; 21, 22.

AHASHUERUS or ACHASHVEROSH, (prince, chief). The name or title of four Median and Persian monarchs mentioned in the Bible. The first is mentioned as the father of Darius, Dan. 9: 1; the second occurs in Ezra, 4: 6; the third is the Persian king of the book of Esther, makes a fast, Est. 1: 38; Vashti dismissed, 13; marries Esther, 2: 17; decree against the Jews, 3: 11; allows the Jews to defend themselves. 8: 7; his greatness, 10: 1; the fourth is mentioned in connection with the destruction of Nineveh.

AHAVA. The river by which the Jewish exiles assembled their second caravan under Ezra when returning to Jerusalem, Ezra, 8: 18. being designated from the Assyrian town of the same name on its banks.

AHAZ, (one who takes or seizes). Son of Jotham, and eleventh king of Judah, 2 Kings, 16: 1, 2; Chron. 28: 1; distressed by Syrians and the king of Israel, 2 Chron, 28: 5; encouraged by Isaiah, Isa. 7: 1; applies to the king of Assyria, 2 Kings, 16: 7, 2 Chron. 28: 16; makes an altar, 2 Kings, 16: 10; his death, 2 Chron. 28: 27.

1, AHAZIAH, (whom Jehovah sustains). Son and successor of Ahab, and seventh king of Israel, 1 Kings, 22: 40; consults Beelzebub, 2 Kings, 1: 2; reproved by Elijah, 4; his death, 17.

2, Also called JEHOAHAZ, son of Jehoram, the sixth king of Judah, 2 Kings, 8: 24; 2 Chron. 22: 1; joins Joram, king of Israel, in his wars, and is slain by Jehu, 2 Chron 22: 9.

1, AHIAH, (friend of God). Son of Ahitub, and High Priest in the reign of Saul, 1 Sam. 14: 3.

2, One of the secretaries of Solomon, 1 Kings, 4: 3.

AHIAM. One of David's thirty heroes, 2 Sam. 23: 33.

AHIEZER. Prince of the tribe of Dan, Numb. 1: 12.

AHIHUD. Prince of the tribe of Asher, Numb. 34: 27.

AHIJAH. A prophet who dwelt at Shiloh, 1 Kings, 11: 29, 12: 15, 14: 2, 4, 3.

AHIKAM. One of the four whom Josiah sent to consult Huldah, 2 Kings, 22: 12–14; protect Jeremiah, Jer. 26: 29, 39: 14.

AHIMAAZ, (brother of anger). Son and successor of Zadok, the High Priest, 2 Sam. 15: 27–36; aids David, 17: 17: reports a victory, 18: 27, 28.

1, AHIMAN. A giant who dwelt at Hebron, Numb. 13: 22; Judg. 1: 10.

2, A porter, 1 Chron. 9: 17.

AHIMELECH, (brother of the king). Great grandson of Eli, and High Priest, who supplied David with food and a sword. 1 Sam. 21: 1–6, 9; accused by Dorg, 22: 9; brought before Saul, 11; slain by Dorg, 18.

AHINADAB. One of twelve to raise supplies, 1 Chron. 6: 23.

1, AHINOAM, (brother of grace). A woman of Jezreel, and one of the wives of David, 1 Sam. 25: 43, 27: 3, 30: 5; 2 Sam. 2: 3.

2, Daughter of Ahimaaz, and wife of Saul, 1 Sam. 14: 50.

AHIO, (brotherly). One of the sons of Abinadab, 2 Sam. 3: 1: Chron. 13: 7.

AHIRA Chief of the tribe of Naphtali, Numb. 1: 15.

AHISHAR. Officer over the Household, 1 Kings, 4: 6.

AHITHOPHEL, (brother of foolishness, or ruin). A native of tribe of Judah, sent for by Absalom, 2 Sam. 15: 12; comes to Jerusalem, 16: 15; his counsels rejected, 17: 7, hangs himself, 23.

1, AHITUB, (brother of goodness). Son of Phineas, and succeeds his grandfather Eli as High Priest, 1 Sam. 14: 3, 22: 9; 1 Chron 8: 11.

2, Father of Zadok, made High Priest by Saul, 2 Sam. 8: 17: 1 Ch. 6: 8

AH-LAB. A town in ashes, Judges, 1: 31.

AHOLAH and AHOLIBAH. Two fictitious names adopted by Ezekiel, Ezra, 23: 4, 36.

AHOLIAB. A skillful artificer of Dan, Ex 35: 34.

AHUZZATH, (a possession). The friend of Ambilech II. Gen. 26: 26.

1, AI or HAI, (heap). A Canaaniteish city in Benjamin, Gen. 12: 8, 13: 3; Josh. 7: 3, 8 1; Isa. 10: 28.

2, An Ammoniteish city, Jos. 49: 3.

1, AIN, (fountain). Levitical city in Simeon, Josh. 15: 32.

2, A town near the source of the Jordan, Numb. 34: 2.

1, AJALON, (strength). A town and valley in the tribe of Dan. Josh. 10: 12, 19: 42, 21: 24; Judges, 1: 35.

2, In the tribe of Benjamin, 2 Chron. 11: 12.

3, In the tribe of Zebulon, where Elon was buried, Judges, 12: 12.

AKRABBIM, (scorpions). Chain of hills near the Dead sea, John, 15: 3.

ALAM-MELEEH, (God is King). A town in Asher, Josh. 19: 26.

ALEMETH. A Levitical town in Benjamin, 1 Chron. 6: 60.

1, ALEXANDER the great. Son of Philip, and king of Macedonia; referred to, Dan. 2: 39, 7: 6, 8: 4–7; came to the throne 336 B. C.; conquered surrounding countries, and died aged 32, from intemperance.

2, Son of Simon Mark, 15: 21.

3, One of the council who condemned Peter, Acts, 4: 6.

4, A Jew of Ephesus, Acts, 19: 33.

5, A coppersmith and apostate, 1 Tim. 1: 20; 2 Tim. 4: 4.

ALEXANDRIA. Capital of Egypt near the western border of the Nile, built by Alexander the great. Jews from it persecuted Stephen, Acts. 6: 9.

ALLON. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 33.

ALLON BACHUTH, (oak of weeping). A place in Bethel, Gen. 35: 8.

ALMON, (bidden). Levitical town in Benjamin, Josh. 21: 18.

ALMON DIBLATHAIM. Station near Moab, Numb. 33: 46.

ALOTH. A district near Asher, 1 Kings, 4: 16.

ALUSH. Station on route to Sinai, Numb. 33: 13

AMAD. A town in Asher, Josh. 19: 26.

AMALEK AMALEKITES, (a people that strike). Son of Eliphaz, Gen. 36: 12; the descendants of Ezra, through Amalek dwelling south of Palestine, and east of the Dead sea and Mount Sier, Gen. 14: 7; defeated, Ex. 17: 8: to be destroyed, 14, 25: 17–19: 1 Sam. 15: 3. See note.

2, AMALEK. A mountain on which Peathore was built, Judges, 12: 15.

AMAN. A city in south of Judah, Josh. 15: 26.

1, AMANA. Eastern summit of Lebanon, Song. Sol. 4: 8.

2, River of Damascus. See Abana.

1, AMARIAH, (word of Jehovah). Descendant of Aaron by Eleazer, 1 Chron. 6: 7.

2, High Priest, I Chron. 6: 11.

3, Greatgrandfather of Zephaniah, Zeph. 1: 1.

1, AMASA, (a burden). Son of Abigail, sister of David, Chron. 2 : 17; commands the army of Absalom, 2 Sam. 17 : 25; slain, 20 : 4.
2, A chief of Ephraim, 2 Chron. 28 : 12.
AMASAI, (the people's present). Chief of the captains who joined David in the wilderness, 1 Chron. 6 : 25.
AMATH-EMATH or HAMATH. See Hamath.
1, AMAZIAH, (strength of Jehovah) Eighth king of Judah, 2 Kings, 12 : 21 : 2 Chron. 25 : 1; defeats Edomites; 2 Kings, 14 : 7; defeated, 12; murdered, 19 : 2; Chron. 25 : 27.
2, Priest of the golden calves at Bethel, Amos, 7 : 10, 17.
AM-MAH, (my people). A Hill, 2 Sam. 2 : 24.
1, AMINADAB, (my people is free). Father of Aaron's wife, Ex. 6 : 23; ancestor of Christ. Mat 1 : 4.
2, Chariots of, Songs of Sol. 6 : 12.
AMMON-AMMONITES, (the people). Son of Lot, Gen. 19 : 38; not to enter the congregation, Deut. 23 : 3; note C. B.
AMNON, (faithful and true). Eldest son of David, 2 Sam. 3 : 2; wickedness, 13 : 2; killed by Absalom, 26–28.
1 AMON, (artificer). Fourth king of Judah, 2 Kings, 21 : 19; 2 Chron. 33 : 21.
2, Governor of Syria, 1 Kings, 22 : 26.
AMORITES, (rebels). Descendants of the fourth son of Canaan, dwelling on both sides of the Jordan, Gen. 10 : 16; to be destroyed, Deut. 20 : 17; note C. B.
AMOS, (carried or burden). One of the minor prophets, cotemporary with Hosea, 780 B. C., native of Jekoa, Amos, 1 : 1, 7 : 14; note C. B.
2, Father of Isaiah, 2 Kings, 19 : 2, 20 : 1; Isa. 1 : 1, 2 : 1.
AMPHIPOLIS. A city of Greece, capital of Macedonia, on the river Strymon which nearly surrounds it, from which it took its name. Paul and Silas passed through it, Acts, 17 : 1; note C. B.
AMRAM, (a people exalted). Father of Aaron, Ex. 6 : 20; note C. B. 1 Chron. 6 : 3.
AMRAPHEL, (judgment). King Shina; invaded Palestine, Gen. 14 : 1.
ANAB, (cluster of grapes). A town in the mountains of Judah, Josh. 11 : 21; 15 : 15.
ANAH. Son of Tibron and father of Esaias' wife, Gen. 36 : 24.
ANAK and ANAKIM. Canaaniteish nation, remakable for their stature, Numb. 13 : 22; Josh. 11 : 21, 15 : 14.
ANAMAH. A town in Benjamin, Neh. 11 : 32.
ANAMMELECH. Idol god of the Separrians, 2 Kings, 17 : 31.
ANAMIM. A people of Egypt, Gen. 10 : 13.
1, ANANIAS, (cloud of the Lord). A High Priest, made so by Herod about A. D. 47. He commanded to smite Paul, Acts 23 : 1–5; went to Cesarea to prosecute Paul, 24 : 1; note C. B.
2, A disciple of Christ, residing at Damascus, Acts, 9 : 10, 22 : 12.
3, And Sappira struck dead, Acts, 5 : 1.
ANATHOTH. A Levitical town and city of Rufuge in Benjamin, and birth place of Jeremiah, Josh. 21 : 18; Jer. 1 : 1, 11 : 21–23, 29 : 27; 1 Kings, 2 : 26; 1 Chron. 7 : 8; Neh. 10 : 19.
ANDREW, (a strong man), One of the twelve, first a disciple of John the Baptist, John 1 : 40; called, Mat. 4 : 18; introduces Greeks to Christ, John, 12 : 22.
ANDRONICHUS. Fellow prisoner of Paul, Rom. 16 : 7.
ANEM. Levitical city of Issachar, 1 Chron 6 : 73; Josh. 19 : 21.
1, ANER. Levitical city of Manasseh, 1 Chron. 6 : 70.
2, Canaaniteish chief, Gen. 14 : 24.
ANIM. Town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 50.
ANNA, (gracious). Aged widow, daughter of Phirnuel, Luke, 2 : 36.
ANNAS. High Priest at the time of the death of Christ, John, 18 : 13; Luke, 3 : 2; note C. B. Persecutes the apostles, Acts, 4 : 6
1, ANTIOCH. The capital of Syria, on the river Orontes, 300 miles north of Jerusalem, and 30 from the Mediteranean; first called Christians there, Acts, 11 : 26; note C. B.
2 A city of Pisidia in Asia Minor, visited by Paul and Barnabus, Acts 13 : 14.
ANTIPAS. A christian martyr, Rev. 2 : 13.
ANTIPATRIS. A city built by Herod the great, between Cesarea and Lydia, Acts, 23 : 31; note C. B.
ANTONIA. A strong square fortress, on the north of the temple area, with a covered way to it. On the steps leading to it Paul spoke, Acts 21 : 31–40; note C. B.
1, APHEK. A city in Asher, Job. 13 : 4, 19 : 30.
2, A town in Issachar, 1 Sam. 4 : 1, 29 : 1.
3, A town in east of sea of Galilee, 1 Kings, 20 : 26.
APHEKAH. A town in mountains of Judea, Josh. 15 : 23.
APHSES. Head of the eighteenth sacerdotal family, 1 Chron. 24 : 15.
APOLLONIA. A city of Macedonia, Acts, 17 : 1.
APOLLOS. A Jew of Alexander, learned and eloquent; about A. D. 56, he came to Ephesus, Acts, 18 : 24; instructed by Aquila, 26; mentioned by Paul, 1 Cor. 1 : 12, 3 : 4–7, 22; 4 : 6; Tit. 3 : 13.
APPELLES. A christian at Rome, Rom. 16 : 10.
APPHIA. Supposed to be the wife of Philemon, : 2.
APPIIFORUM. A market town in Italy, 43 miles from Rome, named after Appius Claudeus, whose statue was placed there, Acts, 28 : 15; note C. B. The ruins of the place still exist.
AQUILA, (an eagle). A Jew, a native of Pontus, a tent maker, whom Paul met at Corinth, Acts, 18 : 2; goes with Paul to Syria, 18 : 18.
AR. Capital of Moab, situated on the Anon, Numb. 21 : 28; Deut. 2 : 9–24.
ARAB, A town in the mountains of Judah, John, 15 : 52.
1, ARABAH. The valley of the Jordan prolonged from the Dead sea to the Elanitic gulf. Deut. 1 : 1.
2, or BETH ARABAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 18; 2 Sam 23 : 31.
ARABIA. A country in Asia lying south and east of Palestine. Solomon received gold from it, 1 Kings, 10 : 15; prophecy concerning it, Isa. 21 : 13; Jer. 25 : 24; Paul went into it, Gal. 1 : 17; note C. B.
ARABIANS. Brought flocks to Jehosaphat, 2 Chron. 17 : 11; Uzzah helped against them, 26 : 7; at Jerusalem at the Pentecost, Acts, 2 : 11.
ARAD. Canaaniteish town and country in the south of Palestine, Numb. 21 : 1 : Josh. 12. 14.
1, ARAM, (high land). A name given to Syria, Gen. 10 : 22; Numb. 23 : 7.
2, Name of a person, Mat. 1 : 3; Luke 3 : 33.
ARARAT. A lofty mountain in Armenia, on which the Ark rested, Gen. 8 : 4; note C B.
ARAUNAH or ORNAN, a man of the Jebusite nation, who sold his threshing floor on Mount Moriah to David as a site for the temple, 2 Sam. 24 : 18.
ARBA. Name of Hebron, Josh. 14 : 15, 21 : 11.
ARCHELAUS, (prince of the people). Son of Herod the great; reigns in Judea, Mat. 2 : 22.
ARCHIPPUS. A christian minister and fellow soldier of Paul, Col. 4 : 17; Phil. : 2; note C. B.
AREOPHAGUS, (Hill of Mars). A hill in Athens on which the magistrates held their supreme council, Acts, 17 : 19–22; note C. B.
ARETAS. The common name of several Arabian kings: one in the days of Paul held Damascus, 2 Cor. 11 : 32; note C. B.
ARGOB. A district in Bachan, east of the lake of Genasersaret, Deut. 3 : 4, 13 : 14; 1 Kings, 4 : 13.
1, ARIEL. A noted man in the time of Ezra, 8 : 16.
2, A name for Jerusalem, Isa. 29 : 1, 2, 7.
ARIMATHEA. A city of Judah, where Joseph the counselor was born and dwelt, Mat. 27 : 57; Mark, 15 : 43; Luke. 23 : 51; John, 19 : 38.
1, ARIOCH. King of Elassar, Gen. 14 : 1.
2, The captain of Nebuchadnezzar's guards, Dan. 2 : 25.
ARISTARCHUS. A faithful adherent of Paul, Acts, 19 : 29, 20 : 4 : 27 : 2; Col. 4 : 10; Phili. : 24.
ASISTOBOLUS. A Roman christian, Rom. 16 : 10.
ARKITES. A Canaaniteish tribe inhabiting a district at the foot of Mount Lebanon, Gen. 10 : 17; Chron. 1 : 15.
AMAGEDDON. A valley forming the great plain of Esdradon, Rev. 16 : 16. See Meggiddo.
ARMENIA. A province of Arid, 2 Kings, 19 : 37, note C. B.
ARNON. A district and stream in Moab, Numb. 21 : 14; note C. B. 22 : 26; Deut. 2 : 24; Judges, 11 : 26; Isa. 16 : 2.
1, AROER. A town on north bank of the Arnon, Deut. 2 : 36.
A town on the river of Gad, Numb. 32 : 34.
2, A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 30 : 28.
ARPAD or ARPHAAD. A town region in Syria, near Hameth, 2 Kings, 18 : 34; note C. B. Isa, 36 : 19, note C. B.
ARPHAXAD. The third son of them who gave his name to a region in northern Armenia, Gen. 10 : 22, 11 : 10 : Luke, 3 : 30.
ARTAXERXES. The title of Persian kings; several are named in the Bible.
1, Smerais, the magician, is thus called, Ezra, 4 : 7–24; note C. B. He usurped the throne after the death of Cambysis, 522 B. C., pretending to be the son of Cyrus of the same name. At the instigation of Rhehum he put a stop to the rebuilding of the Temple.
2, The one named in Ezra 7, is probably Artaxerxes Longemanus, the son of Xerxes. He encouraged the building of Jerusalem. In the seventh year of his reign Ezra conducted a second band of Jews to the holy city, Ezra, 2 : 14, 7 : 1, 11 : 21. In the twentieth year of his reign he sent Nehemiah to Jerusalem as the governor, Neh. 2 : 1, 5 : 14.
ARTEMAS. A disciple whom Paul proposed to send to Crete, Titus, 3 : 12.
ARUBOTH. A town in Judah 1 Kings, 4 : 10.
ARUMAH or RUMATH. A town near Shechem, Judges, 9 : 41.
ARVAD. A maritime city of Phonecia. Ezek. 27 : 8.
ASA, (physician). Son of Abijah, and third king of Judah, 1 Kings, 15 : 8; 2 Chron. 14 : 1, 2; defeats Zerah, 9; makes a covenant with God, 15; 2–15; degrades his mother for idolatry, 16; joins the king of Assyria and his war was with Baasha, king of Israel, 16 : 1; 1 Kings, 15; 16; his death, 2 Chron. 16 : 13.
ASAHEL. Brother of Joab; noted for swiftness of foot, 2 Sam. 2 : 18 : slain by Abner, 21–33.
ASAIAH. 1 Chron. 4 : 36, 6 : 30, 9 : 5; 2 Chron. 34 : 20.
1, ASAPH. A Levite, son of Barachias, 1 Chron. 15 : 17 : a celebrated musician in the time of David, 1 Chron. 6 : 39, 25 : 2, 9; he was celebrated as a prophet and poet, 2 Chron. 29 : 30. Psal. 73 to 83, bear his name.
2, Recorder to Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 11 : 18, Isa, 36 : 3.
3, Keeper of Artaxerxes' forests, Neh. 2 : 8.
ASCNATH. Daughter of Prince of On, the wife of Joseph, and mother of Ephraim and Manasseh, Gen. 41 : 45, 46 : 20.
1, ASHAN. Levitical city in Judah, Josh. 15 : 42.
2, Levitical town in Simeon, Josh. 19 : 7.
ASHDOD. The Azotus of the Greeks and Romans; a city on the Mediterranean, ten miles north of Gaza; assigned to the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15 : 47 : possessed by the Philistines; ark brought to it, 1 Sam. 5 : 1–7; note C. B. Uzziah demolished its walls, 2 Chron. 26 : 6.
ASHER, Son of Jacob, and father of one of the twelve tribes, Gen. 30 : 13, 49 : 20; his benediction, Deut. 33 : 24.
2, A town on the borders of Manasseh, Josh. 17 : 7; note C. B.
ASHIMA. A God of Hamath, 2 Kings, 17 : 30.
ASHKENAZ. Descendant of Japheth, Gen. 10 : 3; gave name to a region, Jos. 51 : 27.
ASHNAH. Name of two cities in Judah, John, 15 : 33, 43.
ASHPENAZ. Chief of the Eunuchs of Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 1 : 3, 7.
1, ASHTAROTH. A town of Bashan, Deut. 1 : 4; Josh. 9 : 10, 12 : 4; included in the half title of Manasseh, and assigned to the Lurtis, Gen. 14 : 5; Josh. 13 : 31; Chron. 6 : 71.
2, Name of the goddess of the Zidonians, and served by, Judg. 2 : 13, 10 : 6; 1 Sam. 7 : 3, 12 : 10; 1 Kings, 11 : 5, 33; put down by Joshua, 2 Kings, 23 : 13.
ASIA. In the New Testament it means a small part of Asia Minor, or more definitely, proconsular Asia, of which Ephesus was the capital, Acts, 2 : 9, 6 : 9, 16 : 6; note C. B. 19 : 10; note C. B. 27; 1 Cor. 16 : 19; 1 Pet. 1 : 1; note C. B. Rev. 1 : 4.
ASKELON or ASHKELON. A principal city of the Philistines, taken by the tribe of Judah, Josh. 13 : 13; Judges, 1 : 18; Samson goes there, 14 : 19.
ASNAPPER. Assyrian Satrap, Ezra, 4 : 10; note C. B.
ASSHUR. Son of Shem, and founder of Nineveh, and gives his name to Assyria, Gen. 10 : 11–22; note C. B.
ASSHURIM. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 25 : 3, 2; Sam. 2 : 9.
ASSOS. Seaport of lesser Mysia, in Aegean sea, Acts, 20 : 13; note C. B.

ASSYRIA. An ancient kingdom in Asia, comprehending part of Turkey and Persia, Gen. 2: 14; 2 Kings, 15: 19, 29; 17: 6; Isa. 11: 11; 19: 23, 36: 4.

1, Proper, was east of the Tigris, between Armenia, Susiana, Media, and comprehended six provinces, of which Adiabena was the most important, containing Nineveh, the capital, 2 Kings, 17: 6.

2, More generally means the kingdom, including Babylonia and Mesopotamia, Isa. 7: 20, 8: 7.

3, Is applied to the names of countries included in the Empire previous to the overthrow of the Assyrian state, as to Babylonia, 2 Kings, 23: 29; Jer. 2: 18; as to Persia, Ezr. 6: 22.

ASSYRIANS. Their conquest of Syria foretold, Isa. 8: 4, 10: 5; to be punished, 10: 12; their glory and distinction, Ezk. 23: 7, 31: 3; to be wasted, Mic. 5; 6: Zeph. 2: 13.

ATAD. The burial place of Joseph, Gen. 50: 10, 11.

1, ATAROTH BETH JOAB. In tribe of Judah, 1 Chron. 2: 54.

2, ADAR. In Ephraim, Joh. 16: 5–7.

3, SOPHAN. In Gad, Numb. 32; 34.

4, In Reuben, Numb. 32: 3.

ATHACK. A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 30: 30.

ATHALIAH. Daughter of Ahab, probably by Jezebel, destroys the seed royal, 2 Chron. 22: 10; her death, 2 Kings, 11: 15.

ATHENS. The capital of Greece, famous for learning, opulence and idolatry, situated 46 miles E. of Corinth. It was the birth place of Plato. Here Paul preached, Acts, 17: 15; 16: 22; note C. B. Celebrated for its idols. Pausanius says this city had more images than all Greece.

ATTALIA. A maratime city of Pamphilea, in Asia Minor, visited by Paul and Barnabas, A. D. 45, Acts, 14: 25; note C. B.

AUGUSTUS CAESAR. The second of the Roman emperors; he was on the throne at the birth of Christ, Luke, 2: 1: Paul appeals to Augustus, Acts, 25: 21, 25; note C. B.

AVA. Small Syrian or Mesopotamian town, 2 Kings, 17: 24.

1, AVEN. Supposed to be the same as On, Ezra, 30: 17.

2, Same as Bethoven, Hosea, 10: 8.

3, Valley near Damascus, Amos, 1: 5; note C. B.

AVIM or AVITES. The inhabitants of Ava, 2 Kings, 17: 31.

2, The inhabitants of Philistia, Deut. 2: 23.

3, Town in Benjamin, Josh. 18: 23.

AVITH. Chief City of Hadad; king of Edom, Gen. 36: 35.

AZEL. A place near Jerusalem, Zach. 14: 5.

1, AZARIAH. High Priest, 1 Chron. 6: 9; 2 Chron. 19: 11.

2, High Priest, 1 Chron. 6: 10.

3, High Priest who opposed Uzziah, 2 Chron. 26: 17.

4. High Priest in time of Hezekiah, 2 Chron. 31: 10.

5. Last High Priest before captivity, 1 Chron. 6: 14; note C. B.

6, Son of Zadok, 1 Kings, 4: 2.

7, Captain of King Solomon's, 1 Kings 4: 5.

8, A prophet, 2 Chron. 23: 1.

9, The person who put Joash on the throne, 2 Chron. 15: 1.

10, Son of Jehosaphat, 2 Chron. 21: 2.

11, King of Judah, 1 Kings, 15: 1–7; note C. B. Called Uzziah, 2 Chron. 26: 1; note C. B. Smitten with leprosy, 2 Chron. 26: 16–23.

12, One of the proud men who rebuked Jeremiah, Jer. 43: 27.

13, Chaldean name of Abednego, Dan. 1: 7: note C. B.

AZEKAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 10: 10, 15: 35; 1 Sam. 17: 1; Jer. 34: 7; Neh. 11: 30.

AZEM. A place in Simeon, Josh. 15: 29.

AZMAVETH. A city in Judah, Ezra, 2: 24.

AZMON. A place in Judah, Num. 34: 4: Josh. 15: 4; note C. B.

AZNOTHABOR. South border of Naphtali, Josh. 19: 34.

AZOTUS. Same as Ashdod, 1 Sam. 5: 1; note C. B. Where Philip was found, Acts, 8: 40.

AZZAH or GAZA. A town in Philistin, Deut 2: 23; Judges, 16: 1; note C. B. Philip goes to, Acts, 8: 40; note C. B.

B.

1, BAAL, (lord). A town in Simeon, Baalath Beer, 1 Chron. 4: 33.

2, A mountain, Numb. 22: 41; note C. B.

3, An idol, worshiped by several eastern nations under the emblem of a Bull, Numb. 22: 41; Israelites worship it, Judges, 2: 13; note C.B. His prophets slain, 1 Kings, 18: 40; Baal is often found as the element of compound names of places.

BAAL-BENITH. An idol worshiped by the people of Shechem, Judges, 8: 33; note C. B.; 9: 4, 46.

1, BAALAH. A city of Judah, Josh. 15: 9; note C. B.

2, A mountain, Josh. 15: 11.

3, A town in Simeon, Josh. 15: 29, 19: 3; called Bilhah, 1 Chron. 4: 29.

1, BAALATH. A town in Dan, Josh. 19: 44.

2, A city built by Solomon, 1 Kings, 9: 18: 2 Chron. 8: 6.

BAALATH-BEER. A town in Simeon, Joh. 19: 8.

BAALBEC. A magnificent city of Cœla-Syria, in which was the temple of Baal; same in the Bible as Baal-Gad.

BAAL-GAD. City in the valley of Lebanon, under Mount Hermon, Josh. 11: 17, 12: 7; 13: 5.

BAAL-HAMON. Vineyard belonging to Solomon, Songs of Sol. 8: 11.

BAAL-HAZOR. In Ephraim, belonging to Absalom, 2 Sam. 13: 23.

BAAL-HERMON. Mountain near Hermon, Judges, 3: 3.

BAALIS. King of the Ammonites; assassinated Gadaliah, governor of Judah, Jer. 40: 14, 41: 1-10.

BAAL-MEON. Town in Reuben, Numb. 32: 38; note C. B. Jer. 13: 17.

1, BAAL-PEOR. A mountain of the range of Abarim, Num. 23: 28.

2, An idol of the Moabites which Israel saved, Numb. 25: 3, 9; 24,000 punished with death, Numb. 25: 9.

BAAL-PERAZIM, (place of breaches). Mountain south of Jerusalem, 2 Sam. 5: 20; 1 Chron. 14: 11

BAAL-SHALISHA. Town in the plains of Sharon, 2 kings, 4: 42; note C. B.

BAAL-TAMAR. Village in Benjamin, Judges, 20: 33; note C. B.

BAAL ZEPHON. Promontory of the Red sea, on which an idol temple was erected, Exod. 14: 2; note C. B. Numb. 33: 7; note C. B.

BAANAH and REHAB. Sons of Rimon. They cut off Ishbosheth's head, 2 Sam. 4: 58; punished, 9–12.

BAASHA. Son of Abijah; succeeds Nadab, 1 Kings, 15: 16, 19, 27; his reign and death, 16: 1–8; note C. B.

BABEL. A town; confusion of tongues, Gen. 11: 1, 9; note C. P.

1, BABYLON. Capital of Chaldea, one of the most magnificent cities, situated on the Euphrates, but now a ruin undergoing explorations. Embassadors go from it to Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 20: 12: its destruction foretold, Isa. 13: 1–18; see comment, C. B. page 749; 47: 1: taken by the Medes and Persians, Isa. 21: 1–7, 45: 1; note C. B. Their idols cannot save, 46: 1; punished, Jos. 25: 12, 50: 9, 18, 35; 51: 1, 58; note C. B. Rivers of, Ps. 137: 1; note C. B.

2, MYSTICAL. Means Papal Rome, 1 Peter, 5: 13; note C. B. Rev. 14: 8, 16: 19; note C. B. 17: 5; note C. B. 18: 2; note C. B. 10, 21; note C. B.

BABYLONIANS. Their antiquity, Jer. 5: 15; note C. B. Their dress, Dan. 3: 21; note C. B. Garment, Josh. 7: 21: note C. B.

BACA, (tears). Psalm 84: 6; note C. B. Not regarded as proper name.

BAHURIM. A place near Jerusalem, 2 Sam. 3: 16, 16: 5, 17: 18.

BAJITH. Location of a temple in Moab, Isa. 15: 2.

BALAAM. Son of Beor, Numb. 22: 5; and son of Bosor, 2 Peter, 2: 15; called to curse Israel, Numb. 22: 6; his ass speaks, 28; his prophecies of grace, 23: 18; 24: 1; slain, 31: 8; Josh. 13: 22; note C. B. His doctrine mentioned, Rev. 2: 14.

BALAH. A place in Simeon, Josh. 19: 3.

BALAK, (empty). Son of Zippor, and king of Moabites, Num. 22: 2-4; appeals to Balaam to curse Israel, 22: 6.

BAMOTH-BAMOTH BAAL. A town in Reuben, Numb. 21: 19; Josh. 13: 17; note C. B.

BARABBAS. A clebrated robber who had forfeited his life for sedition, Mark, 15: 7; released by Pilate, Mat. 27: 16; note C. B. Luke, 23: 18; John, 18: 40.

BARACHIAS. Father of Zacharia, Mat. 23: 35; note C. B.

BARAK, (lightning.) Son of Abinoam, chosen to liberate the Hebrews from the Canaanites, Judges, 4: 6–9; is victorious, 15; his song, 5: 1: comment, page 309, C. B.

BAR JESUS. A jewish magician, called in the Arabic, Elymas, Acts, 13: 6, 11.

BAR-JONA. A name given to Peter, Mat. 16: 17.

BARNABAS. His name originally was Joses, native of Cyprus, and a disciple of Christ, who sold his possessions, Acts, 4, 36; note C. B. Goes to Antioch, 11: 22; goes to Tarsus to find Paul, 11: 25; accompanies Paul, 13: 2; separates from him, 15: 39; led into error by Peter, Gal 2: 13; unmarried and supported himself by manual labor, 1 Cor. 9: 5, 6; note C. B. Nephew of Mark, Col. 4: 10.

1, BARNABAS. Surnamed Justus, a candidate for the apostleship, Acts, 1: 23; note C. B.

2, JUDAS. Accompanies Paul and Barnabas to the Syrian churches, Acts, 15: 22, 23.

BARTHOLOMEW. One of the twelve, Mat. 10: 3; Acts. 1: 13; supposed to be the same as Nathaniel, John, 1: 45, 49.

BARTIMIUS. The blind beggar of Jericho, Mat. 20: 30; Mark, 10: 46; note C. B. Luke, 18: 35; note C. B.

1, BARUCH, (blessed). The son of Zabbai; a faithful friend of Nohemiah, Neh. 3: 20, 10: 6, 11: 5.

2, A Jewish Prince, the friend and amanuensis of Jeremiah the prophet. He was of the tribe of Judah, and son of Neriah, Jer. 32: 12, 36: 4; note C. B. 43: 3, 45: 1.

1, BARZILLAI. A wealthy Gileadite of Rogelim; sends supplies to David, 2 Sam. 17: 27–29; declines David's kind offer, 19: 32–39.

2, Father of Adriel, who marries Merab, the daughter of Saul, 1 Sam. 18: 19; compare with 2 Sam. 21: 8.

3, A priest who marries the daughter of Barzillai, the Gileadite, Ezra, 2: 61; Neh. 7: 63.

BASHAN. One of the most fertile cantons of the Holy land, Deut. 3: 1, note C. B. Its kings opposed the Israelites, Numb. 21: 33; Moses gave it to the tribes of Gad and Reuben, 32: 33; hill of, Ps. 68: 15; bulls of, P. 22: 12; note C. B. King of, Amos, 4: 1; note C. B. Oaks of, Isa. 2: 13.

BASHANHAVOTH-JAIR. Sixty walled cities in the country of Argob, in Bashan, Deut 3: 4, 14; called by his name: note C. B.

BATHRABBIN. Name of a gate, Songs of Sol. 7: 4.

BATHSHEBA. Wife of Urinh, 2 Sam. 11: 3; David's adultery with her, 4; he marries her, 27; mother of Solomon presents the request of Adonijah, 1 Kings, 2: 13.

BEALOTH. In Judah, Josh. 15: 24.

BEDAN. One of the deliverers of Israel, 1 Sam. 12: 11; note C. B. 1 Chron. 7: 17.

BEELZEBUB. Prince of demons, Mat. 10: 25; note C. B. Called Satan, 12: 24, 26; note C. B.

1, BEER, (a well). A place in the land of Moab, one of the encampments of Israel, Numb. 21: 16; note C. B.

2, A town in Judah, Judges, 9: 21; note C. B.

BEERLAHAIROI. A well on southwest border of Canaan, where the angels visited Hagar, Gen. 16: 14.

BEEROTH, (plural of Beer). A city in Benjamin, Josh. 9: 17, 18: 25; 2 Sam. 4: 2; Ezr. 2: 25.

BEERSHEBA, (the well of the oath). A place 20 miles south of Hebron, 1 Chron. 4: 28; note C. B. Named because of finding water, Gen. 26: 33; note C. B. Here Abraham planted a grove, Gen. 21: 33; note C. B. Made a league with Abimalech, 21: 22–32; assigned to Judah, Josh. 15: 28; afterwards to Simeon, Josh. 19: 2; Elijah flies here, 1 Kings. 19: 3; 1 Chron. 4: 28, note C. B.

BEESH-TERAH. A Levitical city in Manasseh, Josh. 21: 27.

BEL. An idol of the Chaldeans, same as Baal, Isa. 46: 1; Jer. 50: 2, 51: 44.

BELIAL. Name of Satan, 2 Cor. 6: 15: wicked men called sons of, Deut. 13: 13; Judges, 19: 22; 1 Sam. 1: 16.

BELSHAZZER. The last king of the Chaldees at Babylon, Dan. 5: 1–30; comments p. 925, and note C. B.

BELTESHAZZER. (prince of Bel). The Chaldean name of Daniel, Dan. 1: 7: note C. B. 4: 8; note C. B.

BENAIAH. Son of Jehoida, 2 Sam. 8: 18; one of David's valiant men, 2 Sam. 22: 30, succeeds Joab in the army, 1 Kings, 2: 35.

BEN-AMMI, (son of my people). Son of Lot's daughter, and father of Ammonetes, Gen. 19: 38; note C. B.

1, BENHADAD King of Syria, subsidised by Asa, king of Judah, to invade Israel, 1 Kings, 15: 18.

2, King of Syria, and son of the preceding. Much at war with Ahab, 1 Kings, 20: 1–30.

3. King of Syria, and son of Hazael, thrice defeated, 2 Kings, 8: 3, 24. 25.

1, BENJAMIN. Youngest son of Jacob, Gen. 35: 18; note C. B. Goes to Egypt, 43: 15; his descendants, Gen. 46: 25; 1 Chron. 7: 6; note C. B. 8: 1.

2, A tribe of, Josh. 18: 11–19; note C. B. Smallest, though fertile; Jerusalem, the principal city, exterminated by civil war, Judges, 20: 1; note C. B. How restored, 21: 16; furnishes the first king, 1 Sam. 9: 1, 2.

BEON. A district on the east of Jordan, Numb. 32: 3.

BERA. King of Sodom in the time of Abraham, Gen. 14: 2.

BERACHAB, (blessing). A valley where Jehosaphat and all Judah gave thanks for their victories, 2 Chron. 20: 26.

BEREA. A city of Macedonia, where Paul preached with success, Acts, 17: 10; note C. B. Now called Boor

BERNICE or BERENICE. Eldest daughter of Herod Agrippa, Acts, 25: 13: note C. B. : 23; 26: 30.

BERODAH-BELADAN. Same as Merodah, Isa. 29: 1.

BEROTHAI. City in Syria, conquered by David, 2 Sam. 8: 8.

BESOR. A stream in the south of Judah that enters the Mediterranean sea near Gaza, 1 Sam. 30: 9, 10; note C. B.

BETAH. City of Syria, 2 Sam. 8: 8; note C. B.

BETANUS. See Bethron.

BETEN. A city of Asher, Josh. 19: 25.

BETHABARA, (place of the ford). Village and ford on the Jordan, near Jericho, John 1: 8; note C. B.

BETHANATH. Town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 38.

BETHANOTH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 59.

BETHANY. A town at the foot of the Mount of Olives, about two miles from Jerusalem, the residence of Lazarus, Mary and Martha, John, 12: 1; Christ lodged there, Mat. 21: 17; note C. B. Here Mary anointed Christ, Mat. 26: 6, 7; from its vicinity Christ ascended, Luke, 24: 50; Acts, 1: 12; note C. B.

BETHARABAH. A town on the borders of Judah and Benjamin, Josh. 15: 6, 61.

BETHARAM. A town in Gad, Josh. 13: 27; note C. B.

BETHARBEL. A wild region filled with caves, on the western shore of the sea of Galilee, Hosea, 10: 14; note C. B.

1, BETHAVEN. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 7: 2; 1 Sam. 13: 5.

2, A wilderness, Josh. 18: 12.

3, A name given to Bethel when an idolatrous town, Hosea, 4: 15.

BETHAZMAVETH. A town near Jerusalem, Neh. 7: 28.

BETHBAALMEON. A city in Reuben, Josh. 13: 17.

BETHBARAH. Judges, 7: 24.

BETHBIREI. In Simeon, 1 Chron. 4: 31.

BETHCAR. A town in the south of Palestine, 1 Sam. 7: 11; note C. B.

1, BETHDAGON. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 41.

2, A town near Joppa, Josh. 19: 27.

BETHDIBLATHAIM. A town of the Moabites, Jos. 48: 22.

BETHEDON. Near Damascus, Amos, 1: 5; note C. B.

BETHEL, (house of God). Previously called Luz, Gen. 35: 6; Josh. 16: 2; note C. B. In the tribe of Benjamin, on the road to Shechem, Gen 12: 6–8; Abraham tarried, 13: 3; note C. B. Called Bethel by Jacob, 28: 19; built an altar there. 35: 1–7; visited yearly by Samuel. 1 Sam. 7: 16; note C. B. Here Jeroboam set up his idol calf, 1 Kings, 12: 29; note C. B.; 33, 13: 1.

BETHEMEK. A town in Asher, Josh. 19: 27.

BETHER. See Bithron.

BETHESDA. (house of mercy). A pool at the south gate, Jerusalem, John, 5: 2; note C. B.

BETHEZEL. A village near Samaria, Mic. 1: 11; note C. B.

BETHGADER. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 36.

BETHGAMUL. A town in Moab, Jer. 48: 23.

BETHHACCEREM. A hill in Judah, Neh. 3: 14; note C. B. Jer. 6: 1; note C. B.

BETHHOGLAH. A town of the Benjamites, on the borders of Judah, John, 15: 6; note C. B. 18; 19.

BETHHORON. Two places of this name, distinguished as the upper and nether Bethhoron, Josh. 10: 1–11, 16: 3; note C. B. 18: 13; 1 Chron. 7: 24; both were fortified by Solomon, 1 Kings, 9: 17; 2 Chron. 8: 5.

BETHJESIMOTH. A town of the Reubenites, on the Jordan, Numb. 33: 49; Josh. 12: 3, 13: 20.

BETHLEBAOTH. A town in Simeon, Josh. 19: 6.

1, BETHLEHEM, (house of bread). A city of Judah, Judges, 17: 7, six miles southwest from Jerusalem, on the road to Hebron, 2 Chron. 11: 6; note C. B. Rachel buried here, Gen. 35: 19; called Ephrath, Gen. 48: 7; Ruth and Naomi returned there, Ruth, 1: 19, 22; Samuel came there, 1 Sam. 16: 4: David born there, he desired the water of its well, 2 Sam. 23: 15; called Ephrata, fruitful, Mic. 5: 2; celebrated as the birthplace of Christ, Mat. 2: 1; note C. B. Its children slain by Herod, : 16; note C. B.

2, A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19: 15.

BETHMARCABOTH. A town in Simeon, Josh. 19: 5.

BETHNIMRAH. A town in the tribe of Gad, Numb. 33: 36; note C. B. Isa 15: 6.

BETHPALET. A place in Judah, Josh. 15: 27; Neh. 11: 26.

BETHPAZZEZ. A town in Issacher, Josh. 19: 21.

BETHPEOR. A Mideaniteish town, near the Jordan, Deut. 4: 46; note C. B.

BETHPHAGE, (house of figs). A small village at the foot of Mount of Olives, between Jericho and Bethany, Mat. 21: 1; note C. B. Mark, 11: 1; note C. B. Luke 19: 29.

BETHREHOB. A town in Asher, Judges, 18: 28. See Rehob.

1, BETHSAIDA. A fishing town of Galilee, on the western side of the sea of Tiberias, and not far north from Capernaum, Mark, 6: 45; note C. B. 8: 22; the birthplace of Peter, Andrew and Philip, and frequent residence of Jesus, John, 1: 44; woe pronounced, Mat. 11: 21; note C. B. Blind man cured, Mark, 8. 22.

2, A town in Gaulonites, on the eastern side of the lake of Tiberias, rebuilt not long after the birth of Christ, by Philip the Tetrarch, and called Julius. Here Christ fed the 5,000, Luke 9: 10.

BETHSHEAN or BETHSHAN. A town in Manasseh, Josh. 17: 11; note C. B 1 Sam. 31: 10.

1, BETHSHEMETH, (house of the sun.) A Levitical city of refuge in Judah, Josh. 15: 10; 21: 16; 1 Sam. 6: 15 smote for looking into the ark, 1 Sam. 6: 16; note C. B.

2, A town in Issachar, Josh. 19: 22.

3, A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 38.

4, An Egyptian city, same as On or Heliopolis, Jer. 43: 13; note C.B.

BETHSHITTAH. A town in Issachar, Judges, 7: 22.

BETHTAPPUAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 53.

BETHUEL. Son of Abraham's brother, and father of Laban and Rebecca, Gen. 22: 22–24, 24: 50, 28: 2.

BETHZUR. A town in tribe of Judah, twenty miles from Jerusalem, on the road to Hebron, Josh. 15: 58; 1 Chron. 2: 45: note C. B. Fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron, 11: 7; the inhabitants helped build the walls of Jerusalem, Neh. 3: 16.

BETONIM. Border town in Gad, Josh. 13: 26.

BEZALEEL. An artificer appointed to adorn the tabernacle, Ex. 31: 2: note C. B. 35: 30.

BEZEK. A city of Canaanites, Judges, 1: 4; note C. B. 1 Sam. 11: 8.

BEZER. Same as Bozra, city of refuge in the tribe of Reuben, Deut. 4: 43; note C. B. Josh. 20: 8.

BETHZUR. Josh. 15: 58.

BIGTHAN or BIGTHANA. An eunuch whose conspiracy against Ahasuerus was frustrated by Mordicai, Esther, 2: 21.

BILDAD. The Shuhite, one of the friends of Job, 2: 11, 8: 1; 18: 1, 25: 1.

BILEAM. Levitical city in Manasseh, 1 Chron. 6: 70.

BILHAH. Handmaid of Rachel, Gen. 30: 1–8.

BITHRON. A district in Perea, 2 Sam. 2: 29; note C. B.

BITHYNIA. A province in Asia Minor, bounded on the north by the Euxine sea and Propontis, Acts, 16: 7; 1 Peter: 1: 1.

BLASTUS. Chamberlain to Herod, Acts, 12: 20.

BOANERGES, (sons of thunder). A name given to James and John, Mark, 3: 17; note C. B.

BOAZ. A man of rank and wealth, of Bethlehem, Ruth, 2: 1; shows kindness to Ruth, and marries her, 2: 8–17, 4: 13.

—— One of the two brazen pillars in the Temple, 1 Kings, 7: 21; note C. B. 2 Chron. 3: 17; note C. B.

BOCHIM, (weeping). A place near Shiloh, where the tabernacle then was, Judges, 2: 1, 5.

BOHAN, (a thumb). A Reubenite, in whose honor a stone was erected, which served as a boundary mark between Judah and Benjamin, Josh. 15: 6, 18: 17.

BOZEZ. A rock in Benjamin. I Sam. 14: 4.

BOZRAH. Known by the Greeks and Romans as BOSTRA, a chief city of the Edomites, Gen. 36: 33; note C. B. Isa. 34: 6, 63: 1; Amos, 1: 12; given to Moses by Reuben, Deut. 4: 43; a city of refuge, Josh. 20: 8; Judgments denounced, Jer. 48: 24.

BUZ. The son of Nahor, Gen. 22: 21: Job. 32: 2; Jer. 25: 23.

BUZZI. Father of Ezekiel. Ez. 1: 3

C.

CABBON. Town in Judah, Josh. 15: 40.

1, CABUL. Town in Asher, Josh. 19: 27.

2, Region in Galilee, containing twenty cities, given by Solomon to Hiram, 1 Kings, 9: 13.

CÆSAR. Name of the Roman Emperors after Julius Cæsar. Those mentioned in the New Testament are Augustus, Luke, 2: 1; Tiberias, Luke, 3: 1; note C. B. 20: 22; Claudius, Acts, 11: 28, note C. B. Nero, Acts, 25: 8; household of, Phil. 4: 22; note C. B.

1, CÆSAREA PALESTINA. A city built on the shore of the Mediterranean, by Herod the Great, 22 B. C; the Roman metropolis of Palestine, and residence of the Procurator, Acts, 9: 30; note C. B.

2,—PHILLIPPI. A city near the springs of Jordan, originally called Banias; enlarged by Philip the Tetrarch, who called it Cæsarea, in honor of the Emperor Tiberias, and adding his own name—it is about 120 miles north of Jerusalem, Mat. 16: 13; note C. B. Acts, 10: 24; note C. B.

CAIAPHAS. A Saducee and High Priest in the reign of Tiberias Cæsar, Luke, 3: 2: note C. B. Advises to put Jesus to death, John, 11: 49; Jesus examined before him, Mat. 26: 3; note C. B. Mark, 14: 53; Luke, 22: 54; John, 18: 14. He was deposed in A. D. 38. What became of him is not known.

1, CAIN. Eldest son of Adam, Gen. 4: 1; kills Abel, 4: 8; referred to with censure; 1 John 3: 12: Jude, : 11.

2, Town in the hill country of Judah, Josh, 15: 57.

1, CAINAN. Son of Enos, and father of Mahalaleel, Gen. 5: 12.

2, Son of Arphaxad, Luke, 3: 36; note C. B.

CALAH. A city of Assyria, built by Asher or Nimrod, Gen. 10: 11.

1, CALEB. Son of Jephunneh, of tribe of Judah, Numb. 13: 6: stills the people, and gives a good account of Canaan, : 29, 30; promised to enter Canaan, 14: 38; follows fully with another spirit, Numb. 14: 24; note C. B. Obtains Hebron, 14: 6, 15: 13; his posterity, 1 Chron. 2: 18; note C. B. 4: 15.

2, Son of Hezron, 1 Chron. 2: 18; note C. B.

3, Son of Hur; his descendants peopled Bethlehem, 2 Chron. 2: 50.

CALEH or CALNO. An Assyrian city on eastern bank of the Tigris, Gen. 10: 10; Isa. 10: 9; note C. B. Amos, 6: 2; note C. B.

CALVARY or GOLGOTHA. The place where Christ was crucified, Mat. 27: 33; note C. B. Mark, 15: 22: Luke, 23: 33; note C. B. John, 19: 17; note C. B.

CAMON. Town in Gilead, Judges, 10: 5.

1, CANA. A town four miles north of Nazareth, birth-place of Nathanael, John, 21: 2; Christ's first miracle, John, 2: 1; returns to, John, 4: 46; note C. B.

2, or KANAH. In Asher, Josh. 19: 28.

3, A stream on confines of Ephraim and Manasseh, Josh. 16: 8.

1, CANAAN. Son of Ham, Gen. 9: 22; cursed, : 25; note C. B. His posterity, 10: 15; were not Africans, but Canaanites.

2, Named from Canaan, the son of Ham, whose posterity occupied it before the Israelites, Gen. 12: 5; note C. B. Abraham tarried there, Gen. 13: 12; to be divided, Numb. 26: 56; Deut. 11: 30; note C. B. Judges 21: 12; promised to Abraham, Gen. 12: 7; boundary, Ex. 23: 31; Numb. 34: 2; note C. B. Josh. 1: 3; conquered by Joshua, 11: 16; and divided by lot, 14: 1. It included western Palestine and Phœnitia. It is known as a land of promise—Holy Land—Judea, and Palestine.

CANAANITES. The descendants of Canaan, the youngest son of Ham, and grandson of Noah, who settled the country afterwards promised to Abraham, Gen. 15: 18; Ex. 23: 31; Deut. 7: 1; note C. B. To be destroyed, Josh. 6; 21; note C. B. Deut. 20: 16. Not wholly conquered, Josh. 16: 10; note C. B. 17: 12; note C. B. Judges 1: 27; Simon called a Canaanite, Mark, 3: 18; note C. B.

CANDACE. Queen of Ethiopia, Acts, 8: 27; note C. B.

CAPERNAUM. A populous city on the northwest shore of the lake of Gennessareth, Mat. 4: 13, 14; Mark, 1: 21; note C. B. Here Christ preached and performed miracles, Mark, 2: 1-12; John, 4: 46, 6: 17; note C. B.

CAPHTOR. Probably Crete—though some think it the same as Cappodocia, Deut. 2: 23; Jer. 47: 4; note C. B. Amos, 9: 7; note C. B.

CAPHTORIM. The Philistines who came from Crete, Deut. 2: 23; note C. B.

CAPPADOCIA. A province of Lydia, in Asia Minor, extending from Mount Taurus to the Euxine sea, Acts, 2: 9; I Peter, 1: 1.

CARCHEMISH. A town of the Assyrians, on the Euphrates, taken by the Egyptians, 2 Chron. 35: 20; retaken by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 46: 1-12.

1, CARMEL. A range of hills extending northwest from the plains of Esdraleon, and ending in the promontory forming the bay of Acre, Josh. 19: 26.

2, A celebrated mountain on the coast of the Mediterranean sea, 1 Kings, 18: 19; note C. B. Here Elijah offered his sacrifice, and where the prophets of Baal were slain, 1 Kings, 18; 40; Altar repaired, 1 Kings, 18: 30; note C. B.

3, A town in the south of Judah, Josh. 15: 55; 1 Sam. 25: 2; note C. B.

CARPUS. A disciple of Paul, who dwelt at Troas, 2 Tim. 4: 13.

CASIPHIA. Caspian mountains, in the northeast of Media, Ezra, 8: 17; note C. B.

CASLUHIM. The descendants of Mizraim, who abode near Colchis, Gen. 10: 14; 1 Chron. 1: 12.

CASTOR and POLUX, (the twins). Reckoned sons of Jupiter, hostile to Pirates; their images placed on ships for protection, Acts, 28: 11; note C. B.

CEDRON. See Kidron.

CENCHREA. One of the ports of Corinth whence Paul sailed for Ephesus, Acts, 18: 18; note C. B. A church here, Rom. 16: 1.

CEPHAS. A surname which Christ bestowed on Simon, John 1, 42; note C. B.

CHALDEA. A country in Asia, comprehended in Babylon, Gen. 11: 38; Jer. 50: 10; monarchy of, Dan. 2: 38; note C. B., and 7: 4; note C. B. Her fleet cavalry, Hab. 1: 8; note C. B.

CHARCHEMISH. A fortified city on an island near the junction of the Chebar and the Euphrates, 2 Chron. 35: 20.

CHEBAR. A navigable river in Mesopotamia, Ezek. 1: 1; note C. B. 3: 15. 10: 15.

CHEDORLAOMER. King of Elam, Gen. 14: 1; leader of the five kings who invaded Canaan in the time of Abraham.

CHELUBIA. Same as Caleb, 1 Chron. 2: 18: note C. B.

CHEMOSH. A god of the Moabites, Numb. 21: 29; Judges, 11: 24; 1 Kings, 11: 7; note C. B. 2 Kings, 23: 13; Jer. 48: 7, 13, 46.

CHENANIAH. A master of the temple of music, 1 Chron. 15: 22. 27.

CHEPHARHAAMMONAI. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18: 24.

CHEPHIRA. Town of Heritis, afterwards in territory of Benjamin, Josh. 9: 17.

CHERETHIM or CHERETHITES. A particular tribe of the Philistines, 1 Sam. 30: 14; note C. B. Ezek. 25: 16. Zeph. 2: 5; note C. B.

CHERETHITES or PELETHITES. Names of David's life guards, 2 Sam. 8: 18; note C. B. 20: 23; 1 Chron. 18: 17.

CHERITH. A brook on the east of Jordan, 1 Kings, 17: 3-7; where the prophet was fed by ravens.

CHESIL. Town in south of Judah, Josh. 15; 30.

CHESULLOTH. Town in Issachar, Josh. 19: 18.

CHEZIB. In lowlands of Judah, Gen. 38: 5; note C. B.

CHIDON. Same as Perez-Uzza, 1 Chron. 13: 9.

CHILEAB. Same as Daniel, son of David, 2 Sam. 3; 3; 1 Chron. 3: 1; note C. B.

CHILION. Son of Naomi, Ruth, 1; 2, 5.

CHILMAD. Town in region mentioned with Assyria, Ezek. 27: 23.

CHIMHAM. Supposed son of Barzillai, 2 Sam. 19; 37, 38, 40; 1 Kings, 2: 7.

CHINNEROTH. A lake in Palestine, Josh. 11: 2; note C. B. Josh. 12: 3; note C. B.

CHIOS. A populous and fertile island in the Ionian archipelago, now Scio, Acts, 20: 15.

CHISLOTH-TABOR. A fortified city at foot of Mount Tabor, Josh. 19: 12.

1, CHITTIM or KITTIM. The island of Cyprus, and in a wider sense, the islands of the Mediterranean, Numb. 24: 24. note C. B. Isa. 23; 1, 12; Jer. 2: 10; Ezek 27: 6; Dan. 11: 30.

2, Descendant of Jaran, son of Japheth, Gen. 10: 4; note C. B.

CHIUN. An idol worshipped by Israelites in the desert, Amos, 5: 26; note C. B. Acts, 7: 43.

CHLOE. A christian woman at Corinth, 2 Cor. 1: 11.

CORASHAN. Probably the same as Ashan in Simeon, Josh. 15: 42; 1 Sam. 30: 30.

CHORAZIN. A town in Galilee mentioned in connection with Bethsaida, where mighty works were done, Mat. 11: 21; Luke, 10: 13; note C. B.

CHRIST, (anointed). Is the Greek word answering to the Hebrew Messiah. This is the official title of the Redeemer, and not a mere appellative to distinguish Him from others. Jesus was his proper name, as Peter, James, and John, were the proper names of his disciples. When distinguished from others of the same name, he was called Jesus of Nazareth, John, 18: 7; and Jesus, son of Joseph, John, 6: 42. But when he is called Jesus Christ, it is Jesus the anointed, which indicates his office. The ancient Hebrews, from their prophets, understood that the Messiah would be God and man, Isa. 9: 6, 53: 1—so that they regarded him with veneration and sacred affection. As the Greek word Christ answers to the Hebrew Messiah, it denotes the same expected wonderful person. When Herod, in Mat. 2: 4, inquired where Christ should be born, the priests and scribes understood him to mean the Messiah. When Peter, Mat. 16: 16, said "thou art the Christ," he expressed his conviction that Jesus was the Messiah. See Jesus and Messiah.

CHRISTS, FALSE. Were predicted by the Redeemer, Mat. 24: 24; note C. B. They made their appearance before the destruction of Jerusalem.

CHRISTIANS. They who had been called saints, brethren, disciples, and believers, were first called christians at Antioch, Acts, 11: 26, note C. B. This occurred about A. D. 42. It was probably first used as a term of reproach because of their devotion to Christ and his teachings.

CHUN. A Phœnician city, probably modern Beirut, Chron. 18: 8.

CHUSHAN-RISHATHAIM. A king of Mesopotamia. He oppressed Israel and was defeated by Othniel, Judges, 3: 8-10; note C. B.

CHUZA. A steward of Herod Antipas, Luke, 8: 3; see Joanna.

CILICEA. The southeast province of Asia Minor, the capital of which was Tarsus, the birthplace of Paul, Acts, 21: 39; note C. B. 22: 3. Men of, disputed with Stephen, Acts, 6: 9; note C. B. letter written to, 15: 23: Paul and Barnabas visit, 15: 41.

——— A sea, Acts, 27: 5.

1, CINNERTH. One of the fenced cities of the tribe of Naphtali, on the west of the sea of Tiberias, Josh. 11: 2; note C. B. 19: 35; Deut. 3: 17.

2, A sea or lake, Josh, 12: 3; note C. B.

CLAUDA. A small island near Crete, Acts, 27: 16; note C. B.

CLAUDIA. A christian lady of Rome, 2 Tim. 4: 21; note C. B.

CLAUDIUS. The fifth Roman Emperor. Dearth foretold in his reign, Acts, 11: 28; note C. B. Banishes the Jews from Rome, 18. 2; note C. B.

2, Felix, Roman governor of Judea—see Felix.

3, Lysias, the Roman Tribune who rescued Paul at Jerusalem, Acts, 21: 33; commanded Paul to be scourged, 22: 24; note C. B. Sent Paul to Felix, 23: 26.

CLEMENT, (mild). A noted christian preacher, Phil. 4: 3; note C. B.

CLEOPAS. One of the two disciples with whom Jesus walked to Emmaus, Luke, 24: 18; Mary, his wife, at the Cross, John, 19: 25.

CNIDUS or GNIDUS. A town and peninsula of Doris, in Caria, jutting out from the southwest part of Asia Minor, between the islands of Rhodes and Cos, Acts, 27: 7; note C. B.

COLOSSE. A city of Phygia in Asia Minor, on the river Lycus, Col. 1: 2; see introduction to Epistle to Colosseans, page 1314.

COOS. A small and fertile island in the Ægean sea, Acts, 21: 1; note C. B.

CORINTH. The capital of Achaia, and residence of a Roman proconsul, situated on the isthmus which joins the Morea to Attica on the north. Paul preached here, Acts, 18: 1; note C. B. Church formed, to which Paul sent two letters. Their genuineness, 2 Cor. 8: 19; note C. B.

CORNELIUS. A centurion, and first Gentile convert, Acts, 10: 1.

COZBI, (a liar). She with a number of Midianitish women, came to the camp of Israel to seduce them, Numb. 25: 6-17; note C. B.

CRESCENS. Probably one of the seventy disciples, an apostate of Paul, 2 Tim. 4: 10.

CRETE. One of the largest and most fertile islands of the Mediterranean, now called Candia, Acts, 27: 7; note C. B. Paul sailed close by, Acts, 27: 12; left Titus there, Tit. 1: 5; notorious as liars, : 12.

CRISPUS. The chief ruler of the synagogue of Corinth, converted by Paul, Acts, 18: 8; 1 Cor. 1: 14.

1, CUSH. Eldest son of Ham, and father of Nimrod, Gen. 10: 6; note C. B. 1 Chron. 1: 8, 9.

2, The countries where his descendants resided, generally known as Ethiopia, now called Abyssinia, Isa. 18: 1; note C. B. 20: 3; Jer. 13: 23; note C. B. Under this name the regions of Persis, Chusistan, and Susiana, in Persia, are known, Gen. 2: 13; note C. B. Zeph. 3: 10. The Hebrews called the southern part of Arabia Cush and Cushan, Numb. 12: 1; note C. B. 2 Chron. 21, 16.

CUSHAN. A district in Arabia, Hab. 2: 7; note C. B.

CUSHI. Informs David of the death of Absalom, 2 Sam. 18: 32; note C. B.

CUTHAH or CUTH. A district in Babylonia, 2 Kings, 17: 24 and 30; note C. B.

CYPRUS. An island in the Mediterranean, formerly called Chittim, now Kebris. Barnabas and Muason natives of it, Acts, 4: 36; note C. B. 21: 16; note C. B. Paul and Barnabas sailed to, 13: 4; Barnabas and Mark go there; 15: 39; Paul sails by it, 27: 4; note C. B.

CYRENE. A city of Lybia, in Africa, westward of Egypt, Mat. 27: 32; note C. B. Acts, 2: 10, 11: 20, 13: 1; note C. B.

CYRENUS. Governor of Syria, Luke, 2: 2; note C. B.

CYRUS. Son of Cambysis, Ezra, 1: 1; note C. B. The founder of the Persian empire; its extent, Ezra, 1: 2; note C. B. Mentioned in prophecy as the deliverer of Israel, Isa. 44 28, 45: 1; note C. B. His decree in favor of the Jews. 2 Chron. 36: 22; Ezra, 3: 7, 4: 3, 5: 13; Daniel prospered in his reign, Dan. 6: 28.

D.

DABBASHETH. Town in Zebulon. Josh. 19: 11.

DABERATH or DABERETH. A Levitical town near the foot of Mount Tabor, Josh. 19: 12; note C. B. 21: 28; 1 Chron. 6: 72.

DAGON. A principal idol of the Philistines, at Gaza and Ashdod, Judges, 16: 23; note C. B. 1 Sam. 5: 4; note C. B. 1 Chron. 10: 10.

DALMANUTHA. A village on the east side of the sea of Tiberias, Mark. 8: 10; note C. B.

DALMATIA. A province of Europe on the eastern coast of the Adriatic sea. 2 Tim. 4: 10.

DAMARIS. A christian woman of Athens, Acts, 17: 34.

DAMASCUS. The capital of Syria, situated at the eastern foot of anti Lebanus, 160 miles north of Jerusalem, Gen. 14: 15; Elizur native of, 15: 2; Rezon reigned there, 1 Kings, 11: 24, note C. B.; wilderness of, 1 Kings, 19: 15, note C. B.; 1 Kings, 20: 34, note C. B.; an altar seen there by Ahaz, and one like it set up in the temple, 2 Kings, 16: 10; threatened, Jer. 49: 23, note C. B.; to be destroyed, Isa, 17: 1; Paul goes to, Acts, 9: 2; note C. B.; 22: 6, 26: 12; Gal. 1: 7, note C. B.; escapes from, 2 Cor. 11: 32, note C B.

1, DAN. Son of Jacob by Bilhah, Gen. 30: 6, 35: 25, and one of twelve tribes; prophetic blessing, 49: 16, 17, note C. B.; Deut. 33: 22; Judges, 5: 17.

2, A city on the east of the source of the Jordan and south of Mount Lebanon; near it Abraham routed the Canaaniteish kings, Gen 14: 14, note C. B.; here Jereboam set up one of his idols, 1 Kings, 12: 29, note C. B.

3, A name given to Laish, Judges, 18: 7, 29, note C B.

1, DANIEL. Also called Belteshazzar, Dan. 1: 7, note C. B.; a celebrated prophet, descended from one of the highest families of Judah, if not of royal blood, Dan. 1: 3; probably born at Jerusalem and carried captive to Babylon, Dan. 1: 6; refuses the kings provisions, : 8, note C. B.; interprets Nebuchadnezzar's dream, 2: 1, 4: 1; writing on the wall, 5; 25, note C. B.; made chief president, 6: 3; cast into the den of lions, : 16; his vision of the four beasts, 7: 1; of the ram and he goat, : 8; prophecy of 70 weeks, 9: 24, note C. B.; of the kings of the north and south, 11: 5, note C. B.; testimony of God in his favor, Ezk. 14: 14, note C. B.; 28: 3, note C. B.; his prophecy referred to by Christ, Mat. 24: 14; Mark, 13: 14.

2, The second son of David, called Chileab, 1 Chron. 3: 1; 2 Sam. 3: 3.

3, A descendant of Ithamar, the son of Aaron. He, as one of the chiefs, accompanied Ezra from Babylon, Ezra, 8: 2.

DANITES. Go in quest of more country, Judges, 18: 1; rob Micah, : 14–19., note C. B.; conquer Laish, Judges, 18: 27; set up an idol there, : 30; their inheritance, Josh. 19: 40.

DANNAH. A city of Judah, Josh. 15; 49.

DARIUS. The name under which three Medo Persian kings mentioned.

1, The Mede, the son of king Estyages, Dan. 5: 31, note C. B.; 6: 1, note C. B.; 9: 1, note C. B.; 11: 1. He dethroned Belshazzar, king of the Chaldeans. In his reign Daniel was cast into the lion's den, Dan. 6: 16; proclaims the true God, : 24.

2, Hystaspes; he renewed the permission to rebuild the temple, Ezra, 4: 5, 24, note C. B.; 6: 1.

3, Codomanus, a brave and generous Persian king, Neh. 12: 22. He was defeated by Alexander the great, and killed by his own generals.

DATHAN. One of the chiefs of Reuben, who revolted against Moses and Aaron, Numb. 16: 1, note C. B.

DAVID. Son of Jesse, 1 Chron. 2: 15, note C. B.; Ruth, 4: 22; Mat. 1: 6; Luke, 3; 31; anointed by Samuel, 1 Sam. 16: 12; attends Saul, : 19; kills Goliah, 17: 33; marries Michal, 18: 22; concealed by her, 19: 12; takes leave of Jonathan, 20: 42; takes the hallowed bread, 21: 1; feigns madness at Gath, : 13, note C. B.; at Adullum, 22: 1; nobly rescues Keilah, 23: 1; note C. B.; cuts off the skirt of Saul, 24; 4: marries Abigail, 25: 39; spares Saul, 26: 4; laments over Saul and Jonathan, 2 Sam. 1: 17; made king of Hebron, 2: 1: mourns for Abner, 3: 31, note C. B.; made king of all Israel, 5: 1; 1 Chron. 11: 1; brings the ark from Kerjath-Jearim, 2 Sam. 6: 1; 1 Chron. 13: 1, note C. B.; proposes to build a temple, 2 Sam. 7: 2; 1 Chron. 17: 1; note C. B; his prayer and thanksgiving, 2 Sam. 7: 18–29, note C. B.; various conquests, 2 Sam. 8: 4, note C. B.; 10: 6–18, note C. B.; his adultery with Bathsheba, 2 Sam. 11: 4; marries her, 11: 27; flies from Absalom, 15: 16; is cursed by Shemai, 16: 5; mourns Absalom's death, 18: 33; more wars, 21: 15; psalm of thanksgiving at removal of the ark, 1 Chron. 16: 8, note C. B.: numbers the people, 21: 5, note C. B.; noble decision, : 13, note C. B.; makes Solomon king, 23: 1; gives charge to Solomon, 1 Chron. 22: 6, 28: 9–20; his death, 29: 28, note C. B.

DEAD SEA. Known as sea of the plain, Deut. 3: 17; 2 Kings, 14: 25; the Salt sea, Gen 14: 3; Numb. 34; 3, note C. B., and the East sea, from its position in relation to Jerusalem, Ezek. 47: 18: Joel, 2: 20. It lies in the great valley at the end of the river Jordan—it is forty miles long, and six to eight wide. It is 1312 feet below the Mediterranean sea.

DEBERATH. Joshua, 19: 12, note C. B.

DEBIR. A Levitical town in Judah, about 30 miles southwest from Jerusalem, and 10 from Hebron, Josh. 10; 38, note C. B.; Josh. 15: 15, 49; Judges, 1: 11.

1, DEBORAH. Nurse of Rebecca, Gen. 35: 8, note C. B.

2, The prophetess, encourages Barak, Judges, 4: 5, note triumphal ode; 5; 1.

DECAPOLIS. A district of Syria, east of Jordan, so called from deka, ten, and polis, city, because it contained ten cities, Mat. 4: 25, note C. B.; Mark, 5: 20, note C. B.: 7: 31.

1, DEDAN. Son of Ramah, and grandson of Cush, Gen. 10: 7; 1 Chron. 1: 9.

——— Grandson of Abraham, Gen. 25: 3; were merchants, Ezk. 27: 15; note C. B.; : 20.

DEHAVITES. A people tributary to the Persians, Ez. 4: 9.

DELILAH. The Philistine woman loved by Sampson, Judges, 16: 4: her treachery, : 6—20.

DEMAS. A christian professor of Thessalonica who forsook Paul, Col. 4: 14; Philemon: 24; 2 Tim. 4: 10.

1, DEMETRIUS. A silversmith of Ephesus, who excited a tumult, Acts, 19: 24, note C. B.

2, A Christian, probably a minister, mentioned with commendation, 3 John, : 12.

DERBE. A small town of Lacaonia, a province of Asia Minor, to which Paul and Barnabas retreated when driven from Lystra, Acts, 14: 6, note C. B.

DEUEL. Same as Reuel, Numb. 1: 14, note C. B.; 7: 42, 10: 20.

DIANA. A celebrated goddess of the Greeks and Romans; one of the 12 superior deities. The image was a female figure; her temple at Ephesus was 425 feet long and 220 broad. It had 127 white marble columns 60 feet high. The silver shrines made, by Demetrius, Acts, 19: 24, note C. B.

DIBLATH. A city of Moab, Ezek. 6: 14, note C. B.

DIBON. A city given by Moses to Gad, Numb. 32: 3, 34, note C. B. Afterward yielded to Reuben, Josh. 13: 9, 17, note C. B.

DIDYMUS. A surname of the apostle Thomas, denoting that he was a twin, John, 11; 16, note C. B.

DIKLAH. A tribe descended from Joktan, Gen. 10: 27.

DILEAN. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 38.

DIMNAH. A Levitical city in Zebulon, Josh. 21: 35, note C. B.

DINAH. Daughter of Jacob by Leah, Gen. 30: 21; loved by Shechem, 34: 1.

DINAITES. An Assyrian people, Ezra, 4: 9.

DINHABAH. An Idumean town, Gen 36: 32.

DIONYSIUS. The Areopagite. A convert at Athens, Acts, 17: 34, note C. B.

DIOTREPHES. An ambitious false teacher, 3 John, : 9, note C. B.

DIZAHAB. In the desert of Sinai, Deut. 1: 1, note C. B.

DODANIM. Descendants of the fourth son, Javan, Gen. 10: 4; 1 Chron. 1: 7.

DOEG. An Edomite, and chief overseer of Saul's flock, an enemy of David, 1 Sam. 21; 7, note C. B.; kills the Priests, 22: 17.

DOPHKAR. A station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Numb. 33: 12.

DOR. A city of a Canaanitish king, on the borders of the Mediterranean sea, southward of Mount Carmel, Josh. 11: 2, 12: 23, 17: 11, note C B.; 1 Kings, 4: 11.

DORCAS. A female distinguished for her benefactions, Acts, 9: 36, note C B.; died, : 39; raised to life by Peter, : 40.

DOTHAN. A town north of Samaria, the place where Joseph's brethren sold him, Gen. 37: 17; 2 Kings, 6: 13, note C. B.

DRAGONWELL. Probably Gihon, on the west of Jerusalem, Neh. 2: 13

DRUSILLA. The third daughter of Herod Agrippa, who lived with Felix, Acts, 24: 24, note C. B.

DUMAH. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 25: 14; Isa. 21: 11, note C. B., a town in the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15: 52.

DURA. A plain in Babylonia, where the golden image was set up, note, Dan 3: 1, note C. B.

E.

EBAL and GERIZIM. Two mountains of Samaria, forming the opposite sides of the valley which contained the ancient town of Shechem, the present Nabulus, Deut. 11: 29, note C. B.; stones set up, 27: 4, note C. B.; the curses to be spoken, 27: 14, note C. B.; blessings, 28: 5, note C. B.

EBAMELECH. An Ethiopian eunuch to king Zedekiah, who saved the life of Jeremiah when in the dungeon, Jer. 38: 8–12, note C. B.; 39: 16, note C. B.

EBENEZER. An old stone of testimonial, commemorative of God's help to Israel in answer to prayer, 1 Sam. 4: 1, 5: 1, 7: 12.

EBER. A district peopled by the descendants of Shem, Gen. 10: 21, 11: 14.

EBRONAH. A station in the wilderness, Numb. 33: 34, note C. B.

ACMETHA. A city on the southern confines of Media and Persia, Ezra, 6: 2, note C. B.

EDAR. A town in Judah, Gen. 35: 21.

EDEN. The site of Paradise, Gen. 2: 8, 10, note C. B.; : 15; supposed to be situated in Mesopotamia, as in 2 Kings, 19: 12, and Isa. 37: 12, note C. B.; it is joined with Haran, a noted town of Mesopotamia. Adam expelled, 3: 23.

——— BETH EDEN. A house of Eden, Amos, 1: 5, note C. B.

1, EDOM. The name of Esau, the son of Isaac and brother of Jacob, Gen. 25: 30, note C. B., 36: 1.

2, Idumea, country of the Edomites, a mountainous tract between the Dead sea and the Elanitic gulf of the Red sea, Gen. 32: 3, note C. B.; its fertility, 27: 29, note C. B.; subjugation and total desolation, Ezk. 26: 14, note C. B.; 35: 9, note C. B.; name of the enemies of the church, Isa. 63: 3, note C. B.

EDOMITES. Descendants of Edom—refuse a passage to the Israelites, Numb. 20: 14; Deut. 2: 4; when to be admitted to the congregation, 23: 8; conquered by David, 2 Sam. 8: 14; revolt from Jehoram, 2 Kings, 8: 20; 2 Chron. 21: 8; to be conquered, Jer. 49: 7; Ezk. 25: 13, 35: 1; judgments, Amos. 1: 11; Obediah, 1: 1.

EDREI. The ancient metropolis of Bashan, Numb. 21: 23; Deut. 3: 1, note C. B.

EGLAIM. A village in the land of Moab. Isa. 15: 8, note C. B.

EGLON. A king of the Moabites, who oppressed Israel, Judg. 3: 14; assassinated by Ehud, : 21

EGYPT. Called Mizraim, Gen. 10: 6; also the land of Ham, Ps. 78: 51, 105: 23; also Rahab, Isa. 51: 9; a much renowned kingdom of antiquity, situated in the northeast of Africa, Isa. 18: 2; note C. B. It is the land of the Nile, in the Bible called the river of Egypt, Josh. 15: 4; 2 Kings, 24: 7; its fertility, Gen. 41: 31; note C. B.; prophecied that Abraham's posterity should be bondmen there, Gen. 15: 13; ten plagues of, Ex. 7: 19, 8: 5, 9: 1; death of first born, 12: 29; destruction of army, 14: 28; its ruin foretold, Isa. 19: 1–3, note C. B.; to be conquered by Assyrians, 19: 4, note C. B.; 20: 1; Israel threatened for their confidence in it, 30: 1; its ruin again foretold, Jer. 44: 30, 46: 13, note C. B.; its desolation for 40 years, Ezek. 29: 8–15, note C. B.; 30: 31, note C. B.; given to Nebuchadnezzer, : 17, 32: 11; given as a ransom for the Jews, Isa. 43: 3, note C. B.

EHUD. One of the judges of the tribe of Benjamin; he delivered Israel from the Moabites, Judges, 3: 16, 26.

EKRON. One of the principal cities of the Philistines, on the shore of the Mediterranean, between Azotus and Jamnia, Josh. 13: 3, 19: 43, note C. B.; taken by Judah, Judges, 1: 18; afraid of the ark, 1 Sam. 5: 10; Beelzebub the God of, 2 Kings, 1: 2.

1, ELAH. Valley where David killed Goliah, 1 Sam. 17: 2, 19, note C.B.

2, A king of Israel, 1 Kings, 16: 6; murdered by Zimri, : 10.

1, ELAM. The eldest son of Shem, and father of the Elamites, Gen. 10: 22; his descendants to be conquered, Jer. 49: 34, 35, note C. B.

2, Part of the kingdom of Persia, the ancient Susiana, now called Curzistan, Ezra, 4: 9; Dan. 8: 2.

ELATH or ELOTH or ÆLA. A seaport town on the Red sea, Deut. 2: 8; taken by David and held as a place of commerce, 2 Chron. 8: 17; rebuilt by Azariah, and restored to Judah, 2 Kings, 14: 22, note C. B.

ELBETHEL. The God of Bethel. An altar built there, Gen. 35: 7, note C. B.

ELDAD. One of the 70 Elders, Numb. 11: 24.

ELEALEH. A town in Reuben, Numb. 32: 37, note C. B.

1, ELEAZER. Third son of Aaron, and his successor as High Priest, Ex. 6: 23; chief over the Levites, Numb. 3: 32; High Priest, 20: 26, note C. B.; he, with Joshua, divide Canaan, 34: 17, note C. B.; died, Josh. 24: 33.

2, Probably a Levite, set apart to attend the ark, whilst under the roof of his father Aminadab, 1 Sam. 7, 1.

3, One of the three most eminent of David's heroes, 2 Sam. 23: 13, note C. B.

ELEPH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18: 28.

ELHANAN. Slays the brother of Goliah, 2 Sam. 21: 19, note C. B. 23: 24.

ELI. A High Priest and judge of Israel, 1 Sam. 1: 3–9; reproves Hannah, : 12; sins of his sons, 2: 12; his sons slain, 4: 11; his death, : 18 note C. B.

ELIAB. Eldest brother of David, 1 Sam. 16: 6, 7; 17: 28.

1, ELIAKIM. Son of Hilkiah, sent by Hezekiah to Isaiah, 2 Kings, 19: 2; prediction of his greatness, Isaiah, 22; 20, note C. B.; : 22, note C. B.

2, The son of Josiah and made king in place of his father, 2 Kings, 28: 34; 2 Chron. 36: 4.

ELIAS. See Elijah.

ELIASHIB. High Priest in time of Nehemiah. Aided in building the wall, Neh. 3: 1.

1, ELIEZER. The steward of Abraham, and native of Damascus, Gen. 15: 2; sent for a wife for Isaac, and his form of oath, 24: 2, note C. B.: his conduct and success, : 12–67.

2, The son of Moses, Ex. 18: 4; 1 Chron. 23: 15.

3, The son of Zichri, one of the princes of the tribes, 1 Chron. 27: 16, note C. B.

4, The son of Dodavah, a prophet; foretold the destruction of the fleet of Jehosaphat, 2 Chron. 20: 37.

5, A priest who officiated at the removal of the ark, 1 Chron. 15: 24.

1, ELIHU. One of Job's friends, the son of Barachel, Job. 32: 2.

2, Captain of a 1,000 of Manasseh, 1 Chron. 12: 20.

3, One of the porters of the gate, 1 Chron. 26: 57.

4, Of Judah, one of the brethren of David, 1 Chron. 27: 18.

ELIHOREPH. A scribe in the time of Solomon, 1 Kings, 4: 3.

ELIJAH. A prophet—foretells a drought, 1 Kings, 17: 1; fed by ravens, : 4, note C. B.; visits the widow of Zarephath, : 9, note C. B.; raises her son to life, : 22; sent to meet Ahab, 1 Kings, 18: 1, note C. B.; his contest with the prophets of Baal, : 21, note C. B.; brings rain, : 44, note C. B.; threatened by Jezebel, 19: 9; sends to anoint Jehu, : 16; calls Elisha, : 19; denounces judgments against Ahab and Jezabel, 21; 17, 23, note C. B.; reproves Ahaziah, 2 Kings, 1: 4; divides the Jordan, 2: 8, note C. B.; goes to heaven in a chariot of fire, 2: 11, note C. B.; John Baptist called Elias, Mat. 17: 12, 13.

ELIM. An Israeliteish station on east of Red sea, where were 12 wells, Ex 15: 27, note C. B.; Numb. 33: 9, 10.

ELIMELECH. A native of Bethlehem, and the husband of Naomi, Ruth, 1: 1, note C. B.

ELIPHALET. One of David's sons, 2 Sam. 5: 16; 2 Chron, 3: 6, 8.

1, ELIPHAZ. A son of Esau and Adah, Gen. 36: 4, 10, 15.

2, One of the three friends of Job, and native of Teman in Idumea, Job, 4: 1.

ELISHA. Disciple and successor of Elijah, 1 Kings, 19: 19; divides the Jordan, 2 Kings, 2: 14; heals the waters of Jericho, : 21; mocked by the children, : 23, note C. B.; procures water for the army, 3: 20, note C. B.; multiplies the widow's oil, 4: 1, note C. B.; procures a son for the Shunamite, : 14; raises him to life, : 32; feeds one hundred men, : 42, note C. B.; cures Naaman, 5: 14; makes iron swim, 6: 6; discloses the counsels of the king of Syria, : 8; smites the army with blindness, : 18, note C. B.; promises plenty in the siege, 7; 1, note C.B.; prophecies to Hazarel at Damascus, 8: 7; sends to anoint Jehu, king of Israel, 9: 1; foretells Joash's three victories, 13: 14–17, note C. B.; writes to Jehoram, 2 Chron. 21: 12, note C. B.; dies, 2 Kings, 13: 20, note C. B.

ELISHAH. A son of Javan, Gen. 10: 4, who gave name to the "Isles of Elisha," a region of the Mediterranean whence purple was brought to Tyre, Ezk. 27: 7, note C. B.

ELISHEBA. Wife of Aaron, and daughter of Amminadab, Ex. 6: 23.

ELIZABETH. The mother of John the Baptist, Luke, 1: 5–42.

ELIZAPHAN. Son of Uzziel, and father of the Koathites, Numb. 3: 30; he and his brothers bury Nadab and Abihu, Lev. 10: 4.

1, ELKANAH. The father of Samuel, 1 Sam. 1: 1; his peculiar regard for his wife Hannah, 1 Sam. 1: 5, note C. B.

2, Son of Korah, Ex. 6: 24; 1 Chron. 6: 23.

3, One of David's heroes, 1 Chron. 12: 6.

4, A friend of king Ahab, 2 Chron. 28: 7.

ELKOSH. The prophet is called an Elkoshite, Nahum, 1: 1, note C. B.; a place supposed to be in Galilee.

ELLASER. A territory in Asia, where king Arioch was one of the four who invaded Canaan in the time of Abraham, Gen. 14: 1; probably the same as Thelasser mentioned in 2 Kings, 19: 12.

ELNATHAN. The grandmother of Jehoiachin, 2 Kings, 24: 8; was sent to bring the prophet Urijah from Egypt, Jer. 26: 22; opposed the burning of Jeremiah's prophecies, 36. 12.

1, ELON. A judge of Israel, Judges, 12: 11.

2, A Hitite, Gen. 26: 34, 36: 2.

3, A town in the tribe of Dan, Josh. 19: 43.

4, Bethhanan, a district in Israel, 1 Kings, 4: 9.

ELTEKEH. A Levitical city of Dan, Josh. 19: 44.

ELTEKON. A town of Judah, Josh. 15: 59.

ELTOLAD or TOLAD In Judah, but belonging to Simeon, Josh. 15: 30.

ELYMAS. A Jewish sorcerer and false prophet of Paphos, struck blind by Paul, Acts, 12: 8, note C B.

EMIMS. A warlike, gigantic race in the time of Abraham, who occupied the land of Moab, Gen. 14: 5; Deut. 2: 10, note C. B.

EMMANUEL. A Hebrew word, signifying God with us. It is applied to the Messiah, as uniting the divine and human, Isa, 7: 14, note C. B.; Mat. 1: 23.

EMMAUS. A village 60 furlongs or 7 1-2 miles northward from Jerusalem, memorable for the interview of Christ with two disciples. Luke, 34: 13, note C. B.

ENAM. In Judah, Josh. 15: 34.

ENDOR. A town of Galilee, assigned to Manasseh, Josh. 17: 11; Ps. 83: 10; it is memorable for a celebrated witch, 1 Sam. 28: 7, note C. B.

ENEAS. Cured of palsy by Peter, Acts, 9; 33.

ENEGLAIM. A town of Moab on the Dead sea, Ezk. 47: 10, note C. B.

1, ENGANNIM. A town in Judah, near Bethel, Josh. 15: 34.

2, A Levitical city, Josh. 19: 21, 21: 29.

ENGEDI. A city of Judah, not far from the Dead sea, Josh. 15: 62. note C. B.; here David was an exile, 1 Sam. 23: 29, note C. B.; 24: 1; here the armies opposed to Jehosaphat encamped, 2 Chron. 20: 2; Ezk. 47: 10, note C. B.

ENHADDA. A town of Japhat. Josh. 19: 21.

ENHAKKORE. In Simeon, Judg. 15: 19.

ENHAZOR. In Naphtali, Josh. 19: 37.

ENMISHPAT or KADESH. Probably the same as Miribah, Gen. 14: 7.

1, ENOCH. The son of Cain, after whom the first city is named, Gen. 4: 17.

2, The son of Jared, and father of Methusalch, Gen. 5: 18; Luke, 3: 37; he walked with God, : 22; God took him, : 24, note C. B.; Heb. 11: 5; prophesied, Jude, : 14

3, A city built by Cain, Gen. 4: 17.

ENON. A small town on western side of Jordan, near Mount Gilboa, where John baptised, John 3: 23, note C. B.

ENOS. The son of Seth, Gen 4: 26; father of Canaan, 5: 9.

ENRIMMON. A town of Judah, Neh. 11: 29.

ENROGEL. The fountain of Nehemiah, on northeast of Jerusalem, at the foot of Mount Zion, Josh. 15: 7, 18: 16; 2 Sam. 17: 19.

ENSHEMESH. A town with a stream on the borders of Judah and Benjamin, Josh. 15: 7, 18: 17.

ENTAPPUAH. A town on the borders of Manasseh and Ephraim, Josh. 17: 7.

EPAPHRAS. An eminent teacher in Colosse, Col. 1: 7, note C. B.; 4: 12; Philm. : 23.

EPAPHRODITUS. A messenger of the church at Phillippi to Paul at Rome, Phil. 2: 25, note C. B.; 4: 18.

EPENETUS. A christian of Rome, converted in Achaia, Rom. 16: 5, note C. B.

1, EPHAH. Eldest son of Median, Gen. 25: 4; Isa. 60: 6.

2, A district of the Medianites near the Dead sea, Gen. 25: 4; Isa. 60: 6.

EPHESUS. The capital of Ionia, in Asia Minor, situated on the river Cyaster, 23 miles north of Miletus, and famous for its image and temple of Diana, Acts, 18: 21, 24; Paul taught the disciples, 19: 1, note C. B.; tumult raised by Demetrius, 19: 23, note C. B., and Exposition, p. 1222. Here Paul preached three years, 20: 31, note C. B.; fought with beasts at, 1 Cor. 15: 32, note C. B.; the angel of addressed, Rev. 2: 1, note C. B.

1, EPHRAIM. The youngest son of Joseph, Gen. 41: 52, 48: 1; preferred to Manasseh, 48: 19; his descendants, 1 Chron. 7; 20, 28.

2, A tribal division of Canaan, Josh, 16: 5–10; 2 Chron. 28: 9, note C. B.

3, A mountain or mountain range, Josh. 17: 15, 19: 50.

4, A forest or wood on the east of Jordan, where Absalom lost his life, 2 Sam. 18: 6–8, note C. B.

5, A city near the wilderness of Judea, 2 Sam. 13: 23, where Jesus withdrew from persecution, John, 11: 54.

6, Name given to the kingdom of Israel, Isa. 9: 9.

EPHRAIMITES. Their possessions, Josh. 16: 1, 17: 14; 1 Chron. 7: 28; defeated, Judges, 12: 5; threatened for their pride, Isa. 28: 1.

1, EPHRATH. Name given to Bethlehem, Gen. 35: 19.

2, Second wife of Caleb, and mother of Hur, 1 Chron. 2: 19.

3, Name of Ephraim, 1 Sam. 1: 1; 1 Kings, 11: 26.

1, EPHRON A Hittite of Hebron, who sold Abraham the cave for a burial place, Gen. 23: 8.

2, A mountain on the border of Judah and Benjamin, Gen. 35: 19.

3, A town on the borders of Benjamin, 2 Chron. 13: 19.

ERASTUS. The Chamberlain of Corinth, converted by Paul, Acts, 19: 22, note C. B.; Rom. 16: 22, note C. B.; 2 Tim. 4: 20, note C. B.

ERECH. One of the cities of Nimrod, in plain of Shinar, Gen. 10: 10.

ESAR HADDON. The son and successor of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, 2 Kings, 19: 37; Isa. 37: 38, note C. B.

ESAU. The son of Isaac and twin brother of Jacob, Gen. 25: 25, note C. B.; sells his birthright, : 33; meets his brother, 33: 4, note C. B.; his wives and descendants, 36: 1; 1 Chron. 1: 25.

1, ESCHOL. Amorite prince, one of Abraham's allies, Gen. 14: 13, 24.

2, A valley of Hebron and Jerusalem, distinguished for its vineyards; here the spies of Joshua cut a bunch of grapes, Numb. 13: 24; note C. B.; 32: 9.

ESDRALEON. Plain of; see Jezreel.

ESEK. One of the wells dug by Isaac, Gen. 26: 20.

ESH-BAAL. Fourth son of Saul, 1 Chron. 8: 33.

ESHEAN. In tribe of Judah, Josh. 15: 52.

ESHTAOL. A city of Gildah, Josh. 15: 33; near to it Samson was born, Judges, 13: 2, 16: 31.

ESHTEMOH. A Levitical city in Judah, Josh. 15: 50.

ESTHER. A damsel of the tribe of Benjamin, born during the exile; the daughter of Abihail, the uncle of Mordecai, Esth. 2: 15; made queen, : 17; appoints a fast, 4: 15; favorably received by the king, 5: 1; invites the king and Haman to a feast, : 4, 5, 6, note C. B.; : 8, note C. B.; asks her life and that of her people, 7: 3.

1, ETAM. A town in Judah. decorated with gardens and streams by Solomon, 1 Chron. 4: 3, note C. B.; : 32; fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron. 11: 6.

2, A rock near the town, Judges, 15: 8.

ETHAM. Third station of the Israelites, Numb. 33: 6, note C. B.

ETHAN. One of four renowned for their sagacity, 1 Kings, 4: 31; 1 Chron. 2: 6.

2, A Levite, and son of Kishi, one of the masters of the temple music, 1 Chron. 6: 44, 15: 19.

3, The person to whom the Psalm 89 is dedicated.

ETHER. In the tribe of Simeon, Josh. 15 : 42, 19 : 7.

ETHIOPIA or CUSH. An extensive country of Africa, southward of Egypt, Gen. 10 : 6, note C. B. ; Isa. 37 : 9, note C. B. ; promise of its conversion, Ps. 68 : 31, 87 : 4 ; Isa 45 ; 14.

EUNICE. A Jewess, the mother of Timothy, and daughter of Lois, Acts, 16 ; 1 ; 2 Tim. 1 ; 5.

EUNUCH. Term of office, Gen. 37 : 36, note C. B. ; Esther, 1 : 10 ; Acts, 8 : 27, note C. B.

EUODIAS. A female disciple at Philippi, Phil. 4 : 2, note C. B.

EUPHRATES. The largest stream in western Asia ; its source is in the mountains of Armenia and falls into the Persian gulf—flows in the Garden of Eden, Gen. 2 : 14 ; a boundary of Israelites, 15 : 18, Deut. 11 : 24, note C. B. ; Josh. 1 : 4 ; 2 Sam. 8 : 3 ; a girdle hidden near it the type of captivity, Jer. 3 : 1, note C. B. ; four angels loosed from it, Rev. 9 : 14, note C. B. : sixth angel pours his vial on it, 16 : 12, note C. B.

EUTYCHUS. A young man who fell down dead from the window while Paul was preaching, Acts, 20 : 9, note C. B.

EVE. The mother of the human race, Gen. 2 : 22, note C. B. ; deceived by the serpent, 3 : 1–6, note C. B. ; punishment, : 16, note C. B.; mentioned by Paul, 2 Cor. 11 : 3 ; 1 Tim. 2 : 13, note C. B.

EVIL MERODACH. Son and successor of Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings, 25 : 27, note C. B. ; liberates Jehoiachin, Jer. 52 : 31, note C. B.

EZEKIEL. The son of Buzi the priest, Ezk. 1 : 3 ; supposed to be a native of Sarera ; he was a prophet about 600 years B. C. The first mention of him is in Mesopotamia by the river Chebar, Ezk. 1 : 1 ; his commission, 2 : 1, note C. B. ; eats the roll presented by the angel, 3 : 1, note C. B. ; foretells the taking of Jerusalem, 4 : 1, note C. B. ; carried there in a vision, 8 : 1 ; brought back, 11 : 24, note C. B. ; removes his dwelling as a type of the approaching captivity, 12 ; 3, note C. B. ; not to mourn the death of his wife, 24 ; 16, note C. B. ; his duty as a watchman, 33 : 1 ; not respected by the people, : 30, note C. B.

EZEL. A stone, 1 Sam. 20 : 19.

EZEM. Town of Simeon, 1 Chron. 4 : 29.

EZION GEBER. A city of Idumeæ, on the Red sea, and a station of Israelites, Numb. 33 : 35, note C. B. ; here Solomon equipped his fleet for Ophir, 1 Kings, 9 : 26, note C. B.

EZRA. One of the captives of Babylon, where he probably was born. A Jewish scribe and priest, a lineal descendant from Aaron by Phineas, and grandson of Seraiah, 2 Kings, 25 : 18–21 ; Ezr. 7 : 1–5 ; goes to Jerusalem, : 6–9 ; letter of Artaxerxes to him, : 11–26 ; leads the second expedition of Jews back from Babylon, 8 : 1–20 ; keeps a fast, : 21–23 ; Neh. 9 : 1 ; his prayer and confession, Ezra, 9 : 5 ; reforms illegal marriages, 10 : 1.

F.

FAIRHAVENS. A harbor of Crete, Acts, 27 : 8, note C. B.

FELIX. A Roman procurator of Judea, who received Paul at Cesarea, Acts, 23 : 24, note C. B. ; hears Paul plead, 24 : 10 ; trembles, 25 ; leaves him to Festus, : 27.

FESTUS PORTIUS. The successor of Felix as deputy governor of Judea, Acts, 24 : 27, note C. B. ; hears Paul, 25 : 8 ; his account to Agrippa, : 14 : hears him again, 26 : 1. He died in Judea.

FORTUNATUS. A disciple of Corinth, of Roman origin. He visited Paul at Ephesus, 1 Cor. 16 : 17.

G.

GAAL. Son of Ebed ; conspires against Abimelech, Judges, 9 ; 26 ; defeated by him, : 35, 36, note C. B.

1, GAASH. A hill in Ephraim, on north of which Joshua was buried, Josh. 24 ; 29–30.

2, A brook or valley, 2 Sam. 23 : 30.

GABA or GEBA. A Levitical city in Benjamin, near Jerusalem, Josh, 18 ; 24.

GABATHA. A tesselated pavement outside the preetorium of the Roman governor, John, 18 : 28, note C. B. ; 19 ; 13, note C. B.

GABRIEL. An angel sent to Daniel to explain the vision of the ram and he goat, Dan. 8 : 16, 9 ; 21 ; note C. B. ; sent to Zacharias, Luke, 1 : 19, note C. B. ; to the virgin Mary, : 26.

1, GAD. One of Jacob's sons, Gen. 30 : 11, note C. B. ; had seven sons, 46 : 16 ; his descendants, 1 Chron. 5 : 11 ; his inheritance, Josh. 13 : 24.

2, A tribal division of Canaan, Numb. 34 : 15, note C. B. ; Josh. 13 : 24–28.

3, Name given to the brook of Jabbok, 2 Sam. 24 : 5.

4, A prophet who adhered to David when persecuted by Saul, 1 Sam. 22 : 5 ; sent to David to choose one of three plagues, 2 Sam. 24 : 11, note C. B. ; wrote life of David, 1 Chron. 29 : 29.

5, Heathen god of fortune, called "Troop," or Gad in margin, Isa. 65 : 11, note C. B.

GADARA. Metropolis of Perea, 8 miles east of sea of Tiberias, where Christ permitted the devils to enter the swine, Mat. 8 : 28, note C. B. ; Luke, 8 : 26.

1, GAIUS. A noted christian of Corinth, baptised by Paul, 1 Cor. 1 : 14 ; the host of Paul, Rom. 16 : 23, note C. B.

2, A native or resident of Macedonia, who accompanied Paul, and whose life was periled at Ephesus, Acts, 19 : 29, note C. B.

3, A citizen of Dube, who attended Paul in his last journey to Jerusalem, Acts, 20 : 4.

GALATIA. A province of Asia Minor ; here Paul preached, Acts, 16 : 6, note C. B. ; 18 : 23 ; wrote an epistle to the church there, Gal. 1 : 2 ; see introduction to epistle, page 1295.

1, GALILEE. The northernmost of the three divisions of Palestine, Mark, 1 : 39, note C. B. ; a large and fertile territory, twenty cities of which Solomon gave to Hiram, 1 Kings, 9 : 11, note C. B. ; here Christ dwelt from his youth, Mat. 2 : 22. 23, note C. B. ; from it he came to John the Baptist, 3 : 13 ; here Christ preached and wrought miracles, 4 : 23, 24, note C. B. ; here he met his disciples after his resurrection, Mat. 28 : 7 ; Mark, 16 . 7 ; tradition about the Messiah, Luke, 6 : 44, note C. B.

2, Sea of—Lake of Gennessareth or Tiberias, Mat. 4 : 18.

GALILEANS. Inhabitants of Galilee, Mark, 14 : 70, note C. B. ; Luke, 13 : 1, 22 : 59, 23 : 6 ; Acts, 2, 7.

GALLIM. A town of Benjamin, north of Jerusalem, 1 Sam. 25 : 44, note C. B. ; Isa. 10 : 30.

GALLIO. The proconsul of Achaia, and brother of Seneca, Acts, 18 : 12, note C. B. ; : 17.

1, GAMALIAL. A celebrated Pharisee and Rabbi, a member of the Sanhedrim ; his advice respecting the apostles, Acts, 5 : 34, note C. B. ; Paul's tutor, 22 : 3, note C. B.

2, Son of Pedahzur, a prominent person of the children of Manasseh, Num. 1 : 10, 2 : 20, 7 : 25, 59 ; 10 : 23.

GAREB. A hill near Jerusalem, Jer. 31 : 39.

GATH. One of the five royal cities of the Philistines, Josh. 11 : 22, about 32 miles from Jerusalem, one of the cities on which the ark brought calamities, 1 Sam. 5 : 8, 9, note C. B. ; 6 : 18, note C. B. ; : 19, note C. B ; birthplace of Goliah, 1 Sam. 17 : 4, note C. B. ; David fled to it, 21 : 10, note C. B. ; he conquered it, 2 Sam. 8 : 1, note C. B. ; Uzziah broke down its walls, 2 Chron. 26 : 6.

GATH-HEPHER or GITTAH-HEPHER. Birthplace of Jonah, 2 Kings, 14 : 25.

1, GATHRIMMON. A Levitical city of the tribe of Dan, Josh. 9 : 46.

2, A city in the tribe of Manasseh, Josh. 21 : 25.

GAULAN or GOLAN. Levitical town in Manasseh, Deut. 4 : 43, note C. B. ; Josh. 20 : 8 ; 21 : 27 ; 1 Chron. 6 : 71.

GAZA or AZZAH. One of the five cities of the Philistines, on the southern borders of Palestine, Judges, 16 : 1, note C. B. ; taken by the tribe of Judah, Judges, 1 : 18, note C. B. ; Samson carried away the gates of, 16 : 3 ; confined and put out his eyes, : 21, note C. B. ; his death, : 27, 29, note C. B ; Phillip goes towards it and baptised the Eunuch, Acts. 8 . 26, note C. B.

GAZER or GEZER A royal city of the Canaanites, allotted to Ephraim as a Levitical town, Josh. 16 : 3.

GEBA. A city of the tribe of Benjamin, given to the priests, Josh. 21 : 17 ; 1 Chron. 6 : 60 ; built by Asa, 1 Kings, 15 : 22 ; Isa. 10 : 29.

1, GEBAL. A maritime city of Phœnecia, north of Beyroot, now called Jebail, Josh. 13 : 5, note C. B. ; Ez. 27 : 9.

2, A district of Idumea, the Gabalene of the Romans, being a part of the range of mountains which runs from the Elanitic gulf to the Dead sea, Ps. 83 : 7, note C. B.

GIBIM. A town in Judah, Isa. 10 : 31.

GEDALIAH. Governor of Judea under Nebuchadnezzer. He befriended Jeremiah, Jer. 39 : 14 ; 40 : 5, note C. B. ; murdered by Ishmael, 2 Kings, 15 : 22–25 ; Jer. 41 : 2, 18.

GEDER or GEZER. Signifies a wall enclosure, or fortified place, the king of which Joshua put to death, Josh. 12 : 13.

GEDERAH. A city in the plain of Judah, Josh. 15 : 36 ; probably the same as Geder.

GEDERATH. A city in Judah, Josh. 15 : 41 ; taken by Philistines from king Ahaz, 2 Chron. 28 : 18.

GEDOR. A city in the hill country of Judah, Josh. 15 : 58 ; some of the inhabitants joined David, 1 Chron. 4 : 18, note C. B. ; : 39 ; 12 : 7.

GEDEROTHIAM. In Judah, Josh. 15 : 36.

GEHAZI. The servant of Elisha, 2 Kings, 4 : 12 ; pleads for the Shunamite widow, : 14 : made a leper for his falsehood, 5 : 27 ; talks with king Jehoram, 8 : 4, note C. B.

GEHENNA. See Hinnom.

1, GEMARIAH. Son of Hilkiah, one of the bearers of Jeremiah's letter to the captives in Babylon, Jer. 29 : 3. Sent to Babylon with tribute money.

2, Son Shaphran, a scribe of the temple, Jer. 36 : 12.

1, GENNESARET. A lake in the Holy land, 6 miles wide and 13 long, called in the Old Testament Cinnereth, Josh. 12 : 3, note C. B. ; in New Testament it is called sea of Galilee, Mat. 4 : 18, 15 : 29 ; Mark, 1 : 16 ; also sea of Tiberias, John, 6 : 1, 23, note C. B. ; here Christ calmed the storm, Mat. 8 : 26 ; Mark, 4 : 39 ; Luke, 8 ; 34, note C. B. ; here the disciples fished, Luke, 5 : 4, 11.

2, Land of, Mat. 14 : 34, note C. B.

GERAR. Royal city of Philistines, Gen. . : 19 ; Abraham abode here, 20 : 1, note C. B. ; also Isaac, 26 : 6.

GERGESENES. See Gadara.

GERIZIM. A mountain of Samaria, near Shechem, on which the Samaritans erected their temple in opposition to that at Jerusalem, Deut. 11 : 29, note C. B. ; referred to by woman of Samaria, John, 4 ; 20, note C. B. ; from it and Ebal the blessings and curses pronounced, Deut. 27 : 11 ; Josh. 8 ; 33.

1, GERSHOM or GERSHON. One of the two sons of Moses, by Zipporа, Ex. 2 : 22, 18 : 3.

2, A son of Levi, Gen. 46 : 11 ; his sons bare the tabernacle, Numb. 3 : 25, note C. B. ; their number, 4 : 36, note C. B.

GESHEM or GASHMU. One of the enemies of the Jews under Nehemiah, probably a Samaritan, though called an Arabian, Neh. 2 : 19, 6 : 1, 6.

GESHUR. A district of Syria, 2 Sam. 13 : 38, note C. B. ; 15 : 8, note C. B. ; 1 Chron. 2 : 23 ; David married daughter of, by whom he had Absalom, 2 Sam. 3 : 3 ; here Absalom fled after murdering his brother, 13 : 37, note C. B.

GESHURITES. Inhabitants of the above region, Josh. 13 : 2, 13 ; 1 Sam. 27 : 8.

GETHER. A Syrian tribe, Gen. 10 : 23.

GETHSEMANE, (oil press). A garden or grove at the foot of Mount of Olives and in the vicinity of Jerusalem, in which Christ endured his agony and was betrayed, Mat. 26 : 36 note C. B. ; Mark, 14 : 32.

GEZER. A Levitical town in Ephraim, but formerly a royal city of Canaanites, Josh. 10 : 33, note C. B. ; 16 : 3–10 ; Judg. 1 : 29 ; assigned to Levites, Josh. 21 : 21, taken by Pharaoh, 1 Kings, 9 : 16, note C. B. ; built by Solomon, : 17.

GIAH. A place near Gibron, 2 Sam. 2 : 24.

GIBBETHON. Levitical city in Dan, Josh. 19 : 44 ; 21 : 23 ; taken by Philistines, 1 Kings, 15 : 27, 16 : 15.

1, GIBEAH or GIBEATH. A city of Benjamin 6 miles northward from Jerusalem ; its inhabitants abuse the wife of a Levite, Judges. 19 : 14 ; it was the birthplace and residence of Saul, 1 Samuel, 10 : 26, 11 : 4, 15 : 34, 23 : 19. 26 : 1 ; the scene of Jonathan's exploit, 1 Sam. 14 : 1 ; descendants of Saul hung here, 2 Sam. 21 : 6, note C. B.

2, In the mountains of Judah, Josh 15 : 57; 1 Chron. 2: 49, note C B.
3, In Mount Ephraim, where High Priest Eleazer was buried, Josh. 24 : 33.

GIBEON. A city of the Hivites, afterwards a Levitical city, 6 miles north of Jerusalem—the inhabitants deceived Joshua and the Israelites, and secured a treaty, Josh. 9 : 3, note C. B.; condemned to servitude, : 21, note C. B.; near it the Canaanites destroyed by hail and thunder, 10 : 10; sun and moon stood still, . 12, 13, note C. B.; famous on account of cruelty of Saul, 2 Sam. 21 : 1, note C. B.; see map, vol. 2.

GIBLITES. Inhabitants of the city and district of Gebel, in Phœnicia, Josh. 13 : 5, note C. B.; they were stone squarers for Solomon, 1 Kings, 5 : 18, note C. B.

GIDEON. Fifth judge in Israel; the son of Joash, of the tribe of Manasseh, called by an angel to deliver his country from the Midianites, Judges, 6 : 11, note C B.; proofs of his commission, : 36–40; victory over Midianites, and new name, 7 : 1, note C. B.; pacifies the Ephraimites, 8 : 1; refuses the government, : 23; his sons, and death, : 29–35, note C. B.

GIDOM. A city of Benjamin, Judges, 20 : 45.

1, GIHON. The name of one of the rivers of Paradise, Gen. 2 : 13, note C. B.

2, The valley and pool near the western walls of Jerusalem—the place where Solomon was anointed king, 1 Kings, 1 : 33–38, 45, note C. B.

GILBOA. A mountain in the Holy land, 60 miles north from Jerusalem, noted for the defeat and death of Saul and Jonathan, 1 Sam. 31 : 1–6, note C. B ; 2 Sam. 1 : 21.

1, GILEAD. Same as Galeed—a group of mountains connected with Lebanon by means of Mount Hermon, Gen. 31 : 21, note C. B.; : 47; Judges, 7 : 3, note C. B.

2, A large district east of the Jordan, Gen. 37 : 25; distinguished for its rich pasturage; Numb. 32 ; 1 ; Jer. 22 : 6, note C. B.; also its gum or balm, Jer. 8 : 22, note C. B.

3, A city south of the river Gabbok, Judges, 21 : 8, note C. B.

4, Name of Jephtha's father, Judges 11 : 1, note C. B.; grandson of Manasseh, Numb. 26 : 29.

GILEONITE. Residence of Ahethopel, 2 Sam. 15 : 12, 23 : 34.

1, GILGAL. Place of Israel's first encampment, where they set the 12 stones, Josh. 4 : 19, note C. B.; Israelites circumcised, 5 : 2, note C. B.; Samuel's annual visits to, 1 Sam. 7 : 16, note C. B.; Elisha comes to, 2 Kings, 4 : 38; place of idolatry, Amos, 4 : 4, 5 : 5.

2, A place near Shechem, Deut. 11 : 30; Josh. 12 : 23, note C. B.; Neh. 12 : 29.

GILOH. In the mountains of Judah, Josh. 15 : 51; where Ahithopel lived, 2 Sam. 15 : 12, 17 : 23.

GIMZO. A town in Judah, 2 Chron. 28 : 18.

GIRGASHITES. One of the Canaanitish nations, Gen. 10 : 15, 16; Deut. 7 : 1, note C. B ; their country promised to Abraham, 15 : 18–21; subdued by Joshua, 24 : 11 ; map, vol. 1.

GITTAH-HEPER. A boundary of Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 13.

GITTAIM. A town of the Benjamites, 2 Sam. 4 : 3; Neh. 11 : 33.

GITTITES. A tribe of Philistines, and inhabitants of Gath, Josh. 13 : 3.

GOATH. Place near Jerusalem, Jer. 31 : 39.

GOB. Place where David fought with the Philistines, 2 Sam. 21 : 18, note C. B.

GOG and MAGOG. Generally named together—occurs as a proper name, 1 Chron. 5 : 4; Ezk. 38 : 2, note C. B.; : 3, 16, 18 ; 39 : 11; and as the name of a country, Rev. 20 : 8, note C. B.

GOLAN or GAULON. City of refuge in Manasseh, Deut. 4 : 43, note C. B.; Josh. 20 : 8, 21 : 27, 1 Chron 6 : 71.

GOLGOTHA Hebrew name for Calvary, and called place of a skull, Mat. 27 : 33, note C. B ; Mark, 15 : 22 ; John, 19 : 17, note C. B.

GOLIATH. A giant of Gath, 10 feet high, 1 Sam. 17 : 4, note C. B ; challenges Israel, : 8, 10, note C. B.; slain by David, 49, 50, note C. B.

1, GOMER. Eldest son of Japhet, Gen. 10 : 2; Chron. 1 : 5; prediction, Ezk. 38 : 6.

2, Daughter of Diblaim, wife of Hosea, Hos. 1 : 3.

GOMORRAH. One of the cities of the plain, destroyed, Gen. 10 : 19; well watered, 13 : 10 ; destroyed, : 19 : 24, note C. B.; : 28, note C. B.; see Sodom.

1, GOSHEN. A fertile province in Egypt, on the eastern side of the Nile, Gen. 45 : 10, note C. B.; 47 : 1, 6; protected from plagues, Ex. 8 : 22, note C. B.; 9 : 26.

2, A city, with neighboring district, in tribe of Judah, Josh. 10 : 41, note C. B.

1, GOZAN. A river of Media, 2 Kings, 17 : 6, 18 : 11; 1 Chron. 5 : 26.

2, A region of Mesopotamia, 2 Kings, 19 : 12; Isa. 37 : 12.

GREECE or GRECIA. A country on the southeast of Europe, including Ionia and Asia Minor, Dan. 2 : 39, note C. B.; 8 : 21, note C. B.; Zech. 9 : 13; Acts, 20 : 2, note C. B.; map of Paul's travels, vol. 2.

GRECIANS. Murmured, Acts, 6 : 1, note C. B.; Paul disputed against, 9 : 29, note C. B.; many of them converted, Acts, 11 : 19, 20, note C. B.

GREEKS. The Jews thus called all Gentiles, Acts, 19 : 10, 20 : 21; Rom. 1 : 14, 16 ; 2 : 9, 10 ; 1 Cor. 1 . 22, 23 : 24.

GUDGODAH. An Israelitish station in wilderness, Deut. 10 : 7.

GUR. A place in western portion of Manasseh, 2 Kings, 9 : 27.

GURBAAL. A town or district in Arabia, 2 Chron. 26 ; 7.

H.

HABAKUK. Of the tribe of Simeon, and one of the 12 minor prophets. He lived 600 years B. C. Foretells the destruction of Judah by the Chaldeans, Hab. 1 : 1 ; overthrow of the Chaldeans, 2 : 1 ; his sublime prayer, 3 : 1.

HABOR or rather CHABOR. A city or country of Media, to which portions of the ten tribes were carried, 2 Kings, 17 : 6, note C. B ; 18 : 11, note C. B.

HACHILAH. A hill near the desert of Zipp, 1 Sam. 23 : 19, note C. B.

1, HADAD. King of Edom, who defeated the Midianites, Gen. 36 : 35 ; 1 Chron. 1 : 46, 50.

2, King of Syria, who reigned in Damascus in the time of David, 2 Sam. 8 : 5.

3, A young prince of Edom, who opposed Solomon, 1 Kings, 11 : 14.

HADADEZER. King of Zobah in Syria, a powerful monarch. He was thrice conquered by David, 2 Sam. 8 : 3 ; 1 Chron. 18 ; 3.

HADADRIMMON. A city in the valley of Megiddo, near which Josiah was slain, 2 Chron. 35 : 22, note C B.; : 24 ; a great mourning, Zech. 12 : 11. Hadad and Rimmon are the names of Syrian idols.

HADASHAH. In Judah, Josh. 15 : 37.

HADID. In Benjamin, Ezr. 2 : 33 ; Neh. 7 : 37.

HADORAM. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 10 : 27.

HADRACH. A city and region east of Damascus, Zech. 9 : 1, note C. B.

HAGAR, (stranger). An Egyptian servant to Sarah, given to Abraham to wife, Gen. 16 : 2, note C. B; flies from Sarah to Shur, : 7, note C. B.; encouraged by an angel to return, : 8–12; bares Ishmael to Abraham, : 15; she and her son dismissed, 21 : 9–14; comforted by an angel, : 17 ; her history alegorized, Gal 4 : 22.

HAGARENES or HAGARITES. An Arabian pastoral tribe, the descendants of Hagar, 1 Chron. 5 : 10, 20 ; Ps. 83 : 6, note C. B.

HAGGAI. A prophet, born in captivity, but returned from Babylon with Zerubabel, Ezra, 2 : 2 ; he and Zechariah promote the building of the temple, 5 : 1, note C. B.

HAI. Same as Ai, Gen. 13 : 3, note C. B.

HALAH or CHALAH. A district of Media, 2 Kings, 17 : 6, 18 : 11, note C. B.

HALAK. A mountain, Josh. 11 : 17, note C. B.

HALHUL. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 58.

HALI. In Asher, Josh. 19 : 35.

1, HAM. (burnt, swathy). Youngest son of Noah, Gen. 5 : 32 ; his offense and punishment, Gen. 9 : 22–25, note C. B.; the father of Canaan, 10 : 6, note C. B.; 1 Chron. 1 : 8.

2, A poetical name for Egypt, Ps. 78 : 51, 105 : 23, 27, 106 : 22, note C. B.

3, A country inhabited by the Zuzim, but whose position is unknown, Gen. 14 : 5.

HAMAN. The Agagite, a common name of the Amalekite kings; a favorite of the king of Persia ; his honors in the court of Ahasuerus, Esth. 3 : 1, note C. B.; not respected by Mordecai, : 2, note C. B.; the want of this respect destroys Haman's happiness, 5 : 13, note C. B.; obtains a decree to slay the Jews, 3 : 9, note C. B.; erects a gallows for Mordecai, 5 ; 14 ; hanged on it himself, 7 : 10 ; his ten sons hanged, 9 : 12 ; illustrates, Prov. 16 : 18.

HAMATH. A city on the river Orontes, in one of the smaller kingdoms of Syria of the same name. Numb. 13 : 21, Josh, 13: 5 ; 2 Kings, 18 : 34, note C. B.; its king friendly to David, 2 Sam. 8 : 9, note C. B.; taken by Solomon, 2 Chron. 8 : 3.

HAMMATH. A fenced city near the sea of Chinnereth, Josh. 19 : 35.

1, HAMMON. A town in Asher, Josh. 19 : 28.

2, A town in Naphtali, 1 Chron. 6 : 76.

HAMMOTHDOR. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 21 : 32.

HAMOR Hivite prince of Shechem, Gen. 34 : 2–13, note C. B.

1, HANANEEL. A kinsman of the prophet Jeremiah, to whom he sold a field. Jer. 32 : 8, note C. B.

2, HANANEEL. A tower in Jerusalem, Neh. 3 : 1, 12 : 39.

1, HANANI. A prophet in the reign of Asa, who reproves him, 2 Chron. 16 : 7.

2, Brother of Nehemiah, Neh. 7 : 2, 3.

1, HANANIAH, (grace or gift). A false prophet of Gibeon, Jer. 28 : 1, breaks the prophet's yoke, : 10 ; his death foretold, : 15.

2, The person associated with Hanan, in charge of the gates of Jerusalem, Neh. 7 : 2.

3, The Hebrew named Shadrach, Dan. 1 ; 7

HANES. A city of Egypt, Isa. 30 : 4, note C. B.

HANNAH. Wife of Elkanah, and mother of Samuel, 1 Sam. 1 : 2, note C. B.; prayed for a son : 10, 11, note C. B.; encouraged by Eli, 14–17 ; bears Samuel, : 20 ; presents him to the Lord, : 24 ; her song, 2 : 1, note C. B.

HANATHON. Town in Zebulon, Josh. 9 : 14.

HANUN. Son and successor of Nahash, king of Amorites, who insulted David's ambassadors by cutting their clothes and beards, 2 Sam. 10 : 4, note C. B.

HAPHARIM. In Issachar, Josh. 19 : 19.

HARA. A province in Assyria, to which the tribes beyond Jordan were carried, 1 Chron. 5 : 26.

HARADAH. A station of the Israelites, Numb. 33 : 24.

1, HARAN. The eldest son of Terah, the brother of Abraham and father of Lot, Gen. 11 : 27, note C. B.; his residence called after him, : 32 ; note C. B.; Abraham leaves it, 12 : 4, 5.

2, —— or CHARAN. A city on river of same name, on the northwestern part of Mesopotamia, Gen. 11 : 31–38, 12 : 4 ; Acts, 7 : 4.

HARARITE. 2 Sam. 23 : 11, 33.

HARETH. A forest in Judah, 1 Sam. 22 : 5.

1, HARIM. The third of the 24 families of the order of Priests, 1 Chron. 24 : 8 ; his descendants return from captivity, Ezra, 2 : 39 ; they put away their strange wives, 10 : 21.

2, Another of his name, Ezra, 2 : 32 ; Neh. 7 : 37.

HAROD. A fountain near Gilboa, Judges, 7 : 1–3.

HARODITE and HAROVITE. The same, 1 Chron. 11 : 27.

HAROSHETH. A town on the north of Palestine, near the lake Merom, where Sisera resided and his army was routed, Judges, 4 : 2–16.

HASHMONAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 : 29.

HAURAN A tract in Syria, south of Damascus, Ezk. 47 : 16, 18.

1, HAVILAH. The son of Cush, Gen. 10 : 7.

2, Son of Shem, Gen. 11 : 29.

3, A land rich in gold, Gen. 2 : 11.

4. A district in Arabia Felix, deriving its name from the second son of Cush, Gen. 25 : 18 ; 1 Sam. 15 : 7, note C. B

HAVOTHJAIR. A district in Gilead, Numb. 32 : 41, note C. B.; Deut. 3 : 14, note C. B.; Judges, 10 : 3, note C. B.

HAZAEL, (vision of God). An officer of Benhadad, King of Syria, who eventually came to the throne, 1 Kings, 19 : 15–18 ; sent to Elisha, 2 Kings, 8 : 7 ; his iniquity foretold, : 12 ; kills Benhadad, : 15 ; oppresses Israel, 10 : 32, 13 : 22 ; diverted from Jerusalem, 12 : 17 ; his death, 13 : 24.

HAZARENAN. A town in the north of Canaan, Numb. 34: 9.
HAZARGADDAH. In Judah, Josh 15: 27.
HAZARHATTICON. Town in the north of Hauran, Ezr. 47: 16.
HAZARMAVETH. A district in Arabia Felix, abounding in spices, Gen. 10: 26.
HAZARSHUAL. In Judah, Josh. 15: 28.
HAZARSUSAH. In Simeon, Josh. 19: 5; 1 Cor. 4: 31.
HAZERIM. The abode of the Avim or Avites, supposed to be in the northern portion of Arabia Petrea, Deut. 2: 23.
HAZEROTH. A station of the Israelites in Arabia Petrea, Numb. 11: 35, 12: 16, note C. B.; Deut. 1: 1, note C. B.
HAZEZONTAMAR. Town in wilderness of Judea, Gen. 14: 7.
1, HAZOR. A chief city of Canaan, near lake Merom. Jabin, its king, was defeated by Joshua, Josh. 1: 1–13; fortified, 19: 36: Judges, 4: 2;1 Kings, 9, 15, note C. B.; destruction foretold, Jer. 49: 33, 33, note C. B; map of Canaan, vol. 2.
2, A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 3, 23.
3, A town in Benjamin, Neh. 11: 33.
4, A district in Arabia, Jer. 49: 23; laid waste by Nebuchadnezzer.
HEBER. The Kenite, the husband of Jael, who slew Sisera, Judges, 4: 11–17; 5: 24.
HEBREWS. Descendants from Abraham, Gen. 40: 15, note C. B.; 43: 32, note C. B.; Ex. 2: 6, 3: 18.
1, HEBRON. One of the most ancient cities of Canaan, in Judah, 20 miles south of Jerusalem, Josh. 10: 3, note C. B.; Luke 5: 39, note C. B.; ancient name, Kirjatharba, Josh. 14: 15; 20: 7; Abraham dwelt there, Gen. 13: 18, note C B; Sarah died here, 23: 2, note C. B.; Isaac dwelt here, 35: 27; a city of refuge, Josh. 20: 7, note C. B.; taken from Amorites, Judg. 1: 10; David goes to, and is made king, 2 Sam. 2: 2, 11; 5: 5; 1 Kings, 2: 11; 1 Chron. 12: 38; 29: 27; Abner buried here, 2 Sam. 3: 22; murderers of Isbosheth hung, 4: 12; league made here, 5: 3; 1 Chron. 11: 3; Absalom's vow made here, 2 Sam. 15: 7; sets up his kingdom, : 10; map of Canaan, vol. 2.
2. A son of Kohath, Ex. 6: 18, Numb. 3: 19; 1 Chron. 2: 42, 43.
HELAM. A town near Euphrates, 2 Sam. 10: 17.
HELBAH. In Asher, Judges, 1: 31.
HELBON or CHELBON. Formerly Haleb, now Alleppo, famed for its wine, Ezk. 27: 18, note C. B.
HELEPH. In Naphtali, Josh. 19: 33.
HELEZ. Called the Paltite, 2 Sam. 23: 26; the Palonite, 1 Chron. 11: 27, and the seventh captain for the seventh month, 1 Chron. 27: 10.
1, HELIPOLIS, (city of the sun). A city of Egypt, on the Nile, called ON, Gen. 41: 45, note C. B., 46: 20; its ruins are about six miles northeast from Cairo.
2, Of Cœlo Syria, in Amos, 1: 5, note C. B.; now called Baalbec, which is a stupendous ruin; Amos, 1: 5, note C. B.
HELKATH. Levitical city in Asher, Josh. 19: 25.
HELKATH-HAZZURIM. Place near Gibeon, 2 Sam. 2: 16.
1, HEMAN. A person of the tribe of Judah, celebrated for wisdom, 1 Kings, 4: 31; 1 Chron. 2: 6.
2, A Kohathite of Levi, leader of the temple music, 1 Ch. 6: 33; 17: 41.
3, The Ezrahite. See Exposition, Psalm 88, page 657.
HENA. A city in Mesopotamia, on the Euphrates, 2 Kings, 18, 34; 19: 13; Isa. 37: 13.
HEPHER. A royal city, Josh. 12. 17.
1, HEPHZIBAH. (delight). The queen of Hezekiah and mother of Manasseh, 2 Kings, 21: 1.
2, The church thus called, Isa. 62: 4.
HERMAS and HERMES, Disciples of Christ at Rome, Rom. 16: 14, note C. B.
HERMOGENES and PHYGELLUS. Fellow laborers in Asia Minor, who turned their backs on Paul, 2 Tim. 1: 15, note C. B.
HERMON. A mountain in the northern boundary of Palestine, Deut. 3: 9, note C. B.; Josh. 12: 5; 13: 5, 11; Ps. 89; 12, note C. B.; dew of, 133: 3, note C. B.
1, HEROD. The great, son of Antipater and Idumean, king of Judea when Christ was born, Mat. 2: 1, note C. B.; sends for the Magi, : 7, 8, note C. B.; orders the slaughter of the children of Bethlehem, : 16, note C. B. He rebuilt and decorated the temple.
2, —— ANTIPAS. The Tetrach, Mat. 14: 1, note C. B.; Luke, 9: 7, note C. B.; son of the former king of Galilee, married his brother's wife, Mat. 14: 3; put John the Baptist to death, : 6–10, note C. B.; Mark, 6: 17; hears of fame of Jesus; plans to kill Christ, Luke, 13: 31, 32, note C. B.; examines Christ, 23: 8.
3, HEROD AGRIPPA, major. Son of Aristobulus and grandson of Herod the great; puts to death the apostle James, Acts, 12: 2; imprisons Peter, : 3, 4; his death, : 21–23, note C. B.
4, HEROD AGRIPPA, minor. The son of the former. Paul is brought before him by Festus, Acts, 25: 13, note C. B.: 24, note C. B.
HERODIANS. A political faction, chiefly Saducees, Mat. 16: 6; Mark, 8: 15; they shaped their religion to suit Herod's family, Mat. 21: 16, note C. B.; Mark, 12: 13, note C. B.
HERODIAS. Sister of Herod Agrippa, and granddaughter of Herod the great; her first husband was her uncle Philip, whom she deserted and lived in adultery with Herod Antipas, Mat. 14: 3, note C. B.; 6: 11, note C. B.; Mk 6: 17–22; Luke, 3: 19.
HESHBON. Metropolis of the Amorites, Numb. 21: 25, note C. B.; 20 miles east of the Jordan, given to the tribe of Reuben, Josh. 13: 17; assigned to the Levites, : 21, 27; famous for its fish pools, Songs of Sol. 7: 4, note C. B.
HESHMON. Town in Judah, Josh. 15: 27.
HETH. Eldest son of Canaan, and father of the Hittites, Gen. 10: 15; Abraham bought a burial place of his sons, 25; 10: daughters of embittered Rebekah's life, 27: 46.
HETHLON. A town near Damascus, Ezr. 47: 15.
HEZEKIAH, King of Judah, succeeds Ahaz, 2 Kings, 16: 20; 2 Chron. 28: 27; conquers the Philistines, 2 Kings, 18: 8; made war on Senacherib, 18. 13, 2 Chron. 32. 1; Isa. 36: 1; receives ambassadors from Babylon, 2 Kings, 20 12, Isa 39: 1, note C. B., threatened for his ostentation, Isa. 39: 6, cleanseth temple, 2 Chron 29. 3, the passover proclaimed, 30: 1; sick, but recovers, 2 Kings, 26. 1; Isa. 38. 1: dies, 2 Kings, 20 21.
HIDDEKEL. The river Tigris, Gen. 2. 14; Dan. 10. 4, note C. B.
HIEL, (life of God) A man of Bethel, who rebuilt Jericho, Josh. 6: 26, note C B.; 1 Kings, 16 34, note C. B.
HIERAPOLIS. A city of Phrygia, not far from Colosse and Laodicea, Col. 4: 13, note C. B., map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.
HILEN. In Judah, 1 Chron. 6: 58.
1, HILKIAH. High Priest in the time of Josiah, 2 Kings, 22: 4
2, Father of Eliakim, 2 Kings, 18: 18.
3, Father of Jeremiah, Jer. 1: 1.
HINNOM, or rather BEN HINNOM. An unknown person, whose name was given to the valley which bounds Jerusalem on the north, Jer. 19: 6, note C. B.; Josh 15: 8, note C. B.; mentioned in connection with rites of Moloch, 1 Kings, 11: 7; Neh. 11: 30; Jer. 7: 31; the Gehenna of the New Testament, Mat. 5: 22, note C. B.: Mark, 9: 43.
1, HIRAM. King of Tyre; sends messengers and materials to David for his house, 2 Sam. 5: 11.
2, King of Tyre, and grandson of the above; congratulates Solomon on his accession, 1 Kings, 5: 1; makes him a present, 9: 14; reply to Solomon about materials, &c., for Temple, 2 Chron. 2: 11.
3, —— or HURAM. A skillful artificer, son of a widow of the tribe of Dan, and of a Tyrian father, 1 Kings, 7: 13–15, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 2: 12, 13, note C. B.; 4: 16.
HITTITES. Descendants of Heth, a Canaanitish nation, Gen. 10: 15; Deut. 7: 1, note C. B.; Judges, 1: 26, note C. B.; two of David's mighty men were, 1 Sam. 66: 6; 2 Sam. 11: 6; had a king, 2 King. 7: 6.
HIVITES. A Canaanitish nation, Gen. 10: 17; 34: 2; Ex. 3: 8; Deut. 7: 1, note C. B.
HOBAB. Son of Jethro, brother-in-law of Moses; accompanies him, Numb. 10: 29, note C. B.
HOBAH. A city north of Damascus, Gen. 14: 15.
1, HOLON. A city of refuge in Judah, Josh. 15: 51.
2, A place in Moab, Jer. 48: 21.
HOPHNI and PHINEHAS. The sons of Eli, 1 Samuel, 1: 3; abused their position to licentiousness, 2: 12–17; their doom foretold, : 27–34; both slain by the Philistines, 4: 11.
HOPHRA or PHARAO HOPHRA. King of Egypt in the time of Zedekiah king of Judah, and of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, Jer. 37: 5, note C. B.
1, HOR. A conical mountain of Arabia Patrea, on the border of Idumea, on which Aaron died, Numb. 20: 22, note C. B.
2, Another mountain in the north of Palestine, Numb. 34: 7: 8.
HOREB. A mountain in Arabia, near to Sinai. Here the angel of the Lord appeared to Moses, Ex. 3: 1, note C. B.. Here he smote the rock, 17: 6, note C. B.; covenant made here, Deut. 5: 2, note C. B.; map, journeyings of Israel, vol. 1.
HOREM. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 38.
HORHAGIDGAD. An encampment of the Israelites, Numb. 33: 32.
HORITES. Dwellers in the mountains of Seir, Gen. 14: 6; 36: 20. Deut 2; 12, 22.
HORMAH. Royal city in Simeon, whither the Israelites were driven, Numb. 14: 45; afterwards conquered. 21: 1–3, note C. B.
HORN. The son of Oil, means fertility, and Horn, elevation or power, Isa. 5: 1, note C. B.; Horn defiled, Job, 16: 15; town on the east, 2 Chron. 18: 10, note C. B.
HORONAIM. A Moabitish city, Isa. 15: 5; Neh. 2: 10.
HOSAH. A town in Asher, Josh. 19: 29.
HOSEA. One of the minor prophets, who lived about 780 B. C., Hosea, 1: 1; see introduction, page 938.
HOSHEA. Son of Elah, and last king of Israel, slew Pekah, his predecessor, and usurped the throne, 2 Kings, 15: 30; 17: 1, note C. B.; carried captive to Assyria, 17: 3–7.
HUKKOK. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 34.
HULDAH, or rather CHULDAH. The wife of Shallum, a prophetess in the time of Josiah; consulted about the denunciation in the new found copy of the law; foretells the destruction of Jerusalem, 2 Kings, 22: 14; 2 Chron. 34; 23.
HUMTAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 54.
HUR. The son of Caleb, who with Aaron held up Moses' hands, Ex. 17: 10; to him and to Aaron Moses directs the people, 24: 14.
HUSHAI. The Archite, a friend of David who acted as his spy, 2 Sam. 15: 32: his counsel preferred to that of Ahithaphel, 17: 7.
HYMENÆUS. A christian professor, of Ephesus, who fell into error and vice, 1 Tim. 1: 20; 2 Tim. 17 18

I

IBHAR, (chosen one). One of David's sons, 2 Sam. 5: 15; 1 Ch. 3: 6.
IBLEAM. Town in Manasseh, Josh. 17: 11; called Bileam by a transposition of letters, 1 Chron. 6: 70, note C. B.
IBZAN, (illustrious). The tenth judge of Israel, born in Bethlehem, Judges, 12: 8.
ICHABOD, (where is the glory). Name given to the son of Phineas, and grandson of Eli, when the Ark was taken, 1 Sam. 4: 21.
ICONIUM. The capital of Lyconia, at the foot of Mt. Taurus, in Asia Minor, now called Konieh; Paul and Barnabas fled to it, Acts, 13: 51, note C. B.; preached in the synagogue and were persecuted, 14: 1–5, note C. B.; revisits it and is stoned, : 19; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.
1, IDDO. A prophet of Judah, who wrote the history of Rehoboam and Abijah, 2 Chron. 9: 29; 12: 15; 13: 22, note C. B.
2, Grandfather of the prophet Zechariah, Zech. 1: 1; Ezr. 5: 1; 6: 14.
3, Chief of the half tribe of Manasseh, 1 Chron. 27: 21.
4, Chief of the Jews of the captivity, Ezr. 8: 17–20.
IDUMEA. See Edom and Isa. 34: 5; Ezk. 35: 15; Mark, 3: 8, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.
IIM. In Judah, Josh. 15: 29.
IJEABARIM. Israelitish station, Numb. 21: 11, note C. B.; 33: 44.
IJON or IJON-ABEL. Fortified city in Naphtali, 1 Kings, 15: 20.
ILLYRICUM. A country lying to the northwest of Macedonia, now called Dalmatia: from Jerusalem; to this country Paul preached, Rom. 15: 19, note C. B.; 2 Tim. 4: 10; map, travels of Paul, vol 2.
IMMANUEL or EMMANUEL, (God with us). Accession, Isa. 7: 14, note C. B.; 8: 8, and in Mat. 1: 23, where it indicates the Messiah, as uniting the human and divine natures.
INDIA. In eastern Asia, remarkable for its fertility and riches, Esth. 1: 18; 9, note C. B.
IRNAHASH In Judah, 1 Chron 4: 12.

IRON. City in Naphtali, Josh. 19 : 38.

IRPEEL. City in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 37.

ISAAC. Promised to Abraham, Gen. 17 : 19, note C. B.; 18 : 10; born, 21 ; 1; offered in sacrifice, 22 · 12, note C. B.; marries, 24 : 1-67; has two sons, 25 : 24 ; goes to Gerar during the famine, 26 : 1 ; Abimelech makes a covenant with him ; 28 ; sends Esau for provisions, 27 : 1; deceived by Jacob, : 16, note C. B.; : 22, note C. B.; Jacob sent to Padanaram, 28 : 2 ; his age and death, 35 : 29.

ISAIAH. A prophet sent with a complaint against Judah, Isa. 1 : 1-10 ; prophesieth of Christ, 2 : 1-5 ; of coming calamities, 3 : 1-9 ; sees the glory of God, 6: 1; encourages Ahaz, 7: 1; and Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 19. 2; Isa. 37 : 21 ; foretells the Babylonish captivity, 39 : 62; Kings. 20. 17 : foretells the preaching of John Baptist, Isa. 40 : 3, note C. B.; the office of Christ, 42 : 2, note C. B.; his sufferings, 53 : 1, notes to verses 4, 5, 8, 9, 10 ; glory of the church, 60 : 1-14, Exposition, page 788; calling of the Gentiles, and rejection of the Jews, 65 : 1-16 ; God's judgments, 66 : 15.

ISCARIOT See Judas.

ISHBAK, (empty). One of Abraham's sons by Keturah, Gen. 25 : 2

ISHBIBENOB. A giant of the Philistines killed by Abishai, 2 Sam. 21: 16.

ISHBOSHESH, (man of shame). The son of Saul, made king by Abner, 2 Sam. 2 ; 10, note C. B.; murdered, 4 : 7.

1, ISHMAEL, (God hears). Abraham's eldest son by Hagar, Gen. 16 : 11 ; prophecies concerning him, 16 : 12, note C. B.; 17 : 20 ; saved from dying, 21 : 19 ; descendants, 25 . 12 ; 1 Chron. 1 : 29.

2, A prince of the royal line of Judah, conspires against Gedaliah, Jer. 40 : 41.

ISHMAELITES. Arabs descended from Ishmael, Gen. 37 : 25.

1, ISRAEL, (who prevails with God). A name given to Jacob, Gen. 32 : 28, note C. B.

2, The kingdom of the ten tribes from the days of Jeroboam to their dispersion.

ISRAELITES. Descendants of Israel or Jacob, oppressed in Egypt, Ex. 1 : 11, note C. B.; 5 : 9 ; heads of their families, 6 : 14, note C. B.; leave Egypt, 12 : 30 ; numbered, Numb. 1 : 2, note C. B.; : 46, note C. B.; 26 : 2, note C. B.; : 51, note C. B.; enter into covenant, Ex. 19 : 5; Deut. 29 · 10; order of their encampment and marches, Numb. 2 : 1 ; see plan of encampment, p. 183 : 10 . 14, note C. B. ; murmur at Taberah, Num. 11 : 1 ; at the return of spies, 14 : 1 : on the death of Korah, 16 : 41, note C. B.; all murmurers perish, Deut. 2 : 16 ; defeat of the Canaanites at Hormah, Numb. 21 . 3, note C. B. ; various rebellions, Deut. 9 : 1 ; ingratitude, Judges, 8 : 35 ; their war with Benjamin, 19 : 29, note C. B.; ark taken, 1 Sam. 4 : 11 ; desire a king, 8 : 5 ; carried to Babylon, 2 Kings, 25 : 11; return, Ezr. 1 : 5 ; history recapitulated, Psalms, 78 and 105.

1, ISSACHAR, (price, hire). Fifth son of Jacob, Gen. 30 : 18, note C. B.; his inheritance, Josh. 19 : 17 ; descendants, 1 Chron. 7 : 1.

2, A tribal division in Canaan, Numb. 26 : 25, note C. B.

ITALY. Country in the south of Europe, having Rome for its capital, Acts, 18 : 2 ; 27 . 1, note C. B.; Paul a prisoner at Rome, where he wrote his epistle to Hebrews, Heb. 13 : 24 ; map, travel's of Paul, vol. 2.

ITHAMA. Youngest son of Aaron, Gen. 6, 23 ; Numb. 3 : 2 ; 1 Chron. 6 : 3 ; he and his descendants continued in the rank of ordinary priests till days of Eli, Numb. 4 : 28 ; then the high priesthood was transferred to his family. Under Solomon it reverted to the family of Eleazar, 1 King. 2 : 7.

ITHNAN. Town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 23.

ITTAH-KAZION. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19 :

ITUREA. A district in the northeast of Palestine, of which Philip was Tetrarch, Luke, 3 : 1, note C. B., deriving its name from Jetur or Itur, 1 Chron. 1 : 31 ; 5 : 19.

IVAH. Same as Ava, 2 Kings, 18 : 34

J.

JAALAM or JAALA. One of the sons of Ezra, Gen. 36 : 5.

1, JAAZANIAH. The son of a Maachathite, 2 Kings, 25 : 23

2, A Rechabite, Jer. 35 : 3.

3, The son of Shaphan, Ez. 8 · 1.

JAAZER or JAZER. Levitical city in Gad, Numb. 21 : 32.

JABAL. Ono of the sons of Lamech, Gen. 4 : 20.

JABBOK. Now Zerka, a stream east of the Jordan, falling into it 30 miles below the lake of Tiberias, Gen. 32 : 22 ; note C. B.; Deut. 2 : 37 : Josh. 12 : 2.

JABESH-GILEAD. Town in the half-tribe of Manasseh, beyond Jordan, in Gilead, destroyed for not joining in the war against Benjamin, Judges, 21 : 8, note C. B. ; 10 : note C. B.; threatened by the Ammonites, 1 Sam. 11 : 1 ; inhabitants bury Saul and Jonathan, 31 : 12, note C. B.; David commands them, 2 Sam. 2 : 5, note C. B.

1, JABEZ. A town in Judah, 1 Chron. 2 : 55.

2. A person honorably mentioned, 1 Chron. 4 : 9-10, note C. B.

1, JABIN. King of Hazor, in the northern part of Canaan, Josh. 11 : 1-15, note C. B.

2, Another king of Hazor, who oppressed Israel, Judges 4 : 2, defeated by Debora and Barak, : 4-24 ; Ps. 83 : 9.

1, JABNEEL A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 11.

2, A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19 : 33.

JABNEH. A town of the Philistines on the Mediterranean, taken by Uzziah, 2 Chron. 26 : 6.

1, JACHIN. Fifth son of Simeon, and head of the Jachanites, Numb. 26 : 12.

2, Name of brass pillars cast by Hiram, 1 Kings, 7 : 21, note C. B.

JACOB. Twin son of Isaac, Gen. 25 : 26 ; gets the blessing by fraud, : 28-34 ; 27 : 19, note C. B.; : 29 ; goes to Padan Aram, 28 : 5, note C.B.; marries Leah and Rachel, 29 : 23, note C. B.; : 28, note C. B.; leaves there, 31 : 17 ; pursued by Laban, : 22 ; wrestles with the angel, 32 : 24; note C. B.; name changed, : 28, note C. B.; meets Esau, 33 : 4, note C. B., resides at Shechem, : 18, note C. B.; goes to Bethel, 35 : 1 ; sends to buy corn in Egypt, 42 : 1, note C. B.; goes to Egypt, 46: 5, note C. B.; presented to Pharaoh, 47 : 7 ; blesses the sons of Joseph, 48 : 15 ; foretells the destiny of his sons, 49 : 1-27 ; see illustration, page 125; charge concerning his burial, : 29 ; his death, : 33 ; mourning for him, 50 : 1 ; commentary, page 92, his family in Egypt, Ex. 1 : 1 ; his descendants, 1 Chron. 2 : 1.

JACOB'S WELL. A fountain near Shechem, where Christ instructed the woman of Samaria, John 4 : 6, note C. B.

JADDUA. Son of Jonathan, and high priest who officiated after the captivity, Neh. 12 : 11, note C. B.

JAEL. The wife of Heber, Judges, 4 : 17 ; invites Sisera to her tent and kills him, : 18, 21, note C. B.

JAGUR. In Judah, Josh. 15 : 21.

JAHAZ or JAHAZA. A city of Moab, where Moses defeated Sihon, Numb. 21 : 23 ; Deut. 2 : 32 : allotted to Reuben, and afterwards to Levites, Josh. 13 : 18 ; 1 Chron. 6 : 78 ; taken by Moabites after the death of Ahab, Isa. 15 : 4.

1, JAIR, (enlightener). Eighth Judge of Israel, Judg, 10: 3. note C.B.

2, Son of Segub, of tribe of Manasseh, Numb. 32 : 41 ; Deut. 3 : 14 ; Josh. 13 : 30 ; 1 Chron. 2 : 22.

JAIRUS. Chief ruler of the synagogue at Capernaum, whose daughter Christ restored to life. Mark. 5 : 22, note C. B.; Luke, 8 : 41.

JAMBRES. An Egyptian magician, who with Jannes undertook to counteract the influence of Moses on the mind of Pharaoh, 2 Tim. 3 : 8, note C. B.

1, JAMES. The greater or elder ; the son of Zebedee and Salome. and brother of John ; a fisherman called to attend Jesus, Mat. 4 : 21 ; Mark, 1 : 19 ; zeal reproved, Luke, 9 : 54 ; requests to sit at the right hand of Jesus, Mark, 10 : 35, note C. B. ; put to death by king Herod Agrippa, Acts, 12 : 2.

2, JAMES. The less or younger ; the kinsman or brother of Jesus, Gal. 1 : 19 ; an apostle, Mat. 13 : 55 ; Jesus appears to him after his resurrection, 1 Cor. 15 : 7 ; his speech at the council, Acts, 15 : 13 ; author of Epistle James, 1 : 1.

3, Son of Alphaus, one of the twelve, Math. 10 : 3 : Mark. 3 : 18 : Luke, 6 : 15 ; Acts, 1 : 3 ; mother's name was Mary, Mat. 27 : 56.

JANNES. See Jambres.

JANOHAH. A town in Ephraim, Josh. 16 : 6.

JANUM. Town in mountains of Judah, Josh. 15 : 53.

JAPHETH. Eldest son of Noah, Gen. 5 : 22 ; he and Shem cover Noah, 9 : 23 ; his descendants, 10 : 2 ; 1 Chron. 1 : 5.

JAPHIA. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 16 : 3.

JAPHLITE. Town in Ephraim, Josh. 19 : 12.

JAPHO JOPPA. City of the Philistines, now the seaport of Palestine, 4 miles northwest of Jerusalem, Josh. 19 : 46 ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

JAREB. A king of Assyria, Hosea, 5 : 13 ; 10 : 6.

JARED. The father of Enoch, Gen. 5 : 15 ; Luke, 3 : 37.

JARHA. The Egyptian servant of a Hebrew, who married the daughter of Sheshan, 1 Chron. 2 : 34.

1, JARMUTH. A town in Judah, Josh. 10 : 3 ; its king killed by Joshua. : 5 ; 10 : 11, note C. B.

2, A Levitical city in Issachar, Josh. 21 : 29.

JASHOBEAM. A valiant man in David's army, who slew 300 men, 1 Chron. 11 : 11 ; passed through the camp and drew water for David, : 16.

JASON, (healer). A kinsman and host of Paul, who at Thesalonica, to rescue Paul, hazarded his life, Acts, 17 : 5, note C. B.; he removed to Rome, Rom. 16 : 21.

JATTIR. A Levitical city in mountains of Judah, Josh, 15 : 48.

1, JAVAN. The fourth son of Japhet, and father of the Ionians or Greeks. Gen. 10 : 2 ; Isa. 66 : 19.

2, Greece, primarily, modern Ionia, Gen. 10 : 2 ; Dan. 8 : 21, Joel, 3 ; 6, note C. B.

3, A city in Arabia Felix, Ezk. 27 : 13, 19, note C. B.

JAZER. A city at the foot of Mt. Gilead, near brook of same name, Numb. 31 : 1 ; Josh. 21 : 39 ; Isa. 16 : 8, 9.

JEARIM. A mount in Judah, Josh. 15 : 10.

JEBUS, (possession). Ancient name of Jerusalem, Josh. 18 : 16, note C. B.; Judges, 19 : 10, 11, note C. B.

JEBUSITES. The descendants of Jebus, the son of Canaan, Gen. 10 : 16 ; a most powerful nation, who settled about Mt. Moriah, Deut. 7 : 1, note C. B.; here they built a city and called it Jebus, after the name of their founder, 1 Chron. 11 : 4 ; they were not conquered by Joshua, Josh. 15 : 63, note C. B.; David encouraged his men to kill them, 2 Sam. 5 : 8, note C. B.; the site of the Temple purchased of Arauna Jebusite, 2 Sam. 24 : 18, note C. B.

JECONIAH. Son of Jehoakim, also called Assir, 1 Chron. 3 : 17, note C. B.; succeeds his father, 2 Kings, 24 : 6 , 2 Chron. 36 . 8 ; his captivity foretold, Jer. 22 25, ; carried to Babylon, 2 Kings, 24 ; 12 ; Jer. 24 : 1 ; false prophecy about his return, 28 : 4, after 37 years imprisonment he is released and raised to dignity, 52 ; 31.

JEDAIAH. A priest, who with 973 Jews, returned from Babylon, Ezr. 2 : 36.

JUDIAEL. A brave officer of David's, 1 Chron. 11 : 45 ; 12 : 20.

JEDIDAH, (well beloved). The mother of Josiah, 2 Kings, 22 : 1.

JEDIDIAH. The name given to Solomon at his birth, by Nathan, 2 Sam. 12 : 24, 25, note C. B.

JEDUTHUN. A Levite, and one of the four masters of the temple music, 1 Chron. 16 : 38.

JEGARSAHADUTHA. The Chaldee name of the scene of the covenant between Jacob and Laban, Gen. 31 : 46, note C. B.; : 47.

JEHOASH or JOASH. Son of Ahaziah, king of Judah, saved by his aunt and made king, 2 Kings, 11 : 12, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 24 : 1. note C. B.; kills Zachariah, 24 : 21 ; killed by his servants, : 25 ; 2 Kings, 12 : 20.

1, JEHOAHAZ. Called Ahaziah, son of Jehu, king of Israel and succeeds him, 2 Kings, 10 : 35 ; begins his reign with slaughter of the seed royal, 13 : 1, note C. B.; his peculiar sickness, 2 Chron. 21 : 18, note C. B.; : 19, note C. B.; his burial, : 20, note C. B.

2, Called Shallum, son of Josiah, king of Judah, succeeds him, 2 Kings, 23 : 31 : 2 Chron. 36 : 1 ; carried to Egypt, 2 Kings, 23 : 33 ; 2 Chron. 36 : 4 ; foretold not to return, Jer. 22 : 10.

JEHOIACHIN. See Jeconiah.

JEHOIADA. High Priest in the time of Ahaziah, preserves Joash from the cruelties of Athalia, 2 Kings, 11 : 4 ; 2 Chron. 23 : 1 ; anoints him King, 2 Kings. 11 : 12. note C. B.; restores the worship of God, 2 Chron. 23 : 16 ; his death, 24 : 15, note C. B.

JEHOIAKIM. Son of Josiah, and 18th king of Judah ; his name was Eliakim, which Necho changed to Jehoiakim, and made him king, 2 Kings, 23 : 34 : succeeds Jehoahaz, 2 Chron. 36 : 4 ; conquered by Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings, 24 : 1; carried to Babylon, 2 Chron. 36 : 6; Dan. 1 : 1, note C. B.; his death foretold, Jer. 22 : 12, note C. B.; to be buried like an ass, Jer. 22 : 19, note C. B.

JEHORAIB. The first family of Priests established by David, 1 Chron. 24 : 7, note C. B.; from his family the Maccabees descended.

1, JEHORAM. Son and successor of Jehosaphat, king of Judah, 1 Kings, 22 : 50, 2 Kings, 8 : 16, note C. B.; Edomites revolt from him, 2 Chron. 21 : 8; receives help from Elijah, : 12; Philistines and Arabs distress him, : 16; his death, : 19, note C. B.

2, —— or JORAM. King of Israel, and succeeds Ahaziah, 2 Kings, 1 : 17, note C. B.; war with Moabites, 3 : 6; killed by Jehu, 9 : 24.

1, JEHOSAPHAT. Fourteenth king of Judah, son and successor of Asa, 1 Kings, 15 : 24; 2 Chron. 17 : 1; his greatness, : 12; alliance with Ahab, 18 : 1, note C. B; 1 Kings, 22 : 2; his victories he ascribes to God, 2 Chron. 29 : 28, note C. B.; alliance with Ahaziah, : 35; war with Moabites and Edomites, 2 Kings, 3 : 7; reproved by prophet, 2 Chron. 19 : 2; fears the Lord, and proclaims a fast, 20 : 3; defeats its Ammonites, Moabites and Edomites, : 22, note C. B.; makes ships, which are destroyed, : 35; 1 Kings, 22 : 48, note C. B.; dies, 50; 2 Chron. 21 : 1.

2, Son of Ahilud, recorder to David and Solomon, 2 Sam. 8 : 16, note C. B; 1 Kings, 4 : 3.

3, A valley between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives, Joel, 3 : 2, note C. B.; : 12, note C. B.

JEHOSHEBA. The daughter of king Joram, and the aunt of king Joash; she saves his life, 2 Kings, 11; 2, note C. B.

JEHOSHUA. One of the spies sent by Moses, Numb. 13 : 16; 1 Chr. 7 : 27.

JEHOVAH or JAH. The name of God, significant of his self-existence, Ex. 3 : 14, note C. B.; Ps. 83 : 18; Isa. 12 : 2; 26 : 4.

JEHOVAH-JIREH, (Jehovah will provide). Place of Abraham's trial of faith and deliverance, Gen. 22 : 14, note C. B.

JEHOVAH-NISSI, (Jehovah my banner). Place where Moses built a commemorative altar for his victory, Ex. 17 : 15.

JEHOVAH-SHALOM, (Jehovah of peace). Place where Gideon built a commemorative altar, Judges, 6 : 24.

1, JEHU, (He that exists). Tenth king of Israel, and founder of the fourth dynasty; he was son of Nimishi, captain of the troops of king Joram, and anointed king, 1 Kings, 19 : 16; 2 Kings, 9 : 6; kills Joram, king of Israel, : 24; kills the sons of Ahab, 10 : 1, 8, note C. B.; also priests of Baal, : 18; dies : 35.

2, The prophet, son of Hanani, who reproved Jehosaphat, 1 Kings, 16 : 17; 2 Kings, 19 : 2.

JEHUD. Town in Dan, Josh. 19 : 45.

JEKABZEEL. Town in Judah, Neh. 11 . 25.

JEPTHA, (the opener). One of the judges of Israel; the son of Gilead by a concubine, Judges, 11 : 1, note C. B.; thrust out by his brethren, : 2; solicited to head the Gileadites, : 5; agrees on the terms, : 9; expostulates with the Ammonites, : 12, note C. B.; : 28; his rash vow, : 30–31, note C. B.; victorious, : 33; met by his daughter, : 34; fulfilled his vow, 39, note C. B.; Ephraimites quarrel with him; 12 : 1; his death, : 7; his faith, Heb. 11 : 32.

JERAH. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 10 : 26; 1 Sam. 27 : 10.

JEREMIAH, (raised up). The prophet, son of Hilkiah, Jer. 1 : 1; his commission, : 4–10 : God's promise, 15 : 19; laments for Josiah, 2 Chron. 35 ; 25 ; prophecies in gates of Jerusalem, Jer. 17 ; 19 ; complains of ill usage, 20 : 7, note C. B.; advises the king to yield to Nebuchadnezzar, 21 : 8 ; foretells the captivity, 25 : 8 ; is apprehended, 26 : 8 ; acquitted, : 16 ; writes to the captains of Babylon, 29 : 1, note C. B.: imprisoned by Zedekiah, 32 : 1 ; his prophecies written by Baruch, 36 ; 4, note C. B.; foretells the return of Chaldeans, 37 : 7, note C. B.: put in prison. : 15, note C. B.; : 16, note C. B.; in the dungeon, 38 : 6 ; favored by Zedekiah, : 14 ; by Nebuchadnezzar, 39 : 11, note C. B.; goes to Gedaliah, 40 : 6, note C. B.; promises safety to Johanan, 42 : 7 ; foretells Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of Egypt, 43 : 8 ; destruction of Jews there, 44 : 14, note C. B.; gives his prophecy to Seraiah to be carried to the Euphrates, 51 : 59, note C. B., complains of the misery of his country, Lam. 1 : 18.

JERICHO. Called the city of palm trees, 8 miles west of Jordan, and 19 east from Jerusalem, in a plain of the same name ; spies sent to view it, Josh. 2 : 1; taken by Joshua, 6 : 21, note C. B.; curses denounced upon its rebuilder, : 26, note C. B.; rebuilt by Hiel, 1 Kings, 16 : 34, note C. B.; road to, Luke 10 : 30; Christ passed through it, 19 : 1.

1, JEROBOAM. Son. of Nebat, 1 Kings, 11 : 26 ; opposes Solomon, : 27 ; employed by Solomon : 28 ; addressed by the prophet Aiajah, : 29 ; made first king of Israel by the ten tribes, 12 : 20 ; sets up the worship of calves, : 28, note C. B.; opposed by the prophet at Bethel, 13 : 1 ; his death, 14 : 20.

2, Son of Joash, and succeeds him as king of Israel, 2 Kings, 13 : 13; 14 : 16 ; dies, : 29.

JERUBBAAL. Same as Gideon, Judges, 7 . 1 ; note, C. B.; 8 : 35, note C. B.

JERUEL. A wilderness in Judah, westward of Dead sea, 2 Chron. 20 : 16.

JERUSALEM. A royal city of the Canaanites, and from the time of David the metropolis of the kingdom of Judah, and the seat of government during the reigns of David, Solomon, and their successors, 1 Chr. 8 : 28, note C. B.; 9 : 3, note C.B.; it was called Salem in the time of Abraham, Gen. 14 : 18; Heb. 7 : 2; called Jebus when Israel obtained possession, Josh. 10 : 1, note C. B.; 15 : 8 ; 1 Chr. 11 : 4. Jerusalem is a compound of Jebus and Salem. In its most flourishing period it consisted of four parts, built on four hills, viz: Zion, Zecra, Moriah, and Bezetha. The whole foundation was a high rock, with four heads or hills with steep ascents on every side except the north, and surrounded with a deep valley which was embosomed with hills, Ps. 125 : 2. The city was encompassed with three walls, over which there were towers. It was taken by the children of Judah, Judges, 1 : 8, note C. B : recovered by the Jesuits, 21 : taken by David, 1 Sam. 5 : 6 ; 1 Chr. 11 : 4 ; threatened for its crimes, Jer. 1 : 5 ; 2 : 3 ; 4 : 19 ; 5 : 7–9; 10 : 17 ; Ezk. 21 : 1 , 22 : 1 ; taken by Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings, 25 : 4 ; 2 Chron. 36 : 17 ; Jer. 39 : 1 ; 52 ; 4 ; burned, 52 : 12, note C. B.; its desolation lamented, Lam. 1 : 1 ; captivity represented, Ezk. 4 : 1, note C. B.; 5 : 1, note C. B.; to be rebuilt, Neh. 3 : 1 ; 4 : 1 ; its walls finished, 6 : 15 ; note C. B.; its inhabitants chosen by lot, 11 : 1, note C. B.; dedication of its walls, 12 : 27, note C. B., its future state, Ezk. 48 : 30, note C. B.; its new name, : 35. It was taken by Pompey, 63 years B. C., and the walls demolished. 43 years B. C. the walls were rebuilt by Herod the Great, and the city embelished. Christ's lamentations over it, Mat. 23 : 37 ; foretells its destruction, 24 : 2, note C. B.; : 28, note C. B.; foretells the building a trench or wall around it, Luke, 19 : 43, note C. B.; destroyed by Titus, A. D. 70; terrible calamities, Luke, 21 : 24, note C. B.; 23 : 29, note C. B. A. D. 614 it was taken by Heraclius the Persian, by storm, and much of it destroyed. A. D. 636–7, taken by Khalif-Omar, the Arabian. It remained in the possession of the Arabians till towards the year 1,000. In A. D. 960, the dominion of Palestine passed from the kalifs of Bagdat to the Fatemite kalifs of Egypt, who in 1073 were dispossessed by the Turkmans. The Egyptian kalifs recovered possession. A. D. 1099 Godfrey of Bouilon, the leader of the Crusades, assaulted and took Jerusalem. A. D. 1187 it was wrested from the Christians by the Sultan Saladin. A. D. 1229 it again, by treaty, came into the hands of the Christians. About 1243 it reverted again to the Mohamedans. The present walls were enclosed by Suleiman the magnificent, A. D. 1542. A. D, 1832 it became subject to Mahommed Ali.

JESH-ANA. A town in Judah, 2 Chron. 13 : 19.

JESHIMON. A city in Simeon, 1 Sam. 23 : 24.

1, JESHUA. The head of a family who returned from Babylon, Ezra, 2 : 2 ; builds the altar for burnt offerings, 3 : 2.

2, A town in Judah, Neh. 11 : 26.

JESHURUN. Name given to people of Israel, Deut. 32 : 15 ; 33. 5; Isa. 44 : 2.

JESSE. Father of David, Ruth, 4 : 17–22 ; 1 Sam. 16 : 19 ; his descendants, 1 Chron. 2 : 13.

JESUITES. Posterity of Jesui, Numb. 26 : 44.

1, JESUS, (Saviour). The name of the Redeemer, generally Jesus Christ, which see.

2, Name for Joshua, captain of Israel, Acts, 7 : 45 ; Heb. 4 : 9.

1, JETHER. Husband of Abigail, David's sister, 1 Chron. 2 :

2, Son of Gideon, Judges, 8 : 20.

JETHLAH. A town in Dan. Josh. 19 : 42.

JETHRO, (excellence). A priest or prince of Midian, and father-in-law of Moses, Ex. 2 : 16, note C. B ; brought to Moses his wife and children, 18 : 1 ; note C. B.; sacrifices to God, : 12 ; advice to Moses, : 19, note C. B.

JETUR. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 25 : 15.

JEWS. A name borne by the Israelites among foreign nations, from Judah, their ancestor.

1, JEZEBEL. Wife of Ahab, king of Israel, 1 Kings, 16 : 31 ; attempts to destroy the prophets of the Lord, 18 : 4 ; note C. B.; fed the prophets of Baal, : 19 ; plots against Naboth, 21 : 8, note C. B.; devoured by dogs, 2 Kings, 9 : 33, note C. B.

2, —— A woman so called, Rev. 2 : 20.

JEZER. Head of the family of Jezerites, Gen. 46 : 24 ; Numb. 26 : 49.

JEZRAHIAH. Chief of the singers at the dedication of the wall, Neh. 12 : 42.

1, JEZREEL. A town in the tribe of Issachar, Josh. 17 : 16 ; here stood the palace of Ahab and his successors, 1 Kings, 21 : 1 ; Abner made Ishbosheth king over it, 2 Sam. 2 : 9 ; here was the vineyard of Naboth, 1 Kings, 18 : 42 ; 21 : 1 ; here Jehu executed his commission against the house of Ahab, 2 Kings, 9 : 14–37 ; Philistines encamped here, 1 Sam. 29 : 11, note C. B.

2, A town in the mountains of Judah, Josh. 15 : 56.

3, An extensive plain betwen Jezreel and Acre, in one part of the valley of Megiddo, 2 Chron. 35 : 22 ; 1 Kings, 18 : 46 ; here Josiah fell, 2 Kings, 23 : 29 ; afterwards called Esdraelœon.

JIPHTAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 43.

JIPH-THAHEL. A valley in the tribes of Zebulon and Asher, Josh. 19 : 14.

JOAB. Son of Zeruiah, David's sister, 1 Chron. 2 : 16 ; the general of David, 2 Sam. 2 : 13 ; 8 : 16 ; 20 : 23 ; kills Abner, 3 : 27 ; also Amasa, 20 : 10 ; remonstrates with David, 1 Chron. 21 : 3 ; aids on the plea for Absalom, 2 Sam. 14 : 2 ; slew Absalom, 18 : 14 ; dissuades David from mourning, 19 : 1 ; put to death by order of Solomon, 1 Kings, 2 : 29, 30, note C. B.

1, JOAH. Secretary to king Josiah, and employed to repair the Temple, 2 Chron. 34 : 8.

2, Another sent by Hezekiah to receive the proposition of Rabshakeh, 2 Kings, 18 : 18.

JOANNA, (gift of the Lord). Wife of Chuza, steward of Herod Antipas, the Tetrarch of Galilee, one of the faithful women who ministered to Christ when living, Luke, 8 : 2, 3 ; 24 : 10.

1, JOASH or JEHOHASH. The father of Gideon, and worshipper of Baal, but afterwards of the true God, Judges, 6 ; 11, 25–32.

2, An officer, the keeper of the prophet Micaiah during Ahab's war with Syria, 1 Kings, 22 : 26 ; 2 Chron. 18 : 25.

3, The 8th king of Judah, and only son of Ahaziah, not slain in the conspiracy of his grandmother ; he was hidden six years, and brought to the throne by Jehoiada, at the age of seven, 2 Kings, 11 : 12, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 24 : 1, note C. B. After the death of Jehoiada, he fell into idolatry, 2 Chron. 24 : 17 ; was vanquished by the Syrians, : 23 ; afflicted with loathsome disease, : 25 ; slain by conspirators, : 26 ; buried in Millo, 2 Kings, 12 : 20.

4. Son and successor of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, 2 Kings, 13 : 10 ; he reigned 16 years, following the evil example of Jeroboam, : 11 ; dies, : 13.

JOB. The patriarch, renowned for his patience, his character and wealth, Job. 1 : 1 ; Exposition, page 568, C. B.; his losses of property and children, : 13–19 ; his resignation : 20 : 21, note C. B.; sufferings, 2 : 7, note C. B.; curses his day, 3 : 1–3, note C. B.; answers Eliphaz, 6 : 1 ; 7 : 1 : replies to Bildad, 9 : 1 ; 10 : 1 ; to Zophar, 12 ; 1 ; 13 : 1 ; 14 : 1 ; to Eliphaz' second speech, 16 : 1 ; 17 : 1 ; to Bildad, 19 : 1 ; to Zophar's second speech, 21 : 1 ; to Eliphaz' third, 23 : 1 ; 24 : 1 ; to Bildad's, 26 : 1 ; 27 : 1 ; 28 : 1 ; to Zophar's argument, 29 : 1 ; 30 : 1 ; asserts his innocence, 31 : 1 ; submits to God, 40 : 3 ; 42 : 1 ; is restored to double prosperity, : 10, 13 ; age and death, : 16 ; note C. B.; classed with Noah and Daniel, Ezk. 14 : 14, 20 ; his patience, James 5 : 11.

JOBAB. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 10 : 29.

JOBEHAH. A town in Gad, Numb. 32 : 35.

JOKEBED. Wife of Amram, and mother of Moses, Aaron and Miriam, Ex. 6 : 20, note C. B.; Numb. 26 : 59.

1, JOEL, (willing). One of the minor prophets, the son of Pethuel, Joel, 1 : 1 ; introduction to the book, page 947, C. B.

2, The eldest son of Samuel, 1 Sam. 8 : 2.

3, The son of Josibiah, 1 Chron. 4 : 35.

4, The son of Zichri, Neh. 11 : 9 ; a ruler of half the city.

JOGBEHAH. A place in Benjamin, near Nobah. Judges, 8 : 11.

1, JOHANAN. Son of Careah, informs Jedediah of Ishmael's conspiracy against him, 2 Kings, 25 : 23 ; Jer. 40 : 8–13, note C B.; he recovers the captives, 41 : 11–14 ; requests Jeremiah to inquire of God, 42 : 11 ; goes to Egypt, 43 : 1.

2, Son of Josiah, 1 Chron. 3 : 15.

1, JOHN, (the grace or gift). Son of Zacharias and Elizabeth, Luke, 1 : 57–63 ; his habits and raiment, Mat. 3 : 4, note C. B.; his testimony to Jesus, John, 1 : 15 ; note C. B.; 3 : 27 ; Mat. 3 : 11, note C. B.; Mark, 1 : 7 ; called the Baptist, and his preaching, Mat. 3 : 1, note C. B.; Mark, 1 : 4 ; Luke, 3 : 3 ; baptises in Jordan, Mat. 3 : 6 ; baptises Jesus, : 13 ; baptises at Ænon, John, 3 : 23 : imprisoned by Herod, Luke, 3 : 19 ; his death, Mat. 14 : 10, note C. B.; Mark, 6 : 16 ; Luke, 9 : 9 ; his disciples at Ephesus, Acts. 19 : 3.

2, The apostle, the son of Zebedee and Salome, a fisherman, and younger brother of James ; called by Jesus, Mat. 4 : 21 ; at the transfiguration, 17 : 1 : sent to prepare passover, Luke, 22 : 8 ; leans on his bosom, John, 21 : 20 ; receives Christ's mother after the crucifiction, John, 19 : 25–27 ; testimony to divinity of Christ, John, 1 : 1 ; 1 John, 3 : 1 ; banished to Patmos, Rev. 1 : 9.

3, Surnamed Mark, which see.

JOKDEAM. A town in the mountains of Judah, Josh. 15 ; 56.

JOKMEAM. Levitical city in Ephraim, 1 Chron. 6 : 68.

JOKNEAM. Levitical city in Zebulon, Josh. 12 : 22.

JOKSHAN. Son of Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 25 : 2 ; 1 Chron. 1 : 32.

1, JOKTAN. Elder son of Eber, Gen. 10 : 25.

2, An Arabian people, Gen. 16 : 26–32, note C. B.

1, JOKTHEEL. A city of Selahor, the rock, same as Petrea, the capital of Arabia Petrea, in the valley of salt, 2 Kings, 14 : 7, note C. B.

2, A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 38.

1, JONADAB. Son of Shimeah, and nephew of David, a crafty and wicked man, 2 Sam. 13 : 3 ; 5 : 32–35.

2, Son of Rechab, a Kenite, cotemporary with Jehu and witness of his zeal, 2 Kings, 10 : 15 ; note C. B.; his temperance pledge and command, Jer. 35 : 6, note C. B.

JONAH, (a dove). One of the minor prophets, son of Amittad, introduction, page 958, C. B.; 2 Kings, 14 : 25 : is commanded to go to Nineveh, Jon. 1 : 2 ; flees, and is swallowed by a fish, : 3, 17, note C. B.; Mat. 12 : 40, note C.-B.; his prayer, 2 : 1 ; preaches to Ninevites, 3 : 2, note C. B.; anger, 4 : 1 ; reproved, 4 : 11 ; mentioned by Christ. Mat. 12 : 39, 41.

JONATHAN, (gift of God). A young Levite, the son of Gersham, Judges, 17 : 7 ; 18 : 30, note C. B.; who became priest to Micah, 17 : 10 ; the Danites take him with them, and he and his posterity were priests to their idol, 18 : 19–30.

——— Eldest son of Saul, smites the Philistines, 1 Sam. 13 : 3 : 14 : 1–13 : his love for David, 18 : 1–4 : note C. B.; Exposition, page 361 ; informs David of his father's designs against him, 19 : 1 ; makes a covenant with him, 20 : 1 ; takes leave of him, : 35–42 ; comforts him at Zip, 23 : 16–18 ; 31 : 2 ; his death lamented, 2 Sam. 1 : 11–27.

JOPPA. Now Jaffa or Yaffa, Ezra, 3 : 7, note C. B. A seaport town on the Mediterranean, about 35 miles northwest from Jerusalem, and 30 miles south of Cacarea ; here the wood for Solomon from Lebanon was unloaded. 2 Chron. 2 : 16 ; here Jonah took ship, Jon. 1 ; 3 ; here Peter restored Dorcas to life, Acts, 9 : 38–42 ; here received the messengers of Cornelius, 10 : 5, 23. Still the landing place of pilgrims.

1, JORAM or JEHORAM. Son of Ahab, and ninth king of Israel, 2 Kings, 1 : 17, note C. B ; 3 : 1 ; he followed the wicked policy of Jeroboam. Involved in war with Benhadad, king of Syria, 2 Kings, 6 : 1–23 ; 7 : 1–20. After the death of Benhadad, Hazael fights against him ; is wounded, 2 Kings, 8 : 28 ; is killed by Jehu, his general, 9 : 24 ; his body thrown into the field of Naboth, : 25, 26.

2, The son and successor of Jehosaphat, king of Judah, 2 Kings, 8 : 16, note C. B.; marries Athalia, the daughter of Ahab, : 18 ; Moab rebels, : 20 ; his death and burial, : 23 : 24.

JORDAN. The principal river of Palestine, which rises in Anti Lebanus, 12 miles north of Cesarea Phillippi—it flows southerly and forms the lake of Samechon, which is 8 miles long and 4 broad ; running 28 miles further south, it forms the sea of Genessareth, which is 13 miles long and 6 broad ; thence through a long valley, and falls into the Dead sea, Josh. 3 : 1, note C. B ; it was miraculously divided, Josh. 3 : 15, note C. B ; : 17, note C. B.; 4 : 11 ; by Elijah, 2 Kings, 2 : 8 ; by Elisha, : 14 ; John baptised in, Mat. 3 : 6.

1, JOSEPH. Son of Jacob, by Rachel born, Gen. 30 : 24 ; his dreams, 37 : 5 ; sold into Egypt, . 28 ; bought by Potiphar, 39 : 1 ; personal beauty, : 6, note C. B.; falsely charged, : 14, note C. B.; put into prison, : 20 ; interprets dreams, 40 : 12, note C. B.; : 13, note C. B.; brought to Pharaoh and interprets his dreams, 41 : 14, note C. B.; set over the land, : 39–43, note C. B.; his age: : 46 ; his family, : 50–52 ; treats his brethren roughly, 42 : 9, note C. B.; his favor to Benjamin, 43 : 16 : made known to them, 45 : 1, note C. B.; meets his father, 46 : 29 ; presents him to Pharaoh, 47 : 7 ; visits his sick father 48 : 1 ; embalms and buries his father, 50 : 2, note C. B.; : 10, note C. B.; : 13 ; his own death, 50 : 26, note C. B.

2, Husband of Mary—of royal line of David, Mat. 1 : 6, 16 ; espoused Mary, : 18 ; Luke, 1 : 27 : admonished by angel, : 20 ; warned to flee to Egypt, 2 : 13 ; note C. B ; Christ and mother go to Jerusalem, Luke, 2 : 41, note C. B.; : 42, note C B ; a carpenter, Mat. 13 ; 55 ; probably died before Christ entered on his public ministry, as he is not named among those at the cross, John, 19 : 25–27.

3, Of Arimathea, a Jewish senator and believer in Christ, Mat. 27 : 57 ; Mark, 15 : 43, note C. B.; Luke 23 : 50, note C. B.; John, 19 : 38 ; did not consent to the crucifixion of Christ, Luke, 23 : 51 ; begged the body of Christ, : 52 ; buried in his own tomb, : 53.

4, Called Barsabas, which see, Joses.

5, Several others, Numb. 13 : 7 ; 1 Chron. 25 : 2 ; Ezr. 10 : 42 ; Neh. 12 : 14

JOSES or JOSEPH. Son of Cleopas, brother of James the less, Mat. 13 : 55 ; 27 ; 56, note C. B.; Mark, 6 : 3, note C. B.; 15 : 40, 47 ; thought to be the same as Barsabas, Acts, 1 : 23, note C. B.

1, JOSHUA. Son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim, the assistant and successor of Moses. Original name was Oshea, Numb. 13 ; 8 : altered, 13 : 16, note C. B.; first mentioned as a victorious commander, Ex. 17 : 8–16 : minister of Moses, 24 : 13 ; sent to explore the land of promise, Numb. 13 : 16, note C. B.; gave a good report of it, 14 : 6 ; appointed to succeed Moses, 27 : 18 ; encouraged by Moses, Deut. 31 : 7–14 ; succeeds him, 34 : 9 ; Josh. 1 : 1 ; his instructions, : 8 ; angel appears to him, 5 : 13 ; God encourages him, 8 : 1, note C. B. ; writes the law on stone, 32 ; conquers Canaan, 11 : 16 ; his inheritance, 19 : 49 ; his exhortation before his death, 23 : 1, note C. B.; 24 : 1, note C. B.; : 25–29 ; his age and death, : 29, 30.

2, The High Priest, son of Josedech, Hag. 1 : 1, 12, 14 ; aids in rebuilding the temple, 2 : 4 ; a type of the prophecy of Zechariah, Zech. 3 : 3.

3, The governor of Jerusalem under Josiah, 2 Kings, 23 : 8.

4, A Bethlemite, the owner of the field into which the cart came with the ark, 1 Sam. : 6 : 14–18.

JOSIAH. Son and successor of Amon, king of Judah, 2 Kings, 21 : 24 ; 22 : 1, note C. B ; 2 Chron. 33 : 25 ; repairs the temple, 34 : 8 ; finds the book of the law, 2 Kings, 22 : 8, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 34 : 14, note C B.; keeps the passover, 35 : 1, 18, note C. B.; his disobedience : 22, note C. B.; slain at Megeddo, : 23 ; 2 Kings, 23 : 29 ; lamentations over him, 2 Chron. 35 : 25.

JOTBAH. A city of Judah, 2 Kings, 21 : 19.

JOTBATHAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 ; 33, note C. B.

1, JOTHAM. Youngest son of Jerubaal, Judges, 9 : 5 ; addresses the people of Shechem, : 8, note C. B.; he flees to Beer, : 21 ; his imprecations fulfilled : 56, note C. B.

2, King of Judah, succeeds Uzziah, 2 Kings, 15 : 7 ; 2 Chron. 27 : 1 ; conquers the Ammonites : 5, note C. B.; dies, : 9 ; 2 Kings, 15 : 38.

JOZACHAR. Conspires and slays Joash, 2 Kings, 12 : 19–21, note C. B.

JUBAL. One of Cain's descendants, father of musical instruments, Gen. 4 : 21, note C. B.

1, JUDAH. Fourth son of Jacob by Leah, Gen. 29 : 35 ; saves life of Joseph, 37 : 26 ; his sons, 38 : 34 ; guilty connection with Tamer, : 14, note C. B.; confesses his guilt : 26 ; pleads that Benjamin may go to Egypt, 43 : 3, note C B.; intercedes with Joseph, 44 : 18–34 ; made head of his brethren, 49 : 8–10, note C. B.; illustration, page 126.

2, Tribe of, sprang from him, and was commanding and powerful, numbering 74000 adult males, Numb. 1 : 27 ; Josh. 15 : 1 ; this tribe adhered to David, 1 Kings, 12 : 20, note C. B.; Christ of this tribe, Mat. 1 : 2, note C. B.; Heb. 7 : 14.

3, In distinction to Israel, the kingdom which consisted of ten tribes who revolted under Jereboam, 1 Kings, 12 : 12 ; Ps. 114 : 2.

4, Mountains of, Josh. 15 ; 48.

5, Wilderness of, Judges, 1 : 16.

1, JUDAS or JUDE. Who wrote the epistle, and is called Lebbeus and Thaddeus, or brother of James the less, and near relative of Jesus, Mat. 10 : 3, note C. B.; 13 : 55 ; Mark, 3 : 18 ; 6 : 3 ; Luke, 6 : 16 ; Acts, 1 : 13.

2, ——— ISCARIOT. That is, man of Carioth, a city of Judah, Josh, 15 : 25 ; one of the twelve, Mat. 26 : 47 ; Mark, 14 : 43 ; censures Mary for anointing Jesus, John, 12 : 4 ; his treachery foretold, Mat. 26 : 23, note C. B.; : 25, note C. B.; Mark, 14 : 20 ; Luke, 22 : 21 ; John, 6 : 71 ; 13 : 26, note C. B.; bargains with Pharisees, Mat. 26 : 15, note C. B.; Mark, 14 : 10 ; Luke, 22 : 3, 4 ; betrays Jesus, Mat. 26 : 47 ; Mark, 14 : 43 ; Luke, 22 : 47 ; John 18 : 3 : brings back the money and confesses his guilt, Mat. 27 : 3 ; hangs himself, 27 : 5 ; note C. B.; Acts, 1 : 18, note C. B.

3, ——— Surnamed Barnabas, Acts, 15 : 22 ; 27 : 32.

4, ——— Of Galilee, his insurrection, Acts, 5 : 37.

5, ——— A Jew of Damascus, with whom Paul lodged, Acts, 9 : 11.

1, JUDEA or JEWRY. The land of the Jews, Mat. 19 : 1 : after the captivity this name was applied to the whole of Palestine west of the Jordan, Haggai, 1 : 1, 14 ; 2 : 2 ; under the Romans in the time of Christ, Palestine was divided into Judea, Galilee and Samaria, Luke, 2 : 4 ; John, 4 : 3, 4 ; Acts, 9 : 31 ; Judea was the most southerly, John, 7 : 1, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

2, Wilderness of, where John preached and Christ was tempted, was the eastern part of Judah, 2 Sam. 15 : 28.

JULIA. A christian woman of Rome, to whom Paul sent salutation, Rom. 16 : 15.

JULIUS. The centurion who had charge of Paul, and treated him with kindness, Acts, 27 : 1–43.

JUNIA, (youthful). An early convert to christianity, Rom. 16 : 7.

JUPITER, (weeping father). Supreme god of the heathen Greeks and Romans, Acts, 14 : 12, note C. B.; : 13, note C. B.; 19 : 35.

1, JUSTUS, (upright). Surname of Barsabas, Acts 1 : 23.

2, Called Jesus, a believing Jew, who was a fellow laborer with Paul when at Rome, Col. 4 : 11.

3, A pious Jewish proselyte, in whose house Paul preached at Corinth, Acts, 18 : 7.

JUTTAH. A Levitical city in the mountains of Judah, Josh. 15 ; 55.

K.

KABZEEL. A city of Judah, near the west shore of the Dead sea, Josh. 15 : 21 ; here Benaiah, the general of Solomon's army, was born, 2 Sam. 23 : 20.

KADESH or KADESH-BARNEA. Also called En-mishphat, Gen. 14 : 7 ; a city of the tribe of Judah, about 24 miles south from Hebron, and on the south of Canaan ; here the Israelites long sojourned, Deut. 1 : 46 ; from it the spies went, Numb. 13 : 26 ; 32 : 8 ; here Miriam died, 20 : 1, note C. B.; here at the waters of Miribah, Israel rebelled and Moses incurred the divine displeasure, Numb. 20 : 2 ; Deut. 32 : 51 ; map of journeyings of the Israelites, vol. 2.

KADMONITES. A Canaanitish nation, Gen. 15 : 19.

1, KANAH. A brook dividing Ephraim from Manasseh, Josh. 16 : 8 ; 17 : 9, note C. B.

2, A town in the tribe of Asher, Josh. 19 : 28, note C. B.

KARKAA Town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 3.

KARKOR. Town beyond Jordan, Judges, 8 : 10.

KARTAH. Town in Zebulon, Josh. 21 : 34.
KARTAN. A Levitical city in Naphtali, Josh. 21 : 32.
KATTATH. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 15.
KEDAR, (blackness). Son of Ishmael, and father of the Kadarenes, who resided in Arabia, Gen. 25 : 13; David sojourned here, Ps. 120 : 5, note C. B.; descendants of traded with the Tyrians, Ezk. 27 : 21; to be conquered, Jer. 49 : 23; to add to the glory of the church, Isa. 60 : 7.
KEDEMAH. Youngest son of Ishmael, Gen. 25 : 15; his posterity resided eastward of Gilead, Deut. 2 : 26; Josh. 13 : 18; 21; 37.
KEDEMOTH. A Levitical city in Reuben, Deut. 2 : 26; Josh. 13 : 18.
1, KEDESH. A town in the south of Judah, Josh. 15 : 23.
2, City of refuge in Nephtali, Josh. 12 : 22; 19 : 37; 20 : 7, note C. B.
3. H town in Issachar, 1 Chron. 6 : 72.
KEHELATHAN. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 : 22.
KEILAH. A city in Judah, 18 miles southwest of Jerusalem, Josh. 15 : 44; saved by David from Philistines, 1 Sam. 23 : 1, note C. B.; here Abiathar came to David, : 6; David departs, : 12; rulers from assisted Nehemiah, Neh. 3 : 17.
1, KEMUEL. Third son of Nahor, and father of Aram, Gen. 22 : 21.
2, Name of a prince of Ephraim, appointed to divide the land, Num. 34 : 24.
KENATH. A town in Manasseh, taken by Nobah, Numb. 33 : 22; 1 Chron. 2 : 23, note C. B.
1, KENAZ. One of the dukes of Edom, Gen. 36 : 15.
2, Father of Othniel, and brother of Caleb. Judges, 1 : 13; 3; 9.
KENITES or KENEZITES. A tribe of Midianites dwelling among the Amalekites, Gen. 15 : 19; Jethro was one of them, Numb. 24 : 21, note C. B.; Judges, 1 : 16; the land promised, but for Jethro's sake they are allowed to dwell in tribe of Judah, 1 Sam. 15 : 6, note C. B.
1, KERIOTH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 25.
2, A city in Moab, Jer. 48 : 24.
KETURAH, (perfumed). Second wife of Abraham, Gen. 25 : 1, note C. B.; called his concubine, 1 Chron. 1 : 32; her descendants, Gen. 25 ; 2-4.
KEZIZ. A valley, Josh. 13 : 21.
KIBROTH-HATTAAVAH, (the graves of lust). Place where Israel loathed the manna, Numb. 11 : 4, 34, note C. B.
KIBZAIM. A Levitical city in Ephraim, Josh. 21 : 22.
KIDRON or CEDRON, (the turbid). Winter torrent, which ran through the valley of Jehosaphat on the east side of Jerusalem, between the city and the Mount of Olives; David crossed it in his escape from Absalom, 2 Sam. 15 : 23, note C. B.; near to it Asa, Hezekiah and Josiah, burnt the idols, &c., 1 Kings, 15 : 13, note C. B.; 2 Kings, 23 : 4; 2 Chron. 29 : 16; Christ passeth it on his way to Gethsemane, John, 18 : 1 note C. B.
KINAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 22.
1, KIR. A city of the Medes to which the Syrians and part of the Hebrews were carried by the Assyrians, 2 Kings, 16 : 9, note C. B.
2, Fortified city on the borders of Moab, Isa. 15 : 1; 16 : 7; it was ravaged by Jehoram, 2 Kings, 3 : 25, note C. B.
KIR-HARASETH. Probably Ar or Arcopolis, a Moabitish town, 2 Kings, 3 : 25, note C. B.; ruined by Assyrians and Chaldeans, Isa. 16 : 7, note C. B.; Jer. 48 : 31.
KIRIATHAIM.. Gen. 14 : 5; Jer. 48 : 1.
KIRIOTH A city of Moab, ruined by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 48 : 24; Amos, 2 2.
KIRJATH. See Kirjath Jarim, Josh. 18 : 28.
1, KIRJATHAIM. An ancient town east of Jordan, Gen. 14 : 5; Josh. 13 : 19
2, A town in Naphtali, 1 Chron. 6 : 76.
KIRJATH ARBA. Ancient name of Hebron, Gen. 23 : 2; Josh. 14 : 15; note C. B.; 20 : 7; Judges, 1 : 10; here Sarah died, Gen. 23 : 2.
KIRJATH BAAL. Same as Kirjath Jearim, Josh. 15 : 60.
KIRJATH-HUZOTH. A town in Moab, Numb. 22 : 39, note C. B.
KIRJATH-JEARIM. Originally one of the towns of the Gibeonites, in the tribe of Judah, Josh. 9 : 17; 15 : 9; here the ark was brought from the Philistines, 1 Sam. 7 : 1; from it David removed the ark, 1 Chron. 13 : 6; 2 Chron. 1 : 4.
KIRJATH-SANNAH or KIRJATH-SEPHA, also DEBIR. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 16; Judges, 1 : 11-13.
1, KISH. The father of king Saul, 1 Sam. 9 : 1; 10 : 11; 14 : 51; 2 Sam. 21 : 14
2, The son of Gibeon, 1 Chron. 8 : 30.
3, The son of Mahli, 1 Chron. 23 : 21.
4, The son of Abdi, 2 Chron. 29 : 12.
1, KISHION or KISHIAN. A town in Issachar, Josh. 19 : 20.
2, A river which rises in Mt. Tabor, and flows nearly westward into the Mediterranean by the port of Accho, Josh. 19 : 11, note C. B.; Judges, 5 : 21, note C. B.; Ps. 83 : 9.
KITHLISH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 40.
KITRON. A town in Zebulon, Judges, 1 : 30, note C. B.
KITTIM. Son of Javan, and grandson of Noah, Gen. 10 : 4, see Chittim.
KOHATH. Son of Levi, and father of the Koathites, Gen. 46 : 11; Numb. 4 : 18; 34 : 37, note C. B.; his descendants formed one of the three divisions of the Levitical tribe, Ex. 6 : 16; Numb. 4 : 4-6; 1 Chron. 6 : 2.
1, KORAH. Son of Esau, Gen. 36 : 14, 18; 1 Chron. 1 : 35.
2, A Levite, the son of Izhar, and great-grandson of Levi, Ex : 6 ; 21; his rebellion, 16 : 1; note C. B.; his punishment, : 32, 33, note C. B.

L.

1, LABAN. Son of Bethuel, brother of Rebekah, and father of Leah and Rachel; kindly receives Abraham's servants, Gen. 24 : 29; gives Rebekah to be Isaac's wife, : 50, note C. B.; receives Jacob, 29 : 13; agrees to give him Rachel to wife for his services, : 15-18, note C. B.; is deceived, : 23, note C. B.; bargains for Rachel, : 28, note C. B.; departs from Laban, 31 : 17-20, note C. B.; Laban pursues, : 22; warned of God in a dream not to hurt Jacob, : 24, note C. B.; makes a covenant with him, and erects memorial stones, : 46, note C. B.; parts peacefully from him, : 55.
2, In the desert of Arabia, or plains of Moab, Deut. 1 : 1, note C. B.
LACHISH. A city of Judah, 20 miles southeast of Jerusalem, Josh. 10 : 3, 5, 31, note C. B.; Amaziah fled to it, 2 Kings, 14 : 19; fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron. 11 : 9; resists the assaults of the Assyrian army under Sennacherib, 2 Kings, 18 : 17; 19 : 8; Jer. 34 : 7; map of Canaan, vol. 2.
LAH-MAM. A city in Judah, Josh. 15 : 40.
1, LAISH. Original name of city of Dan. Judges, 18 ; 7, note C. B.; : 14, 29.
2, Father of Phalti, to whom Saul gave Michal, David's wife, 1 Sam. 25 : 44 ; 2 Sam. 3 ; 15.
LAKUM. In Naphtali, Josh. 19 : 33.
1, LAMECH. Descendants of Cain by Methusael, Gen. 4 : 18 ; the first polygamist, : 19 ; his children, : 20, 22 ; his speech, : 23-24, note C. B.
2, Son of Methusaleh, and father of Noah, Gen. 5 : 25 ; age and death, : 28-31.
LAODACEA. A city of Phrygia, upon the river Lycus, near Colosse, Col. 4 : 13, note C. B.; Paul's concern for the saints there, Col. 2 : 1, note C. B ; Christ's message to the church of, Rev. 3 : 14 ; see Exposition, page 1389 ; map of travels of Paul, vol. 2.
LAPIDOTH. The husband of Deborah the prophetess, and the name of the place where she dwelt, Judges, 4, 4, 5.
LASEA. A city in Crete, Acts, 27 : 8, note C. B.
LASHA. A town on east of Dead sea, abounding with hot springs, Gen. 10 : 19.
LASHARON. A Canaanitish city, Josh. 12 : 18.
1, LAZARUS. The brother of Martha and Mary, John 11 : 1 ; note C. B.; raised from the dead, : 41 ; sat at supper with Christ, 12 : 2, note C. B.; visited by many Jews, : 9.
2, Name of a poor afflicted man in the parable, Luke, 16 : 20.
LEAH. Eldest daughter of Laban, Gen. 29 : 16 ; given to wife to Jacob, : 23, note C. B.; favored of the Lord, : 31 ; Dinah her daughter, 34 : 1 ; her sons, 35 : 23 ; buried, 49 : 31.
LEBANON or LABANAH. The same, Ezr, 2 : 45 : a mountain range on the borders of Syria and Palestine—the western ridge is called Lebanon or Libanus, and the eastern Anti Libanus, Deut. 3 : 25, note C B., Judges, 3 : 3 ; 1 Kings, 5: 14 ; 7 : 2 ; snow, of its utility, Jer. 18 : 14, note C. B.; sometimes put for Jerusalem, Ezk. 17 : 3 ; note C. B.; also for the temple, Zeph. 11 : 1, note C. B.: map of Canaan, vol. 2.
LEBAOTH. A town in Simeon, Josh. 15 : 32 ; Judges, 21 : 19, note C. B.
LEBBEUS or THADDEUS. Same with Judas or Jude, Mat. 10 : 3 ; Mark, 3 : 18 : brother of Jesus, 6 : 3 ; Luke, 6 : 16 ; Acts, 1 : 13.
LEHABIM. Probably Lybians. Gen. 10 : 13.
LEHI or RAMATH-LEHI. A place in the south of Palestine, Judg. 15 : 9, 19.
LEMUEL. Supposed to be Solomon ; lessons from his mother, Prov. 31 : 1, note C. B.; : 4.
LESHEM. A town called Laish and Dan. Josh. 19: 47 ; Judges, 18 : 7, note C. B.
LETUSHEM. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 25 : 3.
LEUM MIM. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 25 : 3.
1, LEVI. Third son of Jacob and Leah, Gen. 29 : 34 ; assists Simeon in destroying the Shechemites, 34 : 25 ; his sons and his age, Ex. 6 : 16, note C. B.; his descendants, 1 Chron. 6 : 1, note C. B.
2, The tribe of, their number, Ex. 1 : 47 ; table in note C. B.; separated for the service of the sanctuary, Deut. 10 : 8.
LEVITES. Descendants of Levi, devoted to the Lord, Numb. 3 : 6, note C. B.; 8 : 13, note C. B.; accepted instead of the first born, Num. 3 : 12, note C. B.; : 46, note C. B.: their number, 3 : 39, note C. B.; 4 : 36, note C. B.; their portion, Deut. 14 : 28, note C. B.; to serve 25 years, Numb. 8 : 25, note C. B.
LEVITICAL CITIES. Forty-eight in number, Josh. 21 : 41, note C. B.; Numb. 35 : 4, note and a plan of the city and suburbs, page 231.
LIBANUS. See Lebanon.
1, LIBNAH. A station in the wilderness, Numb. 33 : 20.
2, A royal city of the Canaanites, afterwards a Levitical town in Judah, Josh. 10 : 29, note C. B.; 15 : 42 ; 21 : 13 ; the inhabitants offended with Jehoram, 2 Kings, 8 : 22, besieged by Sennacherib, Isa. 37 : 8.
LIBNI and LAADAN. The same, 1 Chron. 23 : 7, note C. B.
LIBYA. An extensive country in Africa, westward of Egypt ; its inhabitants warlike, Jer. 46 : 9, note C. B.; its fall foretold, Ezk. 30 : 5 ; men at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, Acts, 2 : 10.
LINUS. A christian at Rome, 2 Tim. 4 : 21.
LO AMMI. Name of child, significant of a future event, Hos. 1 : 9.
LOD or LUD or LYDDA. A town east of Joppa, in Benjamin, 1 Chron. 8 : 12, note C. B.
LODEBAR. A place near Jordan, 2 Sam. 9 : 4.
LOIS. Grandmother of Timothy, distinguished for her faith, 2 Tim. 1 : 5.
LO-RUHAMAH. Name of child, significant of future event, Hos. 1 : 6.
LOT. Son of Haran, and nephew of Abraham, Gen. 11 : 31 ; 12 : 5 ; accompanies Abraham, 13 : 5 ; strife and separation, : 7 ; resides at Sodom, : 10 ; rescued, 19 : 1, note C. B.; his conduct, : 31, note C. B.; : 32, note C. B ; his posterity, : 37, note C. B.; : 38, note C. B.; vexed with the society of the wicked. 2 Peter, 2 : 7.
LUBIM. The Lybians, always connected with the Egyptians and Ethiopians, 2 Chron. 12 : 3.
LUCAS. Same as Luke, Phil. : 24.
LUCIFER, (light bringer). Latin name of the morning star, or son of the morning. Title by which Nebuchadnezzar is described, Isa. 14 : 12.
LUCIUS. Of Cyrene, a minister of Antioch and relative of Paul, Rom. 16 : 21 ; though some regard him as the same as Luke, Acts, 13 : 1 ; note C. B.
LUD. Son of Shem, peopled Lydia in Asia Minor ; see map end of vol. 1 ; Gen. 10 ; 22.
1, LUDIM. An African nation, Gen. 10 : 13.
2, The Lydians, Gen. 10 : 22.
LUHITH. A height in Moab. Isa. 15 : 5 : Jer. 48 : 5, note C. B.
1, LUZ. A town in the country of Hittites, Judge, 1 : 26.
2, The ancient name of Bethel, Gen. 28 : 19 ; Josh. 16 : 2, note C. B.
LYBIA. See Libya.

LYCAONIA. A province of Asia Minor, forming part of Cappadocia, subject to the Romans when visited by Paul, Acts, 14: 6, note C. B.: 11, note C. B.

LYCIA. A province in southwest of Asia Minor, Acts, 27: 5; map of travels of Paul, vol. 2.

LYDDA. A town fourteen miles N. E. from Joppa, and thirty-two W. from Jerusalem—Peter visited the saints here, Acts, 9: 32; cures Eneas, ; 33, 34; its inhabitants turn to the Lord, : 35; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

1. LYDIA. Converted, Acts, 16: 14; she and household baptized, : 15.

2, A province on west coast of Asia Minor, Ezr. 30: 5; map of travels of Paul, vol. 2.

LYSIAS. Chief captain of Roman band at Jerusalem who rescues Paul, Acts, 21: 31, note C. B.; 23: 22; sends him to Cesarea, : 33; writes to Felix, 26: 30–32.

LYSTRA. A city of Lacaonia, where Paul and Barnabas were taken for gods, Acts, 14: 6, note C. B.; : 11; native place of Timothy, 16: 12; map of travels of Paul, vol. 2.

1, MAACHAH, MAACHATHI. A city and region at the foot of Mt. Hebron, Deut. 3: 14; Josh. 13: 13.

2, Son of Nahor, Gen. 22: 24; supposed to be the father of the Maachathites, Deut. 3: 14; Josh. 12: 5.

3, Daughter of Talmai, king of Goshen—the wife of David, and mother of Absalom and Tamar, 2 Sam. 3: 3.

4, Mother or grandmother of King Asa, 1 Kings, 15: 10.

5, The father of Achish, king of Gath, 1 Kings, 2: 39.

6, The head of the tribe of Simeon in the days of David, 1 Chron. 27: 16.

7, Father of Hanan, one of David's worthies, 1 Chron. 11: 43.

8, Concubine of Caleb, 1 Chron. 2: 48.

9, Granddaughter of Benjamin, married to Machir, 1 Chron. 7: 16.

MAARATH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 59.

MACEDONIA. A large province of ancient Greece, N. W. of the Ægean sea, Acts, 19: 29, note C. B.; Paul was directed to it by a vision, Acts, 16: 9; Silas and Timothy preached in it, : 18: 5; churches of exemplary for contributions, Rom. 15: 26; 2 Cor. 8: 1–5; note C. B.; kindness to Paul, : 11: 9; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

MACHBENAH. A town in Judah, 1 Chron. 2: 49; same as Cabbon, Josh. 15: 40.

1, MACHIR. Son of Manasseh, and grandson of Joseph, and chief of the Machirites, Gen. 50: 23; Numb. 26: 29; 27: 1; 32: 39; 36: 31; Josh. 17: 1, note C. B.; Judg. 5: 14

2, Son of Ammiel, in Lodebar, who sheltered Mephibosheth, 2 Sam. 9: 4; furnishes David with provisions, 17: 27–28, note C. B.

MACHPELAH. Name of the cave where Abraham, Sarah, Isaac, Rebecca and Joseph were buried, Gen. 23: 9, 17, 19, note C. B.; 25: 9; 49: 29–32.

MADAI. Third son of Japhet, Gen. 10: 2; from whom the Medes have descended.

MADMANNAH. A city in the southern part of Judah, Josh. 15: 31; 1 Ch. 2: 49, see note C. B.

MADMEN. A town on the borders of Moab, Jer. 48: 2, note C. B.

MADMENAH. A town near Jerusalem, Isa. 10: 31.

MADON. A Canaanitish city, Josh. 11: 1.

MAGBISH. Doubtful whether a man or a place, Ezr. 2: 30.

MAGDALA, A town on the east of the sea of Tiberias, Mat. 15: 39, note C. B,; compared with Mark, 8: 10; the probable birth-place of Mary Magdalene; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

MAGOG. Name of son of Japhet, Gen. 10: 2; and of a great nation descended from him, Ezk. 38: 2, note C. B.; 39: 6; probably Scythian or Tartar tribes.

MAHALALEEL. Son of Cainan, of the race of Seth, Gen. 5: 15.

1, MAHALATH. Wife of Rehoboham, 2 Chron. 11: 18,

2, Daughter of Ishmael, whom Esau married, Gen. 28: 9.

MAHANAIM. City on east of Jordan, Gen. 32: 2, note C. B.; given to the Levites, Josh. 21: 38; here Ishbosheth fixed his residence, 2 Sam. 2: 8; here David fled before Absalom, 17 27.

MAHANEH. In the tribe of Judah, Judges, 18: 12.

MAHER SHALEL-HASH-BAZ. A child, so-called, to signify a future event, Isa. 8: 1.

MAHLAH. One of the daughters of Zelophehad, who received a portion of the land of promise, Numb. 26: 33; Josh. 17: 3; 1 Chron. 7: 18.

MAHLON. Son of Elimelech and Naomi, married Ruth—he died in Moab, Ruth, 1: 2–5.

MAKAZ. A town in Dan, 1 Kings, 4: 9.

MAKHELOTH. Station in the wilderness, Num. 33: 25.

MAKKEDAH. A town in Judah, near Jerusalem, Josh. 10: 10, 17, 28, note C. B.; 15: 41.

MALACHI. The last of the O. T. prophets, who wrote 400 B. C.—he foretells the appearance of John the Baptist, Mal. 4: 5, 6.

1, MALCHIAH. The keeper of the prison in Jerusalem when Jeremiah was imprisoned, Jer. 38: 1–6.

2, Others of this name, 1 Chron. 6: 40; 9: 12; Ezr. 10: 25; Neh. 3: 11–14.

MALCHISUA. Third son of Saul, who perished with his father, 1 Sam. 31: 2.

MALCHOM, or MILCOM. An idol of Ammonites, same as Moloch, 1 Kings, 11: 33.

MALCHUS. Servant of Caiaphus, whose ear Peter cut off, John, 18: 10.

1, MAMRE. The brother of Aner and Eschol, and friend of Abraham, Gen. 14: 13.

2, An oak grove near Hebron, Gen. 13: 18; 23: 17.

MANAENG. A christian teacher at Antioch, Acts, 13: 1.

MANAHATH. A town in Benjamin, 1 Chron. 8: 6.

1, MANASSEH. One of the tribal divisions. Josh, 17: 7.

2, Eldest son of Joseph, Gen. 41: 51; blessed by Jacob, 48: 12, note C. B.; his inheritance, Josh. 13: 29; 17: 1; his descendants, 1 Chron. 7: 4; the chief men of half tribe, 1 Chron. 5: 23; conquered by Pul, king of Assyria, : 26; illustration, page 126.

3, Fourteenth king of Judah, son and successor of Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 21: 1; 2 Chron. 33: 1; carried to Babylon, 33: 11, note C. B.; restored, : 13; dies, 2 Kings, 21: 18.

MANOAH. Father of Samson, of the tribe of Dan, Judg. 13: 2; prays for the return of the angel, and is answered, : 8-23.

MAON. A city in the south of Judah, near the wilderness of the same name, Josh. 15: 55; 1 Sam. 23: 24, note C. B.

MARAH. A well of bitter water, Ex. 15: 23.

MARALAH. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19: 11.

MARESHAH. A city in Judah, Josh 15: 44; 1 Chron. 4: 21, note C. B.; here Asa routed the Ethiopians, 2 Chron 14: 9.

MARK or MARCUS. The evangelist and son of Mary, in whose house the Christians were praying for Peter's deliverance, Acts, 12: 12; accompanies Paul to Antioch, 12: 25, note C. B.; separates from Paul, 15: 38; accompanies Barnabas, : 39; sister's son to Barnabas, Col. 4: 10; commended by Paul, 2 Tim. 4: 11; Philm. : 24

MARS HILL. See Areopagus and note to Acts, 17: 22.

MARTHA. Sister of Lazarus and Mary, entertains Jesus, Luke, 10: 38; her behavior at the death of her brother, John, 11: 6–20; serves at the supper, 12: 2.

1, MARY. Mother of Jesus, and descendant of the royal house of David, Mat. 1: 6–16; addressed by Gabriel, Luke, 1: 26–35; her song, : 46–55; espoused to Joseph, Mat. 1: 18, note C. B.; Saviour born at Bethlehem, Luke, 2: 1–7, note C. B.; presents the infant at Jerusalem, : 21–24; went to the passover, : 41, 42, note C. B.; at the marriage in Cana, John, 2: 1; she inquires for Christ when he was teaching, Mat. 12: 46; Mk. 3: 31; Luke, 8: 19; present at the crucifixion, and committed to John, John, 19: 25; with the disciples after the resurrection, Acts, 1: 14.

2, Magdalene dispossessed of devils, Luke, 8: 2; witnessed the crucifixion, Mat. 27: 56, note C. B.; attended his burial, : 60, 61, note C. B.; brought spices to embalm Christ, Mk. 16: 1; the first to see him after the resurrection, Mat. 28: 1–9; Mark, 16: 1–9; John, 20: 14.

3, The sister of Lazarus, Luke, 10: 39; anoints Christ at the supper at Bethany, Mat. 26: 7; Mk. 14: 3; John, 11: 12; 12: 3.

4, Wife of Cleopas, the mother of James and Joses, Mark, 15: 40; John, 19: 25.

5, Mother of John Mark, Acts, 12: 12.

MASH. A people on the borders of Mesopotamia, Gen. 10: 23.

MASHAL. A town in Asher, 1 Chron. 6: 74.

MASREKAH. Town or district in Edom, Gen. 36: 36.

MASSAH. An Israelitish station, Ex. 17: 7.

MATTAN. A priest of Baal, killed before the altar, 2 Kings, 11: 18; 2 Chron. 22: 17.

MATTANAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 21: 18.

MATTHAN. Son of Eleazer, father of Jacob, and grandfather of Joseph, the husband of Mary, Mat. 1: 15, 16.

MATTHEW or LEVI. The Evangelist, and one of the Apostles, Mat. 9: 9; Mark, 2: 14; Luke, 5: 27; makes a feast for Christ, Mat. 9: 10 numbered with the apostles, 10: 3; Mark, 3: 18; Luke, 6: 15: Acts, 1: 13.

MATTHIAS. Chosen in the place of Judas Iscariot, Acts, 1: 26, note C. B.

MAELON. See Elon.

MARAH. Name of a town or cave near Sidon, Josh. 13: 4.

MEDAN. Third son of Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 25: 2.

MEDEBA. A city of the tribe of Reuben, near Heshbon, Numbers, 21; 30; Joshua, 13: 16; taken by the Moabites, Isa. 15: 2.

MEDIA. The country of the Medes, near the Caspian, Esther, 12: 2, note C. B.; it was here that Shalmanesar carried the ten tribes, 2 Kings, 17: 6; 18: 11; Isaiah, 13: 17; 21: 2; Jas. 25: 25.

MEDES and PERSIAN EMPIRE. Represented by the breast of silver, Dan. 2: 39, note C. B.; represented by a bear, 3: 5, note C. B.; represented by a ram, 8: 4, note C. B.

MEGIDDO. A city of Menasseh, forty-four miles north of Jerusalem. John, 17: 11; Judges, 1: 27; 2 Kings, 23: 29, note C. B.; near to it Jabin's army was routed by Deborah and Barak, Judges, 5: 19; fortified by Solomon, 1 Kings, 9: 15; here Ahaziah fled when wounded, 2 Kings, 9: 27; near this Josiah was slain, 2 Kings, 23: 29, 30, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 35: 20–35; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

MEJARKON. A town in Dan, Joshua, 19: 46.

MELCHIZEDEK. King of Salem and Priest, Gen. 14: 18, note C. B.; Heb. 7: 1, note C. B.; blesses Abraham, : 19, note C. B.; a type of Jesus, Hebrews, 5: 6; 7: 1–15; Abraham paid tithes to him, Gen. 14: 20, note C. B.; Heb. 7: 4.

MELITA. Now called Malta, an island in the Mediterranean sea, where Paul was wrecked, Acts, 28: 1, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

MEMPHIS. The ancient capital of Lower Egypt, situated on the west side of the river Nile, twenty miles south of Cairo, Jer. 46: 19, note C. B.; many Jews fled there from the Assyrians, Hos. 9: 6.

MENAHEM. Son of Gadi, cut off Shallum, and seized the crown of Judah, 2 Kings, 15: 14; laid waste Tiphsah, : 16; purchased friendship of king of Assyria, : 19; reigned ten years, and died, 17: 20.

MEONENIM. A plain where soothsayers dwelt, Judges, 9: 37; note C. B.

MEPHAATH. A Levitical city in Reuben, Josh. 13: 18.

1, MEPHIBOSHETH. A son of King Saul, 2 Sam. 21: 8, 9,

2, Son of Jonathan and nephew of Saul, lame of his feet, 2 Sam. 4: 4; sought out and received by David, 9: 1; falsely accused by Ziba, 16: 1; excuses himself, 19: 24.

MERAB. The eldest daughter of Saul, promised in marriage to David, but gave her to another, 1 Sam. 14: 49; 18: 17–19.

MERATHAIM. Probably Babylonia is meant, Jer. 50: 21.

MERCURIUS or MERCURY. One of the fabulous heathen gods, Acts, 14: 12.

1, MERIBAH. A fountain which gushed from Horeb, where a rock was struck by the rod of Moses, Ex. 17: 7.

2. A fountain in the desert of Zin, near Kadesh, produced in a supernatural manner, Numb. 20: 13, 24

MERODACH, MERODACH BALADAN, or BERODACH-BALADAN. The son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent to congratulate Hezekiah on his recovery, 2 Kings, 20: 12; Isa. 39: 1, note C. B.; his image was worshipped, Jer. 50: 2

MEROM. Supposed to be the Samachon or upper lake of Jordan, now called Hulch, near which Jabin and other kings met to fight Joshua, Josh. 11: 5, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

MEROZ. A place in the north of Palestine, whose inhabitants refused to assist their brethren when they fought against Jabin, and were therefore cursed. Judges, 5 : 23, note C. B.

MESHA In Arabia, supposed to be the modern Mecca, Gen. 10 : 30, the King of the Moabites' tributary to the King of Israel, 2 Kings, 3 : 4; revolts, : 5 overcome, and sacrifices his eldest son, : 24–27.

MESHACH The Chaldean name given to Michael, one of the three Hebrew youths, Daniel's companions, Dan 1 : 7.

1, MESHECH The sixth son of Japhet, Gen 10 : 2; Ps. 120 : 5, note C. B.

2, A people inhabiting the Moschean mountains, between the Black and the Caspian sea, Gen 10 : 2; Ezek. 32 : 26, note C. B.

MESOPOTAMIA A province between the rivers Tigris and Euphrates, Gen. 24 : 10, Judges, 3 : 8, note C. B; called by the Hebrews Padan-Aram, Gen. 28 : 2; here were situated Eden, Shinar, and Babylon —here Abraham, Nahor, Sarah, Rebecca, Leah, Rachel, and all the children of Jacob, save Benjamin, were born, Gen. 11 : 31; 29 : 1; 30 : 1; Neh 9 : 7, Acts, 7 : 2; from it came Balaam to curse Israel, Deut. 23 : 4, persons from it at the Pentecost, Acts 2 : 9; map, travels of Paul vol 2

MESOBAITE. Named, 1 Chron. 11 : 47

MESSIAH. Hebrew word of the same import as Christ in the Greek, signifying anointed, and designating the promised Saviour—pre-existence believed, John, 8 : 58, note C. B.; to be pierced, Zech. 12 : 10, note C. B; was expected by the Jews in accordance with the prophecies, Mark 15 : 43 note C B.; Luke, 2 : 33; John, 4 : 25; 10 : 24; 11 : 27.

MITHEG-AMMAH. Probably a town of the Philistines, 2 Sam. 8 : 1, note C. B

METHUSELAH. The son of Enoch, Gen. 5 : 21; father of Lamech, : 25; died at the age of 969, : 27

1, MICAH. One of the minor prophets, 750 years B. C., Mic. 1 : 1, note C. B.; prophecied about 50 years in the reign of Jonathan, Ahaz and Hezekiah, Jere. 26 : 18, note C. B.

2, An Ephraimite, the son of a rich and superstitious widow, Judges, 17 : 1, note C. B.; robbed of his gods by the Danites, 18 : 18.

1, MICAIAH. A prophet in the days of Ahab, 1 Kings, 22 : 8; foretells the death of Ahab and defeat of Israel, : 17–28.

2, The mother of Abijah, 2 Chron 13 : 2.

3, The son of Gemariah, who informed the princes of Judah that Baruch had read to the people Jeremiah's prophecies, Jere. 36 : 11.

MICHAEL. The chief of the angelic princes, Dan. 10 : 13; 12 : 1, note C. B; his contention with the devil, Jude, : 9; fights against the dragon, Rev. 12 : 7

MICHAL. The daughter of Saul married to David, 1 Sam. 18 : 20; saves his life by strategem, 19 : 13, note C. B.; given to Phalti, 25 : 44; brought back to David. 2 Sam. 33 : 13; despises him for dancing before the Ark, 6 : 16–20, note C. B.

MICH-MASH. A town in Benjamin, nine miles from Jerusalem, near which Jonathan and his armor-bearer began to defeat the Philistines, 1 Sam. 13 : 2, note C. B.; 14 : 6, note C. B.; : 31; Neh. 7 : 31; Isa 10 : 28, note C. B.

MICHMETAH. A town in Ephraim, Josh. 16 : 6; 17 : 7, note C. B.

MIDDIN. A place in the wilderness of Judah, Josh. 15 : 61.

1, MIDIAN. The fourth son of Abraham by Kiturah, Gen. 25 : 2; he gave the name to the land whither Moses fled, and where Jethro resided. Ex 2 : 15.

2, A country in Arabia, on the eastern coast of the Red sea, Ex. 4 : 19, note C. B; map, Journeys of the Israelites, vol. 1.

3, East of the Dead Sea and south of Moab, 1 Kings, 11 : 18; note C. B.

MIDIANITES. An Arabian nation descended from Abraham by his son Medean, Gen. 25 : 2; to be vexed for enticing Israel to worship Baal-peor, Numb. 25 : 17, note C. B.; defeated, Numb. 31 : 3, note C. B.; offerings after the victory, : 48–50, note C. B; oppress the Israelites, Judges, 6 : 1; conquered by Gideon, 7 : 16; 8 : 17–28.

MIGDAL EDAR. A village near Bethlehem, Gen. 35 : 21, note C. B.; used for Bethlehem itself, and figuratively for the royal stock of David. Mack 4 : 8, note C. B.

MIGDAL EL. A fortified city in Napthali, John, 19 : 38; the same as Magdala, Mat. 15 : 39, note C. B.

MIGDAL GAD. A town in Judah, Josh 15 : 37.

1 MIGDOL. A place on the west coast of the Red Sea, near to which the Hebrews encamped before they passed through it, Ex. 14 : 2, note C. B., here Johanan and his associates in rebellion took up their abode, Jer. 44 : 1; map, Journeys of Israel, vol. 1.

2, Or Magdolus, Jer 46 : 14, note, C. B.

MIGRON. A town in Benjamin, 1 Sam. 14 : 2.

MILEOM. See Molech

MILETUS or MILETUM. A city and seaport of Ionia, in Asia Minor, in the province of Caria, 36 miles south of Ephesus—Paul addresses the Elders of, Acts, 20 : 15–18, note C. B.; Trophinius left sick there, 2 Tim. 4 : 20.

1, MILLO. A noted person, whose family assisted the Shechemites in making Abimelech King, Judges, 9 : 6–20.

2, Part of the citadel of Jerusalem, 2 Sam. 5 : 9; 1 Kings, 9 : 15, note C. B.; : 24.

MINNI. An ancient province of Armenia, Jer. 51 : 57, note C. B.

MINNITH A town four miles from Heshbon, which belonged to the Ammorites when Jephtha made war against them, Judges, 11 : 33, note C. B; famed for its fine wheat, and brought to the Tyrian market. Ezk, 27 : 17.

MIRIAM. Sister of Moses and Aaron, who leads the song after the passage of the Red Sea, Ex 15 : 20; note C. B.; her punishment for complaining of Moses, Numbers, 12 : 14, note C. B.; her death, 20 : 31.

MIZGAB. A town in Moab, Jer. 48 : 1

1, MISHAEL, MISHAL or MASHAL. A Levitical city in Asher, Josh. 19 : 26.

2, Name of several persons, Ex. 6 : 22; Neh. 8 : 4; Dan. 1 : 6.

MISPAH. See Mizpah.

MISREPHOTH-MAIM. A town or region near Sidon, Josh. 11 : 8; Ezr. 2 : 2.

MITHCAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 : 28.

MITHNITE. Name of an unknown tribe, occurs only in 1 Chron. 11 : 43.

MITYLENE. The capital of the island of Lesbos, through which Paul passed on his way to Corinth, Acts, 20 : 14, note C. B.

MIZAR. A mountain on eastern ridge of Lebanon, Psl. 42 : 6;

1, MIZPAH or MIZPEH. A city of the tribe of Judah, 18 miles west from Jerusalem, Josh. 15 : 38; given to the Benjamites, 18 : 26; here Samuel dwelt, 1 Sam. 7 : 5; here he anointed Saul, 10 : 17.

2, A city in the tribe of Gad and on the mountains of Gilead, near Mount Hermon, where Jacob and Laban made a covenant. Gen. 31 : 49; here Jephtha resided. Judges 11 : 11, note C. B.; : 29–34, note C. B.; 2 Kings, 25 : 23, note C. B.

3, A town in Moab, 1 Sam. 22 : 3

4, A valley in Lebanon, Josh. 11 : 3–8, note C. B.

MIZRAIM. A son of Ham, Gen. 10 : 6–13; the Hebrew name for Egypt, which see.

MNASON. An aged disciple of Christ, and native of Cyprus, Acts, 21 : 16, note C. B.

1, MOAB. A son of Lot, and father of Moabites, Gen. 19 : 37, note C. B.

2. Plains of, Numb. 22 : 1, note C. B.

MOABITES. A people and country on east side of Jordan, Gen. 19 : 37, note C. B.; map of journeys of Israelites, vol. 1; not to be received into the congregation of Israel, Deut. 23 : 3, note C. B.; conquered by David, 2 Sam. 8 : 2; rebel after the death of Ahab, 2 Kings, 1 : 1; defeated, 3 : 24; their desolation foretold, Isa. 15 : 1 : 16 : 1; Jere. 48; 2; Eze. 25 : 4, note C. B.; : 9, note C. B.; Amos, 2 : 1; Zeph. 2 : 8; to be restored, Jere. 48 : 47, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

MOLADAH. A town in Simeon, Josh. 15 : 26.

MOLECH, MOLOCH or MILCOM. The principal idol of the Ammorites, formed with the face of an ox—his hands stretched out and hollow within, where fire was placed to heat the image, that it might consume the offerings—children not to be sacrificed to him, Lev. 18 : 21, note C. B.; 20 : 2; see exposition, p. 160, and note C. B; 1 Kings, 11 : 5, note C. B.; some children were, 2 Kings, 16 : 3; 21 : 3–6; Jere. 32 : 35, note C. B.; 49 : 1, note C. B.; Ezek, 20 : 31; Acts. 7 : 43, note C. B.; see Hinnom.

MOPH. See Memphis.

MORDECAI, The son of Jais, of the family of Saul, and one of the chiefs of the tribe of Benjamin—was carried to Babylon with Jeconiah, king of Judah. He was the uncle and guardian of Esther, Est. 2 : 5; discovers the treason against the king, : 21; rewarded for it, 6; 6–8, note C. B.; : 11, note C. B.; his mourning on account of a decree against the Jews, 4 : 1, note C. B.; advanced to high honor, 8 : 1–15; 10 : 3; returns to Jerusalem, Ezra, 2 : 2.

1, MOREH. An oak grove near Shechem, Gen. 12 : 6, note C. B

2, A hill near Jezreel, Judges, 7 : 1.

MORESHETH-GATH. A town in Judah, Michah, 1 : 14.

MORIAH. One of the hills within the walls of Jerusalem—here Abraham intentionally offered Isaac, Gen. 22 : 2; here David interceded for his people, 2 Sam. 24 : 16–25; here the temple was built by Solomon. 2 Chron. 3 : 1, note C. B.

MOSEROTH, MOSERA. An Israelitish station, Numbers, 33 : 30, note C. B.

MOSES. The Jewish Lawgiver, Ex. 2 : 2, note C. B.; son of Amram, 1 Chron. 6 : 3; saved by Pharaoh's daughter, Ex. 2 : 5. note C. B.; his personal beauty, Heb. 11; 22, note C. B.; kills an Egyptian, Ex. 2 : 12, note C. B.; goes to Median, : 15; marries Zipporah, : 21, note C. B.; his sons, : 22; God appears to him, 3 : 2; in Median, 4 : 19, note C. B.; returns to Egypt, : 20; circumcises his son, 5 : 25, note C. B.; meets Aaron, : 27; his age, 7 : 7; his rod becomes a serpent, : 10, note C. B.; his song after passing the Red Sea, 15 : 1; goes to Sinai, 24 : 1; forty days and nights in the mount, : 18; desires to see the glory of God, 33 : 18; shown it, 34 : 5; forty days without food, : 28; his face shines, : 20, note C. B.; complains of his charge, Numbers, 11 : 10; smites the rock, 20 : 9, note C. B.; his address to Israel before his death, Deut. 1 : 1; his warnings concerning their future disobedience, 31 : 29; his song, 32 : 1; blesses the tribes, 33 : 1; not allowed to go over Jordan, Deut. 3; 26; views the land from Nebo, 34 : 1, note C. B.; death and burial, : 5, 6, note C. B.; his age and character, : 7–10; his prayer, Psl. 90 : 1; his laws to be remembered, Malachi, 4 : 4; the Israelites said to be baptized to him, 1 Cor. 10 : 1, note C. B.; : 2, note C. B.; his faith celebrated, Hebrews, 11 : 23–28.

MOZAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 26.

MYRA. A city of Lycia, on the Mediterranean, where Paul embarked for Rome, Acts, 27 : 5, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

MYSIA. The northwest province of Asia Minor—here Paul preached, Acts, 16 : 7, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

N.

1, NAAMAH. Daughter of Lamech, and sister of Tubal Cain, Gen. 4 : 22, note C. B.

2, An Ammoritess, the wife of Solomon, and mother of Rohoboam, 1 Kings, 14 : 21, note C. B.

3, A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 41.

NAAMAN. A general in the army of the king of Syria, 2 Kings, 5 : 1, note C. B.; directed by little Jewish maid to apply to Elisha to cure his leprosy, : 2–5; goes to the prophet, and slights his directions, : 6–12; prompted by his servant, he follows his directions, and is cured, : 13, 14; his grateful acknowledgments and determination to serve God, : 15–18, note C. B.

NAARAN. A town in Ephraim, the same as Naarath, Josh. 16 : 7; 1 Chron. 7 : 28, note C. B.

NABAL. A rich man of the tribe of Judah—his ungrateful behavior towards David, 1 Sam. 25 : 2; his death, : 38.

NABOTH. An Israelite of the city of Jezreel, who had a vineyard near the palace of Ahab, 1 Kings, 21; 1 : refuses to sell it, : 3, note C. B.; murdered by the contrivance of Jezebel, : 13, note C. B.

1, NADAB. Son of Aaron, slain for offering strange fire, Lev. 16 : 1. note C. B.

2, King of Israel; succeeds his father Jeroboam, 1 Kings, 14 : 20; dies, 15 : 27.

NAHALIEL. An Israelitish station, Numb. 21 : 19.

NAHALLAL or NAHALOL. A Levitical city in Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 15.

NAHASH. A king of the Ammonites; threatens the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead, 1 Sam. 11 : 1, note C. B.; defeated by Saul, : 11.

1, NAHOR. Son of Terah, and brother of Abraham, Gen. 11 : 26; marries Milcah, : 29; his descendants. 22 : 20.

2, A city of Mesopotamia, Gen. 24 : 10.

NAHUM. One of the minor prophets, who lived 713 B. C., Neh. 1 : 1.

NAIN. A town in Palestine, three miles south of Mount Tabor, remarkable as the place where Christ raised to life the widow's son, Luke, 7 : 8–11, note C. B.

NAIOTH. A place near Ramah, where Samuel and David dwelt, 1 Sam. 19 : 18–22.

NAOMI. The wife of Elimelech, and mother-in-law of Ruth, Ruth, 1 : 2–5; returns to Bethlehem, : 6–22; sends Ruth to glean, 2 : 2, note C. B.; instructs her how to act towards Boaz, 3 : 1–5; her compliance, : 7, note C. B.; the result, : 9, note C. B.

NAPHISH. An Ishmaelitish tribe, Gen. 25 : 15.

1, NAPHTALI. Sixth son of Jacob, Gen. 30 : 8, note C. B.; 35 : 25; his sons, 46 : 24; prophetic blessings on him and his posterity, illustration, page 126; 49 : 21; Deut. 33 : 23, note C. B.; his descendants, 1 Chron. 7 : 13.

2, A tribal division of Canaan, Josh. 19 : 32.

3, A mountain in Galilee, Josh. 20 : 7.

NAPHTUHIM. An Egyptian, Gen. 10 : 13.

NARCISSUS. The Christians of his family saluted, Rom. 16 : 11.

NATHAN. A prophet who commended David for his intention to build a temple, 2 Sam. 7 : 3; reproves him for his adultery, 12 : 1, note C. B; prevents Adonijah from being king, 1 Kings, 1 : 11–27; sent by David to anoint Solomon, : 32–39; wrote the history of David, 1 Chron. 29 : 20.

NATHANAEL. A disciple of Christ, supposed to be the same with Bartholomew; attends Christ, John, 1 : 45–50; saw Jesus after his resurrection, 21 : 2.

NAZARETH. A small city of Zebulon in lower Galilee, 73 miles north of Jerusalem, and 6 miles west of Mount Tabor, noted for the wickedness of its inhabitants, Mat. 2 : 23, note C. B.; Mark, 1 : 9; Luke, 4 : 29, note C. B.; John 1 : 46, note C. B.; here Christ dwelt from his childhood to his public ministry, Luke 2 : 51; 4 : 16; here he preached, : 16–27; an attempt was made to put him to death, : 29, note C. B.; map of Canaan, 2.

NEAH. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 13.

NEAPOLIS. A maratime city in Macedonia, now called Napoli, which Paul visited, Acts, 16 : 11, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

NEBAIOTH. Eldest son of Ishmael, Gen. 25 : 13; 1 Chron. 1 : 29; his posterity formed one of the Arabian tribes, Isa. 60 : 7.

NEBAJOTH. Gen. 15 : 13, note C. B.

NEBALLAT. A town in Benjamin, Neh. 11 : 34.

NEBAT. Father of Jeroboam, the first king of the ten tribes who revolted from the house of David, 1 Kings, 11 : 21.

1, NEBO. A city of the tribe of Reuben, Numb. 32 : 38, 1 Chron. 5 : 8; Jer. 48 : 1, note C. B.

2, A city in the land of Judah, Ezr. 2 : 29; 10 : 43; Neh. 7 : 33, note C. B.

3, A mountain beyond Jordan, where Moses died, Deut. 32 : 49.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR. The great king of Babylon, 2 Kings, 24 : 1, note C. B.; carries Jehoiakim captive, 2 Chron. 36 : 6; also Jehoiachin, his son, : 10, foretold to conquer the neighboring nations, Jer. 27 : 1, note C. B.; : 8, note C. B.; uses divination, Ezk. 21 : 19; note C. B.; takes Jerusalem and burns the temple, 2 Chron. 36 : 19; his dream, Dan. 2 : 1, note C. B.; requires all men to worship his golden image, 3 : 1, note C. B.; his dream of the great tree, 4 : 10, note C. B.; interpretation of dreams, : 25, note C. B.; his praise of the true God, Dan. 2 : 47; 3 : 28; 4 : 37; his arrogance, insanity, and restoration, : 30 : 36, note C. B.

NEBUZAR-ADAN. General of the armies of Nebuchadnezzar, who besieged Jerusalem, 2 Kings, 25 : 8; destroys that city, and takes the people captive, : 9–20; Jer. 30 : 1–14; liberated the people, Jer. 40 : 1–6.

NECHO. King of Egypt in the days of Josiah, 2 Chron. 36 : 20.

NEHEMIAH. The inspired penman of the book which bears his name: he laments the state of Jerusalem, Neh. 1 : 1; his prayer, : 5; sent by Ahasuerus to Jerusalem, 2 : 1; arrives there, : 9; urges the Jews to rebuild, 17 : rebukes the usurers, 5 : 6 : finishes the wall, 6 : 15, note C. B.

NEHUSHTAN. Margin, statues—the brazen serpent, 2 Kings, 18 : 4, note C. B.

NEIEL. A town in Asher, Josh. 19 : 27.

NEKEB. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19 : 33.

NERGAL. An idol of the Cuthites, a tribe of the Chaldeans or Persians, 2 Kings, 17 : 30, note C. B.

NERO. One of the most wicked and infamous of the Roman emperors, who lived in the time of Paul, from whose household some were converted, Phil. 4 : 22, note C. B.

NETHINIMS. Servants who carried wood and water, &c., for the use of the tabernacle and temple, 1 Chron. 9 : 2, note C. B.; Ezr. 2 : 43–58 : 7 : 7, 24.

NEPHTOAH. A fountain in the tribe of Judah, near the valley of Jerusalem, called Ben-Hinnom, Josh. 15 : 8, 9, note C. B.

NETOPHAH. A city and district lying between Bethlehem and Anathoth, 1 Chron. 9 : 16; Ezr. 2 : 22; Neh. 7 : 26 : Jer. 40 : 8.

NEZIB. A town in Judah, John, 15 : 43.

NIBHAZ. The idol god of the Avites, who was worshipped in the likeness of a dog, 2 Kings 17 : 31, note C. B.

NIBSHAN. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 43.

NICANOR. One of the seven deacons of the Church of Jerusalem, Acts, 6 : 3–6.

NICODEMUS. A Pharisee and ruler among the Jews, a member of the Sanhedrim : his conversation with Jesus, John, 3 : 1–20; pleads in favor of Jesus, 7 : 50 : comes to embalm him, 19 : 39.

NICOLAITANS. A set of heretics, who taught the community of wives; imputed their wickedness to God as the cause, Rev. 2 : 6, note C. B.; : 15.

NICOLAS. One of the seven deacons at Jerusalem, Acts, 6 : 5, note C. B.

NICOPOLIS. A city in Epirus, now called Nicopi, where Paul determined to winter, Titus, 3 : 12, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

NILE. The chief river in Egypt, called in scripture, the river of Egypt, Gen. 15 : 18, note C. B.; also, "the river." Gen. 41 : 1; it flows from south to north about 1500 miles, and falls by several streams or mouths, into the Mediterranean sea; it is called Sihor, Josh. 13 : 3, note C. B.; map, journeys of Israelites, vol. 1.

NIMRAH, NIMRIM. A town in Gad, Numb. 32 : 3.

NIMROD (Rebellion). The son of Cush, and founder of the Babylonian Empire, Gen. 10 : 9, note C. B.; 1 Chron. 1 : 10.

NINEVEH (Dwelling place of Ninus). The capital of the Assyrian Empire on the Tigris, founded by Ashur, the son of Shem, Gen. 10 : 11, note C. B.; said to be 60 miles in circumference, and in the time of Jonah its population 600,000, Jonah, 3 : 3, note C. B.; 4 : 11, note C. B.; Jonah preaches there, 3 : 4, note C. B.; spared on repentance, : 10; threatened with destruction, Nah. 1 : 23; peculiar manner of its taking predicted, 2 : 6, note C. B.; her iniquities, 3 : 1. note C. B.; taken and destroyed, 3 : 10, note C. B; soon after the time of Christ, no trace of it to be found—its ruins lately recovered; map, Eastern countries, vol. 1.

NISROCH, (great eagle). An idol of the Assyrians, 2 Kings, 19 : 37; Isa. 37 : 38.

NO. No-Ammon, a once Populous city, thought to be Thebes or Diospolis—its situation now is scarcely known, Jer. 46 : 25; Ex. 30 : 14–16; Neh. 3 : 8, note C. B.

NOAH, (comfort). Born, Gen. 5 : 29, note C. B.; his character, 6 : 9; forewarned to build the ark, : 15, note C. B.; saved from the deluge, 8 : 1; offers sacrifices to God, : 20; note C. B.; his intoxication, 9 : 4. note C. B.; his age and death, : 28; his descendants, 10 : 1; mentioned with Job and Samuel, Ezk. 14 : 14; his faith celebrated, Heb. 11 : 7; called a preacher of righteousness, 2 Peter, 2 : 5.

NOB. A Levitical city in Benjamin, to which David fled from Saul, 1 Sam. 21 : 1, note C. B.; here Doeg by Saul's order, murdered 85 priests, with their families, 22 : 18, note C. B.; here the Benjamites resided after the captivity, Neh. 11 : 32.

NOBAH A town in Manasseh, Judges, 8 : 11, note C. B.

NOD, (flight). The country to which Cain fled, Gen. 4 : 16

NODAB. An Ishmaelitish tribe, 1 Chron. 5 : 19.

NOPH. See Memphis, Jer. 36 : 19, note C. B.

NOPHAH. A place on the east of Jordan, Numb. 21 : 30.

NYMPHAS, (bridegroom) A christian in Laodicea, noted for the piety of his household, Col. 4 : 15.

O.

1, OBADIAH, (servant of the Lord). The fourth of the minor prophets, who prophesied about 599 years B. C.: see introduction to, page 957, and notes.

2, The governor of king Ahab's household, 1 Kings, 18 : 3; saves the Lord's prophets and feeds them, : 4, note C. B.; meets Elijah, : 7.

3, One of the heroes of the tribe of Gad who joined David, 1 Chron. 12 : 9

4, One of the nobles sent by Jehosaphat to teach the cities of Judah, 2 Chron. 17 : 7, note C. B.

5, One of the Levites who superintended the rebuilding of the temple under Josiah, 2 Chron. 34 : 12.

6, The head and leader of 218 males and females, who returned with Ezra from Babylon, Ezr. 8 : 9.

7, One of the priests who sealed the written covenant which Nehemiah caused the people to enter into, Neh. 10 : 5.

Others of his name are mentioned in 1 Chron. 3 : 21; 7 : 3; 8 : 38; 9 : 16, 44; 27 : 19.

OBAL. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 10 : 28.

1, OBED, (serving). The son of Boaz and Ruth, was the father of Jesse, and grandfather of David, Ruth, 4 : 17, note C. B.; 1 Chr. 2 : 12.

2, One of David's valiant men, 1 Chron. 11 : 47.

OBED-EDOM, (serving Edom). A Levite who received the ark, 2 Sam. 6 : 10; his prosperity, 1 Chron. 13 : 11–14.

OBIL. An Ishmaelite or Arab, who had charge of David's camels, 1 Chron. 27 : 30.

OBOTH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 21 : 10, 11, note C. B.

ODED, (erecting). The prophet who in Samaria remonstrated against the detention of 200,000 captives whom Pekah had brought from Judah, and returned with them, 2 Chron. 28 : 9, note C. B.

2, Father of Azaria, 2 Chron. 15 : 1–8.

OG. A giant, and Amoritish king of Bashan, Numb. 21 : 33; 32 : 33 : Deut. 3 : 1, note C. B.; great size, : 11, note C. B.

OLIVES or OLIVET. A mountain on the east of Jerusalem, from which it was separated by the valley of Jehosaphat, through which ran the brook Kidron. David went up it when he fled from Absalom, 2 Sam. 15 : 30, note C. B.; Jesus from thence tells of the destruction of Jerusalem, Mat. 24 : 1; ascends to heaven from it, Acts, 1 : 12; see picture, page 1152.

OMRI. King of Israel, succeeds Zimri, 1 Kings 16 : 21, note C. B.; builds Samaria, : 24, note C. B.; dies, : 28.

1, ON. See Heliopolis

2, A chief of the tribe of Reuben, Numb. 16 : 17.

ONAN. Son of Judah, Gen. 38 : 4; his sin and punishment, : 9–10, note C. B.

ONESIMUS. A servant of Philemon, converted at Rome, Philemon, : 1–10, note C. B.; sent back, : 11 15, note C. B.; sent to Colosse, Col. 4 : 9.

ONESIPHORUS. One of the early christians, who was not ashamed of Paul's chain, 2 Tim. 1 : 16; his household saluted, 4 : 19, note C. B.

ONO. A town in Benjamin, 1 Chron. 8 : 12.

OPHEL. A part of Mt Zion, rising higher than the rest, and near the south of the temple. 2 Chron. 27 : 3; 33 : 14; Neh. 3 : 26; 11 : 21

1, OPHIR. One of the 13 sons of Joktan, and descendant of Shem, Gen. 10 : 26–29, who settled in southern Arabia.

2, The country celebrated for the purity and abundance of its gold and precious stones—Solomon sent his ships there, 1 Kings, 9 . 28, note C. B.; 10 : 1, note C. B.; 22; 48 : 1 Chron. 29 : 14; 2 Chron, 8 : 18, note C. B.; Job. 22 : 24; Isa. 13 : 12.

OPHIR. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 24.

1, OPHRAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 23; 1 Sam. 13 : 17.

2. A town in Manasseh, to which Gideon belonged, Judges, 16 : 11-24 : 8 : 27.

OREB. A rock near the Jordan, Judges, 7 : 25.

OREB and ZEEB (Raven and Wolf) Two Midianitish chiefs, who were made prisoners by the Ephraimites in attempting to re-cross the Jordan after the victory of Gideon, and were slain, Judges, 7 : 25 ; 8 : 3.

ORION. A group of stars, Job. 9 : 9 ; 38 : 31 ; Amos, 5 : 8, note C. B

ORPAH. The daughter-in-law of Naomi, Ruth, 4 : 14.

OSHEA. See Hosea and Numb. 13 : 16, note C. B.

OTHNIEL (Lion of God). Son of Kenaz, first Judge of Israel, brother of Caleb, Josh. 15 : 17 ; his valor obtained for wife Achsah, the daughter of Caleb, Judges, 1 : 11–13 ; he delivered Israel, 3 : 9.

OZIAS. The son of Joram, and father of Jotham, Mat 1 : 8, 9, note C. D.

P.

PAARAI. The Arbite, one of David's mighty men, 2 Sam. 23 : 35.

PADAN-ARAM (The Plains of Aram). The country in Mesopotamia from which Rebecca, the wife of Isaac, was brought, Gen. 24 : 10 : 25 : 20 ; to it Jacob fled from Esau, 28 : 6 ; 31 : 18 ; 35 : 9–26 ; 48 : 7 ; map of eastern countries, vol. 1.

PALESTINE. A name given to the Holy Land, from the Palestines, or Philistines, who possessed a great part of it, Ex. 15 : 14 ; Isa. 14 : 29–31 ; see Philistines ; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

PAMPHYLIA. A province of Asia Minor, nearly opposite the island of Cyprus—map, travels of Paul, vol 2 ; it gives name to that part of the Mediterranean sea which washes its coast, Acts, 27 : 5 ; in Perga, one of its chief cities, Paul and Barnabas preached, Acts, 13 : 13 ; 14 : 24 ; here John separates from Paul, 15 : 36–38, note C. B. ; devout persons from here at Pentecost, Acts, 2 : 10.

PAPHOS. A city on the western coast of the island of Cyprus, where Paul preached and converted Sergius Paulus, the Roman Proconsul, Acts, 13 : 6, note C. B. ; here Elymas, the sorcerer, was struck blind : 8–11 , now called Bafo or Baff ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PARAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 23.

PARAN, or EL PARAN. A desert of Arabia Petrea, lying to the south of Palestine, and north of Red Sea, Gen. 14 : 6 ; here Hagar and Ishmael dwelt, 21 : 21 ; here the cloud rested on the march of the Israelites, Numb. 10 : 12, note C. B. ; here they pitched their camp, 12 : 16, note C. B. ; hence the spies sent out, 13 : 3, note C. B. ; to it David went after the death of Samuel, 1 Sam. 25 : 1 ; 1 Kings, 11 : 18 ; map, journeys of Israelites, vol. 1.

PARAS. See Persia.

PARMENAS. One of the seven Deacons at Jerusalem, Acts, 6 : 5, 6.

PAROSH and PHARAOH. The same in the original. Ezr. 8 : 3.

PARTHIANS. The inhabitants of Parthia, in the N. W. of Persia, in the province of Media, Acts, 2 : 9.

PARVAIM. A gold region, supposed to be the same as Ophir, 2 Chron. 3 : 6, note C. B.

PAS-DAMMIN. A town in Judah, 1 Chron. 11 : 13

1, PASHUR. Son of Immer, and chief governor in the house of the Lord—smites Jeremiah, and puts him in the stocks, Jer. 20 : 1, note C. B. ; : 2, note C. B. ; condemned to a fearful doom, : 4–6.

2, Son of Malchiah, an enemy of Jeremiah, Jer. 21 : 1, note C. B. ; his descendants return from the captivity, Ezr. 2 : 38.

PATARA. A seaport town of Lycia, which Paul visited, Acts, 21 : 1, note C. B. ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PATHROS. A city and region of Upper Egypt, mentioned Isa. 11 : 11, note C. B. ; Jere. 44 : 1–15 ; Eze. 29 : 14, note C. B. ; 30 : 14.

PATMOS, now called PATINOA. An island in that part of the Mediterranean sea called the Egean sea, 45 miles west of Miletus ; it is about 30 miles in circumference, and of barren soil—to it John was banished, and here he wrote the Apocalypse, Rev. 1 : 9, note C. B. ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PAU. A city in Edom, Gen. 36 : 39 ; also Pai, 1 Chron. 1 : 50.

PAUL, also called SAUL The great Apostle of the Gentiles—of the tribe of Benjamin, Rom. 11 : 1 ; born in Tarsus, and educated by Gamaliel, Acts, 22 : 3, note C. B ; a pharisee, 23 : 6 : a persecutor of Stephen, Acts, 8 : 1 ; of the church generally, 9 : 1 ; 22 : 4, note C. B. ; struck blind on his way to Damascus, 9 : 3 ; 22 : 6, note C. B. ; 26 : 13 ; baptized, Acts, 9 : 18 ; his life endangered, : 23–25, note C. B. ; 2 Cor. 11 : 32 ; goes to Jerusalem, Acts, 9 : 26 ; leaves Jerusalem with Barnabas, and goes to Antioch, 12 : 25 ; set apart to the Gentiles, 13 : 1 ; goes to Selucia and Cyprus, : 4, note C. B. ; converts Sergius Paulus, and strikes Elymas blind, : 6–12 ; comes to Antioch, Pisidia, : 14 ; is at Iconium, : 51, note C. B. ; at Lystra, and cures the lame man, 14 : 8 ; stoned there, : 19 ; at Derbe, : 20 ; returns to Antioch, : 26 ; sent to Jerusalem with Barnabas about the question of circumcision. 15 : 2 ; circumcises Timothy at Lystra, 16 : 1 3, note C B. ; sails for Troas, : 11 ; at Philippi converts Lydia, : 14 ; imprisoned, : 23, 24 ; earthquake, : 26 ; the jailor and household converted and baptized, : 27–34 ; released from prison, : 35–40 ; at Thesalonica, 17 : 1 ; at Berea, : 10, note C. B ; at Athens, : 15, note C. B. ; at Corinth, 18 : 1, note C. B ; at Cenchrea, : 18, note C. B. ; at Ephesus, : 19 ; returns to Antioch, : 22 : his third journey, : 23 ; at Ephesus, 19 : 1, note C B. ; miracles and success there : 11–20, note C. B. ; sends Timotheus and Erastus to Macedonia, : 21, 22 ; uproar at Ephesus, : 23–41, note C. B. ; goes to Macedonia, 20 : 1 ; in Greece, : 2, note C. B. ; at Troas, : 5, note C. B. ; preaches and raises Eutychus to life, : 7–12 ; at Miletus, and addresses the Elders of the church at Ephesus, : 18–35 ; departs, and is found at Cesarea, 21 : 8 ; at Jerusalem, : 17 ; apprehended, : 33 : put in the castle, : 34, note C. B. ; addresses the people, 22 : 1–23 ; returned to castle and bound, : 25, note C. B. ; pleads before the Sanhedrein, 23 : 1–11, notes C. B. ; covenant of 40 men to slay him : 12, note C. B. ; sent to Cesarea, : 23 ; pleads before Felix, 24 : 1–21 ; preaches before Drusilla, : 24, note C. B. ; pleads before Festus, 25 : 8 ; appeals to Cæsar, : 10, note C. B. ; : 11, note C. B. ; before Agrippa, 26 : 1 ; sails for Rome, 27 : 1, note C. B. ; shipwrecked at Melita, 28 : 1, note C B. ; cures the sick there, : 7 ; arrives at Rome, : 16, note C. B. ; addresses the Jews, : 17 ; continues there two years preaching the Gospel . he suffered martyrdom under Nero. : 30, note C B

PEKAH. The son of Remalia commanded the army of Pekahiah, King of Israel, and after conspiring to slay him, succeeded him, 2 Kings, 15 : 25 ; confederates with Rezin, King of Syria, against Judah, Isaiah, 7 : 1 : slain, 2 Kings, 15 : 30.

PEKAHIAH. Succeeds his father, Manahem, 2 Kings, 15 : 22 ; slain, : 25.

PEKOD. Probably a part of Babylonia, Jer. 50 : 20 ; Ezk. 23 : 23 ; note C. B.

1, PELATIAH. The son of Benaiah, a prince who lived in the time of Zedekiah, King of Judah, Eze. 11 : 1–13.

2, Son of Hanani, 1 Chron, 3 : 21.

PELEG (Division). Son of Ebor, in whose days men were divided by the confusion of languages. Gen. 10 : 21, note C. B. ; 11 : 16.

PELETHITES. Valiant soldiers, who were the guards of David, 2 Sam. 8 : 18, note C. B.

PELONITE. Mentioned, 1 Chron. 11 : 27–36.

PENIEL or PENUEL. A place on the east of Jordan, near the brook Jabbok, so named by Jacob, because he here saw the face of God, Gen. 32 : 24–30, note C. B. ; here the Gadites built a city, the tower of which Gideon cast down, Judges, 8 : 8–17 ; re-built by Jeroboam, 1 Kings, 12 : 15.

PEOR. A mountain on east of Jordan, near Nebo, and Pisgah, Balak brought Balaam to the top of it, Numb. 23 : 28 ; the idolatry of the Israelites in worshipping Baal-peor, 25 : 3, note C. B. ; : 18 ; 31 : 16 ; Josh. 22 : 17.

PERAZIM. A hill in Judah, Isa. 28 : 21.

PEREZ–UZZAH or BREACH ON UZZAH. 2 Sam. 6 : 8.

PERGA. A city of Pamphylia, on the river Caystrus, where Paul and Barnabas preached, Acts, 13 : 14 ; 14 : 25, note C. B ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PERGAMOS, now BERGAMO. A city of Mysia, in Asia Minor, on the river Caicus, about forty miles northwest from Thyatira—Christ's message to the church there, Rev. 2 : 12, note C. B. ; map, travels of Paul, vol 2

PERIZZITES. A tribe of the ancient Canaanites, Gen. 13 : 7, note C B. ; 15 : 20 ; delivered into the hands of Judah, Judges, 1 : 4 ; Solomon made them pay tribute, 2 Chron. 8 : 7.

PERSIA. A country in Asia, 2 Chron. 36 : 20 ; Esther, 1 : 3, 14, 18 ; 10 : 2, note C. B. ; Eze. 27 : 10 ; 38 : 5 ; prediction about its kings, Dan. 8 : 20 ; 10 : 13–20 ; 11 : 2, note C. B. ; exposition, p. 934 ; map of Eastern Countries, vol. 1.

PERSIANS. Inhabitants of Persia, foretold to conquer Babylon, Isa. 21 : 2 ; cities and provinces given to wives, Esther, 2 : 18, note C. B. ; who admitted to the presence of the King, 4 : 11, note C. B. ; who allowed at King's table, 5 : 12, note C. B.

PETER. Son of Jonas and brother of Andrew, John, 1 : 40 ; his name originally Simon, : 41 ; changed to Cephas, or Peter, : 42, note C. B. ; attends Jesus, Luke, 5 : 11 ; recognizes Christ as Messiah, Mat. 16 : 16 ; John, 6 : 69 ; rebukes him, Mat. 16 : 22, note C. B. ; Mark, 8 : 32 ; rebuked by Christ, Mat. 16 : 23, note C. B. ; Christ predicts that he should deny him thrice, Mat. 26 : 34, note C. B. ; protests that he will not deny him, Mat 26 : 35 ; in defense of Christ cuts off Malchus' ear, John, 18 : 10 ; denies him, Mat. 26 : 69 ; Mark, 14 : 60 ; Luke, 22 : 54 ; John, 18 : 15–25 ; sees him after resurrection, Luke, 24 : 34, note C. B ; 1 Cor. 15 : 5 ; three times avows his love to Christ, John, 21 : 15–17 ; address about successor of Judas, Acts, 1 : 15 ; sermon on the day of Pentecost, 2 : 14 ; cures lame man at gate of Temple, 3 : 2 ; imprisoned, 5 : 18 ; speaks boldly, : 29, note C. B. ; communicates Holy Spirit to the Samaritans, 8 : 17 ; confounds Simon Magus, : 20, note C. B. ; cures Æneas of palsy, 9 : 33 ; raises Dorcas, : 36, note C. B. ; Cornelius sends for him. 10 : 33, note C. B. ; defense for preaching to Gentiles, 11 : 2 ; imprisoned by Herod, and delivered by an angel, 12 : 3 ; opposed by Paul, Gal. 2 : 11, note C. B. ; expects to die soon, 2 Peter, 1 : 14 ; testimony to transfiguration of Christ, : 18 ; commends Paul's epistles, 3 : 15 ; he suffered martyrdom under Nero.

PETHOR. A city of Mesopotamia, the native place of Balaam, Numbers, 22 : 5, note C B. ; Deut. 23 : 4.

PHALTI. Son of Laish, marries Michal after Saul took her from David, 1 Sam. 25 : 44 ; from him David afterwards took her, 2 Sam. 3 : 15.

PHANUEL. The father of the prophetess Anna, Luke, 2 : 36.

PHARAOH. The name of a race of Egyptian kings, down to the Babylonish captivity, derived from Phre, the sun.

1, In the time of Abraham, 1920 B. C. Takes Sarah from Abraham, and restores her, Gen. 12 : 15, note C. B. ; : 20.

2, In the time of Joseph, 1728 B C. His prophetical dream, Gen. 41 : 2, note C. B. ; exalts Joseph, : 39 ; : 40, note C. B. : : 42, note C. B. ; : 43, note C B. ; kindly receives Jacob and family, 47 : 1–10.

3. In the time of Moses, 1571 B. C. Oppresses and persecutes the Jews, Ex. 1 : 8, note C. B. ; : 11 ; commands their male children to be slain, : 22, note C. B. ; his daughter saves Moses, and adopts him, 2 : 5, note C B. ; : 10.

4, Under whom Israel left Egypt, 1491 B. C. Moses sent to him, Ex. 3 : 10 ; his obduracy, : 19 ; God's message to him, 4 : 22 ; refuses to let Israel go, 5 : 1 ; hardens his heart, 7 : 14, note C. B. ; drowned in the Red Sea, 14 : 23.

5, In the time of David, 1030 B. C. Gave protection to Hadad, son of the King of Edom, who was cotemporary with David, 1 Kings, 11 : 15–22.

6, Father-in-law to Solomon. 1010 B. C. Gave his daughter in marriage to Solomon, 1 Kings. 3 : 1, note C. B. ; took Gezer, and gave it as a present to his daughter, 9 : 16, note C. B.

PHARAOH–SHISHAK. 975 B. C., near the end of Solomon's reign, 1 Kings, 11 : 40, note C. B.

PHARAOH–ZERAH. 930 B. C., in the time of Asa.

PHARAOH–SO or SEVECHUS. 730 B. C., cotemporary with Ahaz, 2 Kings, 17 : 4.

PHARAOH–TIRHAKA. 720 B. C., who makes a league with Hezekiah. 2 Kings, 19 : 9, note C. B.

PHARAOH–NECHO. 612 B. C., in the time of Josiah—carries Jehoahaz captive to Egypt, 2 Kings, 23 : 29, note C. B. ; : 33, note C. B. ; foretold not to return, Jer. 22 : 10, note C. B. ; his defeat foretold, Eze 17 : 17 : Josiah slain, 2 Chron. 35 : 20–24, note C. B.

PHARAOH–HOPHRA. Grandson of the former, entered into alliance with Zedekiah, King of Judah, against the King of Babylon, Jer. 46 : 2–16 : predictions against him, Isa. 19 : 1 ; 20 : 4 ; Ex. 29 ; 1 ; 30 : 20–26 : 31 ; 2 ; 32 : 2.

PHARPHAR. River of Damascus, 2 Kings, 5 : 12 ; see Abana.

PHEBE. A deaconess of the church at Cenchrea, near Corinth, Rom. 16 : 12.

1, PHENICE, PHENICIA. A province of Syria, on the Mediterranean coast, north of Galilee—hither the persecution which followed the death of Stephen, drove some Christians, Acts, 11: 19; Paul and Barnabas pass through, 15: 3, note C. B; Paul went in a ship bound for, 21: 2, note C. B.: Tyre and Sidon were its principal cities; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

2, A seaport on the western shore of the island of Crete, Acts, 27: 12, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PHICOL. A general in the army of Abimelech, king of Gerar, Gen 21: 22.

PHILADELPHIA. A city of the province of Lydia, in Asia Minor, 24 miles east of Sardis, the site of one of the seven churches. Christ's message to it, Rev 3: 7, note C. B; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PHILEMON. A rich and pious citizen of Colosse, to whom Paul addressed an epistle, Phile : 1; see introduction, page 1339.

1, PHILIP. The apostle; attends Jesus, John, 1: 43; brings Nathaniel to Christ, : 45; questioned about the loaves, 6: 1, note C. B.; desires to see the Father, 14: 8.

2, The deacon, Acts, 6: 5; preaches to the Samaritans, 8: 5, note C. B.; to the Eunuch, : 27, note C. B.; found at Azotus, : 40, note C. B.; goes to Cesarea, : 40; receives Paul and his companions, 21: 8.

3, The tetrarch; son of Herod the great by his wife Cleopatra, Luke, 3: 1.

4, Another son of Herod the great, by Marianne, the daughter of Simon the High Priest; his wife Herodias was taken from him by his brother; he is called Herod, Mat. 14. 3; Mark, 6: 17.

PHILIPPI. One of the chief cities of Proconsular Macedonia, within the limits of ancient Thrace, and called a colony because many of Anthony's followers were colonized there by Augustus, Acts, 20: 6, note C. B.; it is situated on the river Strymon; Paul and Silas preached here, Acts, 16: 12; note C. B.; here Lydia and the jailor were converted and baptised, : 14–34; here a church was formed to which Paul wrote one of his epistles, Phil 1: 1; see introductory remark, page 1309; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PHILISTIA. A part of the southwest of Palestine, so called, because possessed by the Philistines, Ps. 60: 8; 87: 4, note C. B., 108: 9.

PHILISTINES. The inhabitants of Philistia, conquered by Shagmar, Judg. 3: 31; oppress the Israelites, 13: 1; 16: 21, note C. B.; they take the ark, 1 Sam. 4; 1; put it in temple of Dagon, 5: 1, note C. B.; send it back, 6: 10; defeated after sacrifice by Samuel, 7: 9: defeated by Saul, 14: 20; also by David, 2 Sam. 5: 17; destruction foretold, Jer. 47: 1; Ezk 25: 10, note C. B.; Amos, 1: 6, note C. B.; Zeph. 2: 4, note C. B.; Zech. 9: 5, note C. B.

1, PHINEHAS. Son of Eleasar, and grandson of Aaron, the High Priest; kills Zimri and Cosbi, Numb 25: 6; led the army against Midianites, 31: 6; Ps. 106: 30; remonstrates with the tribes beyond Jordan, Josh. 22: 5–34; superintendent of Levites, 1 Chron. 9: 20.

2, Son of Eli; his guilt and death, 1 Sam. 1: 3; 2: 12–34; 3: 13; 4: 11.

PHRYGIA. An inland province of Asia Minor; devout persons came thence to the Pentecost, Acts, 2: 10; the Gospel was early preached here, and church formed here, Acts, 16: 6, note C. B., 18: 23; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PHUT or PUT. Son of Ham, Gen. 10: 6, note C. B.; his posterity, with Cush and Ludim, served in Egyptian armies, Jer. 46: 9; Ezk. 27: 10.

PHYGELLUS and HERMOGENES. Forsake Paul, 2 Tim. 1: 15, note C. B.

PIBESETH or PUBASTUM. The same as Bubastes, a city of Egypt, on the Pelusiac branch of the Nile, near the top of the Delta, Ezk. 30: 17, note C. B.

PIHAHIROTH. The path through which the Hebrews marched to west shore of the Red sea, Ex. 14: 2, note C. B.; : 9; map, journeys of the Israelites, vol. 1.

PILATE, PONTIUS. The Roman Governor of Judea, appointed A. D. 26. He made himself odious to Jews and Samaritans, Luke, 13; 1; he questioned Christ, Mat. 27: 11, note C. B.; Mark, 15: 2; Luke, 23: 13: John, 18: 33; is warned by his wife, Mat. 27: 19; attempts to release, and asserts Christ's innocence, : 24; delivers him to be crucified, : 26, note C. B.; removed and sent to Rome; is banished to Vienna, where he dies by his own hand.

PIRATHON. A town in Ephraim, Judges. 12: 15.

PISGAH. The highest top of that chain of mountains called Abarim, and so close to Nebo as to form part of it; hence Moses is said to view Canaan from Nebo and sometimes from Pisga, Deut. 3: 27; 32: 49; 34: 1; Balak brought Balaam to the top of it, Numb. 23: 14; map, journeys of Israelites, vol. 1.

PISIDIA. A province of Asia Minor; here Paul and Barnabas planted a Christian church, Acts, 13: 14; 14: 24, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

PISON. One of the four rivers which watered the Garden of Eden, Gen. 2: 11.

PITHON. A treasure city of Lower Egypt, on the Nile, built of brick made by the Hebrews, Ex. 1: 11, note C. B.

PLEIADES. That cluster called the Seven Stars, Job. 9: 9; note C. B.: 38: 31.

PONTUS. The northeastern province of Asia Minor, which took its name from Pontus Euxinus, (Euxine sea,) Acts, 2: 9; the birthplace of Aquila, 18: 2; the gospel early planted there, 1 Peter, 1: 1; map, travels of Paul, vol. 1.

POTIPHAR. A principal officer of Pharaoh, to whom Joseph was sold, Gen. 37: 36, note C. B.; 39: 1; advances Joseph, : 4, note C. B.; is deceived by his wife and casts Joseph into prison, : 20, note C. B.

POTIPHERA. The priest of On, the city of the sun; his daughter Asenath was the wife of Joseph, Gen. 41: 45.

PRETORIUM. Name of the house of the Prætor, or Roman governor, in which he dwelt in Jerusalem. This palace was built by Herod, near the tower of Antonia, Mat. 27: 27; Mark. 15: 16, note C. B.; John, 18: 28, 33.

PTOLEMAIS. A seaport town of Canaan, on the Mediterranean, 32 miles south of Tyre, Acts 21: 7, note C. B.; ancient name is Acho, Judges, 1: 31, note C. B.; present name is Acra; map, travels of Paul, vol. 1.

PTOLEMY EPIPHANES. Prediction respecting, Dan. 11: 15, note C. B.; : 17, note C. B.

PTOLEMY EUERGENTES. Prediction respecting, Dan. 11: 7, note C. B.

" LAGUS. Prediction respecting, Dan. 11: 5, note C.B.

" PHILADELPHUS. Predictions respecting, Dan. 11: 6.

" PHILOMETER. Prediction respecting, Dan. 11: 25, note C. B.

" PHILOPATER. Prediction respecting, Dan. 11: 11; note C. B.

PUBLIUS. The governor of Melita, Paul cures his father, Acts, 28: 8.

1, PUL. King of Assyria, invades Israel, 2 Kings, 15: 19, note C. B., conquers half tribe of Manasseh, 1 Chron. 5: 26, note C. B.

2, An Arabian tribe, Isa 66: 19, note C. B.

PUNON. An Israelitish Station, Numb. 33: 42, note C. B.

PUTEOLI. A maritime town of Campania in Italy, eight miles from Naples; here Paul abode seven days, Acts, 28: 13, note C. B.; modern name, Puzzuoli.

Q.

QUARTUS. A disciple mentioned by Paul, Rom. 16: 23.

R.

RAAMAH. Fourth son of Cush, Gen. 10: 7; supposed to have founded a city in Arabia famous for its commerce; his descendants brought to Tyre precious stones, gold and spices, Ezk. 27: 22.

1, RABBAH or RABBATH. The capital city of the Ammonites. It stood near the source of the river Amon, Deut. 3, 11; Joab besieged and took it, 2 Sam. 11: 1; 12: 26, note C. B.; prediction against it, Jer. 49: 2, note C. B; Ezk 28: 5; Amos, 1: 14.

2, A town in Judah. Josh 15; 60.

RABBATH MOAB. The capital of the Moabites, sometimes called Ar, Numb 21: 28: Isa. 15: 1.

RABBITH. A town in Issachar, Josh. 19: 20.

RAB-MAG. An officer in Nebuchadnezzar's army, Jer. 39: 3, note C. B.

RABSARIS. One of the generals sent by the king of Assyria from Laish, against Jerusalem, 2 Kings, 18: 17, note C. B.

RABSHAKEH. One of the three sent by the king of Assyria against Jerusalem; his blasphemous message, 2 Kings, 18: 19, note C.B.

RACHAL. A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 30: 29.

RACHEL. Daughter of Laban; a shepherdess who is met by Jacob, Gen. 29: 9, note C. B; : 12; married to him, : 28, note C. B.; her barrenness, 30: 1; bears Joseph, : 23; bears Benjamin and dies, 35: 18, note C. B.; represented as mourning for her children, Jer. 31: 15; see picture, page 64.

RAGUEL and REUEL. The same in the original, Ex. 2: 18, note C. B.; Numb. 10: 29, note C. B.

1, RAHAB. A Canaanitish woman, the inn keeper of Jericho, who received the spies sent, Josh. 2: 1, note C. B.; in return was saved at the destruction of the place, 6: 25; her faith, Heb. 11: 31, note C. B.; her works, James 2: 25.

2, A poetical name for Egypt, Ps 87: 4; 89: 10; Isa. 51: 9.

RAK-KATH. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 35.

RAK-KON. A town in Dan, Josh 19: 46.

1, RAMAH. A city of Benjamin, six miles north from Jerusalem, Josh. 18: 25; Judges, 19: 13; in it dwelt Elkanah and Samuel, 1 Sam. 1: 1–19; 7: 17; 8: 4; 34: 20: 1; Rachel mourns here, Jer. 31: 15, note C. B.; captive Jews here, 40: 1, rebuilt by those who returned from Babylon, Neh. 7: 30; referred to in Mat. 2: 18, note C. B.; map, Canaan, vol. 2.

2, A town in Napthali, Josh. 19: 29, 36.

3, A town in Gilead; see Ramoth Gilead.

RAMATHAIM. Zophim, now Ramla, a place in Mt. Ephraim, 1 Sam. 1: 1, note C. B.

RAMESES or RAAMSES. A city and province in the land of Goshen, Egypt, Gen. 47: 11, note C. B; the children of Israel, 600,000 strong, depart from it, Ex. 12: 37, note C. B.

1, RAMOTH. A famous city in the mountains of Gilead, often called Ramoth-Mizpeh, Josh. 13: 26; it belonged to Gad, and became a Levitical city, Deut. 4: 43, note C. B.; Josh. 20: 8; 21: 38.

2, ——GILEAD. The same as Mizpeh; a city of refuge in Gad, Deut. 4: 43, note C. B.

3, —— NEZER. Josh. 19: 3.

REBEKAH. Daughter of Bethuel; meets servants of Abraham, Gen. 24: 15–45; marries Isaac, : 67, note C. B.; bears Jacob and Esau, 25: 24; deceives her husband, 27: 15, note C. B; : 16, note C. B.; see picture, page 48.

RECHABITES. A tribe or family of the Kenites, 1 Chron. 2; 55; of peculiar temperate habits, drinking no wine; their example recommended, Jer. 35: 2, note C. B.; : 6, note C. B.; : 19, note C. B.

RECHAB. 1 Chron. 4. 12.

RED SEA. An arm of the Indian ocean, which stretches along the west side of Arabia and the east of Ethiopia, and which from the straits of Babelmandel on the south, and the isthmus of Suez on the north, is about 1200 miles long, originally called the Sea of Edom, Ex. 10: 19; Israelites led to it, 13: 18, note C. B.; sea divided, 14: 16, note C. B.; ; 21, note C. B.; : 22, note C. B.; closes on the Egyptians, : 26, 28; a boundary, 23: 31; map, journeys of Israelites, vol. 1.

REHOB. A Levitical city in Ashur, Numb. 13: 21; Josh. 19: 28; 21: 31.

REHOBOAM. Son and successor of Solomon, 1 Kings, 12: 1, 2; Chron. 10: 1; the ten tribes revolt from him, 1 Kings, 12: 16; 2 Chron. 10: 16; forbidden to invade Israel, 2 Chron. 11: 1; his death, 1 Kings, 14: 31; 2 Chron. 11: 16.

1, REHOBOTH. A well dug by Isaac, Gen. 26: 22.

2, By the river Euphrates, Gen. 36: 37.

3, A town of ancient Assyria, Gen. 10: 11.

REKEM. A town in Benjamin, Josh, 18: 27.

REMETH. A Levitical city in Issachar, Josh. 19: 21.

REMPHAN. An Egyptian idol, probably Saturn, or Chiun, Am. 5: 26, note C. B; Acts, 7: 43.

1, REPHAIM. An ancient people of unusual stature, beyond Jordan, Gen. 14: 5, note C. B.; Deut. 3: 11.

2, A valley adjacent to the valley of Hinnom, called the valley of giants, Josh. 15 : 8.

REPHIDIM. An Israelitish station, Ex. 17 : 1 ; here Amalek fought, : 8.

RESEN. An Assyrian city, between Nineveh and Calah, Gen. 10 : 12.

1, REUBEN. The eldest son of Jacob by Leah, Gen. 29 : 32 : brought mandrakes to his mother, 30 : 14, note C. B.; lay with his father's concubine, 35 : 22 ; kept his brethren from killing Joseph, 37 : 21 ; reminds them of their cruelty to him, 42 : 22 ; offers his sons as hostages, : 37 ; his father's last words to him, 49 : 3, 4, illustration, page 126 ; his sons and descendants, Numb. 26 : 5–11; 1 Chron. 5 : 1–3.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

2, A tribal division of Canaan, Numb 32 : 29.

REUBENITES. Desire to settle beyond Jordan, Numb. 32 : 1; granted, : 33 ; Deut. 3 : 12 ; Josh. 1 : 12 ; 13 : 15 ; sent thither after the conquest, 22 : 1 ; their numbers and conquests, 1 Chron. 5 : 18.

REUEL. The father of the shepherdesses, whom Moses helped to water their flocks, Ex. 2 : 18, note C. B.

REZEPH. A city subdued by the Assyrians, 2 Kings, 19 : 12, note C. B.

REZIN. King of Assyria, who confederated with Pekah, king of Israel, against Judah, 2 Kings, 15 : 37 ; 16 : 5 ; Isa. 7 : 1.

REZON. The son of Eliadah ; revolts from Hadadezer, and opposes Solomon, 1 Kings, 11 : 23.

RHEGIUM. A city in the southwest of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, and now called Reggio ; here Paul landed on his way to Rome, Acts, 28 : 13, note C. B ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

RHODANIM. See Dodanim.

RHODES. An island of the Mediterranean, 75 miles east of Crete, Acts, 21 ; 1, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

RIBLAH. A city of Syria, in the country of Hamath, where Pharaoh-Necho deprived Jehoahaz of his crown, and gave it to Jehoiakim, 2 Kings, 23 : 33, note C. B.; here Nebuchadnezzar abode while his army besieged Jerusalem, 25 : 6 ; here the sons of king Zedekiah were slain, and his eyes put out, Jer. 39 : 5 ; 52 : 9.

1, RIMMON. Meaning of the name, 1 Sam. 14 : 2, note C. B.; a town in Simeon, Josh. 15 : 32 ; 19 : 7 ; Neh. 11 : 29.

2, A town on a high conical rock, northeast of Gibeah, near the desert, Judges, 20 : 45, 47, note C B.

3, An idol of Damascus, 2 Kings, 5 : 18, note C. B.

4, —— METHOAR. A Levitical city in Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 13.

5, —— PAREZ. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 ; 19, note C B.

RIPHATH. A northern people, descended from Gomer, Gen. 10 : 3.

RISSAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33 : 21, note C. B.; : 10.

RITHMA. A station in the wilderness of Paran, near Kadesh-Barnea, Numb. 33 : 18, note C. B.

1, RIVER. Name given sometimes by the Hebrews to seas, as the Red sea, and Mediterranean, Ps 74 : 15 ; Hab. 3 : 8 ; Isa. 23 : 3 ; river of God, showers, Ps. 65 : 9 ; river of life in Paradise, Rev. 22 : 1 ; one to rise from Jerusalem, Eze. 47 : 2 ; Zech. 14 : 8.

2, —— of Egypt. A stream anciently called Phinocura, and now Wady-el-Arish ; it formed the southwest boundary of Canaan ; it is now dried up, Numb. 34 : 5 ; Josh. 15 : 4, note C. B.

3, —— Stream of Egypt, Isa. 27 : 12.

4, Flood of Egypt, Amos, 8 : 8 ; means the Nile.

RISPAH. The concubine of Saul whom Abner took, 2 Sam. 3 : 7, note C. B.; sons of, 21 : 8, note C. B.; 10

ROGEL or EUROGEL. A fountain in Judea, Josh. 15 : 7.

ROGELIME. A place in Gilead, 2 Sam. 17 : 27.

ROME The chief city of Italy, and long the mistress of the world, founded 708 B.C. It is on the Tiber, 16 miles from the sea ; it so increased as to cover seven hills, and was 20 miles in circumference, and once containing 2,000,000 of inhabitants. Strangers from it were at Jerusalem, Acts. 2 : 10, note C. B.; from it all Jews were commanded to depart, 18 : 2, note C. B.; Paul was carried there a prisoner, 28 : 16, note C. B.; remained there two years, : 30, note C B.; sent an epistle to the saints there, Rom. 1 . 1 ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

ROMAN. Citizen ; privileges of, Acts, 22 : 25, note C. B.; 25 : 11, note C. B.

—— Bishops and Church of ; predictions, Dan. 11 : 36, note C. B.; : 38, note C. B. ; 12 : 7, note C. B.; duration of its idolatry and tyranny, Rev. 11 : 2, note C. B.

—— Hierarchy ; represented by beast with two horns, Rev. 13 ; 1, note C. B.

—— Predictions concerning, Dan. 11 ; 36, note C. B.

—— Empire ; represented by legs of iron, and feet of iron and clay, Dan. 2 : 40, note C. B.

" represented by king of fierce countenance, Dan. 8 : 23, note C. B.

" represented by great and terrible beast, with ten horns, Dan. 7 : 7, note C. B.

" represented by beast with seven heads, Rev. 13 : 1, note C. B.

" represented to have seven forms of government, Dan. 7 : 7, note C. B.; Rev. 17 : 10, note C. B.

" its division into ten kingdoms, Dan. 2 : 41 ; 7 : 7, note C. B.; : 20.

" invasion of by the Huns predicted, Rev. 8 : 8, note C. B.

" invasion of by the Vandals and Moors predicted, Rev. 8 : 10, note C. B.

" its gradual extinction

RUFUS. The son of Simon the Cyrenian, who was constrained to carry the cross on which Christ was to be crucified, Mark, 15 : 21 ; saluted by Paul, Rom. 16 : 13.

RUMAH. Same, perhaps, as Arumah, Judges, 9 : 41 ; 2 Kings, 23 : 36.

RUTH. A Moabitess, who returned to Judea, Ruth, 1 : 4 ; clave unto Naomi, 14 : note C. B.; Boaz shews her kindness. 2 : 8. 14, note C. B.; 3 : 17, marries Boaz, 4 : 13 , from this marriage descended David and Christ, Mat 1 : 5 ; see picture, page 336.

S.

SABEANS. A people of Arabia ; carried away Job's cattle, Job. 1 : 15 ; note C. B.; large of stature, Isa. 45 : 14, note C. B.

SABTAH. An Arabian tribe, Gen. 10 : 7.

SABTECHAH. A district in Africa, Gen. 10 : 7.

SALAMIS. A city of the island of Cyprus, where Paul and Barnabas preached, Acts 13, 5, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SALATHIEL and SHEALTIAL. The same in original, Hag. 1 : 1 ; son of Jaconiah, 1 Chron. 3 : 17 : Mat. 1 : 12.

SALCHAH. A city of Bashan, Deut. 3 : 10.

1, SALEM. The ancient name of Jerusalem, Gen. 14 : 18 ; Heb. 7 : 1.

2, A place near which John baptised, John, 3 : 23.

1, SALMONE. A seaport in the island of Crete, Acts, 27 : 7 ; note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

2, The wife of Zebedee, and mother of James and John, Mark, 15 : 40 ; 16 : 1.

SALT SEA. See Dead Sea, Numb. 34 : 3, note C. B.

SALT CITY. A town near Dead sea ; Josh. 15 : 62, note C. B.

SALT VALLEY. Near Dead sea, 2 Sam. 8 : 13 ; 2 Kings, 14 : 7, note C. B.

1, SAMARIA. The capital city of the Ephraimites, 42 miles north from Jerusalem, built by Omri, 920 years B. C., and called after the name of the original owner of the hill on which it was built, 1 Kings, 16 : 24, note C. B ; a favorite residence of the kings of Israel, 1 Kings, 22 : 39 ; a grievous famine there, 2 Kings, 6 ; 25, note C. B.; relieved by the flight of the enemy, 7 : 6 ; taken by the Assyrians, 18 : 9 ; destroyed by Hyrcanus and rebuilt by Herod, Mic. 1 : 6, note C. B.

2, The country of the Ephraimites, 1 Kings, 13 ; 32. In the New Testament it always means the country between Judea and Galilee, west of Jordan, belonging to Ephraim and Manasseh, Luke, 17 : 11 ; Christ talks with woman of, John, 4 : 4, note C. B.; christians scattered there by persecution, Acts, 8 : 1 ; Philip preached there, : 5, note C. B.

SAMARITANS. Inhabitants of Samaria. After Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, carried away captive the ten tribes, he repeopled Samaria with a colony of Babylonians, Cuthians, and other idolaters, 2 Kings, 17 : 24. These left the worship of idols, embraced the Jewish religion, and built a temple on Mt. Gerizim ; their offspring, mixed with apostate Jews, are called Samaritans ; their enmity to the Jews, John, 4 : 9; name used as a reproach, 8 : 48 ; Christ not received by them, Luke, 9 : 53.

SAMGAR-NEBO. Priest of Nebo ; an idol, Jer. 39 : 2, note C. B.

SAMOS. An island in the Mediterranean sea, 9 miles from the coast of Asia Minor, devoted to the worship of Juno, Acts, 20 : 15 ; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SAMOTHRACIA. An island on the coast of Thracia, which Paul visited, Acts, 16 : 11, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SAMSON. Son of Manoah, Judges, 13 : 24 ; kills a lion, 14 : 5 ; note C. B.; his marriage and riddle, : 14 ; slays Philistines, 15 : 8, note C. B ; carries off the gates of Gaza, 16 : 3 ; by his death many slain, : 27, note C. B.; 29, : note C. B.

SAMUEL, (God hath heard.) The son of Elkanah by Hannah, 1 Sam. 1 : 20 ; devoted to God, : 24 ; called of God, 3 : 4 ; persuades the Israelites to abandon idolatry, 7 : 3 ; his sons misbehave, 8 : 3 ; when the people desired a king, he forewarned them of the custom of kings, : 10 ; receives Saul, 9 : 19 ; anoints him, 10 : 1, note C. B.; asserts his own integrity, 12 ; 1 ; reproves Saul, 13 : 13 ; anoints David, 16 ; 13 ; dies, 25 : 1 ; appears to Saul, 28 : 9, 19, note C. B.

SANBALLET. The Horonite, governor of Samaria—grieved that the city and temple of Jerusalem were to be rebuilt, Neh. 2 : 10 ; 6 : 1.

SANSANNAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 31.

SAPHIR. A town in Judea, Mich. 1 : 11.

SARAH. The wife of Abraham, Gen. 11 : 29 ; 12 : 5 ; her name changed, 17 : 15 ; bare Isaac, 21 : 2 ; died, 23 : 2–19.

SARDIS. A large city of Asia Minor, at the foot of Mount Tmolus, fifty miles east of Smyrna, Rev. 1 : 11 : Christ's message to the church there, 3 : 1, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SAREPTA, or ZAREPHATH. A Phœnician town near Tyre, Luke, 4 : 26, note C. B.

SARESCHIM. The chief eunuch, Jer. 39 : 3, note C. B

SARID. A town in Zebulon, Josh. 19 : 10.

SATAN. Adversary, enemy—the prince of fallen angels, Mat. 9 : 34 ; appears in the presence of God, Job, 1 : 6 ; 2 : 1 ; tempts David to number Israel, 1 Chron. 21 : 1, note C. B.; opposes Joshua, the high priest, Zech. 3 : 1, note C. B.; tempts Jesus, Mat. 4 : 3, note C. B.; Mk. 1 : 13 ; Luke, 4 : 2 ; hinders the saints, 1 Thess. 2 : 18, note C. B.; Judas called devil, John, 6 : 70, note C. B ; Peter called Satan, or opposer, Mat. 16 : 23 ; seen by Jesus as lightning falling from heaven, Luke, 10 : 18, note C. B.; to be bound 1000 years, Rev. 20 : 2 ; note C. B.

SAUL. Son of Kish, and first king of Israel, sent to find his father's asses, 1 Sam. 9 : 3, note C. B.; applies to Samuel, : 18 ; prophesies, 10 : 9, note C. B., chosen king, : 17 ; delivers the people of Jabesh-Gilead, 11 : 11 ; arms the people against Philistines, 13 : 3 ; sacrifices without Samuel, : 8 ; defeats them, 14 : 20 ; makes a rash vow, : 24 ; his victories, 14 : 47 ; deserted by Samuel, 15 : 35 ; sends for David, 16 : 19 ; attempts to kill him, 18 : 10, note C. B.; 19 : 10 ; prophesies : 23 ; pursues David. 22 : 6 ; orders the execution of the priests of Nob. 22 : 11 ; spared by David in the cave, 24 : 1 ; also at Hachilah, 26 : 5, note C. B.; consults the witch of Endor, 28 : 7, note C. B.; hit by archers, 31 : 3 ; falls on his sword, : 4, note C. B.; 1 Chron. 10 : 2, note C. B.; seven of his sons put to death by the Gibeonites, 2 Sam. 21 . 8, note C. B.; buried by David, : 12 ; descendants, 1 Chr. 8 : 33 ; 9 : 39.

—— Of Tarsus. See Paul.

SAVIOUR. One who delivers from danger—a term applied pre-eminently to our Lord, because he saves his people, Mat. 1 : 21, note C. B.; Luke, 2 : 11, note C. B.; John, 4 : 42, note C. B.; Acts. 5 : 31.

SCEVA. A Jew at Ephesus, whose seven sons were exorcists, Acts, 19 : 13, note C. B.; : 14–16.

SEA. The Hebrews thus name the fresh water lakes of Genesareth, Mat. 4 : 18 ; Jazer, Jer. 48 : 32 , Dead or Salt Sea, Gen. 14 : 3 ; great sea, or Mediterranean, Ps. 104 : 25 ; molten laver in the temple, 1 Kings. 7 : 23 ; 2 Chron. 4 : 2 ; the whole ocean, which shall give up its dead,

Rev. 20. 13; also to rivers, as the Nile, Nah. 3: 8; Euphrates, Isa. 19: 5.

SEBA. An African tribe, Gen. 10: 7.

SECACAH. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 61.

SECHU A village near Ramah, 1 Sam. 19: 22.

1, SEIR The father of the Horites, Gen. 36: 30.

2, Name of country where his posterity dwelt, Gen. 36: 20

3, The mountainous country of the Edomites, reaching from the Dead Sea to the Elanitic Gulf, Gen. 14: 6; 32: 3, note C. B.

4, A mountain in Judah, Josh. 15: 10.

SEIRATH A place in Ephraim, Judg. 3: 26.

1, SELA or SELAH Capital of the Edomites taken by Amoziah, and its inhabitants slain, 2 Kings, 14: 7, note C. B.

2, Same as Petra, Judges, 1: 36.

SELAH-HAMMAHLEKOTH. In the wilderness west of the Dead Sea, 1 Sam 23: 28, note C. B.

SELUCIA. A city of Syria, near the mouth of the Orontes—here Paul and Barnabas embarked, Acts, 13: 4, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol 2

SENAAH A town in Judah, Ezra, 2: 35.

SENEH. A sharp rock in the pass Mechmash, 1 Sam. 14: 4.

SENIR or SHENIR. Ammonite name of Mt. Hermon, Deut. 3: 9

SENACHERIB King of Assyria invades Judah, 2 Kings, 18: 13, 2 Chr 32: 1; Isa. 36: 1; his army destroyed, 2 Kings, 19: 35; 2 Chr 32: 21; Isa 37: 36; dies, 2 Kings, 19: 37; Isa. 37: 37.

SEPHAR A port in Arabia, Gen 10: 30.

SEPHARAD A place in Lydia, Asia Minor, Obad : 20.

SEPHRAVAIM. A town subject to the Assyrians, supposed to be the present Sipphara, on the Euphrates, 2 Kings, 17: 24; 18: 34; 19. 13; Isa. 36: 19, note C B.; 37: 13.

SERAIAH and Azariah. The same, Neh 7: 7; a high priest of the Jews, was taken captive, and, with 70 others, was put to death at Riblah, Jer. 52: 24-27.

SERGIUS-PAULUS. The deputy governor of Cyprus converted by Paul, Acts, 13: 12.

SERUG. The father of Nahor, and grandfather of Abraham, Gen 11: 22-26.

SETH or SHETH. Born to Adam, Gen. 4: 25; 5: 3; the father of Enos, : 6; his age and death, : 8.

SHAAL'BIM or SHAALABIM. A town of the Ammorites in the tribe of Dan, Judges, 1: 35; 19: 42.

SHADRACH. With his companions, accused to Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 3: 12; charged to serve his idol, : 13-15; his firm resolution, 16-18; cast into the furnace, : 19-23; miraculously preserved, : 24-26 note C B.

SHAHARAIM. A descendant of Benjamin, who resided in Moab. 1 Chron. 8: 8-28.

SHAHAZ'IMAH or SHAHAZIM. A town in Issachar, Josh. 19: 22

SHALEM. Gen. 33: 18, note C. B.

SHALIM. 1 Sam. 9: 4.

SHALISHA or SALISA. 1 Sam. 9: 4.

1, SHALLUM or SHILLEM. A son of Naphtali, and father of the Shillemites, Gen. 46: 24; Numb. 26: 49; 1 Chron. 7: 13.

2, Son of Jabesh, who murdered and succeeded Zechariah, 2 Kings 15: 10-14

SHALMANEZER. King of Assyria, subdued Israel, and put them under tribute, 2 Kings, 17: 3; imprisoned their king: 4; took Samaria, destroyed the cities, and murdered the people, : 5; 18: 9 12.

SHAMGAR. The third judge of Israel, who delivered them from the Philistines, Judges, 3: 31.

1, SHAMIR. A town in Mt. Ephraim, Judg. 10: 31.

2, A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 48.

SHAMMAH. The third of David's mighty men, who routed the Philistines, 2 Sam. 23: 11; brought water to David, : 13-17.

SHAPHAN. Secretary of the temple in the time of Josiah, 2 Kings, 22: 8, 9; informed Josiah that the book of the law was found, : 10, 11; 2 Ch. 34: 14.

1, SHAPHAT. One of those sent to spy the land of Promise, Numb. 13: 5.

2, The father of Elisha, 1 Kings, 19: 16.

3, Others, 1 Chron. 3: 22; 5: 12; 27: 29.

SHAPHET. A mountain in the desert, Numb. 33: 24, note C. B.

SHARAIM or SHAARAIM. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 36; 1 Sam. 17: 52.

1, SHARON or SARON. The name of three places in Canaan celebrated for their great beauty and fertility, one in the inheritance of Reuben, 1 Chron. 5: 16, note C. B. 27: 29; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

2, A district between Joppa and Cæsarea, Acts, 9: 35.

3 Figuratively, any beautiful country, Isa. 33: 9; 65: 10.

SHARUHEN. A town in Simeon, Josh. 19: 6.

SHAVEH. A valley north of Jerusalem, Gen. 14: 17.

1, SHEBA or SEBA. Son of Cush, Gen. 10: 7.

2, Son of Joktan, Gen. 10: 28.

3, Son of Jokshan and grandson of Abraham, Gen. 25: 3.

4, Rebels against David, 2 Sam. 20: 1-22.

5, A country peopled by the descendants of the son of Joktan, whose queen visited Solomon, 1 Kings, 10: 1, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 9: 1-9, note C. B.; spices brought from, Jer. 6: 20, note C. B; Ezk. 27: 22.

6, Arabia and Ethiopia, Ps. 72: 10, note C. B.

SHEBAM. A town in Reuben, Numb. 32: 3.

SHEBNAH. Treasurer and secretary to Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 18: 18; his death foretold, Isa. 22: 15-19.

1, SHECHEM. A son of Hamor, and prince of Shechem, debauches the daughter of Jacob, Gen. 34: 2; proposes to marry her, : 4-12; murdered by Simeon and Levi, : 25.

2, Or Sichem, on the plain of Moreh, where Abraham passed, Gen. 12: 6, note C. B.

3, A Levitical city of refuge in Ephraim, forty miles north of Jerusalem—near to it Jacob bought a piece of ground, Gen. 33: 18, note C. B.; here Joshua assembled the Israelites before his death, Josh. 24: 1; it became the capital of Samaria, and was called Sychar, John, 4: 5; note C. B.

SHELEPH. An Arabian tribe. Gen. 10: 26.

SHEM. Second son of Noah, Gen. 5: 32; he, with Japhet, modestly covers his father, 9: 23; his age, 11: 10; his descendants, 1 Chron. 1: 17.

SHEMA. A town in Judah, Numb. 32: 3.

1, SHEMAIAH. The prophet applies to Rhehoboam, 2 Chr. 11: 2; 12: 5.

2, Others of his name, Ezr. 8: 13; Neh. 3: 29; Jer. 36: 12.

SHEN. A rock, 1 Sam. 7: 12.

SHEPHAM. A place in Judah, Numb. 24: 10.

SHEPHERDS. Dignity of office, Gen. 29: 9; why abomination to Egyptians, Gen. 42: 32; 46: 34, note C. B.; picture, p. 1001.

SHESHACK. A name of Babylon, Jer. 25: 26, note C. B.; 51: 41.

SHESHBAZZAR. A prince of Judah, believed to be Zerubbabel, to whose care Cyrus committed the sacred vessels returned to Jerusalem, Ezra, 1: 8; Zech. 4: 9; see Zerubbabel.

SHIBARIM. A town in Judah, Josh. 7: 5.

SHIBMAH. A town in Reuben, Numb. 32: 38.

SHICRON. A town in Judah, Josh 15: 11.

SHIHOR-LIBNATH. A stream on the borders of Asher, Josh. 19: 26.

SHILOAH. A small fountain and brook outside Jerusalem which supplied a pool within—said to be the same as Gihon, Isa. 8: 6, note C. B

1, SHILOH. A name of the Messiah, Gen. 49: 10.

2, A city of Ephraim, situated on a hill fifteen miles north of Jerusalem, where the Israelites were assembled, the land divided to a portion of the tribes, and the tabernacle fixed, Josh. 18: 1, note C. B.; 19: 51; Judges, 18: 31; 21: 19; 1 Sam. 1: 3-24; 1 Kings, 2: 27 14: 2; after the departure of the ark, the place sank into ruins, Jer. 7: 12-14; 26: 6; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

SHILHIM. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 32.

SHIMEI. A Benjamite and kinsman of Saul, who curses David, 2 Sam. 16: 5; pardoned, 19: 18; put to death by Solomon, 1 Kings, 2: 37, note C B., : 46.

SHIMRON, SHIMRON-MERON A town in Zebulon, Josh. 11: 1.

SHINAR. A province of Babylon, where the tower of Babel stood, Gen. 10: 10; 11: 2; to it Nebuchadnezzar carried the vessels of the temple, Dan. 1: 2

SHISHAK. King of Egypt, Jeroboam, flies to until the death of Solomon, 1 Kings, 11: 40, note C. B.; plunders Jerusalem, 14: 25: 2 Chron 12: 2-9.

1, SHITTIM. The last station of the Israelites before they passed Jordan, Numb. 25: 1.

2, A valley west of the Jordan, probably near Jerusalem, Joel, 3: 18.

SHOA. A tribe named in Ezk. 23: 23.

SHOBACH. A general of the King of Assyria whom David slew, and routed his great army, 2 Sam. 10: 16.

SHOPHAN. A town in Gad, Numb. 32: 35.

SHUAL. A district in Benjamin, 1 Sam. 13: 17.

SHULAMITE. A name given to the spouse song of Sol. 6: 13.

SHUNAMITE. A native of Shunem, Abishag, so-called, 1 Kings, 1: 3; also, hostess of Elisha, 2 Kings, 4: 12; her son raised to life, : 32; brought to the king, 8: 1.

SHUNEM A town in Issachar, five miles south of Tabor, Josh. 19; 18; here the Philistines encamped against Saul, 1 Sam. 28: 4; visited by Elisha, 2 Kings, 4: 8, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

1, SHUR. A city on the borders of Egypt towards Palestine, supposed to be near the modern Suez, Gen. 16: 7, note C. B.

2, Wilderness named from the city, Ex. 15: 22, note C B.; 1 Sam. 15: 7; 17: 8; also called Etham, Numb. 33: 8.

1, SHUSHAN or SUSA. The metropolis of Susiana, a province of Persia or Elam, Neh. 1: 1, note C. B.; Esth 2: 8; 3: 15; 8: 15.

2, Winter palace of the Persian kings, on the river Choaspes, Dan. 8: 2;

SIBMAH. A city near Heshbon, famous for its vines, Josh. 13: 19, note C. B.; Isa. 16: 8; Jer. 48: 32.

SIBRAIM. A city near Damascus, Eze. 47: 16.

SIDDIM. The plain of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, which became the Dead Sea, Gen. 14: 3, note C. B.

SIDON or Zidon. One of the most ancient cities and district of Phenecia, situated on the shore of the Mediterranean, eighteen miles north of Tyre—founded by Sidon, the eldest son of Canaan, Gen. 10: 15-19, situated in the alotment of Asher, but never conquered—judgments predicted, Ezk. 28: 21; frequently mentioned in the New Testament, Mat. 11: 21; Mark, 3: ; Luke, 4: 26; Paul touched here on his way to Rome, Acts, 27: 3; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

SIHON. King of the Amorites conquered, Numb. 21: 21; Deut. 2: 26.

1, SIHOR. Hebrew name for the Nile, Isa. 23; 3, note C. B.

2, The river of Egypt on the Rhinocura, Josh. 13: 3.

SILAS. One of the primitive preachers—exhorts the Christians at Antioch, Acts, 15: 23; accompanies Paul, : 40; imprisoned with him at Philippi, 16: 19.

SILLA. A place near Jerusalem, 2 Kings, 12: 20

1, SILOAH or SILOAM. A fountain and pool near Mt. Zion, in Jerusalem, Neh. 3: 15, note C. B.; John, 9: 7, note C. B.; picture, page 737.

2, A tower, Luke. 13: 4.

SILVANUS (Woody). A faithful preacher and companion of Paul, 2 Cor. 1: 19; 1 Thess. 1: 1, note C. B.; 1 Peter, 5: 12, note C. B; thought to be the same as Silas.

1, SIMEON. Second son of Jacob, Gen. 29: 33; he and Levi murder the Sechemites, 34: 25; detained in Egypt, 42: 24; blessed by Jacob, 49: 5-7; illustration, page 126; his inheritance, Josh. 19: 1; his descendants, 1 Chr. 4: 24.

2, Tribal division of Canaan, Josh. 19: 1-9; conquer Gedor, and the Amalekites, 1 Chron. 4: 39; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

3, A pious old man at Jerusalem who waited for the Messiah, Luke, 2: 25; took him in his arms, : 28; foretells the trials of Mary, : 34-35.

1, SIMON. Son of Mary and Cleophas, and brother or cousin-german of Christ, Mat 13: 55; Mark, 6: 4.

2, The Canaanite and apostle, Mat. 10: 4.

3, Surnamed Peter, the Apostle, Mat. 10: 2; see Peter.

4, The Pharisee, Luke, 7: 36.

5, The leper who entertains Christ at Bethany, Mat. 26: 7; Mark, 14: 3.
6, The father of Judas Iscariot, John, 6: 71; 12: 4.
7, The Cyrenian who carries the cross of Christ, Mat. 27: 32; Mark, 15: 21; Luke, 23: 36.
8, The tanner with whom Peter lodged at Joppa, Acts, 9: 43; 10: 6, 17, 32.
9, Magus, the sorcerer, at Samaria, Acts, 8: 9–13.

1, SIN. A strong fortified city at the mouth of the eastern arm of the Nile, supposed to be Pelusium of the Greeks, now called Zineh, Ezk. 30: 15, note C. B.

2, A wilderness which the Israelites entered on leaving the Red Sea, Ex. 16: 1, note C. B.; 17: 1; map, journeys of Israelites, vol. 1.

SINAI. A mountain in the wilderness of Horeb, in the desert of Arabia, Petrea—here the Israelites came, Ex 19: 1, note C. B.; the ten commands delivered from it, 20: 1; Deut. 5: 4; represents the law, Gal. 4: 24; Heb. 12: 18.

SINIM. Probably China, some say Persia, Isa. 49: 12, note C. B.

SINITES. A northern Canaanitish people, Gen. 10: 17.

SION. One of the names of Mt. Hermon, Deut. 4: 48; it was called Sireon by the Sidonians, and Shenir by the Ammorites, Deut. 3: 9, note C B.

SIPHMOTH. A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 30: 28.

SIRION. See Sion.

SISERA. General of the army of Jabin, King of Hazor, Judges, 4: 2; killed by Jael, : 18.

SITNAH. One of Isaac's wells, Gen. 26: 21.

SMYRNA. A celebrated commercial city of Ionia, on the east shore of the Ægean Sea, 46 miles north of Ephesus, and still a flourishing place. Christ's message to the church there, Rev. 2: 8; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SO. King of Egypt, joins Hoshea against the Assyrians, 2 Kings, 17: 4.

1, SOCOH, SHO-CHOH or SOCHO. A town in Judah, in the vale of Elah, Josh. 15: 35.

2, A town near the mountains of Judah, Josh, 15: 38; now called Shuweikeh.

SODOM, GOMORRAH, ADMAH, and ZEBOIM. Four cities of the Canaanites, in the vale of Siddim, on the ground now covered with the Dead Sea—they were destroyed for their wickedness by fire from heaven and earthquake, Gen. 13: 10, note C. B.; 14: 11–17; 18: 20–25; 19. 1–28, note C. B.; Deut. 29: 23, note C. B.; Isa. 1: 9; Jer. 23: 14; Mat 10: 15; Luke, 17: 29; 2 Pet. 2: 6; Jude, : 7; Rome and the Papal Empire thus called, Rev. 11: 8, note C. B.

SOLOMON. Son of David by Bathsheba, born in Jerusalem, 2 Sam 5: 14; 12: 24, note C. B.; made king, 1 Kings, 1: 38; 1 Chron. 23: 1, 29: 22, note C. B.; sacrifices at Gibeon, 2 Chron. 1: 2, note C. B.; 1 Kings, 3: 4; chooses wisdom, 2 Chron. 1: 7–12, note C. B; judges between two mothers, 1 Kings, 3: 16, note C. B.; his power and wealth, 2 Chron. 1: 14, note C. B.; 9: 17, note C. B.; 1 Kings, 10: 23, note C B.; his science, 1 Kings, 4: 29; congratulated by Hiram, King of Tyre. 5: 1; preparations for the Temple, : 13; applies to Hiram for aid, 2 Chr. 2: 3; builds the Temple, 1 Kings, 6: 1; 2 Chr. 2: 1; 3: 1; his dedicatory prayer, 2 Chron, 6: 12; 1 Kings, 8: 22, note C. B.; sacrifices offered, 2 Chr. 7: 4, note C. B.; warned of God, 7: 12; 1 Kings, 6: 11: covenant with him, 9: 1, note C. B.; other buildings, 2 Chron. 8: 1; 1 Kings, 7: 1; appoints the courses of the priests, 2 Chron. 8: 14; receives Queen of Sheba, 2 Chron 9: 2, note C. B, 1 Kings, 10: 1; note C. B.; his wives and concubines, 11: 1-3, note C. B.; his idolatry, : 4; threatened for it, : 9; opposed by Hadad, : 14; by Rezon, : 23; by Jeroboam, : 26; his acts and death, : 41, note C B.; 2 Chron 9: 29, prayer for him, Ps. 72: 1; a song for him, Ps. 127.

SOLOMON'S PORCH. A part of the Temple, Acts. 5: 12, note C. B.

SOREK. A valley near to Gath, Judges, 16: 4.

SOSIPATER. Paul's kinsman, to whom he sent his salutation, Rom. 16: 21; thought to be the same as Sopater, Acts, 20: 4.

SOSTHENES. The chief ruler of the synagogue at Corinth, and one of the earliest converts there, Acts, 18: 17, note C. B.; accompanies Paul, 1 Cor. 1: 1, note C. B.

SPAIN. A Romish province in the southwest of Europe, anciently including Portugal, Rom. 15: 24, note C. B.

STEM OF JESSE. Royal family of David, &c., Isa. 11: 1

STEPHANUS. One of the first converts at Corinth, and baptized by Paul, 1 Cor. 1: 16; he visits Paul at Ephesus, 16: 17.

STEPHEN. One of the first seven deacons, Acts, 6: 5; is accused, : 11, note C. B.; defends himself, 7: 1; is stoned, and prays for his murderers, : 59, 60, note C. B.

STOICS. A sect of heathen philosophers who received their name from stoa, or porch; at Athens, where they were taught by Zeno, they maintained that all events happened by fatal necessity—that man has no liberty of will—that he ought to be equally indifferent to pleasure and pain; they disputed with Paul at Athens, Acts, 17: 18, note C. B

1, SUCCOTH. A place east of Jordan, and south of the sea of Galilee, where Jacob pitched his tents, Gen. 33. 17, note C. B.; it belonged to the tribe of Gad, Josh. 13: 29; map of Canaan, vol. 2.

2, The first station of the Hebrews after their emancipation, Ex. 12: 37; see note; Numb. 33: 6, note C. B.

SUCCOTH-BENOTH. An idol of the Babylonians set up in Samaria, 2 Kings, 17: 30, note C B.

SUKKIMS. An African nation, 2 Chron 12 3

SYCHAR. See Shechem.

SYENE, now ESSUAN. A city of Egypt, in the Thebias or southern extremity, towards Ethiopia, Ezk 29: 10.

SYNAGOGUE. The original Greek word is transferred, and means a convention or assembly—now used to designate the place of assembling. They took their rise during the Babylonish captivity, and afterward they were found wherever the Jews migrated; in these Christ and the apostles taught.

SYRACUSE. A city on the southeast coast of Sicily, where Paul tarried three days, Acts, 28: 12, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

SYRIA An ancient kingdom on the north of Canaan, of which Damascus, and afterwards Antioch, was the capital—conquered by David 2 Sam 8: 3-6; 10: 6-16; its king distresses Ahaz, 2 Chron. 28. 5 to be conquered by the Assyrians, Isa 8: 4; judgments on it, Amos, 1: 3 Christ's fame spread through it, Mat. 4: 24, note C. B.; letters sent to the brethren there, Acts, 15: 23, note C. B.; Paul went through it, : 41; map, travels of Paul, vol 2.

SYRO-PHENICIAN WOMAN. Her great faith, Mark, 7: 25, 26, note C. B.

T.

TAANACH or TANACH. A Levitical city in Manasseh, west of Jordan, Josh. 17: 11; 21: 25; Judges, 1: 27.

TAANACH SHILOH. A town on the border of Ephraim, Josh, 16: 6.

TABATH. A town in Issachar, Judg. 7: 22.

TABERAH. An Israelitish station where many were consumed by fire for their murmuring, Numb. 11: 3; Deut. 9: 22.

TABITHA. See Dorcas.

1, TABOR. A mountain in Palestine, not far from Kadesh, and having a beautiful plain on the top; here Barak defeated Jabin, Judg. 4: 12–14, note C. B.; supposed to be that on which Christ was transfigured, Mat. 17: 1, note C. B.; Mark, 9: 2; Luke, 9: 28; called by Peter Holy Mount, 2 Peter, 1: 18; map of Canaan, vol. 2

2, An oak grove in the vicinity of Benjamin, 1 Sam. 10: 3.

3, A Levitical city on Mt. Tabor, 1 Chron. 6: 77.

TADMOR or TAMAR. A city built by Solomon in a fertile tract in the midst of a sandy desert, on the confines of Arabia Deserta, a 160 miles east of Damascus, and 90 west of the Euphrates, 1 Kings, 9: 18, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 8: 4. After the conquests of Alexander, the name was changed to Palmyra; it is now in ruin.

TAHAPANES or TEHAPHNEHES or TAHAPANJES. A city of Egypt, to which the rebellious Jews under Johanan retired, and which Nebuchadnezzar took, Jer. 2: 16, note C. B. 43: 7, note C. B.; 46: 14; Ezk. 30: 18.

TAHATH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33: 26.

TAHTIM HOD SHI. A district, uncertain where, 2 Sam. 24: 6.

1, TALMAI. Son of Anak, destroyed by Israelites, Numb. 13: 22; Josh. 15: 14.

2, King of Goshur, the father of Maachah, whom David married, and mother of Absalom and Tamar, 2 Sam 3: 3.

1 TAMAR. The daughter-in-law of Judah, Gen. 38: 6–14, note C. B.; : 21, note C. B.

2, The daughter of David, 2 Sam 13: 16.

3, The daughter of Absalom, 2 Sam. 13: 27.

4, A city of Judea, at southern point of the Dead Sea, Ezk. 47: 19; 48: 28; thought to be the same as Engedi.

TAMMUZ. An idol supposed the same as Adonis, Osiris, and perhaps Chemosh, mourning for him, Ezk. 8: 14, note C. B.

1, TAPPUAH. A town in Ephraim, Josh. 16: 8; 17: 8.

2, A town in Judah, Josh. 12: 17: 15: 34.

TARAH An Israelitish station, Numb. 33: 27,

TARALAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18: 27.

TARPELITES. A people of Assyria sent by the Persians to colonize Samaria, Ezra, 4: 9.

1, TARSHISH The son of Javan, supposed to have founded Tarshish or Tarsus, Gen. 10: 4; 1 Chron. 1: 7.

2, Or Tarsus, the capital city of Cilicia, on the river Cyndus; to it Jonah fled, Jonah, 1: 3, note C. B; 4: 2; the birth-place of Paul, Acts, 9: 11, note C. B.; 21: 39, note C. B.; 22: 3, note C. B.; : 28, note C. B.; to it Barnabas went to find Paul, Acts, 11: 25, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

3, To which Solomon sent fleets from the Red Sea through the straits of Babelmandel, must have been some place in the East Indies, 1 Kings, 10: 22; 2 Chron. 9: 21, note C. B.; Jehoshaphat made ships of, 1 Kings, 22: 48, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 20: 34, note C. B.

4, Used for the east. Isa. 60: 19, note C. B.

TARTAK. The idol of the Avites, 2 Kings, 17: 31.

TARTAN. Name of office, 2 Kings, 18: 17, note C. B.

TATNAI. The Governor of Samaria, obstructs the re-building of the Temple, Ezra, 5: 3, note C. B.

TEKOA or TEKOAH. A city of Judah, 12 miles south of Jerusalem—a widow of persuades David to recall Absalom, 2 Sam. 14: 2, note C B.; fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron. 11: 6; near to it a massacre, 20: 23, note C. B.; trumpet blown in, Jer. 6: 1, note C. B.

TELABIB. A town in Mesopotamia, Eze. 3: 15, note C. B.

TELAIM. A town in Judah, 1 Sam. 15: 4.

TELASAR or THELASAR. Probably Telafor, in Assyria, 2 Kings, 19: 12; Isa. 37: 12.

TELEM or TELAIM. A town in Judah, Josh. 15: 24.

TELARSA or TELHARESHA A place in Babylonia to which the Israelites were carried, Ezra, 2: 59; Neh. 7: 61.

TELMELAH. A place in Babylonia where Israelites were carried, Ezra, 2: 59.

1, TEMA. Son of Ishmael, Gen 25: 15; 1 Chron. 1: 30.

2, Place in Arabia where his descendants lived, Job, 6: 19; Isa. 21: 14; Jer. 25: 23.

1, TEMAN. Grandson of Esau, and parent of the Temanites, Gen. 36: 11–15; 1 Chron. 1: 53.

2, The land of Edom, thus called, Jer. 49: 20; Eze. 25: 13; Amos, 1: 12.

3, One of the strong places of the Idumeans, Obad. ; 9, note C. B.

TEMANI See Gen. 36: 34, note C. B.

TEMPLE. Of Solomon—its size, 1 Kings, 6: 2, note C. B.; commentary, p 415; 2 Chron. 3: 1, note C. B.; destruction by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer 52: 12, note C. B.

——— Of Herod—magnitude and beauty, Luke, 21: 5; destruction predicted by Christ, Mat. 24: 1, see commentary, page 1050, and notes; destroyed by Titus, A. D. 70.

TERAH. Father of Abraham, Gen. 11: 24; went to Canaan, : 31; died in Haran, : 32

TERTIUS. Paul's amanuensis—thought to be the same as Silas, Rom. 16: 22.

TERTULLUS. Celebrated orator who impeached Paul, Acts, 24: 1.

THADDEUS. See Judas.

THEBEZ or THEBES. A city of the tribe of Ephraim, near Shechem, where Abimelech was killed by a woman, Judges, 9: 50, note C. B.

THEBIAS. See Pathros.

THEOPHILUS. An eminent Christian, to whom Luke addressed his Gospel and the Acts, Luke, 1: 3, note C. B; Acts, 1: 1.

THESSALONICA. The capital of Macedonia, now called Salonichi; here Paul planted a church, Acts, 17: 1, note C. B.: introduction, page 1318; to this church, Paul sent two epistles, 1 Thess. 1: 1; 2 Thess. 1: 1; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

THREE TAVERNS. A place 30 miles from Rome; Acts, 28: 15, note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

THEUDAS. An imposter—put to death, Acts, 5: 36, note C. B.

THOMAS, called DIDYMUS. One of the twelve, Mat. 10: 3; his remark about Lazarus, John, 11: 16, note C. B.; asks the way to the Father, 14: 5, note C. B.; his disbelief of Christ's resurrection, 20. 24; sees Jesus, 21: 2.

THYATIRA. A city of Lydia, Asia Minor, 26 miles north of Sardis, and 56 northeast of Smyrna. Lydia, a native, converted by Paul, Acts, 16: 14; Christ's message to the church here, Rev. 2: 18, .note C. B.; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

1, TIBERIAS. A city of Galilee belonging to Naphtali, on the lake of Genesareth, John, 6: 23, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol 2.

2, Lake, called sea of, John, 6: 23, note C. B.; picture, 1072.

TIBERIUS CÆSAR. The Roman Emperor, Luke, 3: 1, note C. B.

TIBHATH. A town in Syria, 1 Chron. 18: 8.

TIGLATH-PILESAR. King of Assyria, invades Israel, 2 Kings, 15: 29, note C. B.

TIMNA. The concubine of Elaphaz, 1 Chron. 1: 36, note C. B.

TIMNAH. An Edomite tribe, Gen. 36: 40.

1, TIMNATH. A city of Judah, Gen. 38: 12, note C. B.; Samson went to, Judges, 14: 1.

2, Heres—Joshua buried here, Judges, 2: 9, note C. B.

TIMOTHY or TIMOTHEUS. An Evangelist whose father was a Greek, and his mother a Jewess—born at Derbe or Lystra, Acts, 16: 1–3, note C. B.; sent by Paul to Philippi, Phil 2: 19; exhorted to diligence, 1 Tim. 4: 13; 6: 11; his ancestors commended, 2 Tim. 1: 5; Epistles directed to him by Paul, 1 Tim. 1: 2; 2 Tim. 1: 2.

1, TIPSAH. A city of Ephraim, six miles from Samaria—was taken and put to the sword, 2 Kings, 15: 16.

2, A large city on the Euphrates, now called Ed Deir, 1 Kings, 4: 24.

TIRAS. A people descended from Japheth, Gen. 10: 2.

TIRHAKAH. King of Cush, or Ethiopia—came to assist Hezekiah, and defeated Sennacherib, 2 Kings, 19: 9.

TIRZAH. A city of Ephraim in which the Kings of Israel resided, 1 Kings, 14: 17, note C. B.; 15: 21, 16: 8; 2 Kings, 15: 16.

TISHBI. A town in Naphtali, 1 Kings, 17: 1.

TITUS. An Evangelist—a Gentile by birth, and Paul's assistant, 2 Cor. 8: 23, left in Crete, Tit. 1: 5; not circumcized, Gal. 2: 3; affection for Corinthians, 2 Cor. 7: 13; 8: 16; Paul sends letter to him, Tit. 1: 4; see introduction to this letter, page 1336.

TOB A district on the east of Jordan, to which Jeptha fled, Judges, 11: 3-5.

TOBIAH. An Ammonite who opposed the re-building of the Temple, Neh. 2: 10: 4: 7–19.

TOCHEN A town in Simeon, 1 Chron. 4: 32.

1, TOGARMAH or TOGARMUTH. Hebrew name for Armenia, Gen. 10: 3.

2, Third son of Gomer, Gen. 10: 3; 1 Chron. 1: 6; his descendants. Ezk. 27: 14.

TOI. King of Hamoth, in Syria, who sent his son with presents to David, 2 Sam. 8: 9–11.

1, TOLA. Eldest son of Issachar, Gen. 46: 13; 1 Chron. 7: 1.

2, Tenth judge of Israel, Judges, 10: 1.

TOLAD. A town in Simeon, 1 Chron. 4: 29.

TOPHEL. A town near Moab, Deut. 1: 1, note C. B.

TOPHET. A place on southeast of Jerusalem, in the valley of Hinnom, where children were burnt to Moloch, 2 Kings, 23: 10, note C. B.; Jer. 7: 31, note C. B; a fire was constantly kept there to consume the filth of the city, Isa. 30: 33, note C. B.

TRACHONITIS. A small rocky district south of Damascus, of which Philip was Tetrarch, Luke, 3: 1.

TROAS. A maritime city of Phrygia, or Mysia, on the shores of the Archipelago which Paul visited, Acts. 16: 8; 20: 5, note C. B; 2 Cor. 2: 12; 2 Tim 4: 13; near it stood ancient Troy; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

TROGYLIUM. A town and promontory near the foot of Mount Mycale, in Asia Minor, five miles from Samos, Acts, 20: 13, note C. B.: map, travels of Paul, vol. 2.

TROPHIMUS. A native of Ephesus, converted by Paul, Acts, 20: 4: 21: 28; 2 Tim. 4: 20

TRYPHENA and TRYPHOSA. Two Christian women in Rome, Rom. 16: 12.

1, TUBAL. The fifth son of Japheth, Gen. 10: 2.

2, A people named after progenitor, and supposed to have settled in Asia Minor, near the Euxine, Isa. 66: 19.

3, Cain, the son of Lamech, and the inventor of forging iron, Gen 4: 22, note C. B.

TYCHICUS. A disciple who accompanied Paul, Acts, 20: 4; sent by Paul to Ephesus, Eph. 6: 21; 2 Tim. 4: 12; sent to Colosse, Col 4: 7; to Titus, Tit. 3: 12.

TYRANNUS. A teacher at Ephesus, in whose school Paul preached, Acts, 19: 6.

TYRE or TYRUS (A rock). One of the most ancient and celebrated cities—the emporium of Phœneccia, and the seat of great wealth and power—situated on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, within the boundaries of the tribe of Asher, John, 19: 29; though never conquered by them; a colony of Zidon, Isa. 23: 12, note C. B.; also daughter of Tarshish, Isa. 23: 10, note C. B.; location and threatened destruction, Isa. 23: 1, note C. B.; besieged thirteen years by Nebuchadnezzar, Ezk. 29: 18, note C. B.; taken by Alexander the Great, Zech 9: 2, note C. B.; predictions fulfilled, Ezk 26: 3, note C. B.; 12, note C. B.: 14, note C. B; 21; Christ journeyed in that region, Mat 15: 21; a Christian church was established here before A. D 58, Acts 21: 3–7; Christ upbraids Chorazin as more wicked than Tyre, Mat. 11 21, 22; map, travels of Paul, vol. 2

U.

UCAL. The person to whom Agur addressed his words, Prov. 30: 1.

ULAI. A river near the city of Shushan, in Persia, on the banks of which Daniel has a vision, Dan. 8: 2–16.

UMMA. A town in Asher, Josh. 19: 30.

UPHAZ. The name of a gold country, perhaps Ophir, Jer. 10: 9; Dan. 10: 5.

UR. A city of Chaldee, near the Euphrates, where Terah and Abraham resided, Gen. 11: 28-31, note C. B.; 15: 7; Neh. 9: 7; 1 Chron. 11: 35; map, eastern countries, vol. 1.

URIAH. An Hittite, the husband of Bathsheba, 2 Sam. 11: 3; visits David, : 6-13; is slain by David's order, : 14-25.

URIJAH. The idolatrous high priest who, at Ahaz's request formed an altar like one at Damascus, 2 Kings, 16: 10–16.

1, UZ. The eldest son of Aram, and grandson of Shem, Gen. 10: 23.

3, A country in Arabia where Job resided—situation uncertain, Job, 1: 1, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 1.

UZAL. A district in Arabia, Gen. 10: 27.

UZZAH. The son of Abinadab, smitten for touching the ark, 1 Chr. 13: 9.

UZZIAH. See Azariah.

1, UZZIEL. One of the sons of Kohath, Ex. 6: 18; Numb. 3: 19; 1 Chron. 6: 2–8.

2, Others, 1 Chron. 7: 7; 25: 4; 2 Chron. 29: 14; Neh. 3: 8

UZZEN-SHERAH. 1 Chron, 7: 24.

V.

VASHNI. The son of Samuel, 1 Chron. 6: 28.

VASHTI. The Queen of Ahashuerus, who refused to appear at his command, Esth. 1: 12; divorced and degraded, : 19, note C. B.

W.

WISE-MEN or MAGI. An appellation given among the Medes and Persians to a class of priests devoted to the study of moral and physical sciences. Daniel shows in what estimation they were held; he was appointed master of the Wise Men. They were jealous of his wisdom. Those were of a different character who came to Jerusalem to see Christ, Mat. 2: 1, note C. B; sent for by Herod. : 7, 8, note C. B.; guided by supernatural star, : 9, 10; worshipped the Saviour, : 11; warned of God, : 12.

X.

XERXES. King of Persia—his great riches foretold, Dan. 11: 2; note C.B.

Z.

ZAANAN. A town in Judah, perhaps the same as Zenan, Mica. 1: 11, note C. B.

ZAANANNIM or ZAANAIM. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19: 33.

ZAAVAN and ZAVAN The same in the original, 1 Chron. 1: 42.

ZABAD. Four persons thus named, 1 Chron. 2: 36; 7: 21; 2 Chron. 24: 26; Ezra, 10: 27.

ZABUD. A son of Nathan, the prophet and adviser of Solomon, 1 Kings, 4: 5.

ZABDI. The father of Carmi, Josh. 7: 1.

ZACCHEUS (Just) A chief publican or tax gatherer, who seeks to see Christ, Luke, 19: 2, note C. B.; called by him, : 5; entertains Christ, 6; encouraged by him, : 9.

1. ZACHARIAH or ZECHARIAH. King of Israel—succeeds his father, Jeroboam, 773 B C., 2 Kings, 14: 29; reigned six months, is conspired against, and slain, 15: 8–11.

2, Son of Jehoida, high priest of the Jews, supposed to be the same as Azariah, 1 Chron. 6: 10, 11; put to death in the Temple by order of Joash, 2 Chron 24: 20; Mat. 23: 35, note C. B.

3, Son of Jeberechiah, 2 Chron. 26: 5; attested Isaiah's writing, Isa. 8: 2.

4, One of the minor prophets who returned from Babylon—began to prophesy when young, Ezra, 5: 1, note C. B.; encouraged the Jews to build the Temple, Zech. 1: 12; 8: 1; introduction to book, page 975.

ZACHARIAS. An ordinary priest, and father of John the Baptist, Luke, 1: 5, note C. B; his vision, : 11; his prophesy, : 67, 68, note C. B.

ZADOC. Son of Ahitub—accompanies David in his flight from Absalom, 2 Sam. 15: 24; put into the high priesthood, 1 Kings, 2: 35; anoints Solomon, 1 Kings, 1: 39; his descendants to be high priests, Ezk. 44: 15.

ZAIR Supposed the same as Seir, 2 Kings, 8: 21, note C. B.

ZALMON or SALMON. A hill in Samaria, near Shechem, Judges, 9: 48; Ps. 68: 14, note C. B.

ZALMONAH. An Israelitish station, Numb. 33: 41.

ZALMUNNA and ZEBA. Kings of Midian, whom Gideon pursued, Judges, 8: 5; conquered and slain by him, : 10, note C. B.; : 21, note C. B; Ps. 83: 11.

ZAMZUMMIMS. An ancient race of giants east of the Jordan, defeated by Chedorlaomer, Gen. 14: 5; dispossessed by the Ammonites, Deut. 2: 20, 21.

ZANOAH. The name of two towns in Judah, Josh. 15: 34; Neh. 3. 13

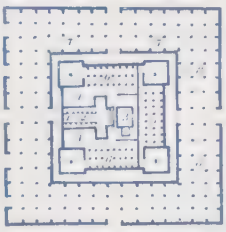
ZAPHNATH-PAANEAH (Saviour of the world). An Egyptian name which Pharaoh gave to Joseph, Gen. 41: 45, note C. B.

ZAPHON. A town in Gad, Josh. 13: 27

ZARAH or ZERAH. The son of Judah by Tamar, Gen. 38 30; his posterity, 1 Chron 2: 6.

ZARED. A mountain torrent rising in the mountains of Moab, Numb 21: 12.

ZEREPHATH or SAREPTA. A city of the Sidonians, on the Mediterranean, between Tyre and Sidon, where, during a famine, Elijah lodged with a widow, 1 Kings, 17: 9, note C B.; Luke, 4: 26, note C. B.; map of Canaan, vol. 2.



ZARETAN A town in Manasseh, Josh 3 16
ZARETH-SHAHAR. A village in Reuben, Josh 13 : 19.
ZARTAN Situation of, 1 Kings, 1 : 7-46.
ZEBA See Zalmunna.
ZEBEDEE The husband of Zalmone, and the father of James and John, Mat 4 : 21 ; 10 : 2 ; Mark, 1 : 19
1, ZEBOIM. A valley near Jericho, 1 Sam 13 : 18.
2, A city of Benjamites, Neh. 11 : 34.
3. One of the four royal cities destroyed ; see Sodom.
ZEBUL. Governor of Shechem, Judg. 9 : 28 ; calls Abimelech to fight against Gaal, : 30-41
1, ZEBULUN. Sixth son of Jacob by Leah, Gen. 30 : 20 ; 35 : 23 ; his sons, 46 . 14 ; Numb. 1 : 30 ; prophetic benediction of his father, Gen. 49 . 13 ; illustration, page 126.
2, A tribal division of Canaan, Josh. 19 : 10 ; map of Canaan.
3. A border city belonging to Asher and Zebulun, Josh. 19 : 27.
ZECHARIAH. Son of Jehoida, barbarously murdered, 2 Chron. 24 : 22, note C B; see Zachariah.
ZEDAD A place in Aram, north of Canaan, Numb. 34 : 8.
1, ZEDEKIAH. Son of Josiah, the 20th and last king of Judah, Jer. 52 : 1 ; succeeds Jehoiachim, 2 Kings, 24 : 17, note C. B.; 2 Chron. 36 : 10 ; rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, : 13 ; his captivity foretold, Jer 34 : 2 ; 37 : 17 ; Ez. 12 : 8 ; 21 : 25 ; sends for Jeremiah, Jer. 21 : 1 ; taken, and his eyes put out, 2 Kings, 25 : 7, note C. B.; Jer. 39 : 4 ; 52 : 8.
2, The false prophet exposed and reproved by Micah, 1 Kings, 22 : 11-24.
3, Another false prophet denounced, Jer. 29 : 21.
ZEEB and OREB. Princes of Midian, taken and slain, Judges, 7 : 25.
ZELAH. A town in Benjamin, Josh. 18 : 28 ; Saul buried here, 2 Sam. 21 : 14.
ZELOPHEHAD. The son of Hephar, who left only daughters, Numb. 27 : 1 ; to whom an inheritance was given, : 7, note C. B.
ZELOTES. Surname of Simon, the Canaanite, Luke, 6 : 15, note C. B.
ZELZAH. A town in Benjamin, 1 Sam. 10 : 2.
ZEMARAIM. A city of Benjamin, near Bethel, Josh. 18 : 22 ; near to it a mountain, where the army of Jeroboam were slain, 2 Chron. 13 : 4-17.
ZEMARITE. A Canaanitish people, Gen. 10 : 18.
ZENAN. A town in Judah, Josh. 15 : 37.
ZENAS. A pious lawyer, and friend of Paul, Titus, 3 : 13.
1, ZEPHANIAH. One of the minor prophets, who lived in the time of King Josiah, 625 B. C., Zeph. 1 : 1.
2, The deputy high priest under Seraiah, 2 Kings, 25 : 18 ; Jer. 52 : 24 ; by him Zedekiah consulted Jeremiah, Jer. 21 : 1 ; 29 : 29 ; 37 : 3.
3, A Kohathite in the seventh generation from Levi, 1 Chron. 6 : 36.
4, Valley of, where situated, 2 Chron. 14 : 10.
ZEPHATH. A city in southern Palestine, Judges. 1 : 17.
ZEPHATHAH. A valley in southern Palestine, 2 Chron. 14 : 10.
ZER. A town in Naphtali, Josh. 19 : 35.
ZERED. A brook or torrent rising in the mountains of Moab, Deut. 2 : 13, note C. B.
ZERUBBAEL or ZOROBABEL. The son of Shealtiel, and of the royal race of David, Ezra, 3 : 2 ; Mat 1 : 12 ; his Chaldean name Sheshbazzar, Ezra, 1 : 8 ; the sacred vessels committed to him by Cyrus to carry to Jerusalem, Ezra, 1 : 7-11, note C. B.; 5 : 14-16 ; the number who returned with him, 2 : 64, note C. B.; was zealous in re-building, 5 : 2 ; Hag. 1 : 12 ; was encouraged by the prophet, Hag. 1 : 1 ; Zech. 4 : 6-10 ; Messiah, so-called, Hag. 2 : 23.
ZERUIAH. The sister of David, and mother of Joab, 2 Sam. 2 : 18 ; 3 : 39 ; 8 : 16 ; 16 : 10 ; 1 Chron. 2 : 16.
ZIBA. A servant of King Saul—his treachery, 2 Sam. 9 : 2-10 ; 16 : 1 ; 19 : 24-30.
ZIDDIM. A town in Naphtali, Josh 19 : 35.
ZIDON. See Sidon and Tyre
ZIK-LAG. A city in southern part of Judah, Josh. 15 : 31, note C. B. ; given by Achish, King of Gath, to David for an asylum from Saul, 1 Sam. 27 : 6, note C. B.; burned by Amalekites, 30 : 1 ; David repairs and dwells in it, 2 Sam. 1 : 1.
ZILPAH. The handmaid of Leah, and concubine of Jacob, Gen 29 : 24 ; 30 . 9. 10 ; 35 ; 26.
ZIMRAN. An Arabian tribe, named after Keturah's first-born, Gen 25 : 2.
1, ZIMRI. A general in the army of Elah, King of Israel—murders and succeeds him, 1 Kings, 16 : 10 ; burns himself, : 18.
2, The son of Salu, a prince of the Simeonites, and slain by Phineas, Numb. 25 : 14, 15.
ZIN. A wilderness near Kadesh Barnea—the Israelites come there, Numb 20 : 1 ; rebelled there, 27 : 14 ; Deut. 32 : 51 ; map, Journey of Israel, vol. 1.
ZION or SION. The southern hill on which the more ancient part of Jerusalem was built, being 2,500 feet above the Mediterranean ; also called the city of David, who took it from the Jebusites, fortified it, and fixed his residence there, 2 Sam. 5 : 7 ; 1 Chron. 11 : 5 ; 1 Kings, 8 : 1 ; to be ploughed, like a field, Jer. 26 : 18, note C. B. ; its lamentations, Sam. 4 : 1-5 ; its future glory, Isa. 2 : 3 ; Mic. 4 : 2.
ZIOR. A town in the hill country of Judah, Josh. 15 : 54.
1, ZIPH. A town in Judah, near Hebron ; here David concealed himself from Saul, 1 Sam. 23 : 24, note C. B ; : 15 19.
2, A city near Maon and Carmel of Judah, Josh 15 : 24-55.
3, A wilderness, 1 Sam. 23 : 14, note C. B.
ZIPHRON. A boundary place, Numb. 34 : 9.
ZIPPOR. Father of Balak, Numb. 22 : 2.
ZIPPORAH. Daughter of Jethro, and wife of Moses, Ex. 2 : 21, note C. B.; bears a son, : 22 ; 4 : 20 ; circumcised them, : 25 ; brought to Moses, 18 : 1-6 ; commentary, page 117.
ZIZ. A cliff or mountain pass near Engedi, 2 Chron. 20 : 16.
ZOAN or TANIS. One of the oldest cities of Lower Egypt, near the Mediterranean, Numb. 13 : 22, note C. B. ; Ps. 78 : 12, note C. B.; : 43 ; Isa. 19 : 11 ; 30 : 4 ; Eze. 30 : 14 ; map, Journey of Israel, vol. 1.
ZOAR or BELA. Gen. 14 : 2 ; a town in the vale of Siddim, Gen. 13 : 10, note C B.; rebelled against Chedorlaomer, 14 : 4 ; for it Lot intreated, and to it he fled, 19 : 20-23 ; situated at south end of the Dead Sea, Deut 34 : 3 ; Isa. 15 : 5.
ZOBAH or ARAM ZOBAH. A Syrian kingdom—against its kings Saul fought, 1 Sam. 14 : 47 ; David smote its king, 2 Sam 8 : 3-5 ; 1 Kings, 11 : 24.
1, ZOHAR. A Hittite, Gen. 23 : 8.
2, Son of Simeon, Gen. 38 : 30.
3, Descendant of Judah, 1 Chron. 4 : 7.
ZOHELETH. A rock near Enrogel, adjoining Jerusalem, 1 Kings, 1 : 9.
ZOPHAR. One of Job's three friends, called the Mamathite, Job, 2 : 11, note C. B.; answers, Job, 11 : 1 ; second speech, 20 : 1.
ZOPHIM. A plain on Mount Pisgah, Numb. 23 : 14.
ZORAH or ZOREAH. A city of Dan, on the borders of Judah, Josh. 19 : 41, note C B ; here Samson was born and buried, Judges, 13 : 2-25 ; 16 : 31 ; men sent from to spy the land, 18 : 2 ; fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron 11 : 10.
ZUPH. A Levite, the father of Samuel, 1 Sam. 1 : 1 ; 1 Chron. 6 : 34. 35 ; his posterity dwelt here, 1 Sam. 9 : 5, note C. B.
ZUR. A prince of Midian, whose daughter was killed by Phineas, Numb. 25 : 15 ; was himself slain, 31 : 8.
ZURISHADDAI. The father of Shalumiel, Numb. 1 : 6.
ZUZIMS. A race of giants who dwelt beyond Jordan—were conquered by Chedorlaomer and his allies, Gen. 14 : 5 ; supposed to be the same as Zamzummims, Deut. 2 : 20.

THE END.

EUXINE or BLACK SEA MACEDONIA THRACIA
PAPHLAGONIA
GALATIA
MYSIA CAPPADOCIA
CARIA
PAMPHYLIA
CILICIA SICILY
CRETE
CYRENAICA
LIBYA
EGYPT ARABIA
Travels and Voyages of St. Paul.
St. Paul's return to Jerusalem after his Conversion and his Travels & Voyages till his second return
1st Voiage
2d Journey
3d Journey
Jerusalem
Alexandria
Gaza
Cyrene
Long. East 24 from Greenwich 26
22
28
30
32
34

CANAAN

Adapted to the GOSPEL HISTORY and Exhibiting the PRINCIPAL TRAVELS OF JESUS CHRIST

PLAN of the TEMPLE

Reference

1 Holy of Holies
2 Holy Place
3 Altar of Burnt offg
4 Priests Court
5 Israelites Court
6 Womens Court
7 Court of the Gentiles
8 Solomons Porch
9 Beautiful Gate

Sidon
Damascus
Tyre
Cesarea
Ptolemais
Capernaum
Bethsaida
Nazareth
Tiberias
Gergesa
Gadara
Abila
Bostra
Cesarea Palestinæ
SAMARIA
Ampatris
Joppa
Ephraim
Bethabara
Philadelphia
Jericho
Emmaus
Azotus
JERUSALEM
Bethany
Machærus
Bethlehem
Hebron
Country
Gaza
Sea of the Dead Sea

Reference to our Lords Travels

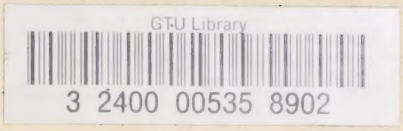
From Nazareth to Jerusalem when twelve years of age and his return

From his entrance on his Ministry to the Passover next ensuing in the thirty first year of his life A.D. 29

From the first to the second Passover during his Ministry A.D. 29.

From Jerusalem to Capernaum after the celebration of the second Passover

It appears that our Lord did not visit Jerusalem at the celebration of either the third or fourth Passover during his Ministry, but retiring chiefly at Capernaum frequently visited other parts of Galilee and sometimes the country beyond Jordan and the Sea of Galilee or Tiberias



Our Saviours Journeyings from the fourth Passover during his Ministry to the fifth at he was Crucified in the thirty fifth year of his

PLAN OF THE CITY OF JERUSALEM

Sepulchres of the
Ephraim Gate
Corner Gate
Mid Gate
Upper Gate
Lazarus Tomb
Sepulchres of Christ
Valley Gate
Fountain Gate
Pool of Siloam
Dung Gate
Water Gate
Prison Gate
Upper Pool
Gihon

MAP of CANAAN or the HOLY LAND
Edrei
Asitaroh
Gergesi
Tiberias
Ramath mizpeh
Kenath Nobah
Mahanaim
Succoth
Gilead
Shiloh
Ephraim
Bethabara
Aroer
Adam
Debir
RABBATH AMMON
Abel shittim
Gezer
Ajalon
Gibeon
Ginathoth
Bethhogla
Jericho
Kedemoth
Lasha
Beezer
Dibon
Arnon
Hebron
Kirjath arba
Carmel
Note The outer line of the Dead Sea is drawn according to its extent as described by Josephus, the inner line represents it as described by modern Travellers
Scale of English Miles

S BOOK M
RETURNED

GTU Library
2400 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709
For renewals call (510) 649-2500

All items are subject to recall.

